WOOD TO REPLACE GEN. GRANT HERE

To Command the Department of the East When He Leaves the Philippines.

PRIZE POST IN THE ARMY

Putting Him in It Taken to be the President's Answer to Koehler Critics.

When Major General Leonerd Wood, U. S. A., at present in command of the Division of the Philippines, returns to the United States a few months hence, he will be sent to New York to replace Major General Frederick D. Grant as the Commander of the Department of the East with headquarters on Governors Island. By that time the Department of the East will have taken rank as the premier assignment within the gift of the War Department. That Gen. Wood is the officer who, according to the best information, will get the plum is taken by many as another proof of the strong friendship that the President has always entertained for him.

It is said that Gen. Grant's speech, delivered recently before Meade Post, G. A. R., Philadelphia, a part of which was at first interpreted as a criticism of the President, has nothing to do with the proposed assignment of Gen. Wood to the Governors Island headquarters. Gen. Grant's explanation of that incident, it is said, satisfied both the President and Secretary Taft and that incident was closed long ago.

Gen. Grant, according to the present plan, will remain in command of the department until the arrival of Gen. Wood. At present he is busy with his duties at the Jamestown Exposition, where he will have command of the troops which will participate in the celebration of the tercentenary of the old Virginia settlement.

Surprise After Koehler Affair.

While the coming of Gen. Wood is no surprise to those who are aware of the strong attachment existing between the President and the General, there are many officers who did not think that the War Department's intentions would get out so soon after the Koehler affair. In that case Capt. Koehler, one of the most brilliant of the younger officers of the army, was court-martialed by order of Gen. Wood for conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline in preferring and forwarding to the Military Secretary of the Department of Mindanao captious and unnecessary charges and specifications against his commanding officer, which, in this instance, was Major Scott, the commander of the military post of Jolo.

The court-martial convened and after hearing the evidence found Capt. Koehler guilty, as charged, and sentenced him to be reprimanded by the reviewing authority. From this verdict Capt. Koehler appealed, contending that Gen. Wood, the department commander, was the accuser or prosecutor and that the reprimand he imposed as a sentence was harsh and excessive. In that appeal, now one of the memorable documents in the army archives, Capt. Koehler said that "the severity, even the harshness of the reprimand administered shows prejudice, bias, unfairness, and a preconceived conviction that I was guilty as previously charged." Further on, Capt. Koehler declared that "I was harassed and handicapped by the feeling that I was helpless and at the mercy of a superior who would make use of every unfair advantage to harm me and to protect his own personal friend, Major Scott."

Was Censured by Implication.

In reprimanding Capt. Koehler, Gen. Wood had declared that Capt. Koehler had been guilty of conduct which indicated that he "was seriously wanting in those close, clear-cut, and well-defined conceptions of a soldier's duty which should be found in every officer of the army; that his conceptions of the standards of conduct and uprightness as they exist in the army were distorted to a degree not found in the just and fair-minded." Gen Wood also advised Capt. Koehler to cultivate those habits of true soldierly subordination which he said the evidence in the case showed him to lack.

Capt. Koehler's appeal was forwarded to the War Department by Gen. Wood, and Secretary Taft directed Gen. Wood to file charges against Koehler and to bring him to trial before a court-martial to be appointed by President Roosevelt. This was done, and Capt. Koehler was brought to trial on three charges, all of them referring directly to the language of his appeal from Gen. Wood's reprimand. The court-martial appointed by the President met, heard the evidence, and rendered a verdict of not guilty.

The findings of the court-mertial came back to Washington for review by President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft. Secretary Taft, in his review, which was sent to the President, declared that the evidence showed that Gen. Wood was neither unfair nor prejudiced and that the language of the reprimand which caused all the trouble was sufficiently within the evidence. The Secretary added that he was convinced that the finding of the second court could not be supported by the evidence, and the President was informed that if he approved the findings it would be his duty, as Commander in Chief of the army, to order Gen. Wood before a court-martial for perverting the power as a department commander to accomplish an unjust and unfair purpose against his subordinate officer. "You cannot, in justice to Gen. Wood," said Secretary Taft, "find any evidence in the record to sustain the bringing of the proceedings or the finding of the court against him."

President Supported Him.

The President could not change a verdict of acquittal to one of guilty, so he approved the sentence, with this significant indorsement:

"The proceedings, finding, and acquittal in the case of Capt. Lewis M. Koehler, Fourth Cavalry, U. S. A., are disapproved. I entirely concur in all that the Secretary of War says of Capt. Koehler and of Gen. Wood and of the poor showing made by the court which last passed on the case."

The proposal now to give Gen. Wood that is destined, with the abolishment of the divisional groupings of the army, to be the highest assignment next to that of Chief of Staff, is taken by those who are familiar with recent history as one of the President's answers to the criticisms of his friend Gen. Wood in the Koehler case.

When Gen. Grant will go when Gen. Wood takes his place, as now seems certain, is not known. He may be assigned to other department or he may be sent to the Philippines to relieve one of the division officers who will be ordered home at the end of the present year.

ALDERMAN NOONAN ARRESTED

Held for Hitting a Special Officer for Refusing to "Pull Off" in a Case.

Cornelius D. Noonan of 155 East Ninety-seventh Street, an Alderman, representing the Thirty-fifth District, was arrested and locked up in the East 104th Street Station on a charge of assaulting a special policeman last night. The complainant is Stephen Doolsy, a special policeman attached to the Star Theatre, at Lexington Avenue and 107th Street, and living at 1,820 Lexington Avenue.

Doolsy last night arrested Arthur Thornton, a young man living in Noonan's district, for creating a disturbance in front of the theatre. At the station house the police found a blackjack and a revolver in his possession.

Dooley returned to the theatre after making the arrest, and was accosted by Noonan, who, Dooley says, asked:

"You are the special officer who arrested that young felow a little while ago?"

"Yes, I arrested him," said Dooley.

"Well," Dooley says Noonan told him, "you'll have to pull off on that case."

Dooley says he told Noonan, whom he did not then know, that the place to talk about pulling off cases was at the station house, whereupon, Dooley alleges, Noonan struck him with his clenched fist in the mouth, cutting his lip. Noonan was immediately arrested by Dooley.

Noonan explained to Dooley, the latter says, that he was an Alderman.

"I don't care a rap who you are," Dooley says he replied.

At the station house it was explained to Noonan that it would be necessary for a Magistrate to accept bail in his case. Noonan sent half a dozen friends out to find a Magistrate.

WOMAN BURGLAR ARRESTED.

Housewife Who Was Robbed Caught Her in a Hallway and Held Her.

Charged with entering an apartment in the house at 143 East Thirtieth Street and stealing several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry, a woman who gave her name as Mary Hilliard, 25 years old, of 205 East Fifty-sixth Street, was arrested late last night, and when searched, according to the police, the missing jewelry was found in her possession. She was taken to the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, where a charge of burglary was made against her.

While in her apartments on the third floor Mrs. William Butler heard a noise in the rear rooms, and going there she says that she found the door leading into the hallway open. She looked out and saw the Hilliard woman standing there. Questioning her, Mrs. Butler says that the woman replied: "I have made a mistake. I want a friend on the floor below."

As the woman started down the stairs, Mrs. Butler says that she saw something glitter under a cape which the woman wore. She followed her, and when she reached the foot of the stairs, Mrs. Butler says that she lifted the cape and discovered that the woman had her silver jewel case and her gold watch and chain. Seizing her by the arm, Mrs. Butler shouted for help and several tenants ran to her aid.

The police say that when the women was searched Mrs. Butler's keys were found in her pocket. Mrs. Butler told the police that she had left the keys in the door.

When questioned the woman would only say:

"I am disgraced for life, and you can't get me to say a thing about myself."

BIG TIME ON 100TH BIRTHDAY.

Mr. Miller Arose Very Early, but Hated to Go to Bed at Night.

When the celebration of Moses Miller, the centenarian of East Eighty-first Street, was all over yesterday his wife and children and grandchildren had difficulty in inducing him to go to bed.

"Why, I'm having the time of my life," he said. "I don't want to spoil it by going to bed. I actually feel frisky." And Mr. Miller meant every word of it.

It was the happiest birthday he had ever spent. He smoked two or three big, black cigars, drank a glass or two of wine, chatted with his family and friends, went to the Seventy-eighth Street Synagogue, was congratulated, petted and fussed over, and altogether had a great time, even for a man 100 years "young," as he insists on calling himself.

Mr. Miller was the first one up in the Miller home at 416 East Eighty-first Street yesterday morning. The hour was only 6:30 o'clock, but he simply couldn't stay in bed any longer on his 100th birthday. Friends began to arrive early. By bedtime more than 100 had called.

There were many presents, but the most highly prized of all was a cake with "100 years" in icing on the top. It was too pretty to cut and will be kept until the other good things have been eaten.

Seven children, his wife, twenty-one grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren helped make the day a happy one for Mr. Miller. A dozen or so of telegrams came from friends in other cities wishing him health, wealth, and happiness.

SNEEZED HERSELF BLIND.

Woman Stricken Suddenly in the Night Unable to See on Waking.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, March 31.—Seeking to regain her sight, which was lost during the night, Mrs. Josepb Jack of 224 Fair Street of this city, is under the care of an eye specialist in Philadelphia, who pronounced her case one of the strangest in medical annals.

It is supposed by the specialist that the affliction was caused by a fit of sneezing which attacked Mrs. Jack just before she retired. The specialist says she is suffering from a hemorrhage of the eyes, but cannot promise her absolute relief. Mrs. Jack on waking in the morning did not realize that her sight had gone. She noticed the absence of light, and thought it early. Then she heard the church bells, and said to her husband: "What makes it so dark, Jack?"

"Why, it is not dark; it's a fine, bright day," was his reply.

Then she understood that her sight had gone, and she became hysterical. The trip to Philadelphia for treatment followed. The woman has not been in good health for the last two years, but never before had eye trouble.

DETECTIVE TO GUARD YOUNG ROCKEFELLER

Has Sat Unknown in the Bible Class Watching Church Leader.

TO KEEP OFF THE CRANKS

Oil Magnate's Son Absent from Yesterday's Session—Fears for His Health.

Many of the Rockefeller Bible class members are asking each other who played detective while studying the Good Book? It was learned only yesterday that there had been a detective at the class sessions.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was not present at the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church yesterday morning when the class assembled. In place of his name being on the church bulletin as leader of the class there appeared the name of the Rev. W. S. Richardson, assistant pastor of the church. Mr. Rockefeller's absence was explained by those close to him as the result of ill-health and fear of a nervous breakdown. But the change in the name of the leader on the bulletin was not explained.

The belief spread among the Bible students of the son of the Standard Oil magnate that their leader had decided to give up his leadership. At the same time it became known that while young Mr. Rockefeller has directed the attention of his class in the past to things Biblical and wise he has also employed a detective to sit attentively as a Bible student and think not upon the lesson of the day, but upon the more practical proposition of caring for the safety of the leader.

There have been cranks of many sorts to visit the class, and at least one has arisen and protested with vehemence against the accumulation of such a vast fortune as the Rockefellers are reputed to possess.

Whether the detective was a regularly enrolled member or whether he was still in the little congregation were questions that remained unanswered.

"Dinged if I know," said Smith, the canny Scotch member.

Mr. Smith is liberal minded, as he says himself, and sometimes uses expressions of emphasis—of mild emphasis. He did not blush when he said "dinged."

Young Mr. Rockefeller's class has been a nest of newspaper reporters, who have followed his disquisitions on Bible history, and the reports that have been printed have caused no end of activity among the paragraphers the country over. There have been cartoons, besides. Earnest in his work as a Bible class leader, the son of the head of Standard Oil has been a subject for those who poke fun in print, and he has felt this.

On one occasion he asked advice of a number of college Presidents as to his possible action in this matter. He did not want to quit the job under fire, so to speak, and when he was advised to stick to it he did so. But that was months ago. His absence from the class for an indefinite period for fear of a nervous collapse is taken in his class to mean that he is not now so eager for the work as formerly.

When the Rev. Mr. Richardson addressed the class yesterday there was a big bunch of flowers on the table near him. He spoke of the beauties of nature at this time of year, and informed the class that Spring had come. Then an interesting incident occurred. A sparrow flew over the heads of the class, with a cheery chirp and brisk flutter of her little brown wings. She had a bit of straw in her mouth, and she winged with it to a corner of the rafters above the sanctuary.

"Nothing remarkable about that," said one of the church attendants. "Quite a number of sparrow families have been brought into the world and educated in this same church."

DURHAM MEN IN CONTROL.

Mayor-Elect Reyburn of Philadelphia Announced His Cabinet.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Mayor-elect John E. Reyburn, who will take the oath of office at noon to-morrow, late to-night announced the appointment of the following four Directors for his Cabinet:

Director of Public Safety—Henry Clay, at present Select Councilman from the Sixteenth Ward.

Director of Public Works—George B. Stearns.

Director of Health and Charities—Dr. Joseph S. Neff, Medical Director of Jefferson Medical College.

Director of Supplies—Joseph Klemmer, ex-Register of Wills.

All of the Directors, with the exception of Stearns, have been activs in Republican politics for many years, and have been associated with the Durham machine. This may mean that Israel Durham, beaten for his leadership by Mayor Weaver, will have a new lease of political life.

GIRL RESCUES SMALL BOY.

Miss Garrison Dives Off Pier While Men Are Getting a Boat Ready.

Miss Fannie Garrison, 20 years old, of Eighty-fifth Street, Bath Beach, Brooklyn, dived yesterday from the Captain's Pier at Bath Beach and rescued 14-year-old Frank Verrity, who was seized with a cramp while swimming.

Some twenty men were on the pier watching Frank and four companions as they swam out about forty yards from the pier. The men saw that something was wrong with Frank, and were just getting a boat ready to go out to his assistance when Miss Garrison dived from the pier and swam to him.

She kept the boy above water until the men rowed out to her. Frank was drawn on board unconscious, but a little rubbing soon revived him.

2-CENT FARE DELAY.

Gov. Stuart to Hear Arguments of Railroad Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Penn., March 31.—Gov. Stuart, according to the request of officers of the railroad companies, will not sign the 2-cent fare bill passed by the Legislature until the railroads can present briefs and argue against the proposed law.

President Baer of the Reading, and officers and attorneys of the Pennsylvania Railroad, have attacked the bill upon the ground that it is unconstitutional.

After all, USHER'S the Scotch that made the highball famous.—Adv.

RICHARD CARLE INJURED.

In Playing a Joke on His Company He Falls from a Train.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Penn., March 31.—Richard Carle, in playing a joke upon his company while en route from Pittsburg, was badly injured in jumping from the locomotive where he was hiding from his companions.

First reports received by the railroad authorities in this city at midnight were to the effect that Carle had fallen from the Eastern Express west of Altoona and been killed.

According to Mrs. Carle her husband left the Pullman soon after it left Pittsburg and could not be found anywhere within the next three hours. The train was stopped at a station west of Altoona, and the railroad agents notified to make an investigation.

When the train reached Altoona, Carle, who had been hiding in the tender of the locomotive, jumped from the train while it was moving rapidly and was seriously hurt.

When the train arrived here he was sleeping under the influence of an opiate.

That is the story as told by members of Carle's Company.

The conductor on the train said that Carle jumped on the locomotive as the train was under headway in the Union Station, Pittsburg, and fell off.

He was able to catch the last car and was forced to ride on the rear of the train until it reached Altoona as the vestibule was closed.

PITTSBURG'S RIGHTEOUS MEN.

Search for 50 by Chamber of Commerce Committee Reveals 28.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 31.—Some time ago a paper published in a little town in Iowa declared that if Pittsburg had existed in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah it would have been destroyed as were those cities. It went on to tell how the Lord, according to Genesis, xviii., 26, told Abraham that if fifty righteous men were produced, the City of Sodom would be saved. Failing these, thirty, then twenty, and finally ten were asked for, but still they could not be had, and the city was destroyed. The Iowa editor intimated that there were not half a dozen in Pittsburg.

The Chamber of Commerce waxed indignant. They decided to refute the charge. The annual banquet is to be held next Thursday, and it was decided that at that time they would prove where Pittsburg stood. The Banquet Committee was authorized to select the list of righteous. Announcement was just been made that, while they have not obtained fifty, they have gathered together twenty-eight who will pass muster. The utmost secrecy is being maintained as to the identity of these twenty-eight men, and no one will know who they are until the night of the banquet. There are allegations that the Banquet Committee have placed their own names on the list, and if this charge proves correct all kinds of trouble is threatened.

G. B. BOSWELL A SUICIDE.

Well-Known Pittsburger Kills Himself in a Railroad Station.

PITTSBURG, March 31.—George B. Boswell, 52 years old, art connoisseur and wealthy retired business man, walked into the East Liberty Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad last evening and, after gazing at his reflection in a mirror for a few moments fired a bullet into his brain. The act is attributed to temporary insanity resulting from a nervous breakdown.

Mr. Boswell was one of the best-known business men of Pittsburg and had large interests in several concerns, particularly the Sterling Paint and Glass Company, of which he was a Director. With a wife and two grown sons and a daughter he lived in a mansion at 927 Sheridan Avenue, in the fashionable Highland Park district, where he had gathered an extensive collection of paintings and books.

For some time he had been in bad health and recently became so melancholy and despondent that members of his family kept a careful watch over him. He was taken to Atlantic City, but returned a few days ago without having obtained any relief.

STRICKEN IN CARRIAGE.

Old Man Greets Family at Pier and a Moment Later Goes to Hospital.

While on his way to his home with his wife and children, who had just returned from a Southern trip, Ignatius Lersner, 69 years old, a retired merchant, of 231 West Ninety-sixth Street, was stricken last evening with cerebral hemorrhage and taken to the Hudson Street Hospital. His condition is said to be serious.

Accompanied by her two children, Eloise, 11 years old, and Arnine, 6 years old, Mrs. Lersner arrived on the Old Dominion steamship Jamestown at 5 o'clock. After greeting his family on the pier, Mr. Lersner called a coach. The vehicle had gone only a block when Mr. Lersner fell forword unconscious. Mrs. Lersner tried unsuccessfully to revive him, and called a policeman, who ordered the driver to hurry to the hospital.

Mrs. Lersner and her children were prostrated. After being attended by a physician they were driven home.

WON'T RIVAL DOMINION LINE.

C. W. Morse Denies Intending to Run Ships to Norfolk.

Charles W. Morse, who controls most of the Atlantic Coast steamship lines, denied emphatically yesterday a published report that he had in contemplation the establishment of a line of steamers to run between here and Norfolk as a rival to the Old Dominion Line, which, the story said, he desired to acquire. The steamers which Mr. Morse thought of putting in the service, it was said, would make the run in twelve hours. The Old Dominion liners require about nineteen hours for it. When this report was shown to Mr. Morse yesterday, he said:

"Nothing in it. I have never talked with the Old Dominion people about the purchase of their line; never had any negotiations with them. I haven't wanted the line, and don't want it. I have never acquired a line of steamships that was not brought to me—offered to me. And the Old Dominion Line was never offered to me."

"And will you establish a new line to run between here and Norfolk?" was asked.

"No; never thought of such a thing," was the emphatic reply.

AUTO KILLS NIECE OF C. P. HUNTINGTON

Mrs. E. S. Loveland's Machine Plunges Over a Wall Near Oneonta.

MRS. J. R. BICKFORD HURT

The Women Were Driving Alone and Inexperience Caused the Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

ONEONTA, N. Y., March 31.—Mrs. E. S. Loveland, a niece of the late Collis P. Huntington, was instantly killed this afternoon when her automobile plunged over the "Chinese Wall" on the outskirts of this town. Her daughter, Mrs. J. R. Bickford of Boston, was in the machine with her mother, but escaped with a sprained ankle and a few slight bruises.

The automobile was a new one, purchased two weeks by Mrs. Loveland in Boston. She was a novice at operating the car—a small electric runabout—and had received only a few lessons from an instructor. Her daughter, Mrs. Bickford, was experienced in the management of motor vehicles, but Mrs. Lovelsnd had insisted on running the machine when they started for a spin after luncheon to-day.

They had gone but a little way when they neared the wall which runs along Chestnut Street. In making the turn Mrs. Loveland ran too close to the inside curb and put on the brakes to avoid a collision. In starting again she apparently threw the full speed lever on. The machine lurched forward and in an instant was through the flimsy wooden railing and over the wall, a sheer drop of 18 feet.

Both women screamed as the machine left the street and they saw death before them. Their cries of terror were heard by W. J. Underdown, who was standing at his back door, and J. O. Coy, who saw the machine plunge over the wall and Mrs. Loveland crushed beneath the wreckage.

Mrs. Bickford was thrown free and alighted on her feet. She staggered to the machine and shut off the power. Then she made frantic attempts to drag her mother from beneath the machine. When the two men rushed to her assistance and extricated Mrs. Loveland it was found that she was dead. Her skull had been fractured and her back broken. Mrs. Bickford was taken to the home of her mother, where a physician attended her.

Mrs. Bickford was on a visit to her mother, having arrived here last Friday. Her husband in Boston was telegraphed to and is now on his way here. Mrs. Bickford has operated automobiles for several years, and has a machine of her own. It was her enthusiasm for automobiling which influenced her mother to purchase the electric runabout.

Although Mrs. Loveland was about 62 years old, she was interested in outdoor life, and was fearless with horses. She and her daughter had planned many trips through the country as soon as the elder woman had completely mastered the art of running her recent purchase.

Mrs. Loveland, who had lived in this town about twenty-six years, was very wealthy, having been a beneficiary under the will of her uncle, Collis P. Huntington. Her husband died several years ago. In addition to Mrs. Bickford she is survived by another daughter, Mrs. S. D. Wadkeys. The latter is a resident of Oneonta.

USING UP PENTELIC MARBLE.

The Carnegie Institute Has Nearly Exhausted the Supply.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 31.—The infinite care which is being taken in the construction of the Carnegie Institute was illustrated yesterday when one of the massive columns of Pentelic marble from the old Parthenon quarries at Athens was torn out of the Hall of Statuary because of a slight blemish. A new column of the beautiful Greek marble was yesterday obtained after a year's effort and was substituted for the column marred by the blemish.

The supply of Pentelic merble has been nearly exhausted by the contractors building the Carnegie Institute, and it is understood that the Greek Government will prohibit further foreign shipments from the famous quarries.

ELIMINATES COAL SMOKE.

Claim for Fluid Used by Inventor to Burn Ashes.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 31.—John Ellmore, the Altoona man who announced that he could make ashes burn, says he has discovered that by the use of the fluid which he uses to burn the ashes he can almost totally eliminate smoke. This discovery was made yesterday afternoon while he was making a demonstration in a downtown office building.

Side by side are two big furnaces, and in one of them Ellmore was burning coal and his treated ashes, while in the other coal was being burned exclusively. Each of the furnaces has separate smokestacks, and the owner of the building found that while an immense volume of black smoke was coming from the furnace in which coal was being burned exclusively, the stack alongside, in which the treated ashes and coal were being consumed, was emitting nothing except a soft, white vapor.

IT RAINED TORPEDOES.

They Were of the Railroad Variety and Were Blown Up with a Car.

CUMBERLAND, Md., March 31.—A car loaded with railroad torpedoes and iron tubes containing carbolic acid gas, near the middle of a rapidly moving eastbound Baltimore & Ohio freight train, was blown up to-day while passing Patterson's Creek, eight miles east of here. The car was demolished, the connecting cars were smashed, two steel hopper cars on an adjoining track were blown over, the track was torn up for some distance and telegraph poles and wires were destroyed.

The noise of the explosion was deafening and thousands of exploded torpedoes rained on house roofs many yards away. No one was injured.

RICHARD MANSFIELD WORSE.

Showed Great Weakness Yesterday—May Be Consultation Over Him To-day.

More alarming reports about the condition of Richard Mansfield, who closed the season recently, suffering from extreme nervous exhaustion, became current last night.

It was said on Saturdey thet he hed made rapid progress toward recovery and would be able to sail for Europe in a few days. Last night, however, it became known that earlier in the day his condition had taken a turn for the worse.

His physician, Dr. Floyd M. Crandall, admitted that he had found Mr. Mansfield much weaker yesterday. It was intimated that there may be a consultation of physicians over him to-day. Before Mr. Mansfield closed his road tour he suffered severely from stomach trouble, but kept up bravely to the end.

BUYS $1,200,000 COLLECTION.

J. P. Morgan Reported to Have Purchased Art Treasures in Brussels.

BRUSSELS, March 31.—It is currently reported that J. Pierpont Morgan of New York has acquired for $1,200,000 the splendid collection of Jules van den Poreboom, which comprises pictures, chimney-pieces, furniture, arms, brasses, and old engravings.

The collection is installed in a sixteenth century Dutch house at Anderlecht, a suburb of Brussels. A replica of this house will be constructed in New York State under the superintendence of Francois Malfait, the architect.

The malady spread despite operations. Miss Free was 23 years old.

TRAIN WRECKERS TRY AGAIN.

Attempt on the Pittsburg Flier Near Lowellsville Is Frustrated.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, March 31.—It was learned to-night that an attempt made yesterday to wreck the Pittsburg flier, one of the Pennsylvania Railroad's fast trains between Cleveland and Pittsburg, was frustrated when the crew of a shifting engine near Lowellsville removed a telephone pole which had been placed across the rails with its ends secured with heavy stakes driven into the ground. Seventeen minutes later the fast train, running at the rate of 50 miles an hour, rushed by.

It is believed the wreckers were those who derailed the Chicago Limited and the Keystone express on the Pennsylvania Railroad near Pittsburg recently. Capt. Gastinger of Newcastle, Penn., with a force of railroad detectives, is investigating.

MR. CLEVELAND'S THANKS

For His Birthday Messages, Now in His Book of Grateful Recollection.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 31.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland has sent this message to the newspapers with a request for its general publication:

"It seems to be impossible for me to acknowledge, except through the press of the country, the generosity and kindly consideration of my countrymen, which have been made manifest by congratulatory messages and newspaper comment on the occasion of my seventieth birthday. These have deeply touched me, and in the book of grateful recollection they are written where every remaining day of my life I can turn a page and read them."

ONLY RUNNING FOR EXERCISE.

Prisoner for Attempted House Breaking Is to Recover His Breath in Jail.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 31.—Michaele Burzuskin, arrested last Saturday night for attempting to enter the home of Hyman Hankins at 8 New Street, made a novel plea to Judge Harris to-day.

The man was caught by Chanceman Douglass as he was sprinting at top speed down the street, Hankins hotly pressing him and crying, "Stop thief!" Still Burzuskin told the court that he was "only running for exercise."

"I'll put you under $100 bail till you get your wind for another," said the court.

SOUND OF GUN KILLED HIM.

Sufferer from Heart Trouble Was Shocked by Friend's Weapon.

ROCHESTER, March 31.—George Fennimore, 63 years old, who had been employed as coachman by a Rochester family for thirty-two years, dropped dead in a field in the town of Gates this afternoon.

He was out with a friend, who was trying a new pointer dog. The man fired at a bird, and as he did so Fennimore fell over. He had heart disease, and the shock of the report killed him.

100 PASSENGERS IN PERIL.

Baltimore & Ohio Trains in Collision in West Virginia.

FAIRMONT, West Va., March 31.—Baltimore & Ohio passenger train No. 11, bound for Wheeling, West Virginia, collided head-on with a freight train at Pritchards Mills, seven miles west of here, this afternoon.

Over 100 passengers were severely shaken up end bruised, and a brakeman on the freight train was seriously injured. Both locomotives were demolished, and the trains badly damaged. A misunderstanding of orders, it is said, caused the accident.

Steamer Axminster Refloated.

WILMINGTON, N. C., March 31.—The British steamer Axminster, Savannah, Ga., to Manchester, with a cargo of cotton, phosphate, rosin and lumber, which ran ashore on Frying Pan Shoals was successfully floated to-day by the Wilmington tugs Blanche and Marion and towed into Southport apparently uninjured.

Attic Roof Collapses and Smashes Ballroom Ceiling in Ancestral Home of the del Dragos.

ROME, March 31.—While Lloyd C. Griscom, the United States Ambassador, and Mrs. Griscom were returning to-day from the Easter services at the American Church, Mr. Griscom saw smoke rising from the roof of his home, the Palazzo del Drago. Leaving Mrs. Griscom to follow him, he hurried into the building and found that the servants were unconscious of the fact that the palace was on fire. The Ambassador gave the alarm and led the way to the attic, where, on opening the door, he was confronted by a burst of flame which burned one of his fingers and singed his eyebrows.

The firemen were quickly on the scene, but by that time the beams, which were put in place centuries ago, were burning briskly. The roof over the attic collapsed, causing the centre portion of the ceiling of the magnificent ballroom to fall. The furniture and paintings were quickly removed, but not before several of the latter, including one of President Roosevelt which was dedicated last May, were damaged. After working two hours the firemen succeeded in checking the blaze. The loss is estimated at $10,000, and is covered by insurance.

First Secretary of Embassy Hitt, Military Attaché Edwards, and Second Secretary Winthrop, and the entire family of Prince del Drago hurried to the palace when they learned of the fire.

Ambassador Griscom had intended to-morrow to sign a lease for the house, which still is under lease to the former United States Ambassador, Henry White. He also purposed at the same time to insure his own household goods.

The origin of the fire has not been definitely established. The fusing of an electric wire is mentioned as the probable cause.

BURIED 'BODY' WAS DYNAMITE

Detectives Hunting for a Crime Nearly Blew Themselves Up.

When Detective Meyers of Inspector Flood's staff, detailed to duty at the Morrisania Police Station, went to his home in Westchester Saturday afternoon he was told by a neighbor that she had seen a man burying a long box back of a barn on the premises of Joseph Lefrieri, a contractor, who lives at 197 Edison Avenue, Westchester, and that the box might contain a body.

Meyers went back to the station and got Detectives Creevy, Cormack, and O'Brien. They waited until 11 o'clock Saturday night, and then, armed with picks, shovels, and lanterns, went to the barn.

There they found six places which bore evidence that the earth had been dug up. Meyers started to work with a pick, while the others stood guard. Suddenly a window in the house was raised and a voice, which proved to be that of Lefrieri, demanded to know what they were doing.

The reply of the detectives was evidently not satisfactory to the contractor, for the next minute a door was opened and four vicious bulldogs rushed out on Meyers and his men. The detectives managed to hold the animals at bay and continued their digging. Then Lefrieri himself appeared, holding two larger bulldogs in leash and carrying a shotgun.

Meyers told the contractor they were detectives, and Lefrieri called off his dogs and put away his gun. He denied that any body had been buried on his place, but the detectives resumed their digging operations. Suddenly Meyers's pick struck something that felt like wood. Meyers dropped the pick and grabed a shovel.

In about two minutes he had uncovered an oblong box. The lid was pried off, and about 100 pounds of eble-bodied dynamite was disclosed to view. Meyers and the other detectives turned a bit pale.

"Well," exclaimed O'Brien, "it's lucky for us that your pick did not get into that box an inch or two further, or we'd all be scattered over this barn lot by now."

Five other boxes of dynamite were dug up, and the stuff was taken to the Bureau of Combustibles. Lefrieri said he hadn't buried the stuff there and didn't know how it got there.

KILLED BY HIGHWAYMEN.

Miller Found by Motorman on a Bad Corner in Williamsburg.

The "Bloody Corner," at Driggs Avenue and North Ninth Street, Williamsburg, nicknamed so on account of many murders there in past years, added another victim to its list yesterday.

John Miller, 30 years old, who lived with a sister at Wythe Avenue and North Sixth Street, died at 2 o'clock in the morning in the Eastern District Hospital, five hours after he had been found unconscious at the corner.

A motorman on a crosstown car saw Miller lying face down on the sidewalk near the curbstone. The motorman summoned a policeman, and an ambulance was called from the Eastern District Hospital. A surgeon found that the man was suffering from a fracture of the skull. Unsuccessful efforts were made at the hospital to restore him to consciousness.

After his death Coroners' Physician Wuest performed an autopsy and found that Miller's death was probably due to a blow on the head from behind.

The police of the Bedford Avenue Station believe Miller was attacked by highwaymen.

FOUR KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Occupants of a Carriage Lose Lives, but Horses Are Uninjured.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 31.—Four persons in a carriage were killed this afternoon at the Fifteenth Street crossing of the Chicago & Alton Railroad by a passenger train. The horses escaped injury.

George Henry and wife and D. H. Monner and wife were the victims. The men were salesmen for local mercantile houses.

COUNT CORTELYOU AS AGAINST TAFT

"Reactionary" Republicans Say He Will Be with Them in a Pinch.

BOOM FOR TAFT CHECKED

Party Will Await Result in Ohio—A Great Factional Split is in Prospect.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—That one of the President's trusted Cabinet officers will be found with the "reactionary" Republicans when the pinch comes is an assertion that is being eagerly circulated on the inside of the Republican organization antagonistic to President Roosevelt, particularly among the Fairbanks and Foraker people. George Bruce Cortelyou, Secretary of the Treasury, is the man named.

The Republican conservatives say among themselves that they now have Mr. Cortelou's sympathy and encouragement in their effort to bring the party back to its moorings of the old McKinley-Hanna days. Cortelyou is a product of those old days, and he was schooled in politics and public life by the big men of the old crowd. It is noticeable that he has not yet shown himself in the Taft ranks.

Mr. Cortelyou's first work in Washington was as private secretary for Estes G. Rathbone of Cuban postal service fame, who was then serving as Fourth Assistant Postmaster General. President Harrison had this place created for political purposes, and Rathbone was put into it as the President's personal political lieutenant to organize fourth-class Postmasters. Rathbone was then a past master in the Ohio lodge of politics, and Cortelyou's initiation was thorough.

Cortelyou's Old and New Friends.

Subsequently Cortelyou became private secretary of President McKinley, and in that capacity the favorite and confidant of such men as Hanna, Henry C. Payne, Cornelius N. Bliss, and Fairbanks. They had decided on Cortelyou's promotion to Cabinet rank when McKinley was shot, and President Roosevelt's appointment of him as First Secretary of the Commerce and Labor Department was in connection with his promise to carry out the policy of his predecessor.

Since that time Cortelyou has been pushed forward as rapidly and eagerly by President Roosevelt as the opportunity offered. He has been made in turn Chairman of the Republican National Committee, Postmaster General, and Secretary of the Treasury. From the latter [illegible] he can step out, as his predecessors have done, into a big post in the business world.

In the pending struggle between Roosevelt Republicanism and the conservative wing, between Taft and a "reactionary" candidate, Cortelyou is confronted with the necessity of choosing between old and loved associations and the claims of gratitude. Thus far he has been silent, as he usually is. But the conservatives are quietly passing around the word that he will be found with them at the last.

Taft Boom Checked By Foraker.

Senator Foraker has well served the opponents of Roosevelt in checking the Taft boom outside of Ohio. Few individuals or Republican State organizations will now commit themselves to the War Secretary until they know whether he is to have the Ohio delegation.

Advices from Ohio indicate that Foraker's challenge checked what would soon have been a stampede for Taft's band wagon if a vigorous opposition had not shown its head. The Taft boom was also showing signs of sturdy strength in Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, and South Dakota especially. Such a shrewd politician of the old Pennsylvania school as Senator Kittredge had declared for Taft. This movement has now stopped short.

But the reactionaries have not been checked. Fairbanks is wearing the nearest approach to a broad smile which is possible on his cold mask of a face. The favorite son crowd—the Pennsylvanians, shouting for Knox, and the Illinois men who think they see just a ghost of a chance for "Uncle Joe" Cannon—are hoppy.

These people are prophesying that Taft and Foraker will destroy each other as Presidential possibilities, no matter how the Ohio fight goes. Many shrewd politicians think the winner will emerge too badly battered in the conflict to be in condition for the political race.

Little Chance of a Compromise.

Elmer Dover and others have worked hard for compromise. Dover is sadly pessimistic now, and finds his only consolation in the hope that this may be a "friendly contest." It will be anything but a "friendly contest." Men like Dover and that class of Republicans who are desperately struggling to keep in the middle of the road seem strangely unable to recognize the real issues.

In the first place it is a personal matter with Foraker, and he is bitter. He was a Presidential possibility when McKinley was hardly known outside of Washington and Ohio, when Hanna was simply a Cleveland business man. In those days Gov. Foraker gave a certain youngster known in Cincinnati as "Big Bill" Taft his first taste of public life with a city Judgeship appointment. In turn Foraker had to stand aside for McKinley and Hanna. When he was again asked to stand aside for Taft it was too much, from his standpoint.

If Foraker is destroyed in this struggle he means to pull down the pillars that support the Taft boom with him. As for Taft, who has been the reluctant candidate of his brothers and his friends, such opposition is the one thing needed to send him into the fight with all his fighting blood at a fever temperature.

Back of Taft stands Roosevelt, determined to destroy Foraker politically, and Foraker knows it. Behind the bitterness of these clashing personalities lies a difference in principles that is fundamental. The would-be compromisers of Republican differences have at last discovered, what every one else has long recognized, that the party contains two diametrically opposed elements, differing as widely as did the Bryan and Gold Democrats in 1896.

Roosevelt, Taft, Burton, and their friends are determined to make the Republican Party one of reform, of advance, while men like Fairbanks and Foraker are equally determined that it shall remain the party of such conservatism as it was in Hanna's day. There is not room in the same party for Roosevelt and La Follette, on one side, and Aldrich and Fairbanks on the other. There is not room in the Ohio party for Foraker and Taft.

FEAR SPLIT IN THE PARTY.

Ohio Republicans Alarmed Over the Prospect of a Bitter Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 31.—Many Republicans in Ohio are in a state almost of consternation as the result of the acceptance by Charles P. Taft of Senator Foraker's challenge to a contest before a party primary. In Mr. Taft's plan to couple the Presidency and Senatorship they see a fight for elimination.

It is realized by conservative leaders of the party that the result of a campaign in which the voters would be called upon to end the political career of either Mr. Taft or Mr. Foraker might cause a split in the party that could not be healed for years. It is feared that the factional differences would prevent Ohio from getting the Presidential nomination and would also give the Senatorship to the Democrats. There is no doubt that a serious effort will be made by both Taft and Foraker men to prevent this plan from being carried out.

The Taft statement has caused excitement in this city, the home of Representative Theodore E. Burton, who is supporting the Secretary of War, but is believed to be a candidate for Foraker's seat in the Senate. There is fear that Taft has weakened his forces by this move.

Foraker has hosts of friends and they are of the class who do things in politics. Many of these friends would be returned to the Senate, but they will not aid Taft at the expense of their idol. Taft as the Roosevelt candidate for the Presidency could receive the indorsement of Ohio Republicans over Foraker, but Taft candidate for President and Senator at the cost of Foraker's political life is another question.

Some Cleveland Republicans to-day said they thought the Foraker challenge should not have been answered till Secretary Taft returned to the United States, and that the reply should have come in some way from him directly rather than through his friends. The men who talked this way are friendly to Foraker. They expressed regret that the challenge had been issued by the Senator, but declared that the acceptance was advised in Washington, intimating that the President probably was responsible for the suggestion that the fight should be made one between the friends and opponents of his Administration in the party.

It is not certain yet that the matter can be adjusted at a primary, despite Foraker's bold challenge and Taft's bolder reply. Secretary of State Thompson has been asked about it and has dodged the question, saying it is a matter that the Attorney General must pass upon. Ex-Secretary of State Laylin two years ago decided that such primaries could not be held under the Ohio election laws at the expense of the State.

In the meantime Fairbanks must not be overlooked in this little Ohio family row. The Vice President is an Ohio man by birth and is working that point very quietly. His friends figure that if Foraker and Taft get to fighting over Ohio he can slip in and by having each side agree to let him be second choice walk away with the indorsement as the compromise candidate.

Mayor Tom L. Johnson said this evening that he believed the fight over the Presidential-Senatorial indorsement in Ohio would result in a Democratic successor to Senator Foraker. At present the Republicans have just one majority on joint ballot in the Legislature. With a factional fight on next year the Democrats may elect several more legislators in close districts.

This would mean a Democratic Senator. Mayor Johnson already has his eyes on the situation, and will try to take advantage of it. Though he has repeatedly said he would not go to the United States Senate if he could, it is certain that he would be able to name the man if the Democrats should carry the Legislature in 1908.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, March 31.—Charles P. Taft's plan for a Foraker-Taft contest involving both the Senatorship and the Presidency has not been received with full favor on either side. There is an effort among leading Republicans to deprecate the idea of such a desperate fight. There is also a feeling that the Taft men should not try to tie up both offices.

Elliot H. Pendleton, independent Republican leader and member of the Honest Election League, said to-day:

"I will favor Secretary Taft for the Presidential nomination. I do not understand that he will be a candidate for Senator and do not understand the significance of hitching the two places together. I think it rather presumptuous to propose that no one or the other stand or fall as a candidate for both offices if chosen or defeated for either.

Julius Fleishmann, ex-Mayor of Cincinnati and President of the Blaine Club, said: "The proposition of Charles P. Taft as to the elimination of nominations is not what the party will be called on to do. The primary, if held at all, will be for the purpose of indorsing a candidate for Senator and one for President. One man cannot hold both offices, and I don't understand what this proposition really means.

George B. Cox, ex-boss of Cincinnati, said: "I have my own opinion regarding the action Ohio Republicans will take in naming their choice for the Presidential nomination, but I do not wish to be interviewed on the subject. I am not taking any part in the contest, and do not expect to. I am out of it."

FORAKER TRICK IS FEARED.

Taft Leaders Will Insist on a Decision by the Voters.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 31.—Charles P. Taft's acceptance of the challenge of Senator Foraker for a primary election among the Republicans of Ohio to decide the Presidential and Senatorial aspirations of Secretary Taft and Mr. Foraker is regarded here as favorable to the Taft supporters. Such a test they have desired since the fight began.

The Taft men insist on a plain primary and oppose the selecting of delegates to voice the sentiments of the voters at a convention. The Foraker men, assisted by the Dick organization, want a convention. Among the voters the Taft idea seems most to be favored, as with a straight vote at the polls there would be no possible chance to pack a convention by the use of the party machinery.

Senators Foraker and Dick are expected to return to Ohio this week. They are in Washington to-day, and it is believed they are planning a scheme to circumvent the Taft men.

There is some doubt as to the feasibility of the primary plan, because of the question of the right of the Secretary of State, as Chief Supervisor of Elections, to use his machinery in such an election. Ohio has no primary law. Secretary of State Thompson does not care to express himself on the subject, but his predecessor, Lewis C. Laylin, who is an authority on such matters, says that such an election cannot be held under State supervision. Whether supervised by the State or the party, however, the primary probably will be held.

Leaders of the Taft movement declare that Foraker issued his challenge at this time in order that the Taft epidemic would not spread to the machine. Even some of the old Foraker guard are in the Taft ranks, and reports from cities and rural sections show that the antagonism of the President by the Senator has caused a strong feeling against him and in favor of Taft.

The action of Foraker on the Hepburn bill has aligned against him the Ohio Shippers' Association, and it is sending anti-Foraker literature through the State. The same can be said of the Ohio Grain Shippers' Association. The Ohio State Medical Society is also working against him. These three organizations reach every election precinct in Ohio, and their members are influential in all communities. They can be called auxiliaries to the Taft boom.

Ex-Gov. Herrick is also aiding Taft. He was nominated for a second term, and the Forakerites say Taft did it. Foraker sulked in the campaign and refused to go on the stump. He said he was ill. Herrick, the night of his defeat, said he would make Foraker "real sick" when the chance came. It has arrived, seemingly, for Herrick is using money and influence in seeking revenge.

Gen. G. A. Harman, State Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, a friend of Foraker, is authority for the statement that the old soldiers are strongly for Taft.

Five of the largest Republican newspapers, including that of Charles P. Taft at Cincinnati, are out for the Secretary of War. Mr. Taft's paper was the only one of any consequence in the southwest section of Ohio that stood for the Cox machine, although his brother in the famous Akron speech flayed the boss.

HERRICK'S SHARP COMMENT.

Says Foraker's Aspirations Are Not Taken Seriously in Ohio.

SANTA BARBARA, March 31.—"I do not believe the people of Ohio take Senator Foraker's personal aspirations seriously. Nor do I think the Republican Party does."

Myron T. Herrick, ex-Governor of Ohio, said to-day that this was the only comment he cared to make about the Senator's aspiration to succeed Roosevelt.

FORAKER LECTURES FAIL.

Negro Leaders in Mississippi Remain Loyal to Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSON, Miss., March 31.—Senator Foraker's colored lecture bureau, which was intended to get delegates for him, has failed in Mississippi. Foraker sent negro spellbinders all the way from New York and Ohio to help his boom at banquets in Jackson and other towns by talking of the Brownsville affair.

They were vigorously applauded at the time, but Jones, Montgomery, McKisson, and other negro leaders are pledged to Roosevelt or his candidate.

Although the entire Republican vote of Mississippi is only 3,000, the State sends ten delegates to National conventions. The whites are mostly for Foraker, but the negroes probably will stick to Roosevelt.

Mr. Taft's Visit to Porto Rico.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 31.—Gov. Winthrop is preparing to make the reception in Porto Rico of Secretary of War Taft second only to that extended to President Roosevelt. Mrs. Taft will precede the Secretary to the island, arriving here on April 11. The present programme includes an informal dinner on Secretary Taft's arrival here April 14, a visit to points of historic interest, and an automobile trip from San Juan to Ponce and return over the road which was taken by President Roosevelt.

FIRE AT GRAVESEND TRACK.

Stable Boys and Trainers Warned by Dog's Barking—Race Horses Saved.

Fire was discovered early this morning in the kitchen used by the employes of Jack McGuiness at the Gravesend race track. The building, a one-story frame structure, was destroyed, and so rapid was the spread of the flames that stable boys, trainers, and others only had time to turn out, to save their possessions and lead to safety the horses Frank Gill, Coy Maid, Bunting, and Gallant Dan, which were in a stable adjoining the kitchen.

About 12.30 the barking of a dog awakened John Smith, a trainer and jockey, Joe Notter. They got up to find the kitchen in flames. By the time the firemen got to the scene the building was beyond saving, and the engine company gave its attention to preventing a spread of the fire. The damage is estimated at $2,000.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but in view of the fire at Sheepshead last week, the stablemen declared the circumstances suspicious.

OYSTER BAY'S ELECTION DAY.

The President's District Likely to Vote Against Saloons.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., March 31.—There are four tickets in the field for Tuesday's local election, and there is also a question of license to be decided. The town has never been "dry," but the advocates of no license say they are confident of carrying the town on the proposition this year. To-morrow night they will hold a mass meeting in the Opera House, with moving pictures, music, and a free show, besides speakers. The recent utterances of the Rev. Mr. Wasson of Riverhead, after that town has been "dry" a couple of years, have been mailed to all voters by the license advocates. Mr. Wasson does not believe in prohibition.

It is believed that the two districts in the village of Oyster Bay, which includes the President's polling place, will vote against license. On the other hand, it is almost certain that the four districts in Glen Cove will go the other way. There are fourteen districts in the town.

TYPHOID GERMS IN HIS ICE.

Jersey City Man Who Cut It from Home-Made Ditches Arrested.

Dr. Frederick Robertson and Food Inspector Gallagher of the Jersey City Health Board yesterday arrested John Briotto of 200 Duncan Avenue on a charge of violating the health laws.

Briotto had fenced in about a block of ground on the meadows at the foot of Duncan Avenue. This area was found intersected with eight ditches, each 8 to 16 feet wide and 200 feet long. From these ditches Briotto had cut during the Winter 200 tons of ice which he had stored in an icehouse near by.

Dr. Robertson analyzed a sample of this ice and found the water infected with typhoid germs. Briotto said the ice was merely to be used for freezing ice cream. It will be destroyed by the Health Board.

Dr. Robertson said the ditches bid fair to breed more mosquitos than the Health Board could exterminate with all the means at its command. Briotto will be arraigned before Police Justice McCarthy to-day.

Special Officer Dies Chasing Boys.

Heart failure, brought on by the exertion of chasing a crowd of boys who were shouting about the theatre, was the cause of the death of Frank Carey, 61 years old, of 210 West Eighty-second Street, a special officer, late last night in the Lincoln Square Theatre, at Sixty-fifth Street and Broadway.

FAILURE IN LOVE, BECAME A MISER

Matthew Hanford Was Refused by the Late Mrs. Wurtz-Dundas.

THEN SOUGHT A FORTUNE

Recluse Left $2,400 to His Landlady Because of Her Kindness—Fortune to Insane Sister.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Proof was discovered to-day that his early love for Mrs. Anna Maria Wurtz-Dundas, the beautiful daughter of Mrs. Joshua Lippincott, was the cause of the life solitude led by Matthew Hanford, whose body was found in a room in a Spruce Street lodging house Friday night. In the room were $5,000 in cash and securities worth $100,000.

John Hanford Pratt, a nephew of the aged recluse, said to-day that from his earliest acquaintance with the old man, dating back nearly thirty years, he had heard of this early romance. Hanford in his youthful days was fond of good society and welcomed into it.

At that period the two Misses Lippincott, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Lippincott, were belles in Philadelphia. Just what the circumstances were that surrounded the love of Hanford for Miss Anna Maria Lippincott, Mr. Pratt said he did not know.

"He told my mother, and in after years members of my family," said Mr. Pratt, "that he believed it was because of his poverty that Miss Lippincott refused his proposals of marriage. He became a hater of women, and never lost an opportunity to charge against them frivolity, cruelty in love matters, and characteristics of double dealing and deception. He came to see me about once a year, and never lost an opportunity on these visits to caution my daughter against frivolity in dealing with love affairs."

Hanford's hoarding of money was evidently occasioned, according to his nephew, by a desire to accumulate a sufficient amount to demonstrate to his early love that his impecunious condition in early life would not always continue. Both Mrs. Wurtz-Dundas and her husband, Major Wurtz-Dundas, died abroad several years ago.

Among the effects found in the man's room by Deputy Coroner Kile was an envelope addressed "To the Landlady." In it were two Pennsylvania railroad certificates of the par value of $1,000 each. The market value of these is now about $1,200 each. There were no other marks on the envelope or within it to indicate the intention of the old man.

A partial explanation, however, is an incident of last Summer. At the time Mr. Hanford had a brief spell of illness, and Mrs. Stute, from whom he rented a room, insisted that he permit her to furnish him with some dainty things to eat. He finally accepted her offer, but volunteered no payment.

One day he surprised Mrs. Stute asking her first name. Upon telling him the old man replied:

"You will not have any cause to regret your kindness to me."

The recluse's fortune goes to his sister, Dr. Mary Pratt, who is an inmate of an asylum for the insane at Blackwood, N. J.

DUNLAP MAY BE MARRIED.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 31.—When William A. Dunlap of New York purchased tickets to Milwaukee to-day for himself, Miss Lavender Byers, and Mrs. W. H. Byers, Miss Byers's mother, it was reported about the Auditorium Hotel that the story that there was to be an Easter wedding might be true, after all. The party disappeared from the hotel in the morning.

Mrs. Byers, her daughter, and Mr. Dunlap had been at the Auditorium Hotel for several days. It is said they came here for the wedding, but friends in New York made the romance public, and Mr. Dunlap and Miss Byers then denied that there was to be any wedding.

DEVOTED COUPLE TOGETHER IN DEATH

Wife Wouldn't Let Consumptive Husband Be Taken from Her.

SHE DIED SOON AFTER HIM

And of the Disease She Caught from Him—Concealed Their Troubles from Others.

Death came to Mrs. Mary Steele on Easter morning just a few hours after she had closed the eyes of her husband and kissed him for the last time in their flat in the apartment house at 39 Washington Square West. So even the grave will not separate the couple, who for nearly thirty years lived practically alone, their lives devoted solely to each other.

Steele was about 55 years old and his wife about three years younger. They were married in this city some thirty years ago and had since been in charge of the house in which the husband died and the house next door. Steele was a plumber, but continual illness prevented him from working at his trade in the last few years. They did not encourage visits from the neighbors and had no visitors save a few of their relatives who lived in another part of the city.

Last Winter Steele was stricken with consumption. The wife refused to live apart from her husband, even though she knew she might also be infected. The pair went quietly about their work, and when at times the man was unable to do his part the wife did it all, and without complaint. They did not let even their relatives know of their desperate state.

Four weeks ago Steele had to take to his bed and his faithful wife became not only the worker for the family, but also his nurse night and day. Toward the last, when his condition became serious, she was advised by people in the house to send her husband to the hospital. To such advice she shook her head. She did not believe much in doctors, she said, and she felt that if he was taken to a hospital he would not receive the care she could give him. Besides, who could know and anticipate his wants better than she could? She obtained medicine for him from the Northern Dispensary in Waverley Place.

On Friday night a niece, a Mrs. O'Brien, living in Downing Street, called on the pair. She found that Steele was very weak, and that his wife was also in a bad way. The latter sat by her husband's bedside holding his hand and weeping. She said that she believed that her husband would soon die.

Early Saturday morning the niece went to the office of Dr. Thomas J. O'Mara of 275 Hudson Street and asked him to go with her to the house. There a pathetic scene greeted them. Steele was dead. Beside him sat his wife, crying and muttering incoherently. Satisfying himself that the man was dead, the physician examined the woman and found that she was not only suffering from consumption, but from insufficient nourishment. He had her removed at once to St. Vincent's Hospital. Policemen Murray and Smythe of the Mercer Street Station sent in the call for the ambulance, and the woman, protesting in vain, was taken from her dead husband's side.

Coroners' Physician O'Hanlon viewed the husband's body and reported to Coroner Harburger that consumption and insufficient nourishment had caused Steele's death. A few hours later Dr. O'Hanlon was called to view the body of the wife. His opinion was the same in her case.

Coroner Harburger said last night that he could not understand how the couple could suffer from lack of nourishment when they lived amid plenty. This is accounted for by those who knew the pair by the fact that they were always so secretive that even the tenants in the house did not know much about them. That the man was ill they knew, but that was all.

Last night the wife's body was taken from the hospital and laid beside that of her husband in their rooms. Together they will be laid at rest in one grave, as no one doubts the ending was the one the woman would have wished.

SHIP WITH A LEARNED CREW.

It's Worth While to Hear the Debates on the Alacuta, Says the Skipper.

When Capt. Thornton of the British ship Alacrita speaks of his crew in the office of the Standard Oil Company he refers to them as "my educated lot." It is seldom that a skipper of a sailing ship can walk along his deck and hear the watch discussing physiography or some other interesting topic, while in the forecastle there may be a discussion of "The Effect of Science on Revealed Religion," or some other equally profound subject.

The skipper told yesterday of the make-up of his crew. The vessel came here from South Africa. Among her A. B.'s is a graduate of Heidelburg, and she has other graduates of at least three other universities.

The ship's artist—though he is not signed to fill that position—is Charles Bracker. He is 20 years old, and is the son of a Berlin business man. Young Bracker, besides being a university graduate, has studied to be an architect. His father wanted him to remain ashore and complete his studies, but the wanderlust seized the young fellow and he took to the sea. Since the vessel got in he is seeing something of the country, but the skipper expects him back before he sails again for South Africa.

One day the conversation turned on art. Bracker told the Captain that he was something of an artist and that he would like to paint a picture of the vessel.

"Go ahead," said the Captain.

He had the carpenter stretch a piece of sail canvas about 5 feet long and 3½ feet wide. Then the artist produced a few colors and started. His work was watched with interest by the university part of the crew, and the discussion on art grew warm at times.

The result of Bracker's work is now hanging in the offices of the shipping department of the Standard Oil Company in Broadway. The painting represents the vessel under sail. Every detail—reef point, brace, line of rigging, and bunt line—is shown. Near the vessel's bow is a Standard Oil tug, while off in the distance is seen the pilotboat.

The painting was presented to Mr. Ruprecht, a son of Phillip Ruprecht, manager of the marine department of the Standard Oil Company, by Capt. Thornton.

Dislike of Stepchildren She Had to Care For the Sole Explanation for Her Act.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., March 31.—Driven insane by her violent dislike of her three step-children, Mrs. Otto Britting, the wife of a farmer living near Shongun Lake, drowned herself, her own 9-months'-old baby boy, and her 3-year-old step-daughter Grace in the lake on Saturday night.

At daybreak this morning her husband, searching frantically for the lost three, discovered the bodies in only four feet of water.

The woman was in a stooping posture, with the boy under one arm and the girl beneath her. Their garments were pinned to her own. She had waded out with them and then had deliberately held herself and them under water till all were dead.

When Otto Britting got back from Dover on Saturday afternoon his wife and the two children were missing. The man of all work said that some time earlier Mrs. Britting had taken the two children with her and started toward Shongun Lake. She had hailed him as she went away and told him she was going to visit a neighbor.

As it grew late the farmer became uneasy and went over to the neighbor's house. His wife and the children were not there, but he was told that she had been seen passing the house, going in the direction of the lake. Britting went on, inquiring at the houses along the way if his wife had been there.

One of the neighbors, Price Moore, told Britting that he had seen Mrs. Britting and the two children sitting on the bridge spanning the brook flowing into the lake. This was about 2:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The woman was sitting on the railing of the bridge, with her infant in her arms, looking out toward the lake. The little girl, Grace, was standing beside her.

Soon after Moore saw the women, Charles Garrison passed along the road in his wagon. When passing a patch known as White Oaks, about a hundred feet from the shore of the lake, Garrison heard a splash as though some one had fallen into the water and immediately afterward the cry of a child in distress. The cry sounded as though it had been cut off by the water closing over the head of whoever uttered it. Climbing down from his wagon Garrison rushed to the side of the lake but did not see any one and thinking he had been mistaken he walked back to his team and drove away.

It was dark when the distracted father heard this, but he started at once for the lake. Procuring a lantern he spent hours wandering about in a vain search along the shore.

He returned home, but at daybreak he was back again on the White Oak path looking for his family. He discovered them at last about twenty feet from the shore, and with the aid of James Lahey, the caretaker of the Shongun Clubhouse, and the latter's son Clarence, recovered the bodies.

Britting's only explanation for his wife's act is her dislike for the children of his first wife. She had always hated them, he said, and had been particularly cruel to Grace, the three-year-old girl. With tears in his eyes, Britting told how, as he was starting for Dover on Saturday, little Grace had run out and called to him:

"Don't leave me with mother. I want you to take me with you."

"I had I done so," said the father, "she would have been alive to-day."

Mrs. Britting, before her marriage, was Matilda Brunkal, Britting's housekeeper. He married her on Oct. 5, 1905. She was a Russian by birth. Before he came to this country eleven years ago he was in a German Uhlan regiment, in a company of which Ambassador Speck von Sternburg was Rittmeister.

His first wife was the victim of an accident. On July 12, 1904, her husband, who was trying to shoot a hawk, left his gun standing near the house. His 5-year-old son Otto, while playing with it, pulled the trigger and the woman received the full charge in the breast.

Dinner of the Cayugas.

The Cayuga Society will give a dinner at the Hotel Manhattan on April 13. Congressman Sereno E. Payne, the Rev. George B. Stewart, the Rev. Arthur S. Hoyt, and Prof. Frederick Starr will be among the speakers.

GREAT OPERA SALE of WEBER PIANOS

Sixty Weber Uprights and Grands Used Personally by the Famous Artists of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company

IMPORTANT SAVING FROM REGULAR PRICES

This Special Piano Sale is an opportunity that from its very nature can occur but once a year. No other piano house can possibly duplicate or approach this offering.

The Weber is the Piano of the Opera. All of the famous singers and conductors that Mr. Conried assembles each year at the Metropolitan Opera House must have a piano in their New York homes for purposes of rehearsal and practice.

Their choice this season, as for many years past, has centered upon the Weber Piano. Not only is it the official piano of the Conried Company itself, but it is the individual preference of the various artists. More than sixty Weber Uprights and Grands were required to supply their needs this year.

Now that the Opera Company have left New York, all of their pianos are placed on special sale at reduced prices, each instrument being ticketed with the name of the artist who has actually used it.

Thus you will find here the piano that Caruso has used in his own home during the opera season—Scotti's piano, Journet's piano, Mme. Homer's piano, Miss Farrar's piano, and so on. The association of an instrument with these great names is interesting—but there are features of far greater importance to the intending buyer.

First, this is exclusively a collection of Weber Pianos—no doubtful or unknown makes included. Piano sales elsewhere are "miscellaneous" in their offerings, but here is only one standard and that is absolutely the best—the Weber.

Second, these are pianos that have been personally chosen or approved by the greatest judges of tone quality in the world. If you have any hesitancy in buying on your own judgment alone, here you are secure in following the lead of the most celebrated authorities.

Third, the pianos themselves show not the slightest marks of use. What does it matter to you—who expect to enjoy the piano for a lifetime—that it has had previous use for only 16 or 17 weeks? And that use by a great musician who understands pianos and knows how to take care of them?

Fourth, there is an important saving in money on each of these pianos. Weber Prices are rigidly maintained everywhere. There is no inflated asking price with some mysterious scale of reductions to the person who is a shrewd buyer. The prices of new Weber Pianos are fixed and standard.

With these vital facts in evidence, this is beyond question the

Most Notable Piano Event of the Year

Nowhere else can you hope to secure such important advantages, and, even here, not before another year has elapsed. The enthusiasm with which these annual opera sales have been received in former years renders prompt action advisable upon the part of those who desire the pick of this remarkable collection.

Each piano is plainly ticketed with the cash selling price, but moderate monthly payments may be arranged for where preferred, simple interest being added.

POSTAL ALSO RAISES TELEGRAPH RATES

Both Big Companies Increased Tolls 33 to 66 Per Cent. Last Night.

NO TRUST, MANAGERS SAY

Every State in Union Affected—Higher Cost of Labor and Materials the Cause.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies jumped their telegraph rates simultaneously at midnight last night. The increase over the old rate schedule in some cases is 66 per cent., although the average increase is probably about 33 per cent. With the exception of the Pacific Coast, the larger part of Canada, and a few of the States where the rate was already high, the increase affects the entire country.

To-day a message of ten words between New York and most towns and cities in the United States will cost from 20 to 20 cents more than the same message would have cost yesterday. Although officials of both telegraph companies deny that there was any agreement between the two concerns the new rate schedules are virtually identical, and were sent to the branch offices of the respective companies at about the same hour yesterday afternoon.

At every office in the city where the new rates were received surprise was manifested at the size of the increase. Agents of the two companies distributed the new rate lists. At every branch office where the distributors stopped the manager in charge was told to let no one see the new scale of prices and to discuss the increase with no one.

The lists were made up many days ago, but were not allowed to get out of the central offices of the two telegraph companies. They were kept under lock and key, no one having access to them except the higher officials. There were surprises in store for patrons of the two companies who called at the offices to send messages early this morning, not knowing that the price had been raised. To-day there will be more surprises.

The increased rate only applies to private messages. Newspaper rates remain the same.

The first official notification of the new rate schedule was made last night by President Robert C. Clowry of the Western Union after having been asked for a statement by a TIMES reporter.

Money Lost on Some Messages.

"It is simply a readjustment of the rates, one that the company has had in mind for some time," said Col. Clowry. "It was made necessary by the fact that the Western Union has been losing money on many of its messages for several years. This state of affairs was brought about some time ago by a war between the independent telegraph companies. During this war the price of messages in some districts was cut down so low that, instead of a profit, there was a loss in handling them. The companies in that war were bankrupted, naturally enough.

"Some of the rates that were made as a result of that war have remained the same ever since. We have been losing money on a great many 25-cent messages. Such messages have been costing us in many instances from 28 to 30 cents to handle. You can readily see the loss there. Another thing that has influenced the company to increase the rate in certain localities is the great increase in the cost of running the business. For instance, copper wire now costs twice as much as it did a few years ago. The increase in cost of telegraph material has been from 25 to 100 per cent. The general cost of maintenance is greater than formerly. The cost of labor is higher. We have increased wages all along the line. On March 1 the company gave an increase of 10 per cent. to all its operators.

"I wish it distinctly understood that this is not a general increase, but merely a readjustment of the old rates."

"Was there a mutual understanding between your company and the Postal Telegraph Company as to what the new rate schedule was to be?" Col. Clowry was asked.

No Telegraph Trust, He Says.

"No; there was no agreement," he replied.

"Will the Postal Company charge the same prices that you have decided upon for the future?" was the next question.

"Well, they have sense enough not to ruin themselves," was his reply.

This was before the news came out that the Postal had adopted a similar schedule of rates, and had sent the new schedule to their branch offices, ready to go into effect at midnight.

When this became known Vice President Ward of the Postal Company was asked about it. Mr. Ward said he had just returned from Cuba, and was not in a position to discuss the new rate, but referred the reporter to Charles P. Bruch, Assistant General Manager of the Postal Company.

"Our new rate is practically the same as that of the Western Union," said Mr. Bruch, "and goes into effect at the same hour as the Western Union rate—12 o'clock to-night, which is April 1. The increased rate was caused entirely by the increased cost of maintenance. The same conditions prevailed in both companies. Wages are higher, copper wire is higher, everything is higher and has been for some time, except the price of messages. Now that is higher, so you see it is general evolution all around.

"Our profits have been very small and so have the profits of the Western Union, according to their annual reports. By the adoption of these new rates we are doing away with what are known as the 'special' rates and coming down to the 'square' rates. The country is laid out in squares and the new rate is based upon the distance in some instances. There is also a State rate.

"This new schedule of rates is not the result of an agreement between the two companies. The Postal, as well as the Western Union, is simply a business proposition. The two concerns are like two rival grocers on opposite corners. One grocer charges a certain price for meat or eggs because he can sell at that price and make a small profit after paying expenses. The other grocer charges the same price simply because he has to meet similar expenses and so regulates his charges. There is no mutual agreement, but a simple matter of arithmetical judgment which regulates such trade. It is the same with these two big companies. Each has to figure on the cost of a message whereby it can pay expenses and make a small profit."

Below is given a table showing the increase in rates between New York and other cities of the United States and Canada. An analysis of it shows that no uniform rate of charge has been decided upon for cities within a given radius of New York. Within New York City the rate remains the same for ten-word messages, day or night. In parts of New York State there has been a 40 per cent. increase in some instances, but in the majority of cases the rise is 20 per cent. Some of the old rates in the State, however, remain unchanged. These are usually nearby points. In Alabama, Iowa, and Virginia the heaviest increase has been made.

Night rates on ten-word mesages to Alabama have been increased from 30 cents to 50 cents, and the cost of each additional word raised from 2 to 3 cents. The day rate to points in that State has been increased from 50 cets to 60 cents, and the cost of additional words from 3 to 4 cents. To Iowa the night rate has been sent up from 30 to 50 cents in several instances, and to parts of Virginia the day rate has been raised from 25 to 40 cents, and the cost of additional words from 2 to 3 cents. Georgia also comes in for a rise of 66 per cent. for night rates and 20 per cent. for day rates. In the case of Minnesota the same condition prevails.

To points in Delaware the night rate has been raised 40 per cent., and the day rate 20 per cent. Messages to Vermont and New Hampshire will cost 40 per cent. more to send at night than formerly.

In many States the night rate only has been changed. This is true with the rate to North Carolina, which has been increased between 30 and 40 per cent. To Ohio the rate is now 20 per cent. higher for day messages and from 40 to 50 per cent. for night ones. The Chicago rate has gone up 25 per cent. for day and 33 1-3 for night. To Maine there is a 40 per cent. increase for day messages, the night rate remaining the same as before.

Maryland comes in for an increase of 20 per cent. for many cities, as also do Mississippi, Nebraska, New Jersey, South Carolina, Rhode Island, District of Columbia, and Arkansas. Twenty-five per cent. has been added to the day rate to Indiana and 33 1-3 for night. To Pennsylvania there is a raise of 40 per cent. for day and 20 per cent. for night messages.

Several States which escape the increase are California, Florida, Idaho, Indian Territory, Louisiana, Michigan, Nevada, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Washington State, Wisconsin, and Wyoming. In Canada, the Provinces of Manitoba, Ontario, and Quebec are exempt from the increase.

Here is the table showing old and new rate lists of the Western Union between New York and other cities. The figures indicate the rate for ten-word messages; the figure after the dash the cost per additional word:

Industrial Openings.

THE
MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RAILWAY

Reaches the important manufacturing and commercial centres of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Missouri, many of which offer substantial inducements to new industries.

The trend of manufacturing is westward. Capital invested in manufacturing industries in the above named states in 1905 was 42 per cent. greater than in 1900, a larger percentage of increase than in a corresponding number of eastern manufacturing states.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway through its Industrial Department solicits correspondence with manufacturers who desire to establish new industries or branch factories at points reached by its lines.

Definite inquiries given prompt attention. Address

TO DINE DR. CLARKE, WHO IS 90 AND SPRY

Former Schoolmaster's "Boys" to Give Him a Birthday Party To-night.

ONCE "WHALED" CONKLING

Head of Old Mount Washington Institute Says with Pride That Thrashings Made a United States Senator.

Dr. George W. Clarke is 90 years old today and still spry. According to custom some of his "old boys" will entertain him at dinner at the Waldorf. They studied under him at the Mount Washington Collegiate Institute, 40 Washington Square, where for thirty-five years, from 1843 to 1880, he taught many of the prominent men of New York.

But Dr. Clarke was much more than schoolmaster. In his long life he has taken a notable part in politics and has been identified with several of the principal movements for the improvement of the city. He was one of the founders of the Young Men's Christian Association and saved it in the perilous days when it seemed likely to split upon the question of slavery or abolition. He has always taken a great interest in charitable work, and at the present time, in spite of his advanced age, still holds office in a number of flourishing institutions for the relief of the distressed.

Dr. Clarke was educated at Union College and delights in his title of "the oldest living graduate." At the annual alumni dinners of that seat of learning, when he is present, he allows class after class to arise and boast itself the senior and waits patiently until 1843 has had its meed of applause. Then he stands up and calls the assembly to witness that there is one at least of the '40's still aslo and vigorous.

It was an oration he delivered when he was graduated which decided Dr. Clarke's career. It was upon education, and was of such merit that Prof. Solomon Jenner, head of a school in Henry Street, sought him out and invited him to become his assistant. One of the very first pupils Dr. Clarke had was Roscoe Conkling, son of Judge Conkling of Utica, and he guided him with a firm hand.

"Whaled" Young Roscoe Conkling.

It was not three days after young Roscoe had been entered that Dr. Clarke found that he needed more than moral suasion. He disciplined him severely, and made him one of his best friends and most studious pupils. "He always said," remarked Dr. Clarke one day, "that the sound thrashing I gave him made him a United States Senator, and, strange as it may seem, I had the honor of voting for a second term for him in the oldest legislative body in the world."

Clarke had intended to enter the ministry, but ill-health interfered with his studies, and with Prof. Hubba he set up the Mount Washington Collegiate Institute in West Washington Place, about a block from the Park. In time he became the sole owner of the school, and under his management it flourished. The sons of many of the leading men of the city were sent to it and he points with pride to the success of such men as Morris K. Jesup, the Rev. Dr. Arthur T. Pierson, and Julien T. Davies. He became almost a family tradition among the Dodges, the Phelpses, and the Havemeyers, to send their sons to him.

Work in Ophthalmic Hospital.

Soon after he had started the school and the University of New York had conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, Dr. Clarke became a Director of the Ophthalmic Hospital. It had at that time a capacity of 1,000 patients a year, but with the assistance of John W. Whitefield, Andrew Carnegie's father-in-law, Dr. Clarke increased its accommodation fourfold. He can now boast as President of the institution that since his connection with it it has brought relief to 600,000 sufferers from diseases of the eye, ear, and throat.

The Young Men's Christian Association was just getting well under way when the civil war crisis began. Dr. Clarke had been one of the prime movers in it, and he saw with concern that in the heat of the anti-slavery agitation the interests of the institution were subordinated to the politics of the hour. He proposed a resolution that no discussion of the matter should be undertaken by the Y. M. C. A. For six nights this motion was debated in the auditorium of the University of New York, but it was carried in the end by three votes, and the association was saved from an untimely end.

In 1872 Dr. Young was a delegate to the Republican State Convention at Utica and was elected Vice President. Half a dozen candidates had been put forward for Governor, and then Dr. Clarke named Gen. John A. Dix in an eloquent speech. As he closed the convention stampeded from the other nominees to his candidate, and it was always held that the election of Gen. Dix obtained the choice of Gen. Grant as President. Horace Greeley ran against him, but the selection of Dix in New York was recognized as turning the scale against the distinguished editor.

Didn't Know Man He Nominated.

Yet Dr. Clarke did not know Dix, and nominated him from an entirely disinterested belief that he was the best man for the place. When he was Assemblyman at Albany the politicians flocked to obtain his influence with the Governor, and they were amazed to find that he had never seen his candidate.

As a member of the Assembly Dr. Clarke procured the passage of the bill establishing the Home for Friendless Girls in Washington Square, of which he is still a Vice President.

Dr. Clarke is Vice President of the Hahnemann Hospital and Secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Flower Medical College and Hospital. He has for sixty-seven years been a member of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity and only Joseph H. Choate and one other member are senior to him in the New England Society.

DINNER TO D'ESTOURNELLES.

American Group of Interparliamentary Union Will Entertain the Baron.

Congressman Richard Bartholdt, President of the American group of the Interparliamentary Union, announced yesterday that the Baron d'Estournelles had invited the American members of the union to visit Paris and tour France as the guests of the French Parliamentary group in either the Summer of this year or next.

Baron d'Estournelles will arrive from France on the Savoie this week, and will be entertained by the American Executive Committee at luncheon at the University Club on Saturday. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler is the Chairman of the committee, and among its other members are Mr. Bartholdt, Dr. Lyman Abbott, James Speyer, Richard Watson Gilder, Seth Low, and Andrew D. White.

President Roosevelt is taking deep interest in the work of the Interparliamentary Union, and has had a copy of the programme of the union sent to him by Mr. Bartholdt.

SURPRISE SIGNAL TESTS.

Results Obtained in Three Months on the Pennsylvania Road.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Ninety-seven surprise signal tests have been made in the last three months on the Pennsylvania Railroad. In that time 2,252 trains have been tested, and 97 per cent. of the enginemen have complied with the rules of the company, while the 3 per cent. who are marked in the official record of the company as deficient brought their trains to a stop, but not until after passing the signals.

CAREFUL TRAIN WRECKERS.

Chained Thirty-one Crossties to Track and Wrecked Louisiana Train.

NEW ORLEANS, March 31.—Train wreckers chained thirty-one crossties at intervals of a few yards across the rails of the Louisiana Southern Railway south of New Orleans yesterday and caused the wrecking of a local passenger train. There were no serious casualties.

The country people in the vicinity have been aroused to anger by this cold-blooded action, and every effort is being made to find the wreckers.

ALDERMAN PUT OUT OF COURT

Callahan Was Upbraiding Detective for Arresting Poultry Dealers.

Alderman Callahan was ordered outside the railing of the West Side Court yesterday morning by Sergt. Meel in of the court squad when he began to upbraid Detective John L. Sullivan of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station for arresting nine fish and poultry dealers in the open-air market known as "Paddy's Market," which lines both sides of Ninth Avenue on Saturday afternoons and nights.

Sullivan had arrested the men on Saturday afternoon for not having their fish and poultry properly covered while on sale on the street. The men were all bailed out and appeared in the West Side Court yesterday before Magistrate Crane. Detective Sullivan was the complainant. He said his Captain had received many complaints from merchants and residents in the vicinity regarding this violation of the Sanitary Code.

Alderman Callahan had been on the bridge interrupting the prisoner's counsel with frequent suggestions as to the conduct of the case. The Alderman reproved Detective Sullivan for making the arrests. Sullivan answered him with spirit. Sergt. Meehan came over and pointed out to the Alderman that he was only inside the court railing through courtesy, and that it would be better for him if he would make his exit, which the Alderman did.

SLAIN ON HIS LAST WATCH.

Policeman Killed Three Hours Before He Was to Retire.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, March 31.—Three hours before he was to retire from the Police Department Patrolman Lemuel R. Boyce, 32 years old, was shot and killed at Cardinal and Choteau Avenues about 4 o'clock this morning. It is believed that Boyce was shot by a burglar who a few minutes before had robbed the saloon of William Rehn.

Boyce had said that he was tired of the dangers incident to the life of a policeman, and his resignation was accepted by the Police Board on Friday. He was to take a position with the McKinney Bread Company.

SECRET CANVASS OF RAILROAD MEN Companies Affirm That It Shows Strong Sentiment Against a Strike.

CONCESSIONS TALKED OF

Leaders, However, Say Points Would Only Be Yielded to Put Roads on Defensive.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 31.—The railroads today made announcement of a secret canvass just completed among their employes showing a strong sentiment against the calling of a big strike and in favor of accepting the wage offer of the roads. The announcement was made to the United States Commissioners who are attempting to bring about a settlement of the dispute, and it may have an important bearing on the peace negotiations.

Following this move of the railroads the report was spread that the leaders of the unions were preparing to make several concessions. It was said the demand for a nine-hour day might be abandoned, and that the men also might decide to take less than the 12 per cent. advance in pay which they have been sticking out for.

Grand Chief Garrettson of the conductors would not confirm the report. His associate, Grand Chief Morrissey of the trainmen refused to declare himself any further than to assert that "the situation had not changed materially."

Meanwhile Chairman M. A. Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and United States Labor Commissioner Charles P. Neill, the Government's emissaries, continued to argue alternately with the General Managers on the one hand and the union representatives on the other, and some progress was reported. The three-cornered peace negotiations will be continued to-morrow.

Those who are watching the conferences closely made an effort to connect the announced result of the railroads' canvass with the report that the employes were weakening. It was asserted that the union leaders feared a change of sentiment among their members and were more anxious to arrange the settlement than at any time previous. This was true concerning the sentiment of the conductors in particular.

The test made by the roads is said to have shown that on three large systems a large majority of the conductors were in favor of accepting the wage proposition tendered by the companies. The lines are understood to be the Santa Fé, the Yazoo, the Mississippi Valley, and the San Pedro system.

Members of the Union Strike Board, however, declared that if the brotherhoods should make any concession it would be with a view to placing the railroads on the defensive in the controversy. By agreeing to yield one or two points the roads would be obliged to meet these concessions or assume the responsibility of refusing conciliation after having courted it through Federal interference.

"As we understand conciliation," said one trainman, "it means the making of concessions by both sides. If the men concede anything, the road naturally will have to follow suit. Otherwise, their position is indefensible."

Statements were made at the Sherman House headquarters of the employes that there was no danger of a strike until the Federal officials had exhausted their efforts toward peace. Even should a walkout be ordered within the next day or two it was said there was a strong probability that it might never go into effect.

The employes seem to think that other conciliation remedies may be applied, should the Government agents fail.

KRAJOVA PROVINCE IN REBELS' HANDS

Roumanian Revolt, Despite Official Statements, Said to be Extending.

PRIESTS REPENT TOO LATE

Now Exhort the People to Abstain from Violence—Russian Press Forbidden to Record the Outbreak.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cablegrams.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 31.—Kishineff correspondents telegraph that, contrary to the official advices, the disturbances in Roumania are extending. The whole Province of Krajova is said to be in the hands of the insurgents.

The schoolmasters and the priesthood have abjured the anti-Semitic propaganda and are exhorting the people to abstain from violence, but their action comes too late.

BUCHAREST, March 31.—An official circular issued to-day states that there has been no fresh revolt in the last twenty-four hours and that the situation has improved throughout the country. Troops are pursuing some isolated bands of insurgents. A large number of leaders have been arrested.

At Razvad a conflict has occurred in which eleven peasants were killed. The sanguinary affair at Ballesti has exercised a deterrent influence in the Western districts.

BUCHAREST, March 31.—The communes of Puerezani and Pegeni are in full revolt and troops have been dispatched thither.

Disturbances are reported from Putna, in Moldavia, and many cases of plundering, incendiarism, and armed conflict in Wallachia.

A number of peasants have been killed or wounded by troops at Langa and Patulele.

It is semi-officially stated that in many districts the peasants are repairing the damage done to property and restoring stolen goods to their owners.

At Galicea, in the centre of the disturbed area, all the ringleaders have been captured.

All is now quiet at Vlascha, Covurlui, and Roman.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 31.—Premier Stolypin has sent a circular to the Governors of provinces ordering them to prohibit the printing of news of the agrarian disorders in Roumania.

The step is owing to fear that the disorders may spread to Russia.

KILLS CAPTORS; ESCAPES.

Russian Student Ambushed by Police —Prisoners Slay ex-Policeman.

MOSCOW, March 31.—The police yesterday discovered and searched a Revolutionary meeting place here. They stationed an ambuscade, and to-day a student, who had not been warned that the place had been discovered, approached the entrance. Policemen Andrieff and Gontcharoff leaped from ambush toward the student, who killed them both with his revolver and escaped unwounded.

KURSK, March 31.—Druzsaninnikoff, an ex-policeman, who was sentenced on Feb. 21 to a year's imprisonment for torturing peasants in the course of a punitive expedition, has been killed by peasant prisoners in the jail here.

They captured Druzsaninnikoff, held a regular court, and executed him by dashing out his brains against the floor.

TO TIE GOV. CARTER'S HANDS.

Bill Making Illegal the Giving of Undated Resignations.

HONOLULU, March 31.—A bill was introduced in the Territorial Legislature yesterday making illegal the giving by Territorial officers of undated resignations to the appointing powers.

It has been charged that Gov. Carter has required every appointee to give him an undated resignation at the time of appointment.

M. HAMMARD WOUNDED.

Chief of the Paris Detectives Stabbed by an Alleged Murderer.

PARIS, March 31.—M. Hammard, head detective of the Department of the Seine, was wounded to-day by a dagger thrust while arresting a man named Dallin, who is accused of murder.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BRUSSELS, March 31.—Capt. Michel and Major Lefebure have been appointed Belgian military delegates to the Jamestown Exposition and will sail for New York on April 6 on board the steamer Friesland.

PARIS, March 31.—Inquiries to-day at the Austrian, British, and Japanese Embassies and the Dutch Legation, which were implicated in the documents of Mgr. Montagnini, the Secretary of the Papal Nunciature, seized when he was expelled and published in The Figaro, brought forth the unanimous response that nothing was known concerning the matter. The diplomats refused to discuss the disclosures.

ROME, March 31.—Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, has written in the name of the Pope a highly commendatory letter to Archbishop Quigley of Chicago, praising the progress of the Catholic clergy and laymen in his archdiocese and the splendid work done by them in the collection of Peter's pence, saying it is beneficial to the Universal Church.

OUDJA, Morocco, March 31.—Perfect calm reigns in Oudja and its vicinity. The work of cleaning the streets is progressing. A hospital and dispensary and heliograph and telegraph offices have been opened.

WANT PLOTS KEPT SECRET.

Actors Say Advance Publication Spoils Effect of Their Scenes.

Members of the cast which is to produce "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott" at the Astor Theatre to-night held a meeting yesterday morning at the theatre and made the first effort to establish an American organization to prevent the disclosing of plots of plays before presentation. After the meeting the players sent a communication to Wagenhals & Kemper, managers of the production, calling attention to the similar movement recently started by the London Theatrical Managers' Association, and asking for support in the new movement.

Among the reasons given by the players for opposing the divulging of plots are: "Because it is an injustice to the actor to have a 'great scene' described by other than a recognized dramatic critic" and "because the describing of important scenes by press agents, when printed in theatrical columns, mislead the public into the belief that such expressions are opinions of the newspapers in which they appear." The third reason given was that experience proves the public interest in a play to be augmented by keeping the plot secret.

Wagenhals & Kemper said in reply: "Your communication has reached us. It does not, however, seem exactly within our province to assist in the revolutionary crusade which you suggest."

ASK LENIENCY FOR RAYNER.

British Public Not Satisfied with Reprieve of Death Sentence.

Special Cablegram.

LONDON, March 31.—Not satisfied with obtaining a reprieve for Horace George Rayner, the murderer of William Whiteley, the British public, or a considerable section of it, is now undertaking to get the life sentence reduced to imprisonment for a few years.

The doubt as to Rayner's parentage produced a tremendous feeling of sympathy for him. The Home Secretary may have shared this feeling. At any rate, he promptly acquiesced in the demand that the death sentence be set aside. It is doubtful if he will go further at this moment, but if the public is earnest and persistent in its new demand it may eventually obtain what it wants.

KILLS SEVEN, THEN HIMSELF.

Man in Armenia Runs Amuck When Relatives Refuse to Support Him.

ALEXANDROPOL, Russian Armenia, March 31.—A series of brutal murders was perpetrated here to-day by a man named Karapetyants, who had lately been without employment and to whom further board and lodging in the home of a married sister was refused.

Karapetyants with a stiletto mortally wounded his sister, killed her husband, mortally wounded a nephew and niece, killed a neighbor who answered their cry for help, and mortally wounded the wife and mother of this neighbor.

Then he committed suicide.

BOMB AT FEHIM'S ENEMY.

Explosion at Constantinople an Act of Personal Vengeance.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 31.—The explosion of a bomb in the Pera quarter of the city last Friday, by which two men were killed and four were wounded, appears to have been an act of personal vengeance against an Armenian, Andon Keutchoglou, formerly a friend and colleague of Fehim Pasha, ex-Chief of the Secret Police of the Palace, who was recently exiled at the request of the German Government.

Fehim recently quarreled with Keutchoglou. The man who threw the bomb escaped.

DISCUSS THE DREIBUND.

Buelow and Tittoni Confer—They Will Meet Baron Aehrenthal.

RAPOLLA, Italy, March 31.—Prince Bulow, the German Imperial Chancellor, and Signor Tittoni, the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, after a two hours' conference at the Imperial Palace Hotel this morning, issued the following statement:

"This morning there took place a long and amicable discussion between Prince Bulow and Signor Tittoni. Although the conference was not brought about by political reasons, naturally the subjects of conversation were the political questions now occupying the international field.

"The conversation demonstrated again the complete and full correspondence of ideas of the two statesmen."

Although the strictest secrecy is maintained, it seems that the chief subject of discussion was the efficiency and strength of the Triple Alliance, and that it was especially argued that reciprocal relations between Austria and Italy should be strengthened, as the greatest danger threatening the two powers was a conflict between themselves.

It is expected that the conferences will end when Prince Bilow and Signor Tittoni meet Baron Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister.

SEASON OPENS IN THE PARKS.

Several Debutantes in the Zoo and a New Boathouse in the Bronx.

Easter is the first formal "at home" day of the season nat the Central Park Zoo. Several thousand callers were received there yesterday by the elite of the animal world. There is quite a list of débutantes this year. Forty-one young lambs were presented by the horned Dorset family; Mrs. Zehrn introduced a cub; the leopards had three of them, and the Axis Deer brought out a particularly charming daughter.

But the season is young yet, and Director Smith says there will be additions to other notable families in the Zoo before long. At present, however, the Zoo has just 400 members.

The Park was thronged yesterday. The saddled donkeys were at work again, carrying little children; the boats were much in use, and the promenades along the Mall and around the fountain were crowded in the middle of the afternoon. The clouds made the weather so uncertain that there was an odd mixture of Summer and Winter millinery on display.

At the Bronx Zoo there seemed to be at least 30,000 visitors. A feature of the day there was the opening of the new boathouse on the Bronx River. Seventy-five boats and a new electric launch called the Albatross were offered for rent.

Rowing on the river is a little hazardous because of the swift current and the falls below the boathouse. To protect the boatmen from the latter danger a heavy iron chain is stretched across just a short way above the falls. It was a good thing it was there yesterday, for four daring occupants of one boat, evidently trying to see how near they could approach to the falls, had to hang on to the chan for life. The police launch in charge of Capt. Mitchell, rescued them. One of them got a wetting.

WANTS ITS MONEY'S WORTH.

Texas Proposes to Make Theatrical Companies Give All They Advertise.

Texas wants its money's worth in amusements. As a result of El Paso's recent experience with the San Carlo Opera Company State Senator Claude Hudspeth has introduced a bill in the Legislature to make all theatrical companies and circuses routed in Texas produce all that they advertise. It is said that sentiment on the subject is quite strong enough to pass the bill.

When the San Carlo company played in El Paso "The Barber of Seville" was announced with Giuseppe Campanari. This baritone had been engaged to sing in Chicago, but when the company reached Texas he was in New York. The opera was given with another baritone, and in abridged form. Alice Nielson sang the soprano rôle.

There was a demonstration against the company, and finally the money was refunded.

DOMINGO'S ENGLISH CREDITORS' APPEAL

They Say They Ask Only to be Treated the Same as Other Bondholders.

UNFAIRNESS IS ALLEGED

Secretary of the Council of Foreign Bondholders Says the Complaint is Reasonable.

London, March 20, 1907.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE NEW YORK TIMES of March 7 there was published a telegram giving the views of the Council of Foreign Bondholders with regard to the treatment of the English holders of the bonds of the external debt of Santo Domingo in the proposed arrangement of the Dominican debt.

In referring to our statement your Washington correspondent said that the complaints of the British holders provoked derision; that the persons who had obtained by any sort of means any sort of claim against Santo Domingo had all been careful to make their claims large enough to stand all possible kinds of shrinkage, and that the British bondho'ders were kicking because they were not to be permitted to exact from Santo Domingo the full pound of flesh.

We think it right to point out that there is evidently a good deal of misapprehension existing with regard to the Santo Domingo debt matter, and more especially with regard to the interests represented by the Council of Foreign Bondholders. These interests are confined to the bonds of the external debt of the republic, and it is indeed difficult to understand how a bond can be "watered" or "made large enough to stand all possible kinds of shrinkage."

To endeavor to mix up the claims of the English bondholders with the other claims mentioned by your correspondent is only obscuring the rea' point nt issue.

Under the new treaty with Santo Domingo the French and Belgian hondholders are to be paid off at the rate of £57 10s. in cash for each £100 of bonds, with arrears of interest. The English holders of precisely the same securities, with identical rights and claims against the Dominican Government, naturally ask to be treated in the same way.

Owing, however, to the discrimination exercised against the English interests, the bonds of the Dominican unified external debt of 1897 held in this country are quoted at 43, while the bonds of the same debt held abroad are selling at 53½.

Surely our complaint is reasonable enough. The claims of the French and Belgian bondholders have been examined and it has been decided that their bonds shall be paid off at the rate mentioned above. Why, therefore, should not the same securities in the hands of English holders receive the same treatment? The English holders do not ask for a cent more than is given to the French and Belgian holders.

We venture to think it is scarcely fair to deride the British holders or accuse them of demanding their full pound of flesh because they simply ask to be treated the same as their fellow-bondholders.

JAMES P. COOPER,
Secretary of the Council of Foreign Bondholders.

WASHINGTON'S VIEW OF IT.

British Kickers Ought to be Glad to Get What They Will Get.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The trouble with the protest of the British holders of Santo Domingan bonds is that the protestants do not represent the majority of the bondholders, but are members of the dissatisfied minority, who, heing bound by the action of the majority in the arrangement with Dr. J. H. Hollender, through whom the settlement was effected, have now no other possibility of accomplishing anything to their own benefit than raising a dust of misapprehension out of which it may be made to appear that Mr. Roosevelt has permitted discrimination against them.

Mr. Roosevelt has done nothing of the kind. What was said in these dispatches on March 6 is absolutely true. It is due to the action of President Roosevelt that these bondholders are going to get anything at all for their bonds. They know that perfectly well. But for what the President has done to bring about such a settlement these bondholders would still have been besieging their Government to endeavor to collect the watered claims by force, at the risk of running counter to the Monroe Doctrine.

It is true enough, in one sense, thaf a bond cannot be watered, but tbe claim adjusted by the issue of such bonds may have heen watered to an extent that would make Harriman's Alton deal look like a toy fishpond. That was just what happened in Santo Domingo. The average rate there was about $1,000,000 in bonds in payment for $100,000 worth of second-class arms and ammunition, or whatever it was that the Santo Domingans thought at the time they needed.

When it began to appear that President Roosevelt's plan for the payment might go through, he suggested to Santo Domingo the appointment of Dr. Hollender, Professor of Finance in Johns Hopkins University, and an acknowledged expert in such matters, as its agent in determining what would be a just basis of settlement. Dr. Hollender went to Santo Domingo and examined all the claims there. He learned all the facts about their origin, what the basis of each claim was, and what proportion of right there was in each. Then he went to Europe and consulted the representatives of the claim holders. He made three trips to Europe on this business. He dealt with the properly authorized representatives of the majority interests, and his agreement is binding upon all holders of the claims.

The British kickers are indignant because they are not to get their full pound of flesh instead of being thankful that they are going to get back their money with proper interest. They were not after interest, but usury, and they kick because they are not going to get it. It is like a pawnbroker howling to heaven at being obliged to accept 6 per cent. a year instead of 6 per cent. a month.

A good many of the Englishmen got in through the Santo Domingo Improvement Company, an American concern. This company had the largest claim against Santo Domingo, the greater part of it being based on extensively watered estimates of the value of certain concessions. When the Administration took up the proposition of settling the Santo Domingo debts the British got the impression that the claim of the Santo Domingo Improvement Company would be paid in full, and they got in. Now they find they were mistaken, and they are raising a row. They tried it on their own Government first, and were promptly turned down. Now they apparently figure that if they can get up enough of a newspaper agitation something may result to assist their schemes of usury.

WANT LOWER CHINA TARIFF.

Importers Tell Cortelyou Present Rates Are Excessive.

Dissatisfaction has been lately expressed among the importers of French chinaware at a recent action of the Customs officials in raising the values of certain articles in invoices lately received. In some cases the increase has been from 30 to 300 per cent.

This action the importers attribute to the American Potters' Association, as tht American manufactureres' association is called. They charge that it has supplied to the customs officials information about the china trade which has caused the invoices to be raised. A committee of the importers called last week upon Col. Edward S. Fowler, who is in charge of the appraisals. The visit was without result, and the committee then called a meeting of the trade at the Crockery Board of Trade and passed resolutions criticising Col. Fraser and the agent of the American Potters' Association. These were forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The importers alleged that the import trade in chinaware amounted in the Port of New York alone to over $2,000,000 and that this was endangered by the recent action of the customs officials. The only persons benefited by the rigorous decisions are the manufacturers, the importers declare.

"This is hardly a tariff fight," said one of the largest of them last night. "The issue is really whether an importing business in which millions of dollars are invested should be driven to the wall by a few manufacturers. We have brought the matter before the Secretary of the Treasury."

BEAR TO QUIT OYSTER BAY.

Breaks Out Again and Owners Decide to Give Him to a Zoo.

OYSTER BAY, March 31.—The big brown bear belonging to the Weeks brothers, which caused so much alarm yesterday by breaking loose and climbing a tree, remaining there for hours, will be shipped away to-morrow to a zoo. His taste of freedom and the bountiful feast which followed it, had tho effect of making him long for more, and it is pretty certain that he will no longer be content with the quarters he has had. After spending hours in the tree in front of tho house of his owners yesterday and last night he was enticed down by fresh meat which tempted him into his den.

He curled up and went to sleep. He stayed quiet for a few hours, and then became uneasy. He soon had a board loose and was free and again made for the tree he ascended on Saturday. He found a comfortable branch and made himself easy. As a result persons on their way to church had a sight of the bear, but most of them gave West Main Street a wide berth. A watch was set under the tree and it was determined to let the bear stay where he was until hunger induced him to come down. Food was put so he could see and smell it, and about 10 o'clock the bear again showed signs of being interested. After shifting a while he backed slowly down the trunk of the tree and followed the trail of food to his den. While he was seating, his owners bound him with a chain, and he will stay tied up until he is shipped away.

WE HAVE OFFENDED CHILE'S FEELINGS

Did Not View with Enthusiasm Her Plan to Send an Ambassador to Washington.

OTHER STATES OPPOSED IT

If It Had Been Carried Out Some South American Countries Would Have Withdrawn Their Ministers.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Chile's failure to send a Minister to Washington to replace Señor Walker-Martinez, who did not return here after the Pan-American Conference at Rio Janeiro last Summer, has caused much comment. The neglect of the Chilean Congress to appropriate sufficient money to maintain the Legation has been given as a reason for leaving the American mission in charge of Alberto Yoncham, Secretary of the Legation, but it has just been known that the real cause was hidden deep in Latin-American politics.

Chile decided that it would be a good idea to have an Ambassador at Washington, and steps were taken to learn what the United States thought about the proposed elevation of the Chilean representative. Brazil had an Ambassador, and Chile felt that a similar honor should be accorded to her by the United States.

The suggestion that the Chilean Envoy might be raised to Ambassadorial rank set all Latin-America on edge, and a general movement was instituted by the Southern republics to head off the plan. Argentina, being unfriendly to Chile, was especially opposed to it, as Brazil and Chile are always rated as allies, and Argentina did not want her two strongest rivals to outstrip her in representation here.

It has not been the policy of the State Department to send Ambassadors to any country which cannot be ranked as a world power, and when the hostility of the rest of South America to such a change became known the United States decided that the question had better not be agitated further at this time. Before this decision was reached, however, it was diplomatically hinted that Bolivia and several of the other South American republics would probably decide to withdraw their Ministers and leave their legations in charge of secretaries in case Chile was permitted to send an Ambassador.

After Señor Walker-Martinez left Washington it was suggested to the State Department that another man, whose name has not been made public, was being considered for the place. But after the United States was asked about the man his name was dropped, and recently there has been no suggestion that Chile will be in any hurry about sending a representative of Ministerial rank to Washington.

The United States had no objection to the man proposed, and the failure of Chile to send him is attributed by diplomats here to the refusal of the United States to give favorable consideration to the Ambassadorial plan.

Russians in Brazil Complain.

RIGA, March 31.—The Governor General of the Baltic Provinces, Gen. Baron Moeller-Sakomelsky, has received from Russian colonists in Brazil a letter complaining of their difficult position and the unfair treatment of them by Brazilians, and asking him to prohibit emigration to the South American Republic. Riga is the starting point of a large stream of emigrants to Brazil.

RAIN DIDN'T STOP ATLANTIC CITY SHOW

Many Paraded in Easter Finery Despite the Bad Weather.

BOARDWALK WAS THRONGED

Thousands of Day Visitors Added to Crowds at the Hotels—New Yorkers Seen on Boardwalk.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 31.—There was a disappointed crowd of visitors in Atlantic City to-day, for in spite of the rosy promises of the man in charge of the United States Weather Bureau it began to rain at 6 o'clock this morning, and kept it up all day. The rain was accompanied by a cold wind from the northeast, which compelled persons to cling to their heavy wraps.

It was hard on those who wanted to wear their new Spring costumes. In spite of the dampness, however, many persons tempted pneumonia rather than miss the opportunity to show their Spring finery. There was an immense crowd on the Boardwalk all day long. It was a good-natured crowd, the members of which had come to the shore to have a good time, and did not intend to be disappointed. They filled the piers and hotel lobbies overlooking the Boardwalk, and occupied all the roller chairs that could be brought into play, and in addition thousands promenaded the Boardwalk.

The bad weather did not keep the day visitors away. The trains which arrived here this morning were run in sections, and guests flocked to the resort by thousands. It was all but impossible to get anywhere near the desks of many of the hotels, so great was the crush of those wanting to obtain tables in the dining rooms. Last night the scene on the Boardwalk reminded one of a night in August, so great was the crowd. In Old Vienna and dozens of other cafés where there was music thousands of persons were unable to gain entrance. And that is the first time, Winter or Summer, that such a condition has been known to exist. While the sky threatened to-night it did not rain.

At the steel pier a chorus from Philadelphia sang the "Stabat Mater," and the solo parts were taken by a quartet of well-known singers. There were also the band concerts by Vessell's Band. At the Ocean Pier Mackey and his municipal band of Philadelphia drew a large audience. Mayor Weaver of Philadelphia, accompanied by Mrs. Weaver, was among the day's visitors. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver attended service at the Olivet Presbyterian Church in the morning and in the afternoon they hired a roller chair and joined the merry throng of sightseers on the Boardwalk.

Rear Admiral J. A. B. Smith is here with Mrs. Smith. They have apartments at the Bothwell, and will stay at the shore for several days. Capt. Engard of the navy, who was recently retired, and is now living in Philadelphia, was among the promenaders. He and Mrs. Engard are also at the Bothwell. They will stay here several days. Mrs. Dr. D. H. Smith of New York is at the Sothern, where she is entertaining Mrs. A. W. Greene of London, England. Mrs. Greene will sail next Saturday for home. A party of New Yorkers at the Grand Atlantic Hotel is composed of Mr. and Mrs. James McVickar, Miss Adler, Miss Allen, Miss Lillian Adler, Herman Trappe, and Noel McVickar.

H. C. Copeland, a retired banker of New York, is at the Shoreham, accompanied by Mrs. Copeland. Fred Thompson of the firm of Thompson & Dundy was among the strollers on the walk. A. B. Horton, a New York broker and a son of Congressman Horton, came down for Easter.

A. P. Heinze of Montana, is stopping at the Chalfonte. He has been here for several weeks and the ex-Democratic State Senator John F. Dryden, who is staying at the Marlborough-Blenheim, are often seen hobnobbing on the Boardwalk. Senator Everett Colby of this State, who headed the fight against Mr. Dryden's campaign for a second term, is also a visitor at the Blenheim.

E. A. Cudahy and wife, and Miss Jean Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Baum, Miss Bessie Baum, Benjamin Gallagher and Charles H. Pickins of Omaha, are among the vistors at the Traymore.

Henry M. Post is among New Yorkers at the Brighton. He was joined for over Sunday by Charles M. Post, Mrs. Geraldine Redmond, Johnston I. Redmond, and Roland Redmond, are registered at the Brighton. At this same hotel are Miss Gertrude Hill, Miss Bernice Baker, Mrs. L. L. Cable.

Miss E. Pambrun is stopping at the Traymore over Easter, in company with Miss Geraldine A. Nelson, and Miss Gertrude L. Nelson of New York. Dr. George A. Nyeth of New York has rooms ot the Shelburne.

The two Misses Eyre of New York are with their mother, Mrs. Richard Eyre, at the Marlborough-Blenheim. Charles Livingstone Hyde is also stopping at this house.

Assistant District Attorney James Alcorn of Philadelphia, with his family, were among the promenaders this morning. Mr. Alcorn has not missed an Atlantic City Easter in years. He is at the Traymore. A prominent Ohio politician among the throng to-day was Rud K. Hyinicka of Cincinnati, with Mrs. Hyinicka. He is stopping for a few days at the Traymore. Mr. and Mrs. George Rudkin of New York were among the Easter arrivals at Haddon Hall.

Congressman Harry C. Laudenslager of New Jersey shook hands with State politicians in the lobby at Haddon Hall today, and in the afternoon strolled along the Boardwalk with Mayor Weaver of Philadelphia.

Judge A. J. Dittenhofer of New York, with his two daughters, are registered for several days at the Traymore.

GLOOMY DAY AT ASBURY PARK.

Boardwalk Thronged, Though the Weather Was Cold and Damp.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., March 31.—Ten thousand Easter paraders, a majority of them from New York, enjoyed a stroll on the Boardwalk this afternoon. A drop of nearly thirty degrees in the temperature over Saturday forced the visitors to don their Winter wraps, to the disgust of the women paraders, who had come to the shore prepared to display their Easter gowns. Just before dusk a disagreeable fog sprang up and caused the Boardwalk to be nearly deserted.

Every hotel and boarding house catering to the Easter trade was filled to its capacity to-day, and a number of the late comers last night were forced to seek lodgings in private cottages. The throng included hundreds of auto parties. Ocean and Grand Avenues were alive with automobiles. The Hotel Marlborough entertained nearly 100 automobile parties at dinner to-day.

With the temperature below 50 degrees, as against 80 yesterday, and with the ocean temperature at 35 degrees, three local athletes took an ocean bath this morning at Fourth Avenue. The bathers did not stay in the water for more than five minutes, but their antics furnished amusement for the Boardwalk promenaders.

Pryor's American Band gave a concert on the Boardwalk this afternoon which was well patronized, many cottagers from Allenhurst and Deal Beach attending. This evening the churches were filled with the visitors, who were attracted by the Easter music.

Mrs. A. S. Sharp of New York, who opened her cottage in Second Avenue for Easter, is entertaining a house party composed of Mrs. John Kenyon, Miss Julia Hillis Miss Bessie Hillis, Miss Mildred Kenyon, and Benjamin Kenyon of Albany, and Francis B. Adams of Washington.

C. Stuart Linton of London, England; Mr. and Mrs. T. Neher of Princeton, N. J., and Miss E. M. B. Ault, W. N. Townshend, W. H. Young, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Thom, Miss Bella Thom, John A. Power, Mr. and Mrs. William H. English, J. Radford English, Frederick A. Gibbs, Miss A. M. Wilson, Miss Creveling, J. E. Fryer, William H. English, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Freeman, and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Shackman of New York have rooms at the Grand Avenue Hotel.

Late arrivals at the Hotel Marlborough include Dr. W. T. Farr, A. E. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Creighton, Miss E. M. McIlvain, and Seneca P. Farr of Hackensack, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. De Lanoie, Mr. and Mrs. Newton McGovern, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Harrington of New York. Miss L. J. Ennis and Miss Mary Flynn of Jersey City, and Mr. and Mrs. William Stafford. Miss Clara Eatwisle, and Morton Odgen Stafford of Philadelphia.

At the Minot House are William L. Drungold, B. F. Chiles, F. C. T. Beck, G. O. Smith, and M. T. Wilbur of New York City, and Miss Helen Babcock, B. Lawrence, Robert Johnson, Miss Edith Conrad, Mrs. Harned, and Miss Ruen of Brooklyn.

Hotel Victoria guests include Mrs. G. Parkes, Miss Parkes, Irving G. Brown, E. E. Hagerman, Miss E. L. Hamilton, Miss I. Goldstein, Miss R. A. Lowrie, Miss E. Kleine, Miss M. B. Milton, Miss M. C. Milton, Miss E. M. Sill, Mrs. M. W. Massey, Miss Ethel L. Price, Miss A. L. Fitzsimmons, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Early and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Macomber of New York, and C. Mayhew Pluming, Mrs. C. M. Henry, and C. M. Henry, Jr., of Brooklyn.

New York visitors at the St. James include E. A. Searle, R. Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Chapman, C. F. Power, Miss F. Quackenbush, H. W. Bentley, C. Butterfield, Richard E. Webster, Mrs. A. E. Boyer, Olga Bowen, J. C. Brinton, J. M. Harting, L. K. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs J. Mennett, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Bartow. Mr. and Mrs. Morris May, Josephine Seaman, Lawrence C. May, Miss Donshue, Addie Jones, C. May, and Emma Anderson of New York are at the Grand Central.

C. Wagner of Syracuse is registered at the Grand Avenue Hotel. Dr. Ten Eyck Elmendorf of New York is a patron of the Hotel Normandie.

EASTER AT LAKEWOOD.

Weather Mild, Though the Sun Was Hidden by Clouds.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 31.—Easter Sunday at Lakewood was balmy and pleasant, although the sun was hidden the greater part of the day. Everybody lived outdoors. Hundreds went driving, the demand for vehicles being such that several ancient "arks" that formerly plied as omnibuses about the village were furbished up and used as sightseeing coaches. Allaire, the deserted village, was the destination of many riding and driving parties.

Other visitors found enjoyment in rambling around the lake and through the pine woods. All the churches were thronged with worshippers at the morning services. Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller attended service at the Baptist Church. At the close of the service many of the congregation gathered around Mr. Rockefeller and shook hands with him and extended Easter greetings.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, Kingdon Gould, and Miss Marjorie Gould attended the morning service at All Saints' Memorial Church. There was a beautiful display of flowers in the chancel, the gift of Mrs. Gould.

The Lake Drive was thronged with fashionable carriages after the church services.

The Palm Room restaurant of the Lakewood Hotel was very gay with Easter dinner parties to-night. All the tables were engaged last week. J. Brandt Walker, who is said to have made $3,000,000 on the bear side of the market in the last three weeks, was at a table with a party, which included Theodore H. Price, C. K. McCormick, and J. A. McCaskell. At a table near them were Mr. and Mrs. Miles M. O'Brien, Mrs. William H. Geishenen, and Henry J. Braker of New York. Mrs. Geishenen is to marry Mr. Braker next week.

Among the well-known New Yorkers who spent Easter at the Lakewood Hotel were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lehmann, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Scrugham, Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson N. Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Salling W. Bruch, Dr. and Mrs. Simon Baruch, W. Gould Brokaw, and the Marquis Torres Hermosa.

At the Laurel House were Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, Dr. and Mrs. Edward B. Dentuch, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Clemingsham.

DISMAL AT CONEY.

The Island Opens for the Summer in a Forest of Turned-Up Coat Collars.

The Easter opening at Coney Island yesterday was in the opinion of the islanders the most dismal in many years. Not more than 50,000 visitors were present, only half of the expected crowd, and the squally weather left them in no mood for merry-making. Frequent showers drove sightseers indoors, and only such protected attractions as the concert halls and moving picture galleries could hold the crowd.

In the intervals between showers the Bowery and Surf Avenue presented a festive appearance, but for the most part the barkers had the streets to themselves. In anticipation of a rush day, the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad had put on many extra cars, but they came in only half filled. Open cars were again in use, but passengers on them sat huddled together with their collars up.

The two principal amusement parks will remain closed till May 11.

UPHOLD THE WORD THEIR EASTER PLEA

Ministers of All Denominations Unite in Deprecating Scripture Criticism.

THE CHURCHES THRONGED

Pontifical High Mass Celebrated at the Cathedral — Elaborate Musical Programmes in All the Churches.

Ringing bells and hallelujah choruses in more than a hundred churches proclaimed yesterday the spiritual significance of Easter. Every sanctuary in the city was filled to overflowing at the morning services, and in many of them there were several services in the course of the day. Many ministers, in their sermons, attacked the recent criticisms of Christian doctrines and pleaded for a complete acceptance of the Word. The need of a return to a simpler life, or at least the abandonment of many modern practices and a fuller appreciation of man's duty to his fellow-man, were other themes discussed.

For Catholics interest centred at St. Patrick's Cathedral. Four thousand persons attended the pontifical mass which began there at 11 o'clock, and as many more sought but could not obtain admittance. The beautiful floral decorations and the robes of the priests and singers, thrown into brilliant relief and made more resplendent by the lights of thousands of lamps and candles, produced a scene of rare magnificence, and, with the music, especially the antiphonal songs sung by choirs in loft and chancel to the accompaniment of organ and orchestra, made the service most impressive.

Archbishop Farley was the celebrant of the mass. With him were Mgr. Lavelle, Dr. P. J. Hays and Dr. J. J. McMackin as Deacons of Honor; the Rev. Robert C. Sweeney, Deacon of the Mass; the Rev. P. O. Connor, Sub-Deacon of the Mass; the Rev. Hugh Daly, Sub-Deacon of the Cross, and Fathers J. J. Byrne and J. V. Lewis, Masters of Ceremonies.

Crowds Outside the Cathedral.

At 10:20 o'clock, when the doors of the Cathedral was thrown open, there were perhaps 5,000 persons in Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. Admission was by ticket, and the church filled slowly. The stillness inside the church was in marked contrast to the excitement outside, where thousands passed on foot and in cabs, carriages, and sight-seeing autos. When the services began at 11 o'clock the Cathedral was filled.

The Archbishop's reading of the mass was very impressive. Wearing a robe of white satin, covered with gold lace, and carrying his crozier, he was the centre of an imposing picture, with the other officers of the church in robes of different colors and his red-gowned altar boys, while the hundreds of men singers, most of them seminarians, formed a border of black and white.

First was the processional; then the ordinary of the mass, followed by the proper of the mass, the last sung by the chancel choir, composed of students of the Cathedral College and the Cathedral Boys' School.

The Rev. Thomas J. Campbell of the Society of Jesus preached the sermon, which told again the story of Christ's death and resurrection, and discussed the struggles, triumphs, and prospective victories of the Church, which was described as the continuous bearer of the news first proclaimed at the tomb of the Lord, "Christ is Risen!"

"As that messenger, Father Campbell said, the Church was not always stainless and unclouded. Many sins and many crimes had been attributed to the Church, and not all of its servants were above suspicion always, he said.

"The reason is not far to seek," said the priest. "It is because the church of the Lord is not made up of angels, but of men who have all of the weaknesses and cowardice of men. It is a church militant, however, and though its armors sometimes are tarnished, its flag sometimes in tatters, it has ever been and ever will be unconquered, and will move on to more victories."

Papal Blessing Bestowed.

After the offertory, Mgr. Lavelle delivered to those present the customary papal blessing, which is bestowed but four times each year and which carries with it plenary indulgence to those who have fitted themselves to receive it.

While the ceremonies within the church were in progress—they lasted about three hours—the worshippers on the steps and sidewalks near the church proved that the American Catholic is not ashamed of his religion. Those near enough the doors to hear the mass knelt now and again on the stone steps or walk and bowed their heads in prayer, and others, so far away that they could not hear, did likewise, in their devoutness paying no attention to the curious gaze of hundreds who passed by in the avenue or stopped to look at them.

Low masses and communion services were held at the cathedral at 6, 7, 8, and 9 o'clock in the morning, and the church was filled again at 4 o'clock, when vespers were held.

At Old Trinity Church thousands attended the several Easter services yesterday. Celebration of the Communion in English and German took place at 6, 7, and 8 o'clock, with morning prayer at 10:30 o'clock, followed by the Easter sermon by the rector, the Rev. Morgan Dix, at 11 o'clock. A choir of fifty voices sang to organ and orchestra accompaniment. While the rector preached about 2,000 persons waited on the steps, in the churchyard, or in Broadway, to catch the strains of the music.

Dr. Dix spoke at length on the modern criticisms of the Bible and denounced them with vigor.

"There is no middle ground," he said, in part, "between the belief that Christ did, on the third day after his burial, come out of the tomb, in His own true body, and pass forth free, and the opinion that no such thing occurred and that the body stayed sealed up in Joseph's sepulchre and there quietly disintegrated and turned to dust." But he said that Easter was no time for disputation; that it was the time to sing, rejoice, and give thanks. "The line of negation and inpurious explanations runs parallel with that of unvarying testimony and unwavering faith, and will, no doubt, even to the bitter end.

"Is it wise," he asked, "to throw away the Gospel, the old religion, the old-fashioned ways, at the bidding of the agitators and revolutionists of the period? To go down on our knees before the pretenders and disputants of the time and let them put foot upon our neck, and say to them: 'We confess that you know more than the saints and apostles and the whole Church for 1900 years, and more than Christ Himself?'"

Proof of Christ's Resurrection.

Dr. Parkhurst, in the Madison Square Presbyterian Church, also spoke on the subject of the belief in the resurrection of Christ. His subject was, "Why is it thought a thing of incredibility with you that God should raise the dead?" (Acts, xxv., 1-8.) In the course of his sermon Dr. Parkhurst said:

"The resurrection of Christ does not admit of absolute demonstration. Undoubtedly the testimony in favor of the event is strong. It evidently was unquestioned by a great number of the intelligent people living at the time of its reputed occurrence. So much force as all such evidence has is to be estimated at its logical value. So Columbus estimated at their logical value all the indications that were afforded him of the existence of another continent.

"To most people of that generation those evidences appeared insufficient to warrant putting out vessels of exploration. And the magnificent result and discovery of the enterprise were due to the fact that in Columbus's mind there was room for an America. That is the kind of mind that does the world's work, the kind of mind that arrives."

The services at Dr. Parkhurst's church included an innovation. At the close of the service the choir of thirty men and women marched out singing the final hymn as a "recessional"—which is something almost unprecedented in a Presbyterian church. Dr. Parkhurst himself, however, and his assistant minister, the Rev. G. R. Montgomery, did not follow the choir, as is customary in churches where the recessional is a regular feature. Dr. Parkhurst, questioned later, declined to say whether or not this would be made a permanent part of the service.

The musical service, under the direction of Prof. Parkhurst, the minister's brother, was elaborate. The collection, so it was announced later, amounted to $3,027.82. This will be added to the endowment fund of the church, which already amounts to $200,000.

In his sermon at the Calvary Baptist Church, where there was an elaborate musical service, the Rev. Dr. MacArthur spoke of the proof of the death and ascension of the Lord.

"Christ died actually before his time of a broken heart," he said. "That has been proved by psychological as well as theological research. When the Roman soldiers broke His legs on the cross they were carrying out a prediction made 1,500 years before. And when they pierced His side and blood and water flowed from the wound it was exactly what would happen if the heart were ruptured."

The literal ascension of the Lord, he said, was proved by the orderly condition of the tomb after the body had disappeared, even to the carefully folded napkin which had covered His brow, indicating that the body had not been hurriedly removed by the disciples.

"The founders of other religions," he concluded, "Buddha, Mohammed, Brahma, and the rest died, but they never rose again. I want my Christ who died, but who has arisen again, to be a living Saviour."

Prof. Felix Adler was another who took occasion in his Easter address before the Society for Ethical Culture, in Carnegie Hall, to consider the modern criticisms of the doctrines of the Church. Some, he said, could not follow all of the lines of the theological teachings of Jesus, because they could not yield to opinion. The only ground upon which all could gather was that which meant the desire to do right. In speaking of the need of spirit of unity with others, Prof. Adler said:

"In a way we are closer together to-day than ever before. Co-operation and co-ordination in business have made us united in a way, and there are waves of kinship of an emotional type, but emotional unity is not the spiritual unity which Jesus sought to create, and did create, among the best of his followers."

Cheerfulness in Religion.

A plea for an all-the-year-round Easter was made by Dr. Madison C. Peters in his address in the morning in the Majestic Theatre. The religion of to-day, he said, should banish gloom.

"There is more spirituality in one good, hearty laugh," he said, "than in a whole hemisphere of gloom. There may be more piety in a smile than in a tear. One good deed, well performed, is worth more than a thousand groans.

"Flowers are not only good for the wedding day, but are good to honor the dead. Away with your waving crepe upon the doorknob; open the window and let the sun shine in! Stop shrouding and coffining the body in the color of gloom. Let us stop draping women and children in dispiriting black; do away with the banding of men's hats with crepe and the ridiculous patch of black on the coat sleeve. What hopelessness all these things express! They symbolize doubt and do not suggest the immortal hope of Easter."

The Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, who succeeded the Rev. Minot J. Savage at the Unitarian Church of the Messiah, speaking at the Easter service, declared that the immortality of the soul was proved, not necessarily by the sometimes so-called infallible Scriptures, nor by the Thirty-nine Articles, nor by Jesus's declaration, but by logical reasoning processes.

For the prisoners in the Tombs there were special Easter services. The Rev. Dr. Sanderson, Presbyterian, conducted one service in the morning, which was attended by more than a hundred prisoners, including Harry K. Thaw, on trial for the murder of Stanford White. Thaw usually attends the Episcopal services conducted by the Rev. Dr. Wade.

THE NIGHTWORKERS' EASTER.

Great Throng at St. Andrew's Church —Pope Cables a Blessing.

The devotion of Roman Catholics to their church never had a stronger exemplification than was afforded by the throngs of worshippers who flocked to St. Andrew's for the solemn high mass for night workers, celebrated by the Rev. Luke J. Evers, pastor of the church, and his assistants, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Yesterday morning the church was filled to the doors by ticket holders, long before the mass began, and many worshippers stood in the aisles and in the robing room off the altar, through the open door of which the ceremony could be seen.

Promptly at 2:30 o'clock the organ, accompanied by a violin, cornet, and 'cello, burst into the melody of Mendelssohn's "Priests' March," and the procession entered the body of the church. Father Evers was the celebrant of the mass, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Owens as deacon and the Rev. Dr. Antonino Palisi as master of ceremonies. The Rev. Father Ward, a celebrated preacher of the Passionist Order, delivered the sermon.

Just before the sermon Father Evers read to the congregation a cablegram from Cardinal Merry del Val, Papal Secretary of State, conveying to Father Evers and the "night workers of New York" the Pope's thanks and apostolic benediction for the message of sympathy and support sent by the night workers after a mass meeting held in front of the church on Sunday morning, March 24.

After Father Ward's sermon came one of the most beautiful and impressive selections of the musical programme; the "Salve Regina," an offertory solo by Mme. Selina Kronold of the Catholic Dramatic Oratorio Society. "Et in Unam Sanctam," a duet by Glorza, sung by Mrs. Lynch and Miss Quigley, was interesting not only for its beauty, but because owing to the somewhat operatic character of Glorza's sacred music it is under the ban, and may never be heard in a church in this city.

Father Evers, from the altar, thanked the singers who had contributed their services to the mass.

EASTER SPIRIT IN PITTSBURG.

More Than $150,000 Contributed in the Different Churches.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., March 31.—All records for Easter offerings in the local churches were broken to-day. It is estimated that more than $150,000 was put into the contribution plates at the different churches. At Calvary Episcopal Church, where about $15,000 was contributed at the morning service, money overflowed the plates and fell to the floor. At Trinity Episcopal Church and at St. Paul's Cathedral the money was carried out in hampers. No attempt was made to count it to-day, but it is expected that the offerings at each church will exceed $20,000.

At the East Liberty Presbyterian Church $6,500 was put on the contribution plates at the morning service. Four members of the congregation contributed $1,000 each after the service.

Chinamen Hold Easter Service.

PATERSON, N. J., March 31.—Unusual Easter exercises were held in the Sunday school rooms of the First Baptist Church this afternoon. The entire programme was contributed by Chinese members of the school. W. S. Moy, a student at Columbia, was among those who participated in the exercises.

Residents of Bayonne, N. J., are indignant over the discovery that Bayonne is not on the official State map in the State museum at Trenton. This week Assemblyman Valentine Holzapfel, who represents Bayonne, will be asked to introduce a bill putting the city on the map. The discovery was made by a delegation of citizens who went to the Legislature to protest against the passage of a water bill.

SOCIETY MISSING FROM EASTER PARADE

It Was a Procession of Sightseers with Only Each Other to See.

CAMERAS TRAINED ON IT

And Wherever There Was a Camera There Was a Crowd—Three Arrests in the Mob.

There was an Easter parade in Fifth Avenue yesterday morning—a parade that was impressive in size but in nothing else. It was a great, shuffling throng that came to gaze upon New York's social elect, and, failing to see them, stayed to "rubber" at each other.

One modestly dressed little woman, obviously a stranger in the city, summed up the situation when she turned to her companion and said:

"Why, John, I can't see that these people look any different from the home folks at Spokane."

The same sentiment might have been echoed by each parader. They were all from the Hinterlands of Fifth Avenue. The social lights they came to see either stayed indoors or were away at week-end house parties.

On any ordinary weekday, when the dwellers on Fifth Avenue are using that thoroughfare for business or pleasure, one can really see a parade of fashion. The daily afternoon jam of fine carriages, horses, and automobiles is one of the city's sights. But all this was missing from the avenue yesterday. The roadway was filled, but it was with hired conveyances. Some of their occupants tried to loll in aristocratic ease, but their furtive glances plainly showed that the carriage and its occupant were not on speaking terms. An automobile buzzing along, with the chauffeur smoking a cigar, was not an uncommon sight. The stages lumbered along with every seat on their upper decks lined with curious faces. The "Seeing New York" automobiles did a rushing business; they puffed and snorted by, loaded to the gunwales. And that old friend, the bicycle, was there too.

The crowd began to gather about 10:30 o'clock, a little before the fashionable church hour. From then on it grew rapidly. At noon, and for one hour thereafter, the west sidewalk from Forty-second Street to Fifty-ninth Street was a solid mass of people—one ribbon of humanity slowly and laboriously moving southward, while another as slowly and laboriously went north. At times the jam became so great that people were forced into the roadway, and there marched along in solemn procession with the hacks and bicycles.

Meanwhile the east sidewalk was almost deserted, but no one thought of crossing over. They had come to see, and they were not to be driven off. The presence of a brigade of newspaper photographers seemed to give some substance to the theory that there was something to see. There was a battery of cameras lined up on the stoops opposite the cathedral, another on the stoop alongside St. Thomas's Church, and occasionally skirmishers sprinkled along the entire parade ground.

And wherever there was one of these camera batteries there was also an eddy of jostling people. They stopped to see what it was all about, and, seeing nothing, regretfully moved on.

There was just one person in the parade who seemed to live in one of the big, silent houses in whose shadow the throng was moving. She was a very little miss, and she rode in a one-mald power go-cart. People stared and scowled as the servant pushed through the crowd but there was an aristocratic tilt to her nose which said as plainly as words could: "My young charge needs her daily airing, even if you people do crowd in on our avenue."

And the crowd forbore remarks.

Spring styles have not yet blossomed, judging from yesterday's display of sartorial horticulture. Here and there among the swaying heads could be seen some milliner's iridescent dream, but it was a rarity. As the crowd thinned out after 1 o'clock occasional flashes of gay-hued dress goods could be seen.

But if the parade had to be accepted as the season's fashion plate Winter would be still with us.

There was one ripple of interest in the parade. Three men in the throng attracted the attention of one of the paraders, who happened to be Detective Sergt. Dunn. The trio passed up the avenue opposite the cathedral, and at the corner of Fifty-third Street were seen by Dunn to jostle a man who came out of St. Thomas's Church. The three men jostled him so boldly that the man, who gave his name to the Detective Sergeant as H. S. L. Brainard of 15 West Sixty-seventh Street, was annoyed.

Dunn immediately arrested the three. Two were handcuffed together, while Dunn took the other fellow by the coat sleeve, and the party proceeded to the East Fifty-first Street Station, where the three were locked up as suspicious characters. They said they were Henry Parker of 277 West 118th Street, Arthur Williams of 243 West Forty-sixth Street, and Frank Breen of 1 Chatham Square. The detective said that all three were well known at Headquarters.

WHAT SLIVERS THOUGHT OF IT.

The Circus Clown Went Parading to Find New Fun—He Found It.

Slivers, the college-bred clown, who has a philosophy of his own, went to see the Easter parade in Fifth Avenue yesterday, and when he returned he said it had been funnier to him than any circus he ever saw.

"Shakespeare," said Slivers, telling THE TIMES reporter about it afterward, "was an actor, so he said, 'All the world's a stage.' Now, if he'd been in my profession he'd have said 'All the world's a circus.' We're all funny people, but we take ourselves and life so seriously that we haven't time to realize it.

"Take that crowd of rubbernecks stepping on each other's toes over in Fifth Avenue this morning. Could a lot of clowns dope out a stunt half as funny? They were all looking, looking, looking—screwing their heads off to look. And what were they looking at? Ask any one of them, and he couldn't tell you.

"I don't know how many men I saw strutting along with their chests stuck away out—chesty fellows. They thought they were making an impression. Sometimes they were. But let that same fellow walk along Broadway and you get up in the tower of The Times Building and look down at him—chest and all, he's shriveled into a fly speck. And you would laugh at him and the whole street show way down below.

"I always go out and watch my fellow-humans when I'm looking for a new clown stunt for the coming season. In the circus programme there is always one number known as the clown ensemble—all the clowns joining together in one act—and I'm seriously thinking of suggesting to my brother clowns that we use this Easter parade. I'll bet it would be the biggest hit in the history of clowning.

"How would we do it? Why, we'd just take the comic features of that parading crowd—and, Lordy, there's enough of them—and enlarge them. Even a squint-eyed humorist would see the joke. Take the chesty guys; we'd build out chests that would draw tears of envy from a pouter pigeon. And then take the women, all togged out in their best, staring and rubbering at each other; wouldn't they be comic pie?

"This morning I studied the Fifth Avenue Easter parade; now I'm going downtown to look over the Bowery and Grand Street copies. Come around to Madison Square next circus season and I think we'll show you the comic supplement."

KILLS COUSIN'S WIFE AND SELF IN FLAT

Infatuated Young Italian Commits Double Crime in Husband's Absence.

ONLY A BABY SAW IT

When Husband Came Home and Neighbors Told Him of Killing He Fainted.

Mrs. Ficetta Gavagna, the young wife of Francesco Gavagna, an Italian tailor, was putting things in readiness in her little flat on the top floor of the five-story tenement at 451 West Forty-sixth Street, yesterday, to welcome to this country the two younger brothers of her husband, who at that time were being examined on Ellis Island, when she was surprised to see Giuseppi Gavagna, her husband's first cousin, enter the door. For the next fifteen minutes the other tenants had no reason to think that anything was wrong in the Gavagna apartment. Then the whole tenement was thrown into a panic when four pistol shots were heard in quick succession.

A moment later there was a woman's scream, accompanied by the sound as of a body falling. The next instant Mrs. Gavagna staggered out into the hallway and fell through the open door leading into the apartment of her friends, the Ricciardellis. Mr. Ricciardelli rushed forward, but before he got to Mrs. Gavagna she tumbled in a heap on the floor. When he tried to lift her up he saw she was dead. In the Gavagna apartment they found Giuseppi unconscious on the floor, with a bullet hole in his temple and a revolver by his side. He never regained consciousness, and died in Roosevelt Hospital an hour later.

Ricciardelli rushed to the street shouting "Murder!" and "Police!" followed by half the other men in the house. When the police arrived they saw that it was a case for the Coronsr, and notified Coroner Harburger. Coroner Harburger found that any of the three wounds Mrs. Gavagna had received would have caused her death. Then he tried to find out what was at the bottom of it all, but none of the Italian neighbors could give him much information. They said that Giuseppi was a frequent caller at the Gavagna apartment, and that although he seemed to admire his cousin's pretty wife very much, they never had any reason to think that he was infatuated with her to the point where he would commit murder. The wife was only 20 years old and the murderer and suicide 25.

Guiseppi, it waa added, had been out of employment, and some of the neighbors suggested that he may have asked Mrs. Gavagna for money, and had shot her when she refused. This theory was in a measure strengthened by the fact that the murdered woman had a silver quarter in her hand when she fell to the floor dead. There had been no sounds of quarreling, and there was only one eye-witness to the tragedy, the two-year-old baby girl of the murdered wom

The baby wae found crying in a corner of the room in which her mother had been murdered, half an hour after the shooting. Neighbors took charge of the child. When Francesco and his brothere got bome they found several hundred Italians awaiting them. Gavagna did not know what to make of it and thought the throng had assembled to greet his brothers, until a man rushed out of the crowd, threw his arme around Gavagna's neck and weepingly told him the etory.

Gavagna fell in a faint on the sidewalk, while his brothers broke into a chorus of lamsntations. The husband was finally revived and led to the home of a friend at 444 West Forty-sixth Street. There, through an interpreter, he said that he knew of no motive for the double tragedy, and declared that he was ignorant of the visits his cousin is said to have been in the habit of making to the murdered woman during the husband's absence from home.

Gavagna's brothers swore vengeance on the murdsrer until they were made to understand that the latter was dead. Then they passionately declared themselves sorry that he was not still alive so that they could avenge their brother's loss. They said that Guiseppi had not been puniehed enough in dying hy his own hand.

SHOT TO PROTECT MOTHER.

Girl Puts Bullet Into Eye of Woman Who Knocked Her Parent Down.

In an effort to protect her mother a girl who the police say is Belato Torrillo, 16 years old, yesterday afternoon shot Mrs. Angelina Degenova of 35 Eaet 214th Street in the right eye. It is thought that Mrs. Degenova will die.

Mrs. Maria Torrillo of 35 Jerome Avenue, her daughter, Belato, and Mrs. Degenova had called at 15 Holland Avenue. According to the police the older women, who had been drinking, quarreled. Mrs. Degenova caught up a chair and, taking a rung from it, felled Mrs. Torrillo. Belato then ran to her home around the corner, got a revolver, and, finding Mrs. Degenova in the hallway, shot her and fled. Late in the evening the police had not found Belato. Mrs. Degenova was taken to the Fordham Hospital. Dr. Plaeck said she might die.

LOOTERS ON THE DRIVE..

Youths Arrested While Wheeling Away Pictures of a Riverside House.

Patrolman Delamater of the West 152d Street Station found yesterday that the lower floors of an unoccupied house at 819 Riverside Drive had been looted. Chandeliers had heen torn from the ceiling and carried off, and lead piping had been cut from the walls. He estimated the damage at $1,500.

Later he saw three young men wheeling a barrow filled with the loot and arreeted them. They enid they were William O'Brien of 517 Weet 161st Street, John Munday of 471 West 153d Street, and John Murphy of 862 St. Nicholas Avenue. They were held in $1,000 honds each for examination in the Harlem Court on Wednesday.

MANY AUTO ARRESTS.

Police Busy All Day Catching Drivers Who Exceeded Speed Limit.

Easter Sunday brougbt its full quota of arrests of speeding automobilists. The forcs of bicycle policemen was augmanted by the addition of four of the recently appointed members of the squad, and as an extra incentive to duty there was a rumor industriously circulated that some of the higher members of the force would be out in plain olotbes in automobiles to see that the laws were not being evaded.

Bicycls Policeman Gibney took Walter C. Martin of 344 West Seventy-seventh Street to the 157th Street Station. He had been timed as going at the rate of twenty-four miles an hour on Broadway, from 193d to 195th Street. He was released on $100 cash bail. Later Gihney arreeted Samuel Brand, ohauffeur for Frederick Lauterbach of 1,499 Broadway. The machine had been timed as going at tbe rate of twenty-five miles an bour on Broadway, between 193d and 196th Streets. Mrs. E. G. Rich of 308 West Seventy-eighth Strest, ons of tho party in ths car at the time, gave bail. Charles M. Hicks of Philadelphia was the next victim. Policeman Donnelly timed him at the rats of twenty-five miles an hour on Broadway, between 156th and 158th Streets, and he was compelled to deposit $100 cash bail before he could proceed.

William Erhardt of 43 East Fifty-third Street was taken to the 125th Strest Station hy Policeman Mara, wbo timed the car at twenty miles an hour on Broadway, from 139th to 141st Street. Erhardt gave $100 cash bail. Oscar W. Smith, who lives at the San Romo, was caught by Policeman Cunningham, who said that eighteen miles an hour was the rate at which tbe car was traveling. Smith gavs $100 cash bail for his release. Eugene Bugnet, chauffeur for Gustave Maas of 130 East Seventy-second Street, was caught by Policeman Cunningham at 136th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue.

Edward Leeth, driver for C. C. Cuyler, broker, of 572 Madison Avenue, was arrested by Policeman Moser, who swore that the car was going at the rate of eighteen miles an hour on Riverside Drive, between 125th and 127th Streets. Mrs. Cuyler and a party of friends were in the car, and they were very indignant at the arreet. Mrs. Cuyler accompanied Leeth into the station house and expressed herself in no uncertain language. Sergt. Mahr, who was bebind the desk, listened patiently, and then stated that he was very sorry, but he would have to hold him in $100 bail, and inquired if they could furnish it. Mrs. Cuyler offered the office building at 15 Wall Street, worth a million, as surety. It was accepted.

Daniel C. Tomlinson and a party of Yale friends were arrested by Policeman Mallon and Roundsman Casey of the West 100th Street Station, at Amsterdam Avenue and 110th Street, charged with driving their car at twenty miles an hour. They gave $100 bail to assure the appearance in court to-day of the chauffeur, Thomas Sullivan.

Magistrate Walsh, in the Harlem Court yesterday, held for examination on Wednesday John W. Southack of 48 West Fifty-third Street, Edwin Muir of 17 West Eighty-sixth Street, N. Parish Watson of 50 Morningside Avenue, Al. Reeves of 29 West Forty-second Street, Lawrence Otis of 23 West Seventy-fifth Street, and Oscar Bruen of 77 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, for speeding.

Jerome Alexandre and George Bodman were each held in $200 bail hy Magistrate Crane on the charge of exceeding the speed law.

ROAD DRIVERS ON SPEEDWAY.

Light Harness Brigade Made Good Showing—Work Outs for Horses.

There was a big turnout of road drivers yesterday on the Speedway Drive, while a big crowd lined the walks to watch the early work outs of the light harness horses. There were a few impromptu brushes, but the season is too early for the drivers to attempt to speed their horses. Several drivers showed a willingness to risk an encounter, but as soon as a challenge was thrown out it was invariably declined. It was the best turn out for the first day of the season in the history of the association. There were a number of new horses out and the indications point to a good year of amateur racing.

E. J. La Place drove the best horse in the brown pacer Frank Wilson, 2:06¼, and after an hour's work changed to his old favorite Baron de Shay, 2:07¾. Both horses were heavy and high from the Winter's inactivity. William J. Scott handled the ribbons behind his bay trotting mare Kitty Wilkes, 2:16¼. Claus Bohling drove the former Speedway champion Kingmond, 2:09½. The loose footing is not suited to Kingmond's long stride, and he was not seen at his best. Dr. H. D. Gill, the former President of the Road Drivers' Association, sent his chestnut mare Sue Dix at a good pace. Charles S. Welland was bebind his recent purchase, the trotter Dr. Chase, 2:10¼. The Grand Circuit performer was anxious to show his speed, but the driver kept him under restraint. Percy Gill drove the chestnut pacing mare Monsoon, and "Directum" John Kelly worked out Arthur Lape's gray gelding Silver Ore, 2:10¾, while Owner Lape jogged his bay mare Miss Fladie.

George Huber and the trim little trotter Grace Pandit (2:23¼) figured among the stars of the morning. M. L. Simon drove the bay trotter The King, (2:10¼,) which was the former start of David Lamar's stable. Charles Straus and Belton, Jr., made a hard pair to beat. Among the other horses seen on the Speedway were David Moscovite, (2:17¼,) driven by T. G. Hinds; Redwood, (2:10¼,) with E. C. Bennett of Pittsburg driving; Susie G., driven by James H. Campbell; Crescent, (2:13¼,) with Fred Lewinski handling the reins; Diamond Jim, driven by Nathan Bennett; Hiram Abiff, driven by W. J. Minor; Sweet Marie, driven by E. C. Eastman, and Charles M., a young green pacer, driven hy C. G. White.

DUEL OVER A BRIDE.

Husband Seriously Wounds Girl's Admirer with a Breadknife.

His head swathed in bandages, one eye badly cut and bruised and the other closed, Henry Starkman, 27 years old, of 190 Chrystie Street, appeared before Magistrate Cornell in the Yorkville Court yesterday morning. He was charged by Policeman Hartwidge of the Fifth Street Station with fighting a duel with Z. Lavadska with breadknives in a First Avenue restaurant on Saturday night. Lavadska was so badly injured that he is in Bellevue Hospital and may die. Starkman was held without bail to await the result of his victim's injuries.

As tho policeman told the story, Starkman has heen married only a month. Gussie, his bride, is a pretty Polish girl, who had another admirer, Zaphscha Lavadska of 58 St. Mark's Place. Starkman had found his wife and Lavadeka talking together several timee eince the wedding and became intensely jealous. The two met in the restaurant on Saturday night and a quarrel ensued.

Both men seized long bread knives on the table and went at it. The patrons of the restaurant made a hasty exit. The combatants fought all over the place until Lavadska fell to the floor badly wounded.

Jilted Lover Hangs Himself in Cell.

Rather than suffer the disgrace of arrest for hegging, Andrew Heaney of Philadelphia attempted suicide hy hanging himself in a cell at the First Precinct Station, Newark, yesterday afternoon. The young man used his necktie, which he had wound around his neck. He told the police that he had been jilted by a young woman and had left Philadelphia on that account. He was begging money for a meal when arrested.

Jersey Fire Fighter 76 Years Old.

Millburn, N. J., claims to have the oldest active fireman in the State in the person of Roger Marshall, who celebrated his 76th birthday last Thursday. Mr. Marehall has heen connected with the Millburn fire department eince its organization and drivee the hose wagon. He intends taking an active part in Millburn's semi-centennial celebration on April 12.

NEST OF POOLROOMS FOUND DOWNTOWN

Even Brokers' Offices Used by Betting Syndicate to Place Wagers.

TRAIL LEADS TO JERSEY

Bankers and Brokers, Who Played Races, to be Called by Grand Jury To-day.

One of yesterday's revelations in connection with last week's raids on the downtown poolroom syndicate was that the District Attorney will ask the persons in charge of tbs telephone and wire service which supplied the racing news to the various places to assist in the prosecution of the men charged with carrying on the business. That the fountain head of tho news distribution will lead to Jersey, where the District Attorney has no jurisdiction, was one of the things which the day's investigations brought to light. Some service was, however, performed on this side of the river, and an effort will be made to subpoena some of the New York Telephone Company's employes as witneeses.

The first of the bankers, brokers, and men about town who had dealings with the downtown syndicate will present tbemselves before the April Grand Jury to-day in response to subpoenas. Their identity will not be known until tben, for Assistant District Attorney Vandiver refused yesterday to make public the names of any more of the men who will be asked to testify, on the ground that it might interfere with the ends of justice.

The books, vouchers, and memoranda which were found in the safe at 108 Fulton Street, late on Saturday afternoon, so far as Assistant District Attorney Vandiver had an opportunity to examine them yesterday, revealed nothing startlingly new; the chief thing discovered being that the place at 108 Fulton Street, was merely a sort of a clerical checking office for the syndicate, the principal office of which was at 112 Fulton Street. Most of ths books, memoranda, vouchers, &c., found in the last-opened safe contained information corroborative of that already in the possession of the District Attorney.

Five Raids Were Made.

Some interesting disclosures were made concerning the raids themselves which had been held back. Instead of three places which have been mentioned heretofore really five raids were made. In their quest for the headquarters of the syndicate, concerning which a hint had been obtained in the Keator raid at 47 Broadway, the police, led by Deputy Police Commissioner Hanson, got into two big down-town office buildings in search of evidence. The raiders practically closed the buildings for a time in their effort to locate the headquarters of the syndicate, which they afterwards found at 112 Fulton Street. The raiders actually did find one or two small poolrooms in these buildings which they did not molest for the time being, for they were after the fountain-head of the syndicate. Because no raids were made the police decided not to make public the names of the buildings which they searched.

It was said yesterday that the first information about the syndicate leaked out through Keator's place, at 47 Broadway, where a Jerseyman hit the exchequer of that establishment so hard hy his winnings that there was some trouble about paying him. When the money was not promptly forthcoming he "squealed." That set the police ball rolling, because some of the papers found in that place indicated the larger circle of poolrooms with an executive office somewbere near.

The question as to how many poolrooms were running under the Davis-Reilly management in the downtown section was also partly explained by a man concerned in the raids, and who said that a ledger kept in the headquarters at 112 Fulton Street showed at various times accounts with ten to twenty downtown poolrooms. The active manager of tbe downtown office, the police were informed by Miss Erna Santrook, one of the clerks in the place, during the raid, was E. A. Fisher, who is one of the men under arrest.

Bets Made in Brokers' Offices.

The tributory rooms in the control of the syndicate are said to have done a big business with brokers, many of whom ran into these places after the Stock Exchange closed to place their bets. Several of the smaller poolrooms are run in connection with brokers' offices themselves, a clerk in the office surreptitiously taking the bet for the initiated and sophisticated who knew how to work the scheme. Nor have the raids entirely wiped out the business, for the police learned that on Saturday some of these places were still running in spite of the fact that the police had taken charge of the main office.

Another effort was made yesterday to get Senator Grady to explain the conversation over the 'phone with tbe office at 112 Fulton Street and also the presence of the deposit slip marked with his name found in the safe in the place, but, although he was known to be in town, he could not be found either at his home, 151 East Thirtieth Street, or in any of the clubs or other places in town where his friends are in the habit of meeting him.

BABOON UPSET THE CIRCUS.

Broke Away from its Trainer and Gave Keepers a Chase.

Hostlers, elephant men, and other animal keepers had an exciting chase in the basement of Madison Square Garden yesterday after a baboon that had broken away from one of the trainers.

The babgon was recently obtained from a large consignment of monkeye brougbt from Northern Africa. In the last two or three days tbe baboon began to show evidences of what animal men call "cage sickness." Yesterday morning Patrick Cronin, one of the trainers, took the animal out of its cage to give it some medicine. The chance of obtaining its liberty seemed to revive the drooping spirits of the baboon, and when a favorable opportunity occurred it broke away, ran up one of the pillars, and disappeared back of a girder.

Cronin immediately raised an alarm. "Monkey loose! Monkey loose!" he yelled at the top of his voice, and the circus men came running up from all parts of the menagerie. Cronin explained the situation and pointed out tbe place where the baboon had disappeared. A long ladder was obtained, and one of the men climbed up and tried to coax the haboon to come down. Instead of complying, the animal sprang to the next girder, jumped to the rail surrounding the elephant herd, vaulted on the back of Baby, the old mother elephant, and then, as the crowd of men started in pursuit, jumped from elephant to elephant until the end of the line was reached. It disappeared in the lion's cage at the Twenty-seventh Street side of the basement.

In the meantime the actions of the baboon and the pursuit of the attendants had stirred up the elephants, and they added to the excitement by their noisy trumpetings and frantic efforts to break away. The caged animals quickly caught the excitement, and the lions and other animals joined in the tumult.

The baboon was forced out of the lion's cage with a stick, but all efforts to catch the animal were fruitless. George Conklin, the Superintendent, who had come in during the excitement, ordered the men to leave the baboon's cage open and to chase the animal in that direction. This was done, and after many failures the baboon finally approached the cage and entered of its own accord.

New-Yorker Arrested in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 31.—After a search lasting since October, Oscar Wolf, wanted on a charge of embezzlement, was arrested here last night. The arrest was made through a decoy letter. According to the police, Wolf disappeared from New York last October, taking with him several thousand collars belonging to the firm of Mayer Lange & Co., by whom he had been employed as a salesman.

ANTI-HUGHES MEN SOON TO LINE UP

Conflict Over the Governor's Policy Cannot Be Delayed Much Longer.

GOVERNOR MAY SPEAK OUT

Will Talk in Utica To-night—Kelsey and Utilities Issues Are at the Front.

ALBANY, March 31.—With only a few more weeks of the legislative session left, interest has become intense in the inevitable conflict between the Senators in the confidence of Gov. Hughes and those who have more or less openly avowed their intention to oppose his policies. From now until adjournment the lines will be drawn more tightly and every move of either side will be watched with keenest interest. Not only the people of this State but the people throughout the country are showing concern in the outcome.

Two subjects in particular embody whatever there is of conflict at the present moment, and both are at a critical stage. Final action is near upon the recommendation of Gov. Hughes that Supt. Otto Kelsey of the State Insurance Department be removed from office for inefficiency. The second and possibly final hearing upon the so-called Public Utilities bill will be held on Wednesday afternoon before the Senate Judiciary and Assembly Railroads Committees. The amendments to the bill desired by the lighting and power companies and others will then be added to those presented last week by the steam railroads and the New York City traction interests.

It is not likely that the Utilities bill will reach the stage of even a committee vote before next week, but the measure has become distinctly a storm centre.

There has been much speculation as to what Gov. Hughes will do ehould the Legislature fail to comply with his recommendations in the Kelsey matter, or as to the Utilities bill. He declared on Saturday in an authorized interview that he had "No reason to question that the Utilities bill will receive such consideration and that such action will be taken upon it as the public interests require," and that any statement of bis views or intentions would be made publicly by himself. It is not known that any such statement is immediately impending, but much interest has been evinced in the speech which ths Governor is expected to make to-morrow evening before the Utica Chamber of Commerce.

Another subject covered hy recommendations of Gov. Hughes is expected to come before the Senate this week in the bill of Assemblyman Prentice, providing for a second recount of the ballots cast at the election of Mayor in New York City in 1905. The bill passed the Assembly last Thursday by an overwhelming majority. It is expected to pass the Senate, but it is known that certain Republican Senators will probably oppose the measure, one of their grounds being that the bill applies only to "any city of the first class in which the ballots have been preeerved," and that therefore the failure to have preeerved any of the ballots cast in that election may nullify the statute.

Another subject of acrimonious debate in the Senate will be the so-called Bingham Police bill, which is practically a special order for Tuesday on final passage. This bill is practically a party measure, has passed the Assembly, and is expected to pass the Senate.

Friends of the Local Option bill, headed by Assemblyman Winters of Tioga, its introducer, expect to make a fight for its life on Monday night or Tuesday in the Assembly, in the form of an effort to discharge the Excise Committee from its further consideration. The committee has shown more or less openly a reluctance to report the bill unless with amendments not acceptable to its sponsors.

One of the most important hearings of the week will be that on Wednesday before the Senate Public Health Committee on the Tully-Wainwright bill designed to restrict the sale of the so-called habit-forming drugs.

With the coming on of warm weather there is a disposition to hasten the work of the session and get home as soon as possible. The usual concurrent resolution fixing a date for final adjournment may be expected now at almost any time. Present indications are that May 8 will be the date, but uncertainty as to the disposition of several of the important propositions pending leade some of the leaders to believe that the eeesion may he prolonged at least a week beyond that date.

CONTROLLER AFTER BROKERS.

Calls on Attorney General to Enforce Stock Transfer Act Penalties.

ALBANY, March 31.—Controller Martin H. Glynn announced to-night that be had called upon Attorney Gencral William S. Jackson to enforce the criminal and civil penalties of the Stock Transfer act. The Controller says he believes that failure to prosecute in the past is responsible to a great degree for the existing conditione, and that bis communication to the Attorney General sets forth the information gathered by Inspectors of the department.

Inspectors charged with the duty of ascertaining the manner in which stock brokers are complying with the statute have in some instances not heen allowed to examine records, and have experienced great difficulty in procuring adequate information concerning transactions governed by the Transfer act. They have reported that stock bas been purchased and sold to the extent of thousands of shares without the payment of the stamp tax.

Some brokers were fonnd who had endeavored to justify their position by claiming that they were simply the representatives of other brokers who should pay the tax. The State, however, does not accept any shift of reeponsibility, holding that the stampe must be affixed to the agreement of sale where the actual delivery of the stock does not take place immediately.

FRANCHISE TAX BILLS READY.

Would Make Corporations Pay Promptly—$18,900,000 Arrears Now.

ALBANY, March 31.—It was announced at the office of the State Tax Commissioner to-night that Senator Tully will introduce in the Legislature to-morrow night three bills to carry out the recommendations made by the State Board of Tax Commissioners to compel the prompt payment of special franchise taxes. A total of nearly $18,900,000 in unpaid special franchise taxes is due to the various municipalities of the State.

The bills will provide for full valuation of franchises by the State Board, and then reduction to the same basis as the local assessments. The person or corporation aseessed must then pay the tax levled within thirty day or be forbidden to bring any action for review except in the single case where the sole question involved is one involving the jurisdiction of the Tax Board.

The court will have power to grant a stay for three months if satisfied that a serious jurisdictional question is involved, but a bond must be given, conditioned for the payment of the tax.

As a cumulative remedy to collect delinquent taxes against corporations the Mayor or Supervisor of the municipality, as the case may be, will have power to maintain an action for the sequestration of the property of such delinquents.

Actor Bonnell Tries Suicide Twice.

William Bonnell, 37 years old, an actor, was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital yesterday afternon a prisoner on a charge of attempted suicide. Bonnell lived at 205 Eaet Ninety-third Street. His wife said her husband had saturated a towel with chloroform and placed it over his head. He had attempted to kill himself in the same manner twenty-four hours before, she said. Bonnell will recover.

The man who tampers with writing on checks printed with a security tint injures this tint to some extent. If it is a flat color, as is the case with most safety papers, he can restore it with water color.

But if it consists of delicate and exact forms countlessly repeated, the successful replacing of which, once disturbed, is a practical impossibility, he probably won't tamper.

A good reason for putting our pantograph tints on checks and other instruments requiring security.

THE most efficient typewriter is the Smith Premier. The most efficient Smith Premier is

which combines with all the good points of its previous models the ability to write in three colors from one ribbon. By a touch of a small lever this new model produces

Purple typewriting that will copy
Black typewriting that will not fade or offset
Red typewriting for emphasis or display

In every modern business house a definite need is present for each of these kinds of writing. The new Tri-Chrome Smith Premier is the only typewriter offering them.

AUTO RACING RULES DIFFER WIDELY

Touring Car Contests Increasing in Popularity Here and Abroad.

WANT INTERNATIONAL CODE

Old Weight Limit Gradually Being Abandoned—W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., May Suggest Changes.

American interest in automobile racing is keeping pace with the activity abroad, for within a week, in addition to the Vanderbilt Cup competition, definite arrangements have been made to hold separate speed contests for American and foreign touring cars. Not only in interest and in number of races are the conditions abroad being duplicated here, but also in the complexity of rules governing these contests. The Vanderbilt Cup race will stick to the weight limit as in the past, even if certain modifications are made. Some changes are expected, and with the arrival of William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., to-morrow a meeting of the Racing Board will be called, probably before the close of the week, and intending competitors will then have their anxiety allayed by knowing just what will be required of their cars. Over twenty American cars are reported as being well advanced toward completion for the elimination trials, and as no announcement has been made that last year's conditions will be materially altered, it would be unjust to the manufacturers to propose anything radical at this time.

A limited cylinder capacity will be the test of eligibility and success for the American touring car contest. The members of the Importers' Salon who are inaugurating their foreign car race have not decided upon the exact rules, but only stock touring cars will be eligible to compete.

The cylinder capacity situation is arousing greater interest than formerly abroad, and the fact that the German and Italian Automobile clubs have adopted this method for their big speed contests is certain to exert considerable influence in the discussion almost certain to ensue at the December meeting of the Federated Automobile Clubs on the subject of enacting an international code of racing rules. It will be a great year for the automobile technical committees, but one good result of the diversity of opinion at present may be a uniform system for another year.

All of these changes in racing rules are due to an effort to circumscribe the power of the machines so that the competitors may start on a fairly equal basis in the effort to demonstrate approximately the most rational type of machine. The weight limit was formerly accepted as the means of placing a check to excessive horse power. It gave in its earlier years very creditable results, but with the increasing development of the industry its practical application is now at a discount. France, therefore, in discarding the weight limit for the Grand Prix, has substituted a limited fuel supply, a plan that has been tried with success in several events, notably the Tourist Trophy race in England. While the allowance, 6.6 gallons for 62.1 miles, was believed by many French experts to be too generous for the object of restricting the racing cars within reasonable horse power ratings, it has met with general approval and a splendid lot of thirty-four machines, all of them built expressly for the race, will be seen on the Dieppe course on July 2.

In demanding more satisfactory long distance contests for regulation touring cars the American manufacturers are in line with their brethren across the water. The Marquis de Dion, whose opposition to the building of racing cars for road events has been marked for the last two years, has succeeded this year in obtaining the approval of the Automobile Club of France for an extended touring car competition, ending with a race of the cars that pass the touring requirements satisfactorily. This tour will be known as the Criterium de France and will be held from August 2 to 6. The conditions call for a 1,000-mile tour, all cars to carry four passengers and to weigh, fully equipped, at least 3,630 pounds. An average speed of 24.8 miles per hour must be maintained and a limited fuel supply of either 3.3 or 4.4 gallons for 62.1 miles will be imposed. The machines that qualify in the touring run will then meet in a 250-mile race near Trouville for a cup. The entries close May 1, and three cars may be entered by one manufacturer.

Early Auto Show for Independents.

An earlier date will be chosen for the automobile show next season, to be held jointly by the Automobile Club of America and the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association, representing the independents, or those not affiliated with the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers. It has been decided to hold their exhibit earlier than last year, which was the first week in December. The show will be held in the Grand Central Palace, and there is a bare possibility that it may be held in October, preceding the licensed show in Madison Square Garden, which is to open on Oct. 31. If not, an early November date will be selected immediately after the Licensed show. The Show Committee from the independent manufacturers consists of H. C. Smith, William M. Lewis, and J. B. Bartholomew, while the Automobile Club Committee consists of Gen. George Moore Smith, Alan R. Hawley, and S. M. Butler.

Camerons and St. George Tie.

The Cameron Reserves and St. George United Association football teams played a tie game yesterday at Van Cortlandt Park, the final score being 2 to 2. The game was closely contested throughout, both teams scoring one goal in each half. Higgins for St. George United scored the second goal for his side from a penalty kick two minutes before the call of time. Line-up:

JAMESTOWN'S GOOD COURSE.

President Pilkington Approves the Location for Exposition Regatta.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of the Amateur Oarsmen will be held on Thursday night at the Hotel Marlborough for the purpose of selecting the Regatta Committee for the International Rowing Regatta at the Jamestown Exposition, Aug. 14 to 18. The list of events for the regatta will also be agreed upon and preliminary plans adopted.

President Pilkington returned from Jamestown last Saturday, where he inspected the proposed course. He is enthusiastic over the location and says the regatta promises to be one of the most important from a rowing standpoint ever held in the United States. He thinks the accommodations for the spectators will be superior to any other regatta ever held, and as the course will be an excellent one expects a big entry list. In discussing his trip last night he said:

"I was agreeably surprised with rowing conditions at Jamestown. They have an exceptionally good course and the surrounding country is splendid and as far as I can see there is nothing to prevent the Exposition management from holding a fine regatta. The course will be one and one-fourth miles long but can be extended any length it may be desired. It will be laid off the coast line close enough for the spectators to see the contests without any discomforts. The location lies in a direct line in front of the Exposition grounds and can be seen to great advantage. The place selected is Willoughby Bay, which is protected from the wind by Willoughby Slip, a long stretch of land that will ensure good water. I am sure the oarsman will agree with me when they see the course and declare it to be excellent. Nothing has yet been done about the list of events, but it can be stated that the plans contemplate the most attractive rowing programme ever offered."

GOOD PRICES FOR BULLDOGS.

Twenty-two Prize Winners Sold In England for $37,000.

Bulldogs still retain their popularity and English exhibitors are paying high prices for well bred dogs. At the Birmingham show record prices were recorded as a result of two days' sale. The demand was for bulls between 21 and 30 months old. In the blooded stock twenty-two dogs were sold for a total of $37,000, or an average of $1,672. C. F. Raphael's Shenley Victor brought the record price of $5,000. Mr. McLennen, the purchaser, also secured Rupert Benedict for $1,500, and Leopold de Rothschild's Ascot Victor for $3,000. The Baronet was disposed of for $1,750, and Salperton Ranger, which took second prize to Ascot Victor, went for $1,400. Viscount Tredegar paid $1,680 for Tredegar Baron Butterfly.

Leopold de Rothschild's commended Ascot Wanderer was sold for $2,200, and the Earl of Powis's second prize, Powysland M. P., changed hands at the same price. Betchley Premier, which headed the prize list, was bought for $1,820 for the United States, and Shenley Champion, which will also come to this country, reached $1,710. Lord Lovat's Baron Waterloo was knocked down for $850, and was considered one of the cheapest dogs of the sale. A number of other prize winners realized good figures.

SEVENTH STOPS FIRING.

Riflemen Wind Up Season with Series of Interesting Matches.

After a season of nearly five months the members of the Seventh Regiment Rifle Club participated in their last indoor competitions on the armory ranges on Saturday night. The turn-out was the largest of the season, and the marksmanship was of a high order. Probably the most attractive event of the night was the Adjutant's Trophy match, a prize to be awarded to the company whose three officers make the highest aggregate score in the revolver match decided on the same evening, first entries only to count. Under the conditions each contestant had five shots at fifteen yards, "deliberate," single action.

The Adjutant's prize was won by Company I, with Company G a close second. Lieut. A. E. Crall of Company G, in a field of about 200, captured the revolver match with the remarkable score of 25. Private O. Wuerz of Company C was first in the champion aggregate match, with 272. Sergt. W. B. Short of Company D won the Gold Bar for the season. Scores follow:

Automobile Notes of Interest.

The Worcester Automobile Club, which will hold its annual hill climbing competition on Dead Horse Hill in May, has announced that the event will be conducted under the English system, which will be the first time that this method has been adopted in America. Under this plan only one event is held, the cars being classified on an equitable handicap basis. Several New York autoists are planning to take part.

Following the example recently set by the automobile women of Philadelphia, the fair motorists of Chicago have just organized the Chicago Women's Motor Club, with about twenty members. Mrs. C. H. Foster is the President and Mrs. N. J. Boardman, Secretary.

A decided improvement has been made this year in the popular Pope-Waverley electric car. Its battery capacity has been enlarged, the body has been enlarged to a more comfortable size, and larger tires are used. The speeds range from five to seventeen miles an hour. The car is equipped with an electric brake, and there are also two pedal brakes.

R. M. Owen states that he will enter as many cars as possible for the coming Orphans' Day outing to be held by the New York Motor Club. "Just so soon as a day shall be determined for the carrying out of the project," he says, "we will be pleased to furnish Reo and Premier touring cars. Movements of this nature should receive the hearty support of dealers, for they tend to cultivate a friendly public attitude toward motorists as a whole, the benefits of which to the trade cannot be overestimated."

C. W. Kelsey, President of the new corporation about to establish a taxameter cab service in the leading cities, states that the name of the new enterprise will be the American Cab and Delivery Company, and not the American Cab and Express Company, as formerly announced.

Two Dragon cars will be exhibited at the Jamestown Exposition in the motor car exhibit in the Machinery and Transportation Building. A stationary Dragon engine will also be shown. A pipe connected with an illuminating gas jet will be run to the engine, which will be operated in turn with illuminating gas as fuel and with gasoline and alcohol. During the exposition various tests and experiments will be made by visiting experts.

The Healy Leather Tire Company of 88-90 Gold Street has put on the market a new detachable tire grip. It is made of straps of very tough chrome leather, carrying steel rivets, and running crosswise on the tire at regular intervals. The ends of these cross-straps are joined together on the sides of the tire by means of a simple and ingenious device which allows any part of the grip to be instantly detached. These grips are very readily applied, do not injure the tire in the slightest degree, are quiet in running, and are guaranteed to withstand a large amount of wear and tear.

The action taken by the Board of Directors of the American Automobile Association, with its proposal to follow the Vanderbilt Cup race with one for stock touring cars of American manufacture, is meeting with the heartiest approval of those who are interested in actual competitive tests between cars not specially built for racing purposes. E. S. Partridge, of Wyckoff, Church & Partridge, said last week: "The general buying public are more interested in the actual accomplishments of real stock cars than in the results of races where no expense or effort is spared to build a special racer, bearing no resemblance whatever to the regular cars made by the firm which enters the contest."

NEW ROWING COURSE IS NEEDED HERE

President Pilkington Expects Pelham Bay Project to be Carried Through.

ALDERMEN SHOW INTEREST

Schoolboy Movement Likely to Aid Cause—Spring Practice Begins on Harlem River.

If the plans of the oarsmen materialize there will be a marked revival in rowing in and around New York within the next two years. Perhaps the most important step will be the determined effort to secure a National regatta course at Pelham Bay, while second only in importance is the development of rowing among the high school boys. Several projects of minor importance are in contemplation, which will have a beneficial effect on the sport. The appropriation of $2,500 by the Board of Aldermen, to defray the expenses of the Memorial Day regatta of the Harlem Regatta Association, has stirred up the oarsmen, and there is a general movement afoot to improve the local rowing conditions.

President James Pilkington of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen is the prime mover in the Pelham Bay project. It is nearly two years since the scheme was first taken up, but owing to the many difficulties in formulating plans to get the matter before the proper departments of the municipality the project has been allowed to hang fire. President Pilkington has arranged to take Controller Herman Metz to Pelham Bay to look over the projected course, and it is expected that one or more of the Park Commissioners will be included in the party. It is hoped that arrangements can be made to secure the support of the Board of Park Commissioners and have the necessary improvements included in the appropriation for public parks.

The necessity of providing a permanent regatta course for New York oarsmen has become so great that the Harlem River rowing clubs are now ready actively to co-operate with President Pilkington. The condition of the Harlem River is daily becoming worse, the driftwood and debris making it at times dangerous for oarsmen to go out in shells. It is Mr. Pilkington's intention shortly to call a general meeting of representatives of the clubs of the Harlem Regatta Association, Hudson River Association, Long Island Rowing Association, and New York Bay Association, to select committees to secure the establishment of the Pelham Bay course.

Alderman J. R. Davies, who piloted the Harlem Regatta Association appropriation bill through the Board of Aldermen, is authority for the statement that there is a general disposition among the Aldermen to pay more attention to the wants of the oarsmen. He says the willingness with which the Aldermen voted for the Memorial Day regatta appropriation was an evidence of the favorable sentiment toward rowing. He is supported by Alderman Elias Goodman, another old oarsman, and both have promised their support in any project which will better the rowing conditions in this city.

The movement to interest the schoolboys in rowing is expected to aid the oarsmen in their efforts to secure the Pelham Bay course. For several years the boys have been clamoring for a chance to get on the water and learn to stroke a shell and to scull. The Harlem Rowing Club has agreed to take the youngsters with rowing aspirations and prepare them for a one-mile event, to be decided in the annual Harlem River on Memorial Day. Capt. Nagle has made arrangements to look after five schoolboy crews for the regatta. The St. Mary's schoolship has notified the Board of Education that it will enter a crew in the schoolboy race. The schoolship crew has borrowed an eight-oared shell from the New Rochelle Boat Club, and will train at Pelham Bay.

From present indications, there will be six crews in the race. Among those preparing for the event are De Witt Clinton, High School of Commerce, Townsend Harris Hall, Stuyvesant High, Manual Training, and Morris High. It is probable that entries will also be secured from the Boys' High of Brooklyn, Flushing, Bryant, and Commercial High.

A number of prominent business men who have become interested in the race are canvassing among friends to ascertain if it is possible to erect a permanent clubhouse for the use of schoolboys. The plan is to raise about $20,000 by popular subscription and build on the Pelham Bay site of the proposed course, the structure to be under the control of the Board of Education. This, it is contended, would be the means of keeping a large number of rowing athletes of the schools in condition throughout the year. A number of oarsmen began Spring practice yesterday, and the clubhouses on the Harlem River presented a lively appearance. Easter Sunday marks the opening of the training season, and the fine weather brought out many crews. The senior eights of the Nassau and Nonpareil Clubs were among the first on the river. Capt. Mulcahy of the Atalantas sent out one four and two doubles. The Unions had out several crews, and the Metropolitan, Crescent, Bohemian, and Harlem Clubs were well represented. The Harlem Club will take an active interest in competitions, and Capt. Nagle has already begun to select his men for the different crews.

GRIFFITH WILL SPLIT TEAM.

Part Will Play in Lynchburg, Rest Will Stay in Atlanta.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 31.—This week marks the end of the training season of the Greater New Yorks in Atlanta, and so far Manager Griffith has only two games scheduled with the Atlanta team, on Friday and Saturday. On Wednesday half of the squad will leave for a Virginia tour, during which several teams of the Virginia State League will be played. "Smiling Al" Orth hails from Lynchburg, and he will be sent along to pitch in a game against the team of that city. The rest of the men will leave the city next Sunday or Monday and will join the traveling squad in Virginia, from where the entire team goes to Baltimore to play two games with the Eastern League nine before going to Washington for the opening contest of the American League season on April 11.

The New York team has had as successful a training season as any of the major league teams, the only matter that Griffith can consider a piece of hard luck being injuries that put several of his men out of the running for a time. As to the weather, it has been the best in Georgia for several years, neither rain nor cold so far having prevented the team from working. Griffith will continue the morning practice this week, and let the men rest in the afternoons, except on the two days they meet Atlanta.

GIANTS LEAVE FOR ALABAMA.

Ill-Feeling Against Them in New Orleans—In Montgomery To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 31.—Manager McGraw did not send the New Yorks to Athletic Park this afternoon, the grounds being left open to the Athletics and New Orleans team, as it was advertised they were to play. Both Secretary Fred Knowles and McGraw were of the opinion that they could not strengthen the Giants' case by having the men appear on the field, and so the players were told they could rest.

The weather was cold and raining, and the men were not sorry to escape the danger of lame arms and other ailments that might have been the result. It was noticed that none of them went out to see the Athletics and Pelicans play. In fact, the trouble over Umpire Zimmer has been the means of antagonizing the players of the Athletics and Giants against each other, and, as with the opposing officials, there is a decidedly frosty feeling between them.

The New Yorks left for Montgomery to-night, where they are scheduled to play to-morrow. Several of the players may be left in Montgomery to continue their training there instead of making the "one night stands." If any are left they will rejoin the team in New York next Saturday.

St. Louis Nationals Win.

ST. LOUIS, March 31.—The largest crowd that ever attended a ball game in St. Louis to-day watched the local National team defeat the local American team, 5 to 4, in the second game of the seven-game series for the championship of the city. Score:

"Chick" Stahl Buried Yesterday.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., March 31.—Charles S. ("Chick") Stahl, late Captain and former manager of the Boston American League Baseball Club, who committed suicide at West Baden, was buried at Lindenwood Cemetery this afternoon. The floral offerings made an immense bank around the grave. Former Congressman James M. Robinson delivered the funeral oration. Criger, Freeman, Parent, and Dineen, team mates, were among the mourners.

Boston Shut Out Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 31.—The Boston American baseball team defeated the Cincinnati Nationals in an exhibition game this afternoon. Score by innings:

MOHAWK A. C. ENDS SEASON.

A. Michel Wins Last Road Run—Entries for Marathon Race.

The last road run of the season of the Mohawk Athletic Club was held yesterday over the club course, a distance of two and one-half miles. The run, which was a handicap event, was won by A. Michel, who had a handicap of 1 minute and 15 seconds, with J. Rehman second. J. Riley and J. Malone tied for the time prize with 12:11. The runners tossed for the prize, which was won by Malone. E. Sweitzer, who finished third from last, captured the novice prize.

Fred Lorz and G. Meeks will represent the club in the annual Marathon run at Boston on April 19. Both men are in good shape, and expect to finish near the top of the list. The order of finish follows:

Name.	Handicap.	Finish.
A. Michel	1:15	11:02
J. Rehman	1:00	12:49
O. Delmar	0:40	12:25

Granule Won French Steeplechase.

PARIS, March 31.—P. Simeon's Granule today easily won at Auteuil the Grand Prize of the President of the Republic Steeplechase for a purse of $1,000. The distance was 4,200 metres, a little over two miles, and fourteen horses started. M. Braquessac's Matsouke was second, and Roi Du Monde, running in the colors of Mr. Pfizer, an American, was third.

The brilliant summer-like weather brought out a record attendance, which included President Falliéres and men prominent in sport and society from all nations.

FINCKE AND WRENN WIN AT RACQUETS

New York Players Defeat Spencer and Scott in Four Straight Games.

QUAKERS ARE OUTCLASSED

Contest Finished in Record Time—Wrenn Makes Run of Twenty-four Aces.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., March 31.—R. D. Wrenn and Reginald Fincke of the New York Racquet and Tennis Club had a walkover in the final round for the doubles championship of the United States here at the Tennis and Racquet Club, when they defeated Willing Spencer and Edgar T. Scott of the Philadelphia Racquet and Tennis Club four straight games by the score of 15—4, 15—0, 15—0, 15—8. It was one of the most one-sided matches ever seen in a championship tournament, and easily the most one-sided in the tournament which ended with the match. At no stage of the game could the Philadelphia players travel fast enough for the winners of the championship, and at every department of the game they were outpointed, getting but twelve aces in the entire match.

In the second and third games the defeated team was shut out without an ace, and they made their best showing in the last game, in which they got but eight aces. The feature of the match was the serving of Wrenn, and at one stage, at the finish of the second and the start of the third games, he ran off twenty-four aces without being put out.

The game will be remembered for the fact that it took but a trifle more than thirty minutes to play it, for Wrenn and his partner ran out their aces so fast, and then shut out their opponents when the latter were in service, that almost a record mark was set for a four-game double match. The summary:

Reginald Fincke and R. D. Wrenn, New York Racquet and Tennis Club, defeated William Spencer and Edgar T. Scott, Philadelphia Racquet and Tennis Club, 15—1, 15—0, 15—0, 15—8.

Yale Waiting on Harvard.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 31.—Yale football officials left for the Easter vacation without having heard from Harvard relative to a game for next season. The custom has always been here that the football schedule shall be announced before the Easter vacation. The list of games which the team will play is complete, with the exception of the Harvard match, which it is taken for granted will be played, since the report of the Harvard Athletic Committee was favorable. The last game outside of the Harvard match to be decided upon is a contest with Washington and Jefferson University for the first time. This college will be played here on Saturday, Nov. 2, the date usually given to West Point. The military cadets will be played a week later than usual.

Yale will not arrange a game with Columbia if that university gets the sport reinstated, and Pennsylvania and State has also been cut off because the match was rough last Fall. If the Harvard match is not arranged a movement will be made by the Faculty not to have another big match substituted in its place.

Big Shoot for Montclair.

The best trap shooters among the amateur clubs and other organizations in the metropolitan district have entered in the tournament to be held on the Montclair Gun Club grounds at Montclair, N. J., on Wednesday. The Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn, New York Athletic Club, Wykagyl Country Club of New Rochelle, Larchmont Yacht Club, and Fox Hills of Staten Island will be represented, and it is expected that the tournament will result in the formation of a strong league of clubs in and around New York, and that a tournament may be one of the annual fixtures.

Three handsome silver cups, emblematic of individual championship, will be contested for in this week's tourney, and a fourth will be for the club championship. The first prize is a cup presented by Adrian R. Allan of the Montclair Gun Club, and is valued at $110, while the club has added the other three. The competition will be at 100 targets, from scratch, expert traps to be used. The club prize will go to the representatives making the highest aggregate score.

Entries at Benning To-day.

FIRST RACE.—Fillies and mares, three-years-old and up; five furlongs. Diemond Flush, Idle Dream, and Rose of Dawn, 105 pounds each; Tickle, Cousin Kate, Ossineke, and Princess Royal, 104 each; Anna May, 99; Revenue, 95; Black Flag, Tilmouse, Nettie Carita, Old Colony, Willetta, and Sweet Eileen, 92 each.

SECOND RACE.—Half mile; fillies and geldings, two-year-old maidens. Tray of Spades, Black Mask, Lady Powell, False Garter, Greedon, Glorious Betsy, Laudable, Beget, Long Bail, Beckon, Wedding, Matches Mary, Helen B., Easter Belle, Merrimac, Luzetta, Polaris, Vistula, and Arkobee, 99 pounds each.

THIRD RACE.—Colts, two-year-old maidens; four and a half furlongs. Glaucus, Bob Callahan, Jr., Gold Foil, Patrician, Elfil, Suzerain, Superstition, and Jubilee, 102 pounds each.

FOURTH RACE.—Easter Monday Steeplechase, selling; about two and a half miles. Harry Taylor and Frank Somers, 153 pounds each; Hyperion and Northville, 140 each; Souvigny, 132; Pioneer, 141.

FIFTH RACE.—Handicap, three-year-olds and up; six and a half furlongs. Slickaway, 118 pounds; Campaigner, 103; East End, 95; Tickle, 92; Umbrella, 84.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling, three-year-olds and up; one mile. Reidmore, 116 pounds; Bulwark and Nolick, 112 each; Betsy Binford, 87; Monocador, 110; Tavannes, 103.

CHANGES IN YALE'S CREW.

Rockwell May Not Row Again This Year—Two Freshmen Added.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 31.—Capt. Charles Elliott Ide, who took charge of the Yale crew last Tuesday, the day after his election, to-day sent home the oarsmen who have been here since the Easter vacation opened. Under his direction, a slight reorganization of the eight has been in progress. Hoppin, who was rowing at 6, has left the boat, and Howe, who was at 6 in the freshman eight last year, is being tried. Robert Noyes, the retiring Captain, who gave up the crew leadership because of ill-health, left two weeks ago. He has rowed at 6 for two years.

The loss of Rockwell, bow oar, is felt keenly by Coach Kennedy. He went to his home a week ago, suffering from what was thought to be mumps. Appendicitis developed, and it is expected that he will be unable to row again this year. Dunkle, who rowed at 7 in the freshman crew last year, is now in Rockwell's place. Neither Howe nor Dunkle, who are the new candidates, is a finished oar, and the outlook for a fast crew is apparently hopeless. Under Capt. Ide the eight has been rowing as follows: Stroke, Boulton; 7, Ide; 6, Howe; 5, Peyton; 4, Mayer; 3, Rice; 2, Graham; bow, Dunkle.

Yale rowing men are confident that Princeton will join the Yale-Harvard regatta on the Thames in another year. There has been no correspondence of an official nature over the matter, but Yale heartily favors the admission of the Tigers to the regatta at New London, and informal statements made by Princeton men indicate that it is expected an application will be made to enter the Thames races as soon as crews are regularly organized.

FORTY COLLEGES ENTERED.

Pennsylvania Expects Twenty More for Relay Carnival on April 27.

The managers of the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival have received entries from over forty colleges for the annual meet which will be held at Franklin Field on April 27. From present indications the coming meet will be the greatest ever held. Classes that have not filled for years will be in line, and by the time the entries close it is expected that athletes from sixty colleges will be represented at the meet.

Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Cornell, Harvard, Chicago, Michigan, and other universities will meet the Pennsylvania teams in the one, two, and four mile relay championships. The entry of Amherst assures the New England college championship. Brown, Wesleyan, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Amherst, and Dartmouth compose a group that should furnish one of the best races of the day.

Special classes have been set apart for high schools and academies, and a number of schoolboy teams from New York are expected to compete with the big school relays of Philadelphia and vicinity.

MILITARY A. L. INDOOR GAMES.

Record Entry List Will Comprise Programme for Meet This Week.

Entries for the Military Athletic League carnival, to be held next Friday and Saturday at the Ninth Regiment Armory, will establish a record for this annual athletic event, and all the leading athletes in the metropolitan district will be found among the competitors. With no spectacular features to the show this year, the committee in charge has devoted its efforts to furnishing the best indoor athletic programme of the season.

The keen rivalry between the regiments will bring out lively competition. The Twenty-second and Thirteenth Regiments will be represented by their full teams, which are composed of many of the best athletes in Greater New York. The Twenty-third Regiment will also enter a strong team, while the Seventy-first Regiment, which is looked upon as the future contender in all athletic contests, will have a representation in the various events. These four military organizations are expected to carry off the leading honors, although the entries from the other regiments will make the champions extend themselves to the limit.

The one-mile championship relay race will have as contestants the fastest teams in Greater New York, while the walking competition has filled well and will have many representatives from the regular army. Owing to the uncertainty of the movements of the army, entries are accepted without fee, and the athletes have taken advantage of this to enter in large numbers.

A COAT FOR YOUNG MEN.

THE Country Club Coat we have introduced this Spring is precisely the thing for a man of individual taste in dress. Typically a gentleman's coat, it is entirely new in effect. You will like the broad collar, strap seam down the back, the large patch pockets and its other distinctive points.

ROCHESTER GETS TOURNEY.

National Bowling Association Convention Goes Up State.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 31.—At to-day's meeting of the National Bowling Association, Rochester, N. Y., was selected as the place for holding the convention in 1908. The Board of Directors adopted the rules submitted last year by Philadelphia to govern the championship contest, and a committee was appointed for the purpose of revising the constitution. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Frank M. Clute, New York; Vice President—John Sloss, Buffalo; Second Vice President—W. W. Bennington, Buffalo; Treasurer—E. E. Dungan, Philadelphia; Secretary—P. C. Pulver, Newark, N. J.

The Wyndham five-men team of Philadelphia leads all similar teams. The Philadelphians scored 2,725 pins, thus passing the record held by the Filellas of New York by 86 pins. The Philadelphia Bowling Club holds third place, with 2,636. The scores during the latter part of the week in the two-men and individual contests were quite low. F. Pump, Jr., of New York heads the individual list with 610. P. K. Manning of Philadelphia, with 603, is second on the list, and H. Fisher of Syracuse third with 591. The best score in the two-men team competition was rolled by Koster and Shultz of Newark, with 1,180. Hoffman and Geisler of New York rolled 1,156 last Saturday, and took second place from Trout and Smith of Philadelphia, whose score is 1,133.

The attendance has been increasing during the tournament, and now averages 5,000 nightly. Mrs. Connolly and Mrs. Fries, both of New York, have arrived, and will roll a series of match games this week.

GOV. HUGHES.

The Governor's brief announcement that henceforth he will speak for himself not by proxy, is timely and wise. The public is warned that it may reject as not authoritative expressions of views put forth by obliging friends of Mr. HUGHES.

Opinions at second hand, though given out with the best intentions in the world, often lead to confusion and mistakes. Certain statements of the Governor's intentions with regard to the Public Service Commissions bill which have recently appeared in press correspondence from Albany may now be rejected as unauthenticated. It has been said that Gov. HUGHES would refuse to sign the bill if it were amended to provide for a court review of the Commission's orders. Such a resolve would be ill-judged and regrettable. There was a good deal of that sort of talk in Washington last Winter when the court review provision of the Hepburn bill was under discussion. The broad court review went into the bill, and the President signed it. We are sure that Gov. HUGHES would not through prejudgment fail in his duty to give candid consideration to the measure in the form in which it should be sent to him by the Legislature. A more thorough acquaintance with the provisions of the Commissions bill has convinced the public that its additions to existing law are material and serious. It has given rise to a great deal of anxiety. It is preposterous to say that a law giving ten men the power of control over hundreds of millions of property would be rendered useless by a provision that would enable the owners of the property to invoke the aid of the courts against misused authority, precisely as that aid may be invoked in behalf of other property. Gov. HUGHES, we are sure is open-minded enough to give candid consideration to proposed amendments of the Commissions bill.

As the session wears on it becomes apparent that the Legislature is not in sympathy with the Governor. A belief seems to prevail that a coalition of opposed political interests has been formed to defeat legislation urged and desired by the Executive. If such a situation exists, we presume Gov. HUGHES regards it with more regret than surprise. He naturally expects opposition from Democratic Senators and Assemblymen. Unfortunately he cannot look to his own party for loyal support. Mr. HUGHES was not the candidate of the Republican organization. The controlling men desired a very different candidate, a candidate of their own sort, whom they could confer with, intrigue with, and carry on business with in the old way. He was practically forced upon them, and Democratic votes making up the Republican defection he was elected. The Governor owes them very little, if anything. They appear to expect nothing, and, accordingly, are inclined to give nothing.

The people, however, have not lost confidence in Gov. HUGHES. We are not aware that his popular strength has been in any degree impaired. He can appeal to the people against the bosses and the leaders, and he will get their support. The bosses and the leaders, however, control the Legislature, and they may be able to baffle Mr. HUGHES, even though his policies and intentions are backed by the will and the voice of the people. It may be thought surprising that Republican organization men of the better class should withhold their aid from the Governor in his struggle with the organization men of the worst class. The theory of a divided allegiance may explain this anomaly. There is no State capital in the country which Washington Administrations regard with a more vigilant eye than Albany. Politically and historically it is a capital of great possibilities. If through conspicuous and heroic achievements on the part of the present Governor of New York the attention of the country should be centred upon Albany, there would be a vexatious derangement of well matured plans and foreordination of the events of 1908 might be upset.

MR. CLEVELAND AND THE TRIBUNE

Discussing Mr. CLEVELAND'S remarks upon the availability of tariff reform as an issue for future politics, The Tribune says:

> To the student of international trade returns there must seem to be a decided logical inconsistency in charging with "stagnation" the country which for the last five or six years has actually led all other countries as a seller in the world's markets. In that period the annual exports of the United States have exceeded those of the United Kingdom and have distanced those of Germany and France. In the total volume of foreign trade the United States still stands below Great Britain, but almost equals Germany. First in exports and third in exports and imports together is a record which can hardly be harmonized with the assertion that we shun commercial intercourse with other nations and play "our little, selfish part of deluded folly in our corner of the family home."

Those who agree with Mr. CLEVELAND rather than with The Tribune think there is cause rather for modesty than for pride in comparisons with nations of much inferior population and wealth. Why should not 83,941,510 Americans buy or sell more than England, France, or Germany, whose populations range around 40,000,000 each? Why should not a nation of $107,000,000,000 of wealth surpass each of several nations of which any two hardly surpass its resources? Why should not an undeveloped country grow faster than those which have reached if not passed maturity? If the United States has done so well under outworn and repressive conditions, what might it not do if the bonds were cut? The Tribune could hardly repeat its pride in progress under Republican Administrations if it were to compare things properly in relation, such as exports and imports in relation to population or wealth. And, by the way, how long is it since the party which has legislated against foreign trade for generations has claimed the growth of foreign trade as one of its achievements? Why is not the growth of foreign trade a legitimate argument for a higher tariff so that it may be checked?

THE BATTLE OF THE STANDARDS.

There are signs that the philosophic bimetallists of the Continent and of England may renew their propaganda from quite a different point of view from that of thirty years ago. The marked recent increase in the output of gold due to new discoveries and to improved methods of metallurgy and the accompanying rise of prices are being discussed in this school as evidence of the unfitness and instability of a single standard. With the easy assumption that the rise in prices is due to the increased output of gold, the way is opened to the argument that the double standard, removing the cause, would prevent the effect, and keep everything for the best in the best of financial worlds.

The trouble with this argument is that it rests on too bald an assumption and on too obvious a substitution of "propter" for "post." We have only to compare the prices of commodities with the output of gold for each of the last two decades to see that their relation in the first is exactly the opposite of their relation in the second decade. From 1886 to 1896 the output of gold doubled and prices pretty steadily fell—SAUERBECK'S index touching as low as 61 in the latter year. From 1896 to 1906 the output of gold again doubled, but in this decade prices advanced, the Sauerbeck number reaching 80, an increase of a little more than 30 per cent. Clearly it will not do to say that prices are tied very closely to the quantity of gold produced. Many elements enter into the result, some of them obscure. The effect of increased annual output is offset in some degree by the very great stock of gold on hand; it is offset again by the enormous extension of credit exchanges, which may be said to reduce barter to a scientific basis and to lessen the need and the use of an actual currency; finally the effect of an increased output of gold is modified by the rate of production and consumption of commodities, especially it is influenced by such actual destruction of property and impairment of credit and the bases of credit as took place in South Africa and in Manchuria, in the two wars there carried on. Apparently, in the last decade, the demand has overtaken supply in nearly all directions. Meanwhile the behavior of gold is not of so much importance as the adaptation of our finances to real needs—a task made needlessly hard and costly by our Treasury system.

TYPHOID IN THE WATERSHED.

Our neighbor The Tribune has rendered the community a service in exposing the dangerous condition of the Croton Watershed at Mount Kisco, Bedford, and Katonah, where sewage flows into the city's water supply and a round dozen cases of typhoid, six in the camp of Italian laborers on the Cross River dam, five at Katonah, and one in Bedford, were spreading infection of which the city and State authorities were slow to become cognizant. The Tribune yesterday reported the situation at Mount Kisco as follows:

> About north of the station, alongside of the brook that empties into the stream that goes into this city's water supply, there was a swamp into which cesspools, stables, gardens, chicken yards, and other places drained. The water in the stream was as variegated as a rainbow and the odor like the Chicago River.
> From a Mount Kisco paper our neighbor quotes this description of things:
> Mount Kisco is not to have any sewer system put in the village by the City of New York, either this year or any other year, if the Water Department can help it. Well, if the Water Department wants our sewage in its water supply it is welcome to it. We saw two fine, big, rich cesspools overflowing on Monday and Tuesday, and emptying in a direct line for the city's water supply.
> It is a shame that such things should exist in this village, but it is very evident that Mount Kisco can't get a square deal under the State law, and the very body of men that ought to enforce the law are the ones who stand idly by and see this disgraceful state of affairs continue.
> What's the use of fooling away good time with the city? Let the sewage go into the brook and into Croton Lake. As it is now the cesspools are overflowing and the land is saturated with sewage. Every rain washes out the gutters and streets and floods the sewage into the brook. But evidently that is what the city Water Department wants, and that is what they are getting. They seem to like it. Let them have it.

"This article does not exaggerate," says The Tribune. If it does not, then there has been gross criminal negligence somewhere among the authorities of the Water Department and the local, city, and State health officers. The first outbreak among the Italians was deliberately concealed. When the reservoir at Katonah, which is filled from a well sunk in Branch Brook, an affluent of the Croton River running through the infected camp, was swabbed out, the filth of the sediment at the bottom was indescribable. The sewage from Mount Kisco is as dangerous in its menace of typhoid as that which found its way into the Croton supply from Branch Brook. Its dilution in the scores of millions of gallons that flow through the city's water mains alone minimizes the chance of infection spreading through its population. An investigation should be had. Responsibility should be fixed and punishment inflicted.

Meanwhile, the question of filtering the city's water supply comes to the fore.

"MUNICIPAL BETTERMENT."

The meeting held on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects was of singular interest. In the enthusiasm of the occasion of the presentation and discussion of the project of the City Improvement Commission, Mr. CANTOR proposed the formation of a "Municipal Betterment" party. It is mere justice to say that as President of the Borough of Manhattan Mr. CANTOR, during his official term, took long views on this subject, and did his best to render unnecessary the formation of such a party as he now suggests, we may suppose not very seriously.

The occasion was nevertheless one of much interest. Every New Yorker, we may suppose, who has availed himself of the opportunity of studying the plans of the City Improvement Commission, as they were pictorially set forth in a recent supplement to THE SUNDAY TIMES, has convinced himself that the improvements proposed would be real improvements. They would render the various boroughs of New York much more habitable than they are now, and they would enormously facilitate communication between them. It seems likely that the execution of the plan of the commission would abolish such a scandalous and dangerous ordeal, for example, as that of the Brooklyn Bridge terminal in the rush hours. And it is entirely evident that the spacious openings and approaches planned primarily for the public convenience would afford chances not now offered for architectural and artistic embellishment, which in turn would tend to make residence in Manhattan or its suburbs, or visits to them, more attractive and desirable.

But when the average citizen looks upon these projects, the question of how the cost of them, plainly enormous, is going to be defrayed, comes upon him with great force. Even if it be shown that the execution of the improvements would be such a wise municipal investment as nobody now denies that the creation of the Central Park was half a century ago; that it would ultimately, and in the long run "pay," yet the outlay may very well stagger him. He would not be reconciled by the probability that the increase of taxable value would accrue to the benefit of certain favored property owners in much greater proportion than to the municipality as a whole.

It was to this point that the Chairman of the commission, Mr. PENDLETON, addressed his very interesting remarks. He pointed out the impracticability of executing the improvements by either of the two usual methods, the addition of the whole cost to the municipal expenditure and the municipal debt, or a division of the cost between the municipality at large and the owners of the property particularly benefited or supposed to be so. The third method, which he advocated, was the taking of title by the city to all the property to be so particularly benefited, and the resale of it, after the improvements had been effected, at the advanced prices which might then be expected to b erealized.

By this method Mr. PENDLETON insisted, the financing of the improvements would become practicable. He adduced examples of public improvements which had been effected under such a use of the right of eminent domain in Europe, and not only on the Continent, but in the British Islands, of which the legal traditions are practically our own, and that these improvements had thus been made without any addition either to the tax levy or to the debt, made, so far as the municipality was concerned, free of cost.

Mr. PENDLETON argued ingeniously that such a procedure would be practicable under existing law, if the courts could be induced to give a wide enough extension to the term "public use." But the expectation that they would be benevolent enough to do so seems chimerical, and the argument more specious than sound. The meaning of the term is juridically too well settled, we think, to allow of the expectation that the city would be judicially authorized to take, as for its own use, property which it did not need strictly for its own purposes, in order, not to retain it, but to resell it at a profit; in other words, to engage in a real estate speculation. In order to authorize such a transaction, it appears that an amendment to the Constitution of the State would be required, with appropriate legislation enforcing it. If, on the other hand, it seems certain that a scheme of improvement of so vast a scale as that the commission has laid out cannot be executed without legal authorization for such a purpose, there is great probability that the improvement will have to be brought within the range of ordinary financial provision by judicious abridgments of its scope and cost.

SOCIALISM AND INDIVIDUALISM.

President NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER of Columbia is one of the men who do not talk unless they have something to say. Moreover, he has a sense of what issues are alive and what dead which one does not exactly look for "in the still air of delightful studies." When the President of Columbia delivers an address before the University of California, as President BUTLER did a few days ago, one looks for views worth considering, and is not disappointed.

"True and False Democracy" is the title of President BUTLER'S address. But really it is a comparative consideration of Socialism and Individualism. Beginning with an admission of Lord SALISBURY'S, made in the House of Lords many years ago, that the time is past when "to call a measure Socialistic is a sufficient reason for opposing it," President BUTLER goes on to try, not any specific Socialistic measures, but our whole modern Socialistic propaganda, by the standard of what we may call old-fashioned American democracy, the democracy of the town meeting. And, it is nearly superfluous to say, weighing it in that balance, he finds it wanting.

We have not space in which to give President BUTLER'S argument that modern Socialism is "false democracy." But one or two remarks may suffice to set thoughtful readers thinking. Such a remark, out of many, is this:

> What chiefly attracts attention at the moment as an element of serious injustice is the institution, under the guise of liberty or freedom, of what is really a form of economic dependence or slavery, which is usually described as the exploitation of man by man. If this exploitation or use and oppression of one man by another were shown to be a necessary and inevitable result of society as now ordered and established, then might we well believe that the Socialist propaganda, if it could make clear that Socialism would bring such exploitation to an end, would go forward with increasing energy and success. But it must be pointed out that the exploitation of one individual by another is not a necessary, but an incidental, consequence of the existing social order, and that, bad as it is, its results are in no sense comparable with the evils of the exploitation of one by all, which is a necessary consequence of the establishment of a Socialistic democracy.

And such another remark is this:

> At bottom, and without special reference to immediate concrete proposals, Socialism would substitute for individual initiative collective and corporate responsibility in matters relating to property and production, in the hope thereby of correcting and overcoming the evils which attach to an individualism run wild. But we must not lose sight of the fact that the corporate or collective responsibility which it would substitute for individual initiative is only such corporate or collective responsibility as a group of these very same individuals could exercise. Therefore Socialism is primarily an attempt to overcome man's individual imperfections by adding them together, in the hope that they will cancel each other. This is not only bad mathematics, but worse psychology.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Condition of the Streets.

A cabman last week secured, in the Supreme Court, a verdict for $2,275 against the city for personal injuries sustained by him when, while driving through Forty-seventh Street, one of his wheels dropped into a hole in the pavement and he was thrown violently to the ground. Such suits are constantly brought, and they are usually successful. A Committee on City Conditions recently reported to the Merchants' Association that 364 actions for damages suffered through defects in streets and sidewalks, exclusive of obstructions, excavations, snow and ice, manholes and coalholes, were then pending, and that in the four years ended with 1905 the judgments of that sort had aggregated $131,700.

That sum, considerable as it is, however, does not begin to tell what the criminal neglect of our pavements costs the City of New York. In not one case of accident or breakdown out of a hundred is a suit brought, but if they were all brought and full money reparation obtained the total would be trivial in comparison with the needless expenditures forced upon the city by the failure of its officials to make good pavements and to keep them in repair after they are made. To reach anything like the full amount one would have, first of all, to form an estimate of the losses imposed by bad pavements on every form of business through slowness of transportation, the moving of small loads instead of big ones, the use of heavier horses and stronger wagons than would otherwise be required, and the rapid wearing out of both, even when actual accident is avoided.

No definite figures can be placed on any of these items, but that they annually run far up into the millions cannot be doubted. It is a general agreement among all competent authorities that, within reason, good roads at any cost are cheaper than bad roads at any cost. Whether the streets of New York are now in worse condition as regards their pavements than ever before is a question not easy to answer, but their condition is certainly abominable and a disgrace to what we call our civilization.

The responsibility rests—well, the root of the whole trouble is that it doesn't rest anywhere, all of it. Nominally the care of the pavements is the duty of the Borough President, but really it is divided among at least a dozen departments and bureaus, all working at cross purposes, as far as they are working at all, and the confusion of the law and the ordinances is further complicated by the familiar factors of graft and incompetence. The report to which we have alluded goes over the whole ground, and is full of information and—discouragement. Effective reform would be a gigantic task, for the present system is wrong from top to bottom. And it would cost a lot of money; perhaps a fiftieth part of what it costs to leave the system unreformed.

Hazing Was Resented.

Many curious problems are raised by some recent happenings at South Carolina University. There a boy bearing the name of LEE was hazed. The quality and quantity of the hazing are not stated, but one or the other, or both, offended him, and he reported the matter to the Faculty—with the names of his tormentors. The result was the immediate expulsion of the hazers.

Thereupon a deputation from the student body called upon LEE, and, with much formal courtesy, requested him to depart from South Carolina University and complete his education elsewhere. The boy's answer was to pull a big revolver and open fire on the deputation. His aim, by luck or intention, was bad, and nobody was killed or even wounded, but the deputation withdrew hastily. Again LEE reported to the Faculty—with names—and it is said that more expulsions are in prospect, to be continued, if necessary, till LEE has South Carolina University to himself.

In commenting on these events The Richmond News Leader declares that LEE is right, and has been right all along, and it makes the usual remarks about the cowardice and barbarity of hazing and the necessity for stamping it out in every college. Which sounds well and is easy to say. To us, however, the case doesn't seem quite so simple, while we have certain doubts about LEE'S rightness at any stage of the proceedings.

Is it not possible that the people who bow-wow so nobly about the atrocity of hazing make the mistake of forgetting that the moral quality of conduct often depends upon the extent to which it is carried? There is at least a chance that the cowardice and barbarity of hazing disappears when the hazers are neither cowards nor barbarians, it then becoming mere play, innocent enough even though a little rough, and somehow serving one or more useful purposes. It is at least well to keep in mind the fact that the hazing instinct is extremely old, and extremely widespread, nor is it by any means confined to college students or even to the young of either sex.

And that matter of "telling." Oh, yes, we know very well how easy it is to argue about it being a duty to give the wrongdoer over to justice, but we also know that after the experience of a good many centuries humanity clings to the conviction that there is something wrong in the betrayal even of a criminal, unless his punishment is a specially imposed duty.

And to say that LEE was right all along is to justify his use of a revolver at the time he did. Our own opinion is that he is a stupid, obstinate, tactless boy, who will have as much needless trouble out of college as in it, and that he is suffering from a wildly exaggerated idea of his own importance and dignity. Perhaps he is a victim of his great name.

Married Men Barred.

No married men need apply for appointment as State Constables in Pennsylvania. The commander of the force says that constables with wives are too apt to be at home when they are wanted for emergency service, and that therefore he will enlist only bachelors. This sounds to us a good deal like an excuse, put forward to conceal some other purpose or prejudice.

English Army experience, according to recent reports, is that married men make the best soldiers. It has been suggested that this is because the married man cares comparatively little for his life, it being no more a pleasure to him, but that theory is too cynical for our consideration. It is almost certain that the exclusion of married men from the Pennsylvania Constabulary will work ill, and still worse the prohibition of marriage for the men already enlisted in the force.

SEES DANGER IN UTILITIES BILL.

Monopoly of Conduits for Underground Wires Feared.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You will remember that about twenty-five years ago there was presented to this city one of the most difficult problems in the matter of public utilities, namely, the removal of the overhead wires. There were a score or more of companies whose needs were as varied and as incompatible as could be imagined; but as the people, the press, and the Legislature were persistent, a fairly satisfactory solution was found and carried into effect.

The solution was the construction of a system of subway conduits, open to all who had the legal right to carry wires through the streets, the construction and management of the conduits being placed, however, in the hands of an entirely new and independent company so as to avoid collision between rival interests.

There were many who thought that the city ought to own the conduits, just as they owned the streets, for the fear was expressed that some company more powerful than the rest might so control the conduit company as to seriously hamper competitive companies from the intended full and free enjoyment of this public service.

Now what was feared seems to have happened. The leading men of the most powerful company engaged in the gas and electric business in this city first became possessed of the conduit company and then it was not a difficult proposition for them to drive into their camp all the competing companies. That would not have been so bad, but now, being thus well intrenched against the public behind barriers presented to them by the public, they capitalize these free gifts at hundreds of millions upon which they ask the public to pay interest. Knowing this and also that any fair competition would rapidly puncture their inflated values, they come out boldly and say: "Give us more barriers that we may forever enjoy and the public forever suffer from this monopoly that you have created for ourselves."

But who would have thought that they would have had the nerve to slip their scheme into the Governor's utility bill, the supposed object of which was to defeat just such operations? Looking at the matter from the standpoint of the consumer, it is difficult to see why electric lighting or telephones should not be open to as free competitive endeavor as the ice or milk business. What is there so sacred about it?

I remember well how efficiently THE TIMES put its shoulder to the wheel that finally brought down the uneighty wires, and I know that you will not look with indifference upon any organized effort to nullify now the good work done then.

Nobody Ever "at" London.

From The London Chronicle.

A case of irregularity occurs in a cablegram that announces from New York the residence of a certain accused person "at London." You will perceive at once the absurdity of those words—"at London." A New Yorker may want to get at London, but those who live there live "in London." And it is one of the triumphs of London and language (though most irregular) that no one is ever "at" London. You can drop off "at" Paris on the way to anywhere, and you may spend the Winter "at" St. Petersburg or "at" New York. You may change cars "at" Chicago. But there comes a moment when the English language gets irregular. Is it when the fifth million is passed? No Englishman was ever "at" London. It would be as irregular as being "at" Asia or "at" Heaven.

THE EVENING HIGH SCHOOLS.

Retort to a Discontented Student from the Principal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your edition of March 28, under the caption "Evening High Schools," appeared a letter from M. J. Handley attacking the work done in the New York Evening High School for Men. According to Mr. Handley, the teachers are tired, lazy, neglectful time-servers; their work is of the sham, haphazard sort; they hold no examinations; the result of their neglect is a great shrinkage in the number of pupils, as evidenced by the fact that each of the classes in which the writer is registered (or both?) contains not more than five pupils.

This indictment is false in every count. It is an insult to the pupils of the school, to the staff of instructors, and to the Board of Education. The teachers of this school are capable, diligent, self-sacrificing men. Far from doing their work in a perfunctory manner, they devote their best energies to meeting the complex tasks before them. Though constantly facing a host of discouraging conditions, they offer well-planned instruction of the highest grade—second to none given anywhere. In each subject where it is possible and fitting, examinations are held regularly. No student receives a certificate for his years' work who has not in every way proved his right to such. The shrinkage in numbers is a characteristic of all evening schools and is no more true of public institutions than of those in which a fee is charged. The necessity of putting forth real effort—not the lack of opportunity for effort—is the predominating cause for a falling off in initial attendance. At the same time no class of five pupils or less exists in this building.

The record of the school during the last few years shows a steady increase, not simply in registration, but also in total attendance and in the average number of pupils regularly receiving instruction from each teacher. The work of the school has been periodically supervised and indorsed by numerous officials of the Board of Education. All teachers failing to measure up to a high standard of efficiency have been displaced. In February of this year, at the time of the customary Spring reduction in the teaching force of the evening schools, made necessary by the usual and inevitable shrinkage in attendance, this school lost not a single teacher—a condition of affairs almost unique. This record speaks for itself. To ignore it is to impute defective intelligence to our growing student body and persistent neglect, incompetency, or deceit to the supervising branch of our public educational system.

So far as concerns Mr. Handley's suggestions about the proper way to run our schools, the public may rest assured that the authorities are constantly giving to this whole question patient and careful consideration. No surprise need be felt that it has been found impracticable to conduct a large number of evening schools, each aiming to help the greatest possible number of young men, along the lines of Cooper Union, which is the only evening institution in the city offering a free college course, and which is, therefore, able to maintain a rigid policy of selection and, incidentally, of wholesale rejection. As it is the officials of the Board of Education receive many letters of complaint from applicants for admission to this school who have been rejected because of their inability to meet our entrance requirements. A letter from one of these would have pictured for your readers a condition of affairs in marked contrast with that presented by Mr. Handley.

No such person as "M. J. Handley" has been registered as a student in this school. The anonymous writer has chosen as the occasion for his attack the Easter vacation, when those able to refute his charges were likely to be away from the city. The whole tone of his letter and the time chosen for placing it before the public would seem to justify one in branding the writer as a disgruntled incompetent or as one willing for the satisfaction of private malice to belittle the earnest work accomplished by hundreds of loyal students. Now the Time to Begin the Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The public life of Grover Cleveland suggests that at some time in the early part of his career he might have pledged himself, as Alexander Hamilton did, to his friends after dining at Fraunces's Tavern, and while still a youth at Kings College: "I swear to devote my life to the interests of this new Nation, and I will never allow my personal ambitions to swerve me from my course," &c.

Whatever criticism may be made of the statements printed in Sunday's TIMES, the opinion of Cleveland that the Democratic Party should heed the opportunity to make tariff reform the main issue of the next National campaign will appeal to most thinking men.

There is more involved in the proposition than the reform of the tariff—it involves the great moral proposition that underlies the enactment of laws of special privilege. Those laws which commenced with a protective tariff have been followed up by every influential interest, and have been secured by debauching public morals; selfishness and greed have forced patriotism and intelligent, conservative statesmanship out of opportunity of existence in a mad rush for the spoils of special-privilege legislation.

Protective tariff is the seat of the disease, and the same bad principle which controlled Congress became a deep-seated fever, the eruption from which spread to not only the railroads, but to every great organization—the insurance companies, the postal system, the large industrial organizations, and stock yards—the body politic is tainted, and the symptoms clearly indicate the seat of the disease—that is the place to attack, and not local treatment for the eruption.

If the Democratic Party can be united by Democratic leaders, who will rally around Cleveland for counsel and discussion, the time to commence the work is now. C. A.

"An Insult to Army and Navy."

From The Army and Navy Journal.

When the Commander in Chief of the United States Army is asked as President of the United States to approve the proposed constitution of the new State of Oklahoma he will find therein the following stipulation: "No officer, soldier, or marine of the Regular Army or Navy of the United States shall be entitled to vote at any election in this State; provided that this section shall not be construed to include members and officers of the State militia." This provision is a gross insult to the army and navy, and a wicked invasion of the rights of every retired soldier and sailor who may now or hereafter reside in the State of Oklahoma. There are within the limits of the new State many retired officers and men of the army who have large property interests and have done much to prepare the Territory for the dignity of Statehood, yet it is here deliberately proposed to disfranchise these citizens and subject them to the injustice of taxation without representation. The adoption of the above-quoted clause by the Constitutional Convention of Oklahoma has provoked widespread indignation.

Literature as an Intoxicant.

From The London Globe.

According to Arthur Symons, "there is more drunkenness in a book than in all the vineyards of France." [From a report of a future police court case: "Prisoner said he was sorry, but it had been his birthday, and, one thing leading to another, he had taken a paragraph too much * * *"]

PENNSYLVANIA'S WARNING.

Lesson to New York in Graft Due to System of State Taxation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The political extravagance in Pennsylvania to which you allude has been due largely to the system of State taxation. For many years the State's revenues have been much in excess of its legitimate needs, and the overflowing Treasury has been a constant temptation. Millions of dollars have been redistributed, directly and indirectly, to the counties, whose scrambles for increased shares of the surplus have offered fine chances for political manipulation.

A table compiled by the Auditor's Department of Pennsylvania says that for each dollar paid to the State Philadelphia received back $1.42, and Allegheny County, containing Pittsburg, received $2.27, while the rural counties of Wyoming and Fulton received $23.40 and $37.07 respectively. While this table is fallacious, because it does not include the pro rata of corporation and similar taxes, of which the cities contribute the largest part, still, the percentages shown are instructive.

Prof. Seligman has pointed out that to rely wholly upon specific taxes, with the consequent lack of elasticity, "will, if persisted in, lead to ultimate disaster." Because of the political and economic dangers attending an inelastic system of taxation, the New York Tax Reform Association opposes entire reliance upon special State taxes, and has advocated a system by which there should always be some revenue raised by an apportionment among the counties of the State.

The Special Tax Commission recommended a large increase of specific taxes in this State, so that the minimum revenue would be ample for every possible need, and urged that the probable large excess would be accumulated in the State Treasury, so that when it had reached the sum of $10,000,000 the surplus would be given back to the counties. The history of Pennsylvania should be warning enough against such a plan.

It is true that the Pennsylvania system of taxation has had one beneficial result, in that it has relieved manufacturing and business from local taxation, such as our personal property tax, and this relief has helped to create that material prosperity which makes the citizens of Pennsylvania look complacently upon legislative extravagance. But the relief of industry from local taxes can be had without the disadvantages that accompany a huge Treasury surplus. A. C. PLEYDELL,
Secretary New York Tax Reform Association.

The Spread of Paranoia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that the lawyers and the witness-experts in the Thaw trial have given us a broad reading of paranoia; so broad, indeed, that American society at this time teems with examples. The recent investigations by State and National authority into the methods of great life insurance companies, railway corporations, the petroleum industry, &c., and the late movements in stock circles have certainly been illuminating in this connection. Applying the principles of analysis employed in the courtroom to the operations of our eminent masters of finance, our captains of industry, and the schemes and practices of the kings and princes of Wall Street, is it not clear that the disease attributed to the young homicide is a prevalent affliction? The very atmosphere on this side of the Atlantic has been charged for years with its contagion, and while its victims generally have not shown a virulent malignity of the intense and deadly type of young Thaw, yet the destructive and baleful effects of their paranoian manias were becoming so evident that people of average sanity had for the most part concluded that it was full time to set on foot measures for their own protection. Treatment of a disciplinary nature has been applied to some eminent cases, with results that seem beneficial to the general class; yet in order to secure a healthy state of mental balance in those affected with either an advanced or incipient form of the neurosis the medicine must be continued for some time to come before the public peace and safety may be assured. There is a large class in whom the views of paranoia is working with alarming activity, to whom reference should be made in this connection—the automobilists. We almost wonder that the experts for the Thaw defense did not illustrate their points with examples from the ranks of the men and women who have contracted the automobile mania. Had they done so would not the average reader of the elaborate testimony more readily have grasped the meaning and gravity of the dreaded malady?

Marshall's Place in History.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with great interest your editorial on the "Three Greatest Americans" in yesterday's TIMES.

It strikes me that the only true test is, What three men left the greatest impress upon the country and her institutions by their words and works?

I apprehend that ninety-nine out of every one hundred intelligent Americans would at once award the first and second places to George Washington and Abrahem Lincoln.

Now for third place these names at once suggest themselves: Alexander Hamilton, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, John Marshall, and Daniel Webster, all five men of the greatest brain power, but when you have applied the test I spoke of above, I think it will be conceded that the palm belongs to John Marshall, for it is his incomparable decisions, founded on justice, truth, and equity, that are the foundation stones upon which have been erected the mighty fabric of our National jurisprudence, and they are to-day, as they have been for nearly a century, the guiding stars for all our courts, from that august tribunal, the United States Supreme Court, down to the lowest, and their influence will continue to be felt while one stone of this great Republic remains upon another.

The courts of our land are the great bulwarks that stand between our people and anarchy, confusion, and revolution.

"Going to the Dogs."

From The London Chronicle.

The phrase, "going to the dogs," with which Father Bernard Vaughan has been making effective play in connection with pet-worship, has puzzled the explainers of metaphorical expressions rather needlessly. It has even been suggested that it is a profane perversion of "going to the gods," and an allusion has been detected to "canis," the dog throw, the worst throw with the dice among the ancient Romans. Shakespeare's "Throw physic to the dogs," and the Scriptural "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs," have been quoted in connection with the expression. But it seems a fairly obvious reference to the fate of the worn-out horse, condemned to be slaughtered. The old Greek curse, "Go to the crows!" may be compared, referring as it did to the Greek's horror of having his body left unburied as food for carrion birds.

AN APRIL FOOL.

On April first I sallied forth
And strolled along the street,
Resolved no trick, however sly,
Should trap my wary feet.
Right up to all the stale old jokes
That mark the day was I,
So when I saw a portly purse
I smiled, and passed it by.

But lo! another not so smart
Picked up that pocketbook,
And from its bulging sides a roll
Of nice new money took.
I watched him count the fives and ten
With feelings far from cool,
For then it was I realized
I was an April fool.

MINNA IRVING.

ARCHER ON DRAMA HERE AND ABROAD

Says Our Plays Fail in London, When They Do Fail, for Cause.

NO PREJUDICE OVER THERE

Shaw Is Now at His Best and There's No Doubt as to His Sincerity.

William Archer, dramatic critic of The London Tribune and frank English advocate of the simplified spelling, talked a little for a TIMES reporter yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Belmont, where he ts staying, about the drama here and across the ocean.

Mr. Archer has come again to America after a lapse of eight years primarily to attend the first annual meeting of the Simplified Spelling Board at the Waldorf-Astoria on April 4, and secondarily to renew his acquaintance with American dramatic productions. However much he may be interested in the work of readjusting English orthography, he made tt evident that he eagerly welcomes an opportunity to study the New York theatres at first hand.

Sitting at ease in one of the large seats in the hotel lobby, Mr. Archer discoursed of the drama with sympathy for all and malice toward none. The only time he permitted himself to speak with warmth was when he felt that the sincerity of his friend George Bernard Shaw had been unduly called in question.

"Thongh I shall be able to speak with more conviction after I have been in New York a couple of weeks," said Mr. Archer, "it is my opinion that American and English dramatic productions are possibly growing further and further apart. I do not like to make this statement tn too radical a manner, because this is my first trip to your country in eight years, and I can judge only from a general knowledge of theatricals and from the American plays that I have seen in London. However, we have had a number of your typical successes abroad and they offer some basis for an opinion.

Why "The Lion and the Mouse" Failed.

"'The Lion and the Mouse' may be a good example of the genuinely American play in London. I will tell you the exact history of that failure—or, at least, the history as I see it. In the first place, the play was produced with a cast in which there was not a single performer known to London audiences. In the second place, it has always seemed to me that the managers made no adequate effort to advertise the presentation or to bring it before the public as it should have been. I thiok the failure was as much due to the method in which the piece was offered as to any quality of deficiency in the drama.

"This play, you may remember, made one of the most pronounced first-night hits with the audience I ever witnessed. Personally I liked it and, I must admit, was somewhat amused by it. Mr. Breeze and Miss Illington were both well received. In the morning the papers were not particularly enthusiastic, for the drama has a certain amount of clap-trap, as you know. The truth of the matter is simply that the great general public never knew of 'The Lion and the Mouse.' There were no names in the cast to draw their attention and they saw nothing in the papers to induce them to attend. The effect of the first night was unfortunately lost, almost at the outset."

Starring the Play, Not the Actors.

THE TIMES's reporter pointed out that the absence of any notable star in the production of Charles Klein's "The Lion and the Mouse" was typical of the new and growing American system of "starring the play" rather than any individual actor, and he quoted other examples such as that of "The Man of the Hour" at the Savoy Theatre. Mr. Archer said that the system was one with which he was not familiar, and which he expected to find it interesting to investigate.

"We have nothing in London at present which would correspond to such a system," he remarked. "The nearest approach might be the Court Theatre under the direction of Vedrenne and Barker, but this is not really the same thing at all. The Court Theatre is not exactly the home of a stock company, nor is it really without stars, because special players are engaged for special productions. It is founded rather on a system of short runs. A play is generally produced for a series of eight matinées. Then, if it is a success, it is offered as a regular attraction for about six weeks. It is then laid aside and possibly produced again after a lapse of six months, if the demand warrants a revival.

Thinks Shaw Now at His Best.

"This is the theatre where most of the Shaw plays were first seen. I am interested to know that Shaw'a 'Widowers' Houses' is now being done in New York, but I think it is a bad play. You know it was his first work, and it is full of crudities. His last play, 'The Doctor's Dilemma,' has recently been done in London, and it is an excellent play for the first three acts. The picture of a society doctor is admirable. The fourth act, which shows a death from consumption, is painful and its value is debated. The last act is weak. After the death the doctors gather and talk a lot of the most awful drivel.

"It is undoubted, though, that 'The Doctor's Dilemma' contains some of the finest work that Shaw has ever done. I believe that he is at the height of his creative power, and I see no reason why he should not continue to do admirable work for a long time to come.

"Last night I went to see 'Mrs. Warren's Profession' at the Manhattan Theatre. The audience seemed to take it with fair intelligence, but sometimes the people laughed in the wrong place."

When a bitter attack on the sincerity of Mr. Shaw in writing "Mrs. Warren's Profession," published in one of the morning newspapers, was shown to him, Mr. Archer said that such a charge was pure nonsense.

His Sincerity Undoubted.

"Shaw is perfectly sincere," he said. "When he wrote the play he knew perfectly well that the censor would not permit it to be produced in England, where it has never been seen except at a couple of invitation performances. Since he knew that the play could not be presented, he could have had no possible motive other than sincere conviction. Shaw is a humorist, and, as is the case with Mark Twain, one must take what he haa to say with a grain of salt. Perhaps it is more difficult to tell what he really means than what Mark Twain really means. Yet that he is absolutely sincere in his ideals and views of reform is beyond all question. He is one of the most sincere and disinterested men I ever met. He would not compromise with a conviction for a million dollars."

Serious Plays vs. Musical Comedy.

Mr. Archer, who was a friend of Henrik Ibsen, and himself made the standard translation of Ibsen's prose plays, was particularly interested in the recent series of Ibsen productions in New York, including such amateur presentations as those of "The Vikings at Helgeland" and "The Pretenders," to be done on Tuesday.

"I do not think that America is 'getting the wave' of Ibsen productions," he said, "because I think that the English and American productions are in no way connected. However, it is true that the only important Ibsen production we havo had within the last few years was that of 'Hedda Gabler" at the Court Theatre, with Mrs. Patrick Campbell in the title rôle. The Court Theatre, of which I have already spoken, is unquestionably the best in England. You often hear the more critical people say, 'The only theatre I care to go to is the Court.'

"It is not true that musical comedy is driving legitimate productions out of London. Of course, musical comedy has been a serious rival to the serious drama for the last ten years, but it is not more so now than formerly. In fact, the productions of such typical musical comedies as 'The Catch of the Season' are on the decline, and there is a reversion to a type of musical piece more like the old comic operas. As I seldom see these offerings myself, I have to judge mainly from what others tell me.

No Prejudice Against America.

"There is one point which I wish you would emphasize. You can take it from me absolutely that the idea of any prejudice in England against the American play or actor is false. There is no favor or disfavor for Americans evident in the English public. Many American successes have failed in London; and many English successes have failed in New York. You can always put a finger on the exact reason why an American piece fails in London. Of course, it is sometimes harder for the English audience to follow the American play. In two such cities as New York and London, with the Atlantic Ocean between them, a slang peculiar to one must be strange to the other.

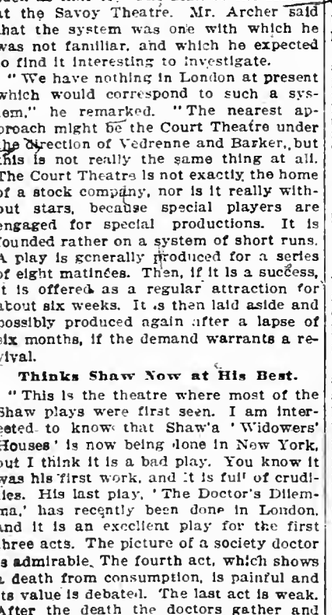
"In the first place, the idea that an English audience is intelligent enough to form such a prejudice against Americans is absurd. The question never enters the heads of the audience. Personally I always go to an American production hoping that it will succeed. I am most anxious to encourage the interchange of dramatic productions. The exchange of plays, in my opinion, has a political and general value apart from the artistic significance."

Mr. Archer proceeded to elaborate this view of the case by citing examples. He pointed out the defects in the "garish and strident" production of "Julie Bonbon" and the difficulty a London audience naturally had in appreciating extreme localisms. He said that the performance of Louis Mann was "able, but painful," and that, although some people appreciated it at its full value, the public would have been more enthusiastic had it been done by some actor with whom they were already familiar. He pointed out that Gillette was popular in London, and that the comparatively lukewarm reception of "Clarice"—a play which he enjoyed—was due largely to disagreeable trickery in the presentatton.

Plays Stand on Their Merits.

"Peoplo here exaggerate the English consciousness of Americanisms," said Mr. Archer. "In London, as in New York, a play will fail or succeed entirely on its merits. For instance, when Sothern plays 'Hamlet' in London he will be judged, not as coming from America, but as impartially as if he had just arrived from Mars."

Mr. Archer disclaimed any minute knowledge of American criticism, and added with a smile that he was not much habituated to reading the work even of his brother-critics at home.



"THE ORACLE" BY STUDENTS

New York University Men to Present It on Friday Night.

The New York University senior play, "The Oracle," will have its first production at the Carnegie Lyceum on Friday night, April 26. This new piece is by W. Le Baron, '05, and J. D. Taylor, '06, respectively author and composer of "The Isle of Skidoo," which was presented last May.

The story of "The Oracle" deals with the adventures of two American college men suddenly transported to ancient Greece. John J. Scannell, '08, son of the former Fire Commissioner, who played one of the leading rôles in the production of a year ago, will have the leading part—that of one of the college men.

Others of last year's cast who will reappear are P. C. Wolff., 1909, and R. Perry, 1908. Mr. Taylor, the composer, will lead the orchestra. Preliminary rehearsals have progressed favorably, and the professional coach, Frank C. Stammers, will take charge of the cast and chorus to-night.

VAUDEVILLE FOR 500 SICK.

Helpless Ones in Bellevue Will See Performance from Cots.

Five hundred Bellevue Hospital patients will be treated to a vaudeville entertainment to-night, given under the auspices of the Rev. H. C. Dyer of the Protestant Episcopal City Mission, who is the hospital chaplain.

Tho entertainment will be given in the amphitheatre. A stage will be erected, and several of the doctors will sing. A Russian dance will be a feature, and the Yama San Minstrels will appear. Miss L. Giblin, Miss Anna M. Shaw, Miss Hoyt, Natalie Newman, "Lou" Herman, and Miss E. Phillips will take part.

Some of the helpless patients will be carried into the amphitheatre on cots or chairs.

Hippodrome Mermaid Opens a Shop.

Not to be outdone by the Hippodrome girl who has started a restaurant, Anna Courtney, one of the show girls in "Neptune's Daughter," has opened a millinery shop of her own. She had her Spring opening in her salesroom opposite the Hippodrome on Saturday morning and displayed real mermaid millinery.

Novelli to Dine with the Friars.

Ermete Novelli, the Italian actor, is to be an invited guest at the Café des Beaux Arts next Friday night when the Friars, the club of theatrical managers and press representatives give their dinner in honor of Henry Miller.

OCEAN TRAVELERS.

The Countess de Castelmenardo Arrives on the Celtic.

The White Star liner Celtic arrived yesterday from Naples. Among her passengers were:

Col. and Mrs. H. A. Bste, John S. Barnes, Mrs. George T. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Bond, Countess Guigo de Castelmenardo, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Cherry, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Daniels, Mrs. William Alexander Dick, Dr. Delano S. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. John Story Jenks, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graeme Ladd, Prof. and Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn, Col. and Mrs. E. A. Stevens, Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, the Right Rev. R. H. Weller, and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. White.

Among the passengers who arrived on the Coamo from Porto Rico were:

Congressman C. B. Landis of Indiana and the Right Rev. J. H. Van Buren, Bishop of Porto Rico.

Passengers on the Vigilancia from Nassau were:

Daniel Bacon, C. A. Barbour, Col. H. L. Hains, Col. H. R. Fraser, and Capt. Charles Lymans.

John Bartholomew, Chief Steward of the Celtic, will sail for Liverpool next Wednesday to become port steward of the line at Southampton. He retires from sea aervice after forty-one years' active service in the old Inman and the White Star Lines. He has served thirty-four as chief steward with the latter company.

The Celtic will take the place of the American liner St. Paul in the New York-Southampton route, sailing from here on Saturday.

Kendall's Interlude Bought for the National Gallery at Washington.

PICTURES ARE IN DEMAND

Woes of Wall Street Fail to Fill with Gloom the Denizens of the Academe.

Academy Room, as they call ths gallery where the National Sculpture Society holds its meetings, is ussd as an overflow for the main galleries of the Fine Arts Building, and as such is not held in the highest esteem by exhibitors at the annual show of the National Academy.

About thirty paintings and several pieces of sculpture enliven this room, which has to be seen by artificial illumination. It can scarcely be charged against the Hanging Committee that inferior works have been reserved for it. They are well up to the average of the rest of the exhibition.

"Woman in White," by Howard Gardiner Cushing, is a graceful full-length figure, with slightly averted face and a downward cast of the eyes. She atands in ball costume of white gown with long train, low neck and short sleeves. The key is very light, and there is an air of fastidiousness and reserve about the figure which is very attractive. Mr. Cushing is ao Associate who has only lately settled permanently in New York.

Two snowscapes by Paul Cornoyer and Jules Turcas catch the eye. The formor takes Madison Square, looking south, for his theme, and tells realistically the story of one of our recent snowstorms, when ths atmosphere is charged with moisture or perhaps with scattered snowflakes, the Flatiron hides its hard outlines in a genial mist, and the snow lies thick and wet on trees, grass, benches, and walks. W. Granville Smith has a nocturne here, "Moonlight Shadows," showing the porch of a Summer home with three women dimly seen by the light that comes through the open door, where lamps are burning.

"Trade Winds," by William E. Norton, reflects the spirited look of a ship under full sail speeding through dark blue waves. Another sail on the horizon suggests a race for some common port. George Albert Thompson shows a nocturne landscape on the Quinnipiac River, near New Haven. Another New Havener is John H. Niemeyer of the Street Art School at Yale. He has a half length of a lady in a black hat and white gown, the light falling sharply on her face from the right.

Veteran Thomas Moran, N. A., sends one of his brilliant Yellowstone Park views, a scene on Tower Creek, while other Academicians—Tiffany, Bristol, C. H. Miller, Lockwood De Forest, and George Henry Hall—are here with characteristic pictures. "Red Riding Hood," by C. C. Curran, N. A., is a small child in red coat and cap, with basket on arm, who is reluctantly rehearsing the part of the nursery heroine, a finger in her mouth. The brushwork is much softer and sweeter than earlier work by this painter. He has been favored this year for the Vanderbilt Gallery contains his "Amber Necklace," "Ruby and Gold," "Listening to the Waves," reproduced in the pictorial supplement of this paper several Sundays ago—and "Opalescence."

In this same room a strongly colored "Child in Red and White" by William J. Whittemore is a fine, straightforward bit of portraiture which has been set by itself, where its powerful reds cannot interfere with neighbors. "Baby With Fan," by Joseph T. Pearson, Jr., just misses complete success because the hair of the child is not sufficiently insisted on. The hair is too pale, and so fails to make that decided impression on the background which calls the attention to the head as the most important object in the field. The eyes on different levels, one smaller than the other, suggest a personality in the infant, but something more is needed. Otherwise the light color scheme is very interesting. Mr. Pearson has a landscape in the same gallery.

William J. Hays is making a specialty of the horse, having in the Academy a picture of a mare with her foal, and in the Vanderbilt a good bit of work called "The Jumpers."

Turning into the South Gallery and passing to the left, one comes to "The Three Ages," by Hugo Ballin, which took the Second Hallgarten Prize, a nude child and woman and a draped crone. The young woman holds fruits and flowers; the crone is perhaps too gray and unhuman in complexion. In the Centre Gallery the same painter has a portrait and in the Vanderbilt a "Child Offering Fruit." Among the many Winter landscapes not the worst is that by C. A. Platt. Edmund Childe Hassam and Ernest Lawson have snowscapes in the same room.

Here is a capital portrait of Albert L. Groll, A. N. A., by F. Luis Mora, youngest of Academicians, whose graceful portrait of Mrs. Mora in the Vanderbilt has already had some mention. On the next wall the "Marigolds," painted by Miss Isabel Cohen, shine out warm and full of fine texture, and across the gallery the "Roses," by Mrs. E. M. Scott, are less striking but full of tender grace.

The portrait of a woman treated in broad sweeps of the brush that compel a distant stand, is by Joseph H. Booton, A. N. A. An excellent character study is W. V. Schevill's bust profile of the Russian musician Safanoff, lounging in becapped ease. Here, too, is a pleasing figure, "Girl Sewing," by William Cotton, whose group of the little "Princess" having her bath with attendant slaves, won the First Hallgarten.

"An Interlude," by Sergeant Kendall, group of mother and small daughter, has been bought for $2,000 by Mr. William T. Evans, in order to add it to his gift of American pictures to the National Gallery in Washington. It is a charming canvas, well worthy of that honor. "The Golden Wood," by J. Francis Murphy, has been purchased by Mr. Hermann Schaus. It is a poetic rendering of early Autumn in the woods. Near it hangs the small "Venus" by Henry Prellwitz, A. N. A., which won the T. B. Clarke Prize for a composition including figure. To the Vanderbilt also hangs the winner of the Third Hallgarten, "The Necklace," by Miss Eleanor C. Winslow.

Buying has been quite as lively at the 82d Academy as in former years, despite all disturbances in the financial world; and during the coming three weeks there is little likelihood of a change. Rather is it possible that by April 20 the Academy will make a record in sales. As usual, there is a wide range of work; the great diversity of technical address in these pictures produces a collection that appeals to very different ideals in art. Genre pictures, still life and flower pieces are in a minority, comparing this with some preceding exhibitions. Portraits are here in goodly numbers; but they do not oppress the show. Small sculptures are abundant. The charmingly gay and impish statuette "Circe" by Mrs. Bryson Burroughs has won deservedly the Julia Shaw Memorial prize of $300 for women.

LAST DAMROSCH CONCERT.

Gilibert Sings in Gadski's Place in Symphony Orchestra's Programme.

The New York Symphony Orchestra, under Walter Damrosch, in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon gave its farewell concert, which was well attended. The programme announced that Mme. Gadski, who had been announced as soloist, had suddenly become hoarse and Charles Gilibert was substituted at the last moment. He sang practically the same songs which he had used at the Young People's Symphony concert on Saturday afternoon: Masenet'a "The Legend of the Sage Bush," Wekerlin's "Je connais un berger descret," Grétry's "Air à danser," and the old French "Margaton." He substituted the "Serenade" from "Don Giovanni" for Monsigny's "Rose et Colas," which, however, he added for an encore. As was said yesterday in this column, this singer's exquisite art and perfect diction make his singing a delight, and, while he hae been heard in single groups of eongs at several concerts, it is to be hoped that next season he may give an entire recital of French songs.

The programme provided by Mr. Damrosch and played by the orchestra was popular in character, and none of the numbers was new. Sir Edward Elgar's "Variations on an Original Theme," which have been heard many times, were played, but they have often had a better reading. Three of the numbers from Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker" ballet were charmingly done, and another one added at the request of the audience.

The programme ended with Haydn's "Farewell Symphony," played by the light of candles on a darkened stage. As each man finished his part he blew out his candle and left the atage as the orchestra, according to the story, did when the symphony was performed before Prince Esterhazy. The idea is scarcely suited to modern condttions, and, as many of the players stumbled over chairs going out, the effect was scarcely pleasurable.

MELBA TO SAIL TO-MORROW.

Speaks with Pleasure of Her Season and Praises Hammerstein.

Mme. Melba eails for Europe on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse to-morrow. She will go immediately to Paris. She will mako her reappearance at Brussels after several years' absence on April 24. Mms. Melba said yesterday:

"I have never enjoyed any season in America so much as the one now closing. All through I have been in splendid health and spirits, and I shall never forget the kindness with which I have been received. The demands on my time have been so exacting that many courtesies must remain without direct acknowledgment.

"I am proud to have been associated with Mr. Hammerstein in his launching of New York's new opera house. What courage Mr. Hammerstein has shown and what wonders he has done! I think there must be something in the conditions of American life to encourage him, for I know of no manager in any city of the world who, single-handed and under circumstances of such difficulty and competition, would have risked his fortune on opera.

"His pluck appealed to me from the first, and I leave as I came, his loyal friend and admirer."

DALMORES IN FINE VOICE.

Appears Three Times at Manhattan Opera Concert—Orchestral Features.

The features of last night's concert at the Manhattan Opera House were orchestral, as is usually the case when Cleofonte Campanini conducts. Haydn's Symphony No. 3, which was played by the orchestra on last Friday night, was repeated, and the other orchestral numbers were the prelude to "Cavalleria," prelude to "Vally," "Anitra's Tanz," the overture to "Dinorah," and the overture to "Tannhäuser."

Charles Dalmorès, again in his best voice, appeared three times on the programme, and the other soloists were Mmes. Rusa and Zeppilli and Messrs. Sammarco, Arimondi, Daddi, Altchevsky, Ancona, Mugnos and Galletti-Gianoli. The chorus sang in the overture to "Dinorah" and a scene from Verdi's "Ernani."

There was a large audience.

Without Bonci and Caruso.

Neither Signor Bonci nor Signor Caruso will appear at the charity concert at the Waldorf on Thursday afternoon, as announced. Several other singers, however, will appear. The concert is given by the Franciscan Missionaries of Mary to raise money to establish a course in lacemaking, carpet weaving, and embroidery work for the Italian children of this city.

Free Easter Concert To-night.

William C. Carl will give an Easter organ concert in the Old First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street, to-night, assisted by Master Everett Maclachlan, the boy soprano, and William Harper, basso. The concert will be free to the public.

Klein's Orchestra Heard at Hippodrome.

An orchestra, conducted by Manuel Klein, made its first appearance at the Hippodrome last evening. Frederick Weld and Louise Gunning were the soloists. The audience was not a large one.

Charles W. Strine Ill at Boston.

Charles W. Strine, road manager of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company, is seriously ill of appendicitis at the Boothby Hospital in Boston. Ernest Goerlitz, Mr. Conried's New York assistant, left for Boston last night.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

"The Girl in White" company, under the management of James K. Hackett, started yesterday for Rochester, where the first performance will be given to-night.

The Yale University Dramatic Association will give the first American performance of Ibsen's "The Pretenders" to-morrow night at the Waldorf-Astoria. The play will be repeated on Wednesday evening.

The new Mary Anderson Theatre in Louisville, Ky., will be opened this evening by De Wolf Hopper and his company in "Happyland." This will be the first appearance of an "Independent" attraction in Louisville.

Misry Mannering, who has recovered from her recent illness, will resume her tour in "Glorious Betsy" in Elgin, Ill., to-night.

The annual testimonial tendered to Mack Hilliard, Treasurer of Weber's Theatre, will take the form of a Sunday smoking concert on the evening of April 7. Mr. Weber has lent the theatre, and the entertainment will be under the direction of Al. Holbrook. Vesta Victoria will head the bill.

GALUSHA A. GROW DIES OF OLD AGE

War Speaker of the House, He Had an Extraordinary Career in Congress.

FATHER OF HOMESTEAD LAW

Once Elected Unanimously, and as Candidate at Large for Pennsylvania Went Back.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, March 31.—Ex-Congressman Galusha Aaron Grow died at his home in Glenwood this afternoon of general debility after an illness of practically three years. He was 83 years old.

Mr. Grow never married, and, so far as known, leaves no relatives, with the exception of several nieces. His estate, composed principally of lands in Susquehanna County, is valued at about $50,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Galusha A. Grow served twenty years in Congress and spread his time over three generations. His service was divided into two periods, the first, of twelve years, came at the birth of the Republican Party and took him half way through the Civil War. The second, of eight years, began a full generation after the close of the war, and brought him back to Washington at a time when the reunited country was making its most tremendous strides in material prosperity.

In his first service he wielded a powerful influence. Beginning as a Free-Soil Democrat, he left that party after three terms to join the new-born Republican Party in its fight for the overthrow of slavery, and closed that period of his life in Congress as Speaker of the House, in which capacity he served during the Thirty-seventh Congress, from 1861 to 1863.

Grow was a page of ancient history then. He was regarded with reverence by all his fellow-members, and treated with a courtesy and dignity due to the link that bound the House to its time-honored tradition. But that was all.

Mr. Grow was 28 when he was first elected to Congress, in 1851, barely old enough to qualify, and the youngest man who had up to then been chosen as a Representative. He had lived twenty-five of those years in Pennsylvania, his father having moved from Connecticut, where he was born, when he was 3 years old. He had had an unusually thorough education for those days, and was a graduate of Amherst College and a member of the bar. He succeeded in the House David Wilmot of "Proviso" fame.

Grow was then a man with one idea, an idea which he clung to so persistently that it gave him the name by which all Washington still remembers him—the Father of Homestead Law. He began to urge that in his first four sessions; he kept on urging it until in his sixth term he had the felicity of signing it as Speaker and seeing it become law.

It was in that first period of his Congressional service that Mr. Grow received an honor not recorded aa having fallen to any other member of Congress—a unanimous election. When after three terms as a Free Soil Democrat he joined the new Republican Party he took his district with him and came back for three terms more.

In his second term as a Republican he struck what he afterward referred to as "the first blow for the Union." An acrimonious debate was going on, which involved the slavery question, and one of the Southern members, Lawrence M. Keith of South Carolina, made remarks which provoked Grow to the fighting pitch. He jumped at the member, who was atanding in front of the Speaker's desk, and knocked him down. The fight became general and progressed until one Representative pulled the hair of another and dragged off his wig. The laughter that followed broke up the row.

When Lincoln called the Thirty-seventh Congress in special session, July 4, 1861, Mr. Grow waa chosen Speaker of the House with almost no opposition, and without the formality of a caucus. During those first two years of the war Grow was frequently an adviser of Lincoln.

From that session he retired for thirty years. Then M. S. Quay, the master of Pennsylvania, under the new order of things that had grown up, invited him to return to Congress. The name of Grow was famous in Pennsylvania, and was a thing to conjure with. And Quay and his machine were in a bad way.

There was trouble for the "organization" and Quay picked out the veteran of war days to head his ticket. He nominated Mr. Grow as candidate-at-large, and his astuteness was justified. Mr. Grow was elected by the largest plurality up to that time ever given to any candidate in any State for any office, a record which Pennsylvania eicven years later gave to Theodore Roaevelt.

Mr. Grow's last contribution on public affairs was a letter written at the close of last November on the third term question. He quoted Jefferson's explanation of his opposition to a third term, and then said:

"A custom or usage of public interest practiced uniformly and continuously by a people for a long period becomes what is called an unwritten law. One election for a third term would destroy the influence of this unwritten law, and the obstacle to a third term, which Jefferson thought he was atding to build, would be swept away; and the dangers he forewarned would then begin, being far greater now than in his time by reason of the vast increase of Executive patronage. The same reasons or similar ones, urged by the special friends of a President for a third term, could in most if not all cases be urged as well for a fourth or a fifth term."

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

John Wyeth.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—John Wyeth of John Wyeth & Brother, manufacturing chemists, died yesterday. Mr. Wyeth, besides having been largely interested in business in Philadelphia, was also one of the syndicate that purchased The Philadelphia Record. His activities did not extend to a participation in the conduct of that newspaper, but he watched its policy closely. His father was a journalist, having been editorially engaged in the Cumberland Valley. Mr. Wyeth, who was about 73 years of age, was a Democrat. He led the agitation for a removal of the duty on quinine despite the fact that by this step his firm was bound to lose, and did lose, large profits which accrued to it before the change in that tariff. In early manhood Mr. Wyeth was associated with Thomas A. Scott in transportation undertakings.

John Washington Rhoades.

John Washington Rhoades, son of David Peck Rhoades, who, with Horace Greeley founded the New York Tribune, died yesterday at his home, 286 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, of acute nephritis, aged 60 years.

Mr. Rhoades became the manager of the New York News Company in 1867. He continued with that firm until three years ago, when he became the general manager of the American News Company, which position he held at the time of his death.

He was a member of the Arkwright Club and the Lincoln Club of Brooklyn. He leaves a widow and one son. The funeral will take place at the Rhoades residence on Tuesday evening and the burial will be at Stamford, Conn.

William K. Niver.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 31.—Ex-Mayor William K. Niver died to-day, aged 72 years. Mr. Niver was born in Kinderhook and for twelve years was manager of a transportation company with headquarters in New York. He was later an assistant superintendent of a division of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad and Superintendent of the Syracuse, Binghamton & New York. Afterward he was General Superintendent of the Western Division of the Lehigh Valley and also General Agent for the Reading Coal Company. For a time he was a Vice President of the Boston & Maine Railroad, and upon leaving this office organized the corporation of W. K. Niver & Co., handling coal, with offices in Boston, Baltimore, Syracuse, and Oswego.

John Walton.

John Walton, who was at one tims a well-known merchant in Brooklyn, died on Friday at his home, in Bennington Park, Freeport, L. I. He was born sixty-eight years ago in London, England, and coming to Brooklyn when a young man engaged in the manufacture of children's shoes.

In the civil war he served with the Fourteenth Regiment of Brooklyn. He escaped from Libby Prison and Andersonville, but was recaptured in each instance.

After the war he established a dry gooda business in Brooklyn, from which he retired aeveral yeara ago. For two years he had made his home in Freeport. He leaves a widow.

W. B. Thayer.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 31.—W. B. Thayer, the dry goods merchant, of the Emery, Bird, Thayor Company, died here this evening. He was 55 years old, and came here thirty-six years ago from Covington, Ky., where he waa born. He was President of the Commercial Club in 1901, and was active in creating a $400,000 fund for the building of Convention Hall. Four years ago he became a thirty-third degree Mason, and was head of the Missouri Consistory.

H. W. Goode.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 31.—H. W. Goode of Portland, Oregon, who was President of the Lewis and Clark Exposition, died to-day at a hotel of Bright's disease and pneumonia. At the bedstde at the time of his death were his wife, his mother, and his brother-in-law, A. C. Bedford.

The party came to Atlantic City ten days ago. On last Sunday they intended to leave here for Philadelphia, but Mr. Goode was taken ill that night and the trip was abandoned.

Col. Henry B. Wood.

DOBB'S FERRY, N. Y., March 31.—Col. Henry B. Wood, a veteran of both the Mexican and civil wars, was found dead at his home here this morning. He was 85 years of age. His death was due to heart failure, due to his advanced years.

Col. Wood was a member of the Order of Cincinnati and a descendant of Col. H. Bayles and of Capt. William Rice of Washington's staff. He has relatives living in Harrisburg, Penn.

Walter S. Swan.

BOSTON, March 31.—Walter S. Swan, a retired molasses merchant and a Director in many financial institutions of the city, is dead at the Hotel Brunswick after a brief illness. Mr. Swan waa born in Lancaster, Mass., in 1843, and lived in Cambridge for many years. He was President of the Charles River National Bank and a Director in the National Shawmut Bank, a number of savings banks, and the Boston Elevated Railway.

Obituary Notes.

JOHN L. ROSCOE, an old resident of South Brooklyn, died at his home, 426 Forty-ninth Street, on Saturday. He was born on City Island eighty-one years ago, and was for many years employed in the Brooklyn Post Office.

HENRY RUSSELL, a prominent resident of Belleville, N. J., died at his home there, 190 Washington Avenue, on Saturday night, aged 72 years. He was in the real estate business with an office at 22 Clinton Street, Newark. He lived in Bloomfield for many years, and was at one time a wholesale dealer in glassware at 42 Barclay Street, New York. He leaves a widow and daughter.

Dr. ROBERT FARRIES of 55 East Eighty-eighth Street, a practitioner for forty-two years, died yesterday at the age of 72. He was born in Dumfries, Scotland, and came to this country, and studied medicine at the University of Michigan and at the Long Island Medical College. He was graduated from the latter institution in the class of 1863. He was a member of the Medical Association of the Greater City of New York and the Physicians' Mutual Aid Association.

Bonds

In times of great prosperity the high rates for money cause bonds to sell at prices considerably below intrinsic values.

During periods of reaction in general business, however, large corporations are not heavy borrowers; consequently, capital turns to bonds for investment, the demand usually causing an advance in prices.

In view of the fact that capital is afforded its greatest protection when invested in sound bonds, the present low prices seem to offer exceptional opportunities to discriminating investors.

We shall be glad to furnish copies of our circular describing about 55 well-known listed Railroad Bonds.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION — THE MARKETS OF EUROPE

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Stock Market Position and the Money Markets.

While the week opened in the stock market with the most disordered trading witnessed up to that time, and prices of securities from then on to the close of the week displayed much irregularity and feverishness, with, however, a tendency toward improvement, the position of the money market was so radically bettered by the various measures adopted by the Treasury Department that so eminent an authority as Mr. Schiff ventured to predict that after the middle of the present month the money question would no longer prove troublesome. It was rather curious that the same day, Monday, should have marked both the moment of greatest stress in the stock market and the beginning of improvement in the money market. Stocks on that day fell in general to the lowest figures of the year, the average price of twenty railroad shares resting at its close some 20 points under the level of Feb. 25. The causes underlying Monday's severe declines seemed to be again the counterparts of those productive of the slump on March 14, including the liquidation of weakly held speculative accounts which had been tided over the previous ragged markets, determined operations on the part of a powerful bear party, the absence of support, and selling induced by anxiety over the position of affairs in the London and Berlin markets. Later in the week the regular settlements in each of these markets were carried through without any embarrassments of importance, and this was, of course, a factor working toward the restoration of confidence in all markets of the world. The fact that Wall Street, too, has passed through a period of strain like that entailed in the markets of the past three weeks is in itself a reason for optimism. There remains to be answered, of course, the question of future markets. It is obvious that bearish operators have pushed their campaign to highly dangerous lengths, and that the market has become technically much sounder through the shifting of stocks from weak hands into those exceptionally strong. There are also some signs of returning sanity on the part of those most directly interested in the railroad question, and with easier conditions in the money market assured, it is upon the success or failure of efforts to discover a common ground upon which the railroads and the Government may meet that not only Mr. Schiff, but the majority of observers of financial affairs turn this question of the future of markets.

Coincidently with the abrupt fall in prices on the opening day of the week Mr. Cortelyou announced that he would permit banks which have the 4 per cent. bonds maturing in July with the Treasury as security for United States deposits, to substitute for these maturing bonds State, municipal, and railroad issues upon condition that the 4 per cent. bonds released be presented for redemption under his recent offer. This announcement served two purposes. In the first place, it disposed of the rumor that Mr. Cortelyou had determined to break away from the rule established by Secretary Shaw regarding the acceptance of other than United States bonds as security for deposits of Government funds. There had been considerable anxiety among banking institutions all over the country over these unauthorized reports, and naturally so, since more than $16,000,000 of railroad bonds alone had been placed by the banks with the Treasury to secure deposits. The withdrawal of these issues and the substitution of Government bonds would have proved extremely burdensome to the banks upon which this necessity fell. Again, this measure enabled the banks to turn in their Government bonds under the Treasury's very favorable offer, and when permission to make deliveries at Sub-Treasuries as well as at Washington was also granted, this bringing about a substantial saving in the interest lost while bonds were in transit to Washington, there was an immediate and widespread response. At the week's close it appeared extremely probable that the entire $25,000,000 which the Treasury has set aside for the redemption of these bonds will be absorbed into trade channels as a result of the heavy offerings. Close upon the heels of this announcement came the further one that the discrimination which had been exercised against banks in Sub-Treasury cities in the matter of deposits of customs collections would be no longer exercised, and that customs receipts of not less than $15,000,000 would be deposited with the banks of this city. Customs collections here average not less than $4,000,000 a week, and the drain of this sum from the banks each week has, of course, been an unsettling factor in the money market. Its restoration, therefore, through its redeposit, will be most welcome. Mr. Cortelyou was fully justified in taking this step.

The Government has absorbed in the way of surplus in the course of the present fiscal year well on toward $50,000,000, all of this coming, of course, from the money market, as against a comparatively insignificant surplus in the same period a year ago. The Treasury's receipts in the month of March alone will run not less than $6,000,000 above its expenditures in spite of the unusually heavy disbursements of the month. It is altogether fitting, therefore, that these great sums which are of no immediate use in the conduct of the Government should be placed temporarily, at the disposal of business. Beyond this, however, the moment for such action was most opportune, since the dividend and interest disbursements on April 1 will aggregate more than $135,000,000, the largest amount paid out in this fashion at this season in any year in the country's history. There was every evidence here of the imposition of an unusual strain upon the banks over this period of distribution, and there was reason to believe that the experience of a year ago, when the banks returned a deficit and money went to 35 per cent., would be at least duplicated. Thanks, however, to the timely measures of the Treasury Department, the strain, while still severe, will be notably lessened, and if the usual inflow of funds to this city occurs after the middle of the month, the cheerful predictions regarding the relegation of the money question to an unimportant position may be borne out. These various measures have also worked to the benefit of European money markets. It has been the constant comment of financial critics in London and on the Continent that it was incumbent upon the United States Treasury to go as far as possible to relieve the New York money market before making it necessary for that market to call upon Europe for gold. There is much justice in this contention, and it is not impossible now that the engagement of $1,625,000 gold in the London open market on Monday may with the Treasury's recent measures serve the money market's purpose without further immediate demands for gold. It is to be noted, however, that exchange rates continue to rule at figures favorable to importations, and in the long run these appraise accurately the necessities of any given situation.

TOLD ROUND THE TICKER.

JAMES J. HILL does not permit any of his immediate employes to lock their office desks. He does not lock his own, and he sees to it that others in his office do not lock theirs. Some time ago one of the employes in the St. Paul office of the Great Northern's President, presumably unaware of Mr. Hill's aversion to having documents which he might care to examine concealed under lock and key, failed to look upon the lock on his particular desk as an ornament merely and when he left the office one night turned the key and carried the key off with him. Mr. Hill, as it happened, was at the office the next morning before the man who carried the key of his desk home with him. It was not long after Mr. Hill reached the office that this man got there himself, but brief as the interval was Mr. Hill had had time to call some one to force open the desk, and the documents it contained were all on view when the owner of the desk arrived. Mr. Hill, his friends say, has no secrets in his own office, and does not like the suggestion of secrecy carried by the closing of desks under lock and key.

ANDREW CARNEGIE'S remarks about Wall Street and the gambling that is carried on under its name contained in the speech which he made last week before the veteran army telegraphers threw an interesting sidelight on the position which Mr. Carnegie had assumed in dealing with Wall Street on the occasion of the sale of his steel works to the organizers of the United States Steel Corporation. He took his pay not in stock of any kind, but in first mortgage bonds secured by the property he was selling, as well as by all the other property owned by the new company. He thus intrenched himself in a position that was safe, no matter how much gambling might be conducted in the stock of the new company, and if, perchance, anything were to go wrong he would get his property back again. Mr. Carnegie made it clear upon this occasion, if ever there had been any doubt on the point, that he is not much of a gambler himself. He prefers to have the sure side of a bargain.

Sir WILLIAM VAN HORNE, Chairman of the Board of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is now on his way to inspect the Northern Railway of Guatemala, in which he is largely interested, has, geographically speaking, the most far-reaching domain in the railroad world. Besides his great Canadian Pacific, which is the furthest north transcontinental system, he has considerable dominion in the tropics. He is President of the Cuba Railroad and of the Cuba Company, and besides his interest in the Northern Railway of Guatemala is reputed to have other railroad connections in Latin America.

CHARLES J. HARRAH, President of the Midvale Steel Company, is a commuter whose daily journey is perhaps the longest out of New York. Living on the upper east side, he makes the journey to his steel plant at Midvale, within the Philadelphia city limits, nearly every day in the week. It is, of course, only the fast express service between the two cities that makes it possible for him to end his business day in Philadelphia at 4 P. M. and cover the ninety-seven miles to New York in time for dinner at home.

STANDARD OIL'S DECLINE.

Reaches Its Lowest Point in Seven Years, Despite Favorable Report.

The Standard Oil Company filed with the Secretary of State of Massachusetts last week the financial statement required by the laws of that State, which is the nearest approach to an annual report that the stockholders ever see. It is strange that in view of a stated increase in assets of nearly $62,000,000 since 1905, the stock should have sold in the curb market on Thursday down to 494¼, the lowest price that has been reached since the year following the company's organization in 1899. Since that time it has sold as high as 84—a figure reached during the first week of May, 1901.

The selling last week which put the shares down to the low figure was undoubtedly from out of the hands of small capitalists who were forced to liquidate, and as the market for the shares is extremely narrow and lacking in support, the sellers had no choice but to offer down if they were to sell at all. Standard Oil has always been remarkable for its violent price changes. On May 9, 1901, the high price was 800, from which it declined to 150. It closed at 765. On the following day it sold between 738 and 803, closing at the latter figure, which was 3 points above the opening.

As far as the Massachusetts report of the Standard goes it shows nothing but good news. The surplus has increased by $9,000,000 since the first month of 1906, cash and debts receivable have gone up over $41,000,000 since Jan. 5, 1905, and the supplies on hand have increased in the same period from $3,674,232 to $22,891,273.

LONDON'S POSITION STRONG.

But the Monetary Victory Has Been a Rather Unprofitable One.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 31.—The Times in its financial supplement to-morrow will say:

"Pausing to look back at the monetary history of the first quarter of the year, we cannot help being struck by the abnormality that has been the dominant note. The 6 per cent. Bank rate has been relaxed, but that is almost the only point in which the quarter has been marked by a development describable as usual and seasonable.

"But it is satisfactory to note that most of the queer movements which have upset the calculations of those who had arranged their financial programmes according to precedent have been of foreign origin. New York and its obvious need of liquidation was the most important of the causes which switched the monetary train to the side-track of stringency and apprehension. But the position on the Continent has been, in a quieter and less sensational style, almost equally potent as a disturber of monetary peace. Within the last fortnight the Banks of Amsterdam, Brussels, and Paris have all raised their official rates, and Berlin has only escaped a return to 7 per cent. by obtaining a large supply of gold from Vienna.

"London demonstrated the strength of its position by forcing all Continental exchanges to the point at which it would pay to bring gold here if gold could be got. It is a bloodless and rather unprofitable victory, for, thanks to the care with which our Continental friends guard their gold, it cannot be got except in pitifully small lots. But at least it has been shown that the balance of indebtedness has been restored by the activity of British export trade and the liquidation of credits piled up at the time of the South African war."

BERLIN MARKET DEPRESSED.

A Slight Improvement Occurred Toward the End of the Week.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 31.—Stocks fluctuated considerably last week. The unfavorable condition of the money market and apprehension that the period of industrial prosperity is coming to an end continued to exert a depressing influence and realizations upon an extensive scale helped to weaken the market, which had already been badly disorganized by the great panic of the preceding Saturday.

Toward the end of the week there was a slight improvement. Prices began to move upward and the volume of trade enlarged somewhat. It cannot be said, however, that normal conditions were restored. The betterment, such as it was, came largely through the action of the great banking houses, which braced up the market against the extreme calamity in which it might have been involved.

The approach of the monthly settlement was viewed with considerable misgiving, but so far only one small bank has suspended payment as a result of engagements in American railway stock.

Money for settlement purposes stood at 6⅞ to 7 per cent. The private discount rate was 5¾ per cent. and later 5 1-3 per cent. The reduction was probably due to the efforts of great banking firms to support the market by keeping discount as low as possible.

The Imperial Bank's weekly return shows that its status further deteriorated in spite of the fact that an appreciable improvement is usually looked for at this time of the year.

IRREGULARITY IN PARIS.

Tendency Downward, but the Situation Was Better at the Week's End.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 31.—The Bourse showed great irregularity last week, with a downward tendency, under the influence of the depressed condition of the foreign markets.

Much anxiety prevailed early in the week on account of the report that the Bank of France contemplated another advance in its discount rate and great satisfaction was expressed when it was announced on Thursday that the rate would not be raised. This tended to the betterment of the market, and the improvement in New York reported later in the week helped the situation considerably.

Rio Tintos as usual were the most active stock in the market. The slump in copper affected them adversely. They have fallen about 200f. since the last making-up price.

Spanish rails lost about 25f. Other changes were unimportant.

MATURING NOTES.

Short-Time Securities Demand Refinancing—$118,000,000 Due This Year.

The succeeding nine months will see come to redemption $118,104,000 of short-time notes which were put out by corporations for the most part before the far larger crop now current came into the market during the present period of difficult corporation financing of which the beginning may be said to have been made upon the failure of the Pennsylvania stockholders to take up the $100,000,000 issue of 4 per cent. convertible bonds put out by that road in March, 1905.

Of this total $20,000,000 is represented in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's 5 per cent. notes due May 1 and $50,000,000 in the 4½ per cent. notes of the Pennsylvania Company due Nov. 1, both of which issues have their redemption already provided for. There remains, therefore, some $48,000,000 of notes which will require refinancing before the end of the year. The notes nearest to maturity are the three-million-dollar issue of Erie Railroad 6 per cent. notes due April 8. It is said that arrangements are already under way to take care of this issue as well as the two issues of $1,000,000 each which the same railroad must redeem on June 1 and July 2 respectively.

The following table sets forth the most important note issues maturing before the first of the year:

Company.	Interest.	Maturity.	Amount.
Erie R. R. Co.	6%	April 8	$3,000,000
Erie R. R. Co.	6%	June 1	1,000,000

TRUST COMPANY CONDITIONS.

A comparison of the statements of the Trust Companies as submitted to the State Superintendent of Banking on Feb. 26, with those of a corresponding date last year, shows among other interesting changes a decrease in loans on collateral from $716,701,386 to $691,009,894. At the same time the amount due from bankers, etc., rose from $7,732,250 to $24,276,113.

A full comparison of resources and liabilities as contained in the statements of Jan. 1, and Feb. 26, 1907, is contained in the appended table:

WORKERS' STOCK LOSSES.

Drop of Steel Preferred Left Steel Workers Still $1,211,936 Ahead.

Those employes of the Steel Corporation or its subsidiaries who have availed themselves in the last five years of the company's offer to them of preferred stock at something below the current market were no doubt anxious watchers of the quotations as the price went down in the recent slump to the low price on last Monday of $91.50 per share. To those who bought stock in 1906 and since the beginning of the current year the decline meant actual losses, since the offerings to employes at the ends of the last two fiscal years have been at par and at $102, respectively.

The average steelworker has, however, obtained his stock well below the panic prices of the last few weeks, for while 48,983 shares were allotted in 1903 at the price of $82.50 and 32,519 shares in 1904 at the rate of $55, only 23,089 employes took stock in 1906 at par and only 27,032 signified their willingness to accept the offer made at the end of the last fiscal year, in December, of subscription privileges at 102, though this price was then over 2 points below the current market and the stock had sold during the year as high as 113¾. Moreover, those who bought their shares in the first years of the subscription offering have always back of them, until next year, the comforting knowledge that the company stands ready to buy back their takings at the price at which the stock was first offered for subscription.

In view of the big slump in the steel stocks shortly after the first subscriptions were taken, in 1903, which might naturally have alarmed the steel workers who had paid out their hard-earned money, the Finance Committee circularized the employes in September, 1903, offering to pay in January or February, 1908, "to every subscribing officer or employe who shall have retained his stock for the full period of five years, $82.50, less the rebates and benefits he shall have been entitled to under the circular, (not including interests and dividends.)"

Just how heavily the paper profits of the steel employes were dissipated in the recent slump may be seen in the appended table which shows even at Monday's low figure of $91.50, a profit on the 150,496 shares of preferred taken by the workers of $1,211,936. At Saturday's closing price of 97⅞, the profit had crept up again to $2,174,061.

TREASURY RELIEF

Afforded During March to Extent of $88,000,000—Cortelyou's Several Orders

Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou since he assumed control of the Government's finances on March 4 last has twice come to the relief of the money market, and on a scale which for so brief a period has never been exceeded. The first steps taken by the newly appointed Secretary of the Treasury to relieve the tension in the money market was announced on March 14, the day that the New York stock market experienced the worst single day decline in its history.

This first relief order provided for the retention by the banks of the $30,000,000 of special deposits which were distributed last Fall and which were to have been returned during March, authorized the postponement of the retirement of $18,000,000 of circulation arranged as a temporary relief expedient by Secretary Shaw, and in addition set aside funds for the redemption at par and interest to maturity, of $25,000,000 of 4 per cent. bonds maturing next July. At the same time the Collectors of Customs other than those in Sub-Treasury cities were instructed to deposit the receipts of their offices in the National banks under the terms of the Aldrich Act. No provision was made for the acceptance of municipal and railroad bonds as security for Government deposits nor did the Secretary authorize the substitution of such bonds for any short as that might be pledged as security for existing Government deposits. This was regarded as establishing a new policy in the matter of the class of bonds to be accepted as security for deposits.

The subsequent order of Secretary Cortelyou, issued on March 26, permitting the substitution of municipal and railroad bonds for the short 4s pledged as security for deposits and authorizing the acceptance of municipal and railroad bonds as security for $15,000,000 of additional deposits, was, therefore, regarded as a reversal of the previous order. So, too, was the placing of customs receipts with the New York City National banks after this and all other Sub-Treasury cities had been barred from benefiting from the deposit of customs receipts under the first order issued by Secretary Cortelyou.

The order of March 26, besides authorizing the deposit of $15,000,000 with the New York City banks, provided for the prepayment of the April 1 interest on Government bonds and altered the previous regulations to the extent of permitting the several Sub-Treasuries to accept and pay for any short 4s that might be presented for redemption instead of requiring that the holders forward the bonds to Washington. The latter change made much easier the redemption of bonds, especially in the case of small lots of bonds in the possession of individual investors.

These two relief orders issued by Secretary Cortelyou supplied the money market with $25,000,000 of new money through the redemption of bonds, $15,000,000 through additional deposits with the National banks in this city, and postponed the retirement or return to the Government of $48,000,000 additional, making all told $88,000,000 in addition to the prepayments of Government bond interest and apart from such funds as were deposited in the banks by the Collectors of Customs at non-Sub-Treasury cities.

EFFECT OF RETRENCHMENT.

Not Yet Felt by Railroad Equipment Companies.

Retrenchment by the railroads has been pointed to in recent weeks as one of the surest harbingers of a falling off in the country's industrial activity. The point has been made that the railroads, as a whole, are the largest single consumers of steel and iron products as well as of vast amounts of other classes of manufactured and raw materials and that any extensive movement among the railroads to curtail their expenditures for improvements and incidentally to reduce their orders for material would unfailingly be reflected in the earnings of the industrial companies, more particularly of those whose sole business is the manufacture of railroad products, including equipment.

While this view is generally accepted as well founded, being based, as it is, on past experience, it would appear that up to the present the retrenchment by the railroads has not reached the point at which it will begin to cut into the earnings of the industrial companies. The statement of E. H. Gray, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, that during the first three weeks of March the orders received by the corporation exceeded by 10,000 tons a day the output of the company's plants in the corresponding period of last year, shows clearly that the Steel Corporation's business has not yet begun to suffer because of the cutting down of improvement expenditures by the railroads.

Even more striking than this, however, as an indication of the continuing activity of the industrial plants that are largely dependent upon orders from the railroads is the statement made last week by an officer of the Railway Steel Spring Company that the orders booked by the company for the first twenty-eight days of March were 10 per cent. larger than those received during February, and exceeded the total orders ever received in any full month in the company's history. To this was added the statement that the Railway Steel Spring Company now has on its books enough business to keep its plants running for the next six months were not a single additional order received from any source. But so far as the officials of the company can see there is no indication of any falling off in the volume of new orders which are being received daily. Not a single order previously placed has been canceled nor in any other way has the retrenchment policy of the railroads affected the company's business.

The probable explanation of this fact is that even the railroads that have publicly adopted a retrenchment policy have not gone to the extent of canceling any of their orders for equipment. Most of the work that has been abandoned, or at least postponed, consists of heavy roadway and terminal improvements, double tracking, grade reductions, and the like. This is the class of work which calls for the heaviest outlay and which at the same time can most readily be postponed.

The railroad equipment companies in many cases are months behind, and orders placed recently will probably not be filled until the coming Fall. This fact in itself accounts at least in part for the decision of the railroads not to cancel their orders for equipment. To begin with most railroad men expect that all the new equipment that has been ordered will be needed despite the falling off in business, which is now generally expected, although so far it has taken place only to a slight extent if at all. Again, monetary and other conditions, it is held, may change considerably during the next six months, and by the time the equipment is ready for delivery it may be much easier to finance its purchase than it would be just at this time.

Investment Value of Railroad Equipment Bonds

We have prepared a circular under this title which will be mailed upon application.

The considerations advanced seem to justify the conclusion that railroad equipment bonds possess security equal or superior to that of first mortgage bonds, combined with a net return considerably higher, thus affording a most desirable class of railroad obligations for investment.

THE STEEL TRADE POSITION.

Lull After Previous Week's Buying—No Signs of Weakening, with Assurances of $22 Iron in Third Quarter.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 30.—There has been a remarkable stillness and dullness in the iron and steel market during the week, and it would seem that the energy expended by the buyers and sellers in the previous week had sapped all energy from the market. The mills, however, have been buzzing as never before, which is saying much. However, the recent flood threw big mills out of stride by crippling transportation facilities as well as drowning fires in some quarters. It is estimated at this time that the mills lost eight days in shipping, and this is quite an item in the Pittsburg district, where every moment of time, twenty-four hours per day, is utilized by the shipping departments of the big mills. Just how they will make up this loss of time is a question, but they are going after it hard, and the railroads are driven to desperation by the calls for more cars.

While the pig iron market is at a standstill, it can be said with truthfulness that the outlook is good, as there is no sign of weakening. The sale of about 61,000 tons of pig iron last week for the second quarter at $22 per ton seemed enough for the market for a few days, and it appears to be resting quietly. The second quarter begins on Monday, and with it the second quarter delivery of pig iron. As yet there has not been a world of pig iron sold for the third quarter, and there is an intimation that the present price of $22 per ton as a minimum may be passed along into the third quarter, perhaps to the fourth and last quarter of the year. This would make it one of the strongest years in the history of pig iron, stronger than last year, in fact, for though 1906 was very strong in spots, there were weeks and weeks when the consumer and the producer were in a deadlock, neither side moving, and of course in a case like this there was nothing done in the way of selling iron. This made the year rather spotty, but it would seem now since the coming of Corey to Pittsburg and his talk with the Steel Corporation's pig iron producers and the independents as well that there has come a better period. From the highest authority THE TIMES's correspondent learns that there will be a price of $22 fixed for iron in the third quarter, and that there will be no kicking or gouging by any one.

The announcement by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company that it would not raise prices during the next few months has produced confidence in the stability of prices.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

The Metal and the Stocks—Much New Development Work Promised In Lake Reports.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 30.—The manipulation in the price of copper has had nothing to do, in the best opinion, with whatever weakness the stocks of the copper mining companies have shown during the depression in the general stock market. Consumers are still short of needed supplies and the inquiry is good. The drop which many stocks experienced was sympathetic; and it is lucky that prices had not reached a level proportionate to the price of the metal, or the drop would have been greater. With 26-cent copper Anaconda is figured worth 400, and other good mines in proportion.

An interesting fact disclosed by Tamarack's annual report is that one of the shafts is almost a mile deep in the bowels of the earth. It is the deepest mine shaft in the world. The report states: "While the results for the year have been poor, they are not altogether bad. We should be much encouraged by the fact that, under the most adverse circumstances, the mine produced nearly 10,000,000 pounds of ingot copper. Better than this is the fact that for the past two years all new openings have shown steady improvement in quality and extent. We shall continue to drive the new drifts during 1907 with all possible dispatch."

Calumet advices are that the Mohawk Company will this Spring locate a sixth shaft, although the actual sinking may not begin until 1908.

"It will take many years to thoroughly explore all of our territory," says the Isle Royale's annual report. Net earnings for the year aggregate $,251 feet.

The Washington Copper Mining Company Directors in their report say that they are waiting the results of their neighbors' explorations before engaging in similar work themselves.

Butte advices are that the North Butte Extension Company has begun active work and has struck a 20-foot vein of mineralized ore the existence of which was not before known. The shaft is now down 35 feet. This property is just north of that of the North Butte Company.

There is talk of erecting a copper smelter at Lake Hauser, in the Corbin camp, in Montana, so great is the activity there and so promising are the deposits of ore found. This region is south of Helena.

The terms for the consolidation of the Bingham Central and the Bingham Standard, both Newhouse properties, have been given out, and the new concern will develop the 500 acres adjoining the Boston Consolidated and Bingham-New Haven.

It is understood that the President of one of the big New York banks is interested in the syndicate which has purchased the Midland group and other properties adjoining the Conger. The new company is to be called the Bingham and Butte.

TRANSACTIONS IN MARCH.

Transactions in stocks on the New York Stock Exchange for the month of March aggregated 32,250,842 shares, the largest total of any month since January of last year, when the sales amounted to 38,547,868 shares. As compared with the previous month, transactions increased 15,767,690 shares, and 12,920,893 shares as compared with the corresponding month last year. There were fourteen days in March on which the transactions reached 1,000,000 shares or more, and on three of the latter they exceeded 2,000,000 shares. The heaviest day's trading occurred on March 14, when the sales were 2,565,070 shares, the largest total on any day since Aug. 20 of last year. The smallest total was that of the 21st, when only 636,799 shares were dealt in. The trading on the 16th, on which date 931,405 shares changed hands, was the heaviest for the Saturday half holiday, while that of the 23 was the lightest, dealings in only 460,814 shares occurring on the latter date. Last month's transactions of 32,250,842 shares compare with 16,483,152 shares in February, 29,914,797 shares in January, 20,295,382 shares in December, 19,411,945 shares in November, 23,892,445 shares in October, 26,121,583 shares in September, 31,723,545 shares in August, 16,890,588 shares in July, 20,282,307 shares in June, 23,045,096 shares in May, and 24,296,711 shares in April of last year.

The following table gives the total transactions in stocks for March and since Jan. 1 this year, as compared with the corresponding periods in each year back to 1890:

PROPOSALS.

BONDS

STATE OF NEW YORK

FOR

CANAL IMPROVEMENT

EXEMPT FROM TAXATION.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 147 of the laws of 1903 and Chapter 302 of the laws of 1906, sealed proposals will be received at the office of the State Comptroller, in the City of Albany, until Friday, April 5, 1907, at twelve o'clock, noon, of that day, for the purchase in whole or in part of

to be issued by the people of the State of New York, in either registered or coupon form at the option of the purchaser, bearing interest at the rate of three per cent. per annum from January 1, 1907, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July of each year, and the principal payable on the first day of January in the year 1957. Principal and interest payable in gold coin of the United States of America, of the present standard of weight and fineness, at the Bank of the Manhattan Company, in the City of New York.

Coupon bonds will be issued in the denomination of One Thousand Dollars and registered bonds in denominations of One Thousand, Five Thousand, Ten Thousand, and Fifty Thousand Dollars.

A sinking fund is established by law for the extinguishment of the indebtedness created by the sale of the aforesaid bonds and for the payment of the interest thereon as the same become due.

The bonds are exempt from taxation.

No proposal will be accepted for less than the par value of the bonds nor unless accompanied by a deposit of money or by a certified check or bank draft upon a bank or trust company of the City of Albany or New York, payable to the order of the Comptroller of the State of New York, for at least two per cent. of the par value of the bonds bid for.

All proposals, together with the security deposits, must be sealed and indorsed "Loan for Canal Improvement" and inclosed in a sealed envelope directed to the "Comptroller of the State of New York, Albany."

The successful bidder or bidders will be required to pay for the bonds, on the acceptance of the proposal by deposit in the Bank of the Manhattan Company, in the City of New York, to the credit of "Treasurer of the State of New York on account of the Canal Fund," of the amount of the award, together with premium and accrued interest from January 1, 1907, less the amount of the deposit of such successful bidder or bidders which will be applied toward the payment for the bonds. All other deposits will be returned by mail to the respective bidders within three days after the bonds have been awarded, unless different instructions to the Comptroller as to the return of the deposit are duly given.

The Comptroller reserves the right to reject any or all bids which are not in his opinion advantageous to the interests of the State.

MARTIN H. GLYNN,
Comptroller.

ERIE CONVERTIBLES.

Show Decline of 33 Points from High Price of 1906—Other Erie Issues.

Erie convertible 4 per cent. bonds, which in January, 1906, sold at 109⅞ declined last week to 76, a fall of 33⅞ points from the highest price at which they had sold. The convertible clause in the bonds entitling the holder to exchange them for Erie common at 50 represented a privilege of considerable prospective value when the stock was selling at 50⅞, as it did last year. The value of the privilege appears, now that Erie common has dropped close to 20, to have been reduced to next to nothing, and the bonds are left to sell practically on their merits as a 4 per cent. obligation of the Erie Railroad subject to the many other liens under which the property rests.

The highly speculative character of such issues as these Erie convertibles is indicated strikingly by the fact that the decline in these bonds during the past year has approximated the loss which has occurred in the road's second preferred stock, which has fallen from above 70 to below 35, on the supposition that the semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent which is to be paid on the stock on April 9 next will be the last payment to be made on the issue for some time to come. It is inevitable that an issue of this kind should fluctuate with the stock into which it is convertible. Moreover, the intrinsic value of such an issue, as a bond, pure and simple, supposedly makes it but a second or third rate security, else in all probability the convertible clause would not be included. The right of conversion is intended usually to increase the saleability of a bond by adding to the value of the bond as an investment a speculative value based on a possible enhancement in the value of the stock.

In addition to the $10,000,000 of convertible 4s exchangeable into stock at 50, sold in 1903, the Erie has oustanding $12,000,000 of bonds convertible into common stock at 60. The latter were placed in December, 1905. Both issues are part of the $50,000,000 convertible bonds authorized in 1903 to provide funds for the development of the Erie Railroad, which was then, and is still, in urgent need of capital with which to increase its facilities. The most pressing need of the Erie Railroad is not so much additional traffic, for it already controls a territory supplying a heavy volume of freight, but of better facilities to handle the business which it already has.

For this reason the lack of funds which compelled the indefinite postponement of important improvement work which the Erie Railroad had under way, was regarded as a serious blow to the company. The extent to which the securities of the Erie Railroad have suffered by reason of this unfavorable development in its affairs in conjunction with the upheaval in the general market is shown by this record of the declines which has taken place since last year in the most active of the Erie issues:

STATE REGULATION OF RAILROAD RATES

Federal Court's View of Extent of Legislatures' Power Over Charges.

JUDGE BREWER'S DECISIONS

In Cases Against Iowa in 1888 Make Confiscation the Dividing Line.

Comparison has frequently been made of late between the present movement among the State Legislatures for reductions in rates and stricter general control of the railroads with the so-called Granger laws of the early seventies. The parallel, in some respects, is striking, but the assumption that the present movement represents a revival of ideas regarding railroad regulation by the States, which had slumbered since the close of the seventies, when the Granger movement had run its course, is scarcely justified by the record.

Late in the eighties the stock market on more than one occasion was agitated by the passage of bills by State Legislatures establishing railroad commissions and reducing rates. Much litigation grew out of the enactment of these laws, and in the course of the court proceedings at that time many questions now foremost in the public mind, in connection with the discussion of the railroads' relations to the public, were passed upon by the Federal courts.

Some of the most interesting cases of this character grew out of the passage in April, 1888, by the Iowa State Legislature of a law establishing a railroad commission with full power over the railroads both in the matter of general regulation and of supervision over rates. The court decisions growing out of the enactment of this law rendered the measure more or less nugatory, but this, it appears from the record, was more the result of the commission having overreached itself in the matter of reducing rates than of any disapproval by the courts of the principles involved in the legislation.

The first schedule of rates under this Iowa law was promulgated in the Summer of 1888, but in the Fall Judge Fairall of the Iowa State courts decided against the rates established by the commission, thus affording the railroads at least partial relief from the burdens imposed upon them by this law. In the interval, however, several decisions were rendered by Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court, who at that time was Circuit Judge for the district including the States of Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska. These decisions contain so much that is of present-day interest that it is worth while to recall their salient features and the circumstances of the litigation in the course of which they were rendered.

It was on April 13, 1888, that the Iowa Legislature passed the Railroad Commission bill known as Chapter 28, Laws of the Twenty-second General Assembly. This act established a Railroad Commission of three members, with general supervision over the railroads of the State. Section 17 of the act gave the commission power to fix a schedule of maximum rates which were to be deemed prima facie reasonable.

Severe penalties were imposed for any infringement of the law or of the regulations of the commission. Section 26 prescribed a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000 for the first offense, and of not less than $5,000 nor more than $10,000 for each subsequent offense. Any one injured by reason of an infraction of the law could recover treble damages, in addition to reasonable counsel fees.

The reductions ordered by the commission under this law were in many cases drastic. The railroads flew to the courts to prevent their enforcement, and before the date when they were to have gone into effect a restraining order was obtained from Judge Brewer by the Chicago & Northwestern. The injunction was granted, however, solely on the ground that it appeared on the surface that the rates were confiscatory. On this point only were the main contentions of the railroads upheld. The decision otherwise contained much that was disquieting from the railroads' point of view.

In a subsequent case brought before Judge Brewer by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy in which there was shown to be reasonable doubt about the confiscatory character of the rates, an injunction was refused. The position of the court briefly put was that unless it was shown that the rates would force the railroad to do the business at no profit at all the courts would not interfere. Earnings of a fraction of 1 per cent. on the road's stock was all that was needed to prevent the rates being regarded as confiscatory. Judge Brewer held, however, that the rates must be sufficient to meet interest on the bonds of the road and leave something over.

The railroads held that the law was unconstitutional in that it deprived the railroads of property without due process of law, that the Legislature had no power to delegate the rate-making power, which was a legislative function; that the clause making the rulings of the commission prima facie evidence of the reasonableness of the rates established by them amounted to a deprivation of the right of trial by jury, and on other less material grounds. The railroads claimed that the rates established in the schedules fixed by the commission were unreasonable because they were so low that under them the railroads could not pay operating expenses, meet fixed charges, and pay dividends. Their enforcement, it was held, would make many railroads in Iowa insolvent. The penalties, too, it was claimed, were excessive. The railroad maintained that if the rates charged were held excessive, a single day's business would result in the accumulation of penalties aggregating from $500,000 to $2,500,000.

The position of the Railroad Commission, in brief, was that whether the rates were reasonable or unreasonable made no difference in law, providing only they were fixed under authority of the Legislature, whose power over rates, it was claimed, was absolute. The Chicago & Northwestern, moreover, from the commission's point of view, was operating within the State of Iowa only on sufferance.

Of the delegation of the rate-making power Judge Brewer said in his decision that it was fairer to the railroads to have rates fixed by a commission constantly in session than directly by the Legislature, which sits only once in two years. "That," (rate) he said, "which would be fair and reasonable to-day, six months or a year hence might be either too high or too low."

Judge Brewer's opinion of what constituted reasonable rates from the constitutional point of view is best set forth in an extract from his decision:

"The right of judicial interference exists only when the schedule of rates established will fall to secure to the owners of the property some compensation or income from their investment. As to the amount of such compensation, if some compensation or reward is in fact secured, the Legislature is the sole judge."

As an illustration of the application of a similar principle, Judge Brewer instanced the right of a State to reduce the legal rate of interest to 1 per cent. "Although such legislation," he said, "would prevent capital from coming into the State, would the courts have power to declare the law unconstitutional? The rule, therefore, to be laid down is this: that where the proposed rates will give some compensation, however small, to the owners of the railroad property, the courts have no power to interfere."

In the Chicago & Northwestern case it was shown on the affidavit of Henry C. Wicker, its General Manager, that the proposed rates applied to the previous year's business would show a reduction in earnings of a sum greater than the amount that had been paid out to dividends in any of the previous three years. On this showing the enforcement of the rates was enjoined by Judge Brewer. In the later cases, brought by the Burlington, after the rates had been slightly modified, Judge Brewer refused an injunction. Here it was shown by General Manager E. P. Ripley that the application of the rates to the Burlington's business in 1888 would have raised the deficit reported that year from $771,560 to $3,360,000. The deficit that year, however, was due to a strike, and the court would not consider it as a basis upon which to determine whether or not the rates were reasonable. Going back to 1887, when conditions were normal, it was shown that operating expenses and fixed charges amounted to $21,383,937, while the gross earnings under the proposed schedule of rates would have amounted to $21,656,583, leaving a balance of $272,585, equal to only thirty-five-one-hundredths of 1 per cent. on the road's stock. The rates were nevertheless held to be compensatory from the constitutional point of view, and the injunction was refused.

On the other hand, regarding the claim of the commission that the railroads incorporated in other States really had no rights in the State of Iowa, Judge Brewer had this to say:

"It is said that the complainant is a foreign corporation, permitted simply as an act of grace to do business within this State, and that the Legislature may therefore impose such terms and conditions upon its doing business in the State as it sees fit; that the carrier is not bound to continue in business, and if he finds the rates imposed by the State not remunerative, may abandon the business. Whatever of force there may be in such arguments, as applied to mere personal property capable of removal and use elsewhere, or in other business, it is wholly without force as against railroad corporations, so large a proportion of whose investment is in the soil and fixtures appertaining thereto, which cannot be removed.

"For a Government, whether the Government be a single sovereign or one of the majority, to say to an individual who has invested his means in so laudable an enterprise as the construction of a railroad, one which tends so much to the wealth and prosperity of the community, that, if he finds the rates imposed will cause him to do business at a loss, he may quit business and abandon that road, is the very irony of despotism. Apples of Sodom were fruit of joy in comparison."

In overruling the contention of the Iowa Railroad Commission that the question of reasonableness of rates was not a proper subject of investigation by the courts, Jude Brewer was merely following decisions already rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States. This is clear from this extract from a decision rendered by the Supreme Court in 1887:

"The question of the reasonableness of a rate or charge for transportation by a railroad involving as it does the element of reasonableness both as regards the company and as regards the public is eminently a question for judicial investigation requiring due process of law for its determination. If the company is deprived of the power of charging reasonable rates for the use of its property and such deprivation takes places in the absence of an investigation by judicial machinery, it is deprived of the lawful use of its property, and thus, in substance and effect, of the property itself without due process of law and in violation of the Constitution of the United States."

Agatha, Lodona, and Jig Step Among the Yachts Transferred.

Henry J. Gielow announces the sale of the schooners Marjorie and Agatha and the auxiliary Seulpin II. among other notable sales. Frank L. St. John's Marjorie, bought by John F. Baudouine, is at Jacob's Yard, City Island, having a twenty-five horse power gasoline engine installed. She is eighty-five feet over all and was built in 1902. Agatha will serve as the flagship of William C. Towen, Vice Commodore of the Brooklyn Yacht Club. Her name will be changed to Tammany, and she will be entered in the ocean race to Bermuda in June. She is a flush-deck keel vessel, seventy-two feet over all, and was built in 1902. F. L. Sheppard's auxiliary Scalpin II. will be used by William L. Bijur, her new owner, for a cruise to the Jamestown Exposition.

C. L. Cammann, Jr., has purchased the sloop yacht Lodona from E. J. Graecen and T. Bache Bloecker haa bought the fast Class P sloop yacht Jig Step from F. J. Havens. The latter yacht was built last year from plans by Mr. Gielow, and won the championship of her class on Gravesend Bay and during the Larchmont race week. She will be raced on Long Island Sound during the coming season, her home port being Oyster Bay.

The following motor yachts have been transferred through the same office: Lillian, 65 feet, twin screw, George H. Reeves to Capt. W. O. Candee, to be used principally on Great South Bay, Long Island, with cruisea outside; Zorayda, 67 feet, twin-screw cruiser, E. Barnett to A. Schneidor, will be taken to Chesapeake Bay; Vampa, 56 feet, speed launch, Clement L. March to Spencer Trask, for service on Lake George, and Adlake, for Frank M. Miller to Stanley Scott.

The steam launch Roamer, sold for P. Sanford Ross, has been shipped to South America, and the auxiliary catboat Molly B. has been sold for Fred J. Buenzie to William H. Nimick.

The Pastime Fishing Club has completed arrangements for the tenth deep-sea fishing season by chartering a boat for the following ten trips: May 19, June 9 and 23, July 21, Aug. 4 and 18, Sept. 1, 15, and Oct. 6, and a codfish trip Nov. 17. Tickets, including railroad fare, bait, and refreshments will be $2. The person catching the heaviest eatable fish during the season (not including the codfish trip) will receive a prize consisting of a bait-bearing reel, a gift of Charles D. Liming, also a valuable fishing rod, a gift of Buob Brothers.

John Lewis fished from the iron pier at Coney Island Saturday and caught some of the small codfish that are still lingering in these waters. He caught five in two hours, which is good fishing at this time of the year.

Harry Stillwell fished in the Shrewsbury River Saturday and caught thirty-seven flounders. He anchored close to Saunders's Hotel, north of the bridge, and used clams for bait.

While it is a little early for striped bass fishing, they can be caught if tempting bait is used. Large blood worms and a number of them placed on a brass hook will bring the large chaps to the skillful angler. The nets are catching quite a few of them at Morgan's Station, and the fish are feeding along the edges of the meadows.

Alex Peterson took a party of four to the seabright fishing banks Friday. They caught thirty-one small codfish, two ling, and eight conger eels.

Joseph Briggs left last night for Paulins Kill so that he would be ready to try trout fishing at daybreak to-day.

Marlborough-Blenheim
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.
APRIL

The ending of Lent this year coincides with the beginning of April, the gayest and most distinguished month in Atlantic City's famous Spring season. During this month more eminent visitors and "nice people" are to be found in the great hotels than in any other month of the year, and the absence of the Easter Sunday "INTERRUPTION" enables guests to completely enjoy all the attractions of climate and artificial entertainment of this festive season with entire satisfaction.

The hotel claims distinction for its location, its ample public space devoted to its guests, its high-class music every night throughout the year, but particularly attractive with solo singers at the week-ends during the Spring season and its ownership management.

All the four dining rooms (two American plan, with the excellent cooking heretofore so popular, and two a la carte, with separate kitchens and French cooks) have white service throughout, and in one of the American rooms, called the "American Palm Room," and in the a la carte rooms smoking is permitted. They are particularly attractive. Ocean and suites with large rooms 84 by 20 feet and a private bath (supplied with both sea water and fresh water and with running ice water) is with every alternate room in the Marlborough and with every room in the Blenheim, which in construction is reputed to be the most completely fireproof hotel in the world. Golf privileges.

The Factory a Factor
Anticipating the wants of the small manufacturer who requires plenty of light, air and unobstructed floor space, we are erecting right in the heart of Long Island City a series of four-story, modern labor-saving factory buildings, equipped with all safety appliances, assuring a very low rate of insurance
These factories are for sale on convenient terms or to rent in floors or as an entirety.
Write for our book of plans and schedule, "A Study In How to Own a Factory Instead of Paying Rent." It tells the story.

LONG ISLAND CITY FACTORY CO.
New York Offices, 140 Nassau St.

1,000% PROFIT FOR YOU
In one of the biggest, safest, sanest real estate propositions ever presented to the investing public. We have 5,000 lots in the very best part of Long Island, purchased before the big advance in real estate at the almost "nothing" price of $34 the lot. The owner of this big piece of property will join with a number of investors in organizing a company to place these lots on the market, turning the entire 5,000 lots over to said company at $34 per lot. They are worth to-day from $75 to $300 per lot. We hereby give notice that the owner of the property will be at our office from 10 A. M. until 5 P. M. each day up to Wednesday, April 3, when books will be open for subscriptions. As the owner will subscribe personally to a goodly share of the stock it can safely be promised to all investors that the company will start off with assured profits of 300% and better. The investing public is respectfully requested to investigate, and thoroughly, this proposition. It will stand all tests and is an unheard of opportunity. Long Island real estate was never more active, and this activity must continue. W. C. Reeves & Co., 1,133 Broadway, New York City. Telephone, 6047—Madison Square.

SPECIAL MASTER'S SALE.
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division.—UNITED STATES TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK and JOHN A. STEWART, as Trustees, complainants, against CHICAGO TERMINAL TRANSFER RAILROAD COMPANY and others, defendants.—In Equity. No. 28,130.

Notice is hereby given that under and in pursuance of a certain decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division thereof, duly entered in the above-entitled cause on the 20th day of February, 1907, and in pursuance of a certain decree ancillary thereto duly entered in the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Indiana on the 23d day of February, 1907, I, Henry W. Wales, the Special Master in Chancery named in said decrees, will sell to the highest bidder or bidders by public auction at the east main entrance on Fifth Avenue of the Grand Central Passenger Station, situated at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Harrison Street, in the City of Chicago, County of Cook, State of Illinois, on the premises so to be sold, at 12 o'clock noon on Monday, the third day of May, 1907, all and singular, the railroads, franchises, and property of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, said railroads, franchises, and property being described in said decrees as follows, namely:

All those certain railroads extending from a point at or near Harrison Street, in the City of Chicago, and between Fifth Avenue and the south branch of the Chicago River; thence southerly across said south branch of the Chicago River, between Taylor Street and Twelfth Street, in the City of Chicago; thence southerly and westerly across Stewart Avenue, near Meagher Street, in the City of Chicago; thence westerly to and across Western Avenue, in the City of Chicago, near Fourteenth Street; thence westerly and northerly across Washtenaw Avenue, in the City of Chicago, near West Taylor Street; thence westerly and northerly to Madison Street, in Section 13, Township 39 north, Range 12, east of the Third Principal Meridian, in the Village of Harlem, County of Cook, Illinois, with a branch railroad therefrom, leaving said last described railroad at a point near the intersection of Western Avenue and Fourteenth Street; thence south and southerly to the City of Blue Island, in said Cook County, and from a point known as Harvey Junction, on the Chicago and Calumet Terminal Division of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad south and southerly to and through the City of Chicago Heights and to the east and west center line of Section 28, Township 35 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, Cook County, Illinois, including the Thornton spur so called, which last described railroad, or branch railroad, is known as the Chicago Central Division of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad; also the Chicago and Southwestern Division of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad, being a branch line of railroad leaving said first-mentioned railroad at a point near South Forty-sixth Avenue, in the City of Chicago; thence westerly and southerly to West Sixteenth Street, and thence northerly to a connection with said first-mentioned railroad, near Harlem Avenue, including the Race Track, so called; together with the interest of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company in the Beach Street track, so called, being a railroad track owned jointly by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, the Pennsylvania Company, and the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company, and extending along Beach Street, in the City of Chicago, from a point near Twelfth Street to a point near Polk Street; together with all the right, title and interest of the said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company in the Chicago, Harlem and Batavia Railroad, so called, being a railroad which, at the time of the execution of said mortgage, extended from a point on said first described railroad near South Fortieth (or Crawford) Avenue; thence northerly to a point near the intersection of Randolph Street and South Fortieth Avenue, thence westerly to a point near Des Plaines Avenue, and thence southerly to the Concordia Cemetery, and thence easterly to Des Plaines Avenue; also the Chicago and Calumet Terminal Division of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad, being a railroad extending from Pine Junction, on the line of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway, in Lake County, in the State of Indiana; thence west through the cities of East Chicago and Hammond, in said Lake County, and thence westerly through the City of Blue Island, and thence westerly and northerly to a point near the channel or canal of the Sanitary District of Chicago, near McCook, in said Cook County, in the State of Illinois, with a leasehold interest in all tracks, rights from the Chicago Junction Railway Company, from said point near McCook to Franklin Park, in said Cook County, with a branch therefrom from the City of East Chicago, in said Lake County, in the State of Indiana, north and northerly to Whiting, in said Lake County, together with trackage rights or leasehold in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, from said Whiting to South Chicago, and certain other trackage rights from the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, in said South Chicago, and a leasehold interest in the Lyons and Chicago Railroad, so called being a railroad extending easterly from said Chicago and Calumet Terminal Division at a point near McCook to and into the Chicago Crushed Stone Company's property; together with the Mayfair Extension, so called, being a railroad extending from said Franklin Park northerly and easterly to Mayfair, in the City of Chicago, in said Cook County, at a point near the intersection of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway and the Chicago and Northwestern Railway; together with all branches, spurs, industrial tracks, side tracks, team tracks and other appurtenant tracks along and upon each and every of said described railroads; together with all depot grounds, yards, ways, rights of way, interlocking plants, switches, tracks, bridges, viaducts, culverts, fences and other structures, station houses, engine houses, car houses, freight houses, wood houses, elevators, warehouses, power plants, machinery and repair shops and their equipment, water tanks, turn tables, superstructures, erections, buildings and fixtures belonging to or connected with said lines of railway or the business thereof; THAW WILL STAND ON HIS TESTIMONY

Counsel Will Not Call Witnesses Before Lunacy Commission.

WIFE SAW HIM YESTERDAY

Special Pass Granted to Her for an Easter Visit—Dr. Hamilton to Testify.

So well pleased are the lawyers defending Harry K. Thaw with the showing he has made before the commission appointed to inquire into his present mental condition that they are not considering the calling of any witnesses on their account. They are content to let the Commissioners draw their own conclusions from the way in which their client answered the searching questions put to him on the stand. They hope that the inquiry will be wound up at the next session to-morrow.

Daniel O'Reilly, one of Thaw's counsel, said yesterday that if the District Attorney calls his alienists to the stand they will not be confronted by the experts hired by the defense.

"They cannot say much," he said, "as they have not examined Mr. Thaw."

"But the Commissioners agreed to hear them on the conclusions they have drawn from Thaw's writings, his behavior in court, and the evidence given in the trial," it was pointed out.

"The commission agreed to hear what they had to say, we know," he replied, "but we shall not bring any expert testimony in rebuttal."

Then Mr. O'Reilly was asked whether the defense would do anything to offset the use Mr. Jerome made of the fact that Dr. Gregory, Dr. Pilgrim, and Dr. White had not submitted any affidavits about Thaw's present condition. He answered that as they had not had an opportunity to examine the defendant they would not be called.

With regard to the evidence of Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, the defense has no fears. His testimony was interrupted on Saturday to allow the commission to decide whether professional privilege barred him from examination. It is realized that it will probably rule his immunity has already been waived. The questions put by Mr. Delmas in this trial have effectually destroyed the protection he could claim under that clause.

It is known that Dr. Hamilton will refuse to testify to isolated facts in regard to Thaw's condition. He will want to take into consideration not only the observations he made in his visits to Thaw last Summer, but also what he has been told of his family history, the facts brought out in the trial, and all the letters and other exhibits. On Saturday he declined to separate part of the facts he knew from the others, and declared that in justice to himself he must found his opinion on every aspect of the case.

The commission has been insistent upon limiting the inquiry to the condition of the defendant since the hearings began, and the defense believes that as soon as Dr. Hamilton begins to detail the facts he considers pertinent to the matter, he will be stopped on the ground that his statements are founded on facts too remote from the present time.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw had the very unusual privilege extended to her yesterday of a pass to visit her husband on Sunday. Until now practically no relaxation of the rules of the Tombs has been made in favor of the defendant or any of his relatives. But yesterday when Mrs. Thaw represented to John V. Coggey, Commissioner of Correction, that she had been prevented by the lunacy commission from seeing as much of her husband as she ordinarily did, he issued a special pass and was at the Tombs himself when she arrived.

She was with her husband for two hours in the afternoon, and talked quite freely to the reporters as she left the Tombs. She was dressed in a brown tailor-made suit without a coat and a round black hat and white veil. She seemed to have recovered her spirits since the commission was appointed.

"Harry is very cheerful," she said "and quite confident that the commission will pronounce him sane. He is sure that after their prolonged examination of him they will see that he is quite able to consult with his lawyers.

"He went to the Easter service they had to-day. It was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Sanderson, and they had special music, with a violin. There is no unusual significance in my visit to-day. I just wanted to see him, that's all."

Then Mrs. Thaw was asked about a rumor which has been going around Wall Street that Thaw had through his broker made a good deal of money in the recent break in stocks. She declared that there was no truth in it. Just then a photographer hove in sight, and with a hurried farewell Mrs. Thaw climbed into her automobile and was driven uptown.

CONVENTION OF MUSEUMS.

Great Gathering of Scientists and Scholars in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, March 31.—Following the dedication of the Carnegie Institute this month the second convention of the American Association of Museums will be held at the Carnegie Museum, June 4, 5, and 6. Dr. William J. Holland, Director of the Carnegie Museum, and the founder and Second Vice President of the local association, is already making preparations for the gathering, which will comprise the heads of museums of world-wide fame in this country. Besides the American scientists and scholars, South America and Canada will be represented.

The object of the association is to promote the welfare of museums, to increase and diffuse knowledge of all matters relating to them, and to encourage helpful relations among the museums and those interested in them. It is proposed to ally the organization with the National Education Association, and the matter is now under consideration by the council.

The council is considering a proposal that a special committee of three be appointed by the Chair to consult with the proper authorities to obtain fourth-class postal rates upon the publication of museums and other educational institutions in cases in which such publications are distributed gratuitously but cannot be issued at stated intervals of time. All these matters will be reported on by the council of the Pittsburg meeting.

FOUGHT FIRE FIVE HOURS.

General Chemical Blaze in Long Island City Did $35,000 Damage.

The Long Island City firemen and fireboats had a five-hour fight in subduing the blaze which early yesterday morning destroyed one of the big buildings of the plant of the General Chemical Company at Washington Avenue and the Long Island Railroad tracks, Laurel Hill. The loss was $35,000.

The building was stored with chemicals in process of manufacture, but they were not of an explosive nature, and the firemen, by dealing the buildings adjoining, were able to confine the blaze to the one building. The buildings saved contained much explosive material, and several of them were charred on the outside so great was the heat. A string of freight cars on a siding was also destroyed. The oil tanks of the Standard Oil Company were at no time in danger.

FREE SYNAGOGUE PLAN.

Dr. Wise Preaches Again About It and Prepares to Organize It.

The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, who has been at the head of a movement to found a "free synagogue" here, delivered yesterday the last of the preliminary addresses he has been giving in the Hudson Theatre. He said that "the fundamental principles of the free synagogue remain unassailed, because they are unassailable. The synagogue must be more than a social club, a marriage and burial society. It must further national and international righteousness."

At the close of the meeting Dr. Wise announced that the meeting for organizing the Free Synagogue would be held at the Hotel Savoy on Sunday morning, April 14.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—A disturbance of very moderate character that was over the Carolinas Saturday night persisted during Sunday with a slight southeastward movement, causing northeast winds and rain in the Atlantic and Gulf States from New Jersey to Alabama. Elsewhere throughout the country the weather was fair during Sunday, except on the North Pacific Coast, where rains continued.

It is much colder east of the Mississippi River, especially in the Upper Ohio Valley, the Middle and South Atlantic, and East Gulf States. In the two latter districts the temperature ranges from 15 to 20 degrees below the seasonal average. In the Northwest and extreme Central West it is very much warmer.

There will be rain Monday in the South Atlantic States, followed by clearing weather over the northern portion. There will also be local snows along the lower lakes. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair Monday and Tuesday, except along the North Pacific Coast, where rain will continue. It will be warmer Monday in the plains States, the central valleys, and the upper lake region, and warmer Tuesday in the East and South. It will be colder Tuesday in the Northwest.

The winds along the northeast coast will be fresh northwest to north; Middle Atlantic Coast, fresh north; South Atlantic Coast, brisk to high north; East Gulf Coast, brisk north, diminishing by Monday night; West Gulf Coast, fresh east to southeast; Lake Michigan, east to south, increasing by Monday night.

Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have fresh north winds, with cool and partly cloudy weather, to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

Eastern New York—Partly cloudy and colder Monday; Tuesday fair, warmer; light to fresh north to east winds.

New Jersey—Partly cloudy Monday; Tuesday fair, warmer in west portion; light to fresh north to east winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy Monday; Tuesday fair, warmer; light to fresh north to east winds.

New England—Partly cloudy and colder Monday; Tuesday fair, warmer in west portion; light to fresh north to east winds.

Western Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy and warmer Monday, snow near Lake Erie; Tuesday fair, warmer; light to fresh northeast to southeast winds.

Western New York—Cloudy Monday, snow flurries near the lakes; Tuesday fair, warmer; fresh northeast to southeast winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1906.	1907.		1906.	1907.
3 A. M.	42	46	4 P. M.	40	50
6 A. M.	40	46	6 P. M.	39	50
9 A. M.	43	46	9 P. M.	37	44
12 M.	45	50	12 P. M.	33	43

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 48; for the corresponding date last year it was 44; average on the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 42.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 46; at 8 P. M. it was 45. Maximum temperature 53 degrees at 1:30 P. M.; minimum 43 degrees at 12 A. M. Humidity, 35 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 82 per cent. at 8 P. M.

FIREBUG SPREADS PANIC IN BROOKLYN

Three Suspicious Fires in Two Days in Park Slope Apartment Houses.

ALL START IN WOODBINS

Many Rescues from House Set Ablaze Last Night—Police Make an Arrest.

A third suspicious fire within two days caused the Brooklyn police to fear last night that one of the apartment house firebugs who terrorized the Park Slope and Bedford districts for weeks about two years ago had returned to his work there. The three fires which have given rise to the latest incendiary scare have all occurred in the cellars of apartment houses.

They have been started in a way to puzzle the police and firemen. Last night's blaze, which was in a four-story apartment house at 84 Herkimer Street, caused much excitement in one of the best neighborhoods of the Bedford District and was marked by some rescue work by members of the Invincibis Club, one of the leading Republican social-political organizations of the borough. A young man who was found in the building acting in a manner which excited suspicion was arrested by direction of Deputy Fire Commissioner Wise.

The fire, which started in a woodbin in the cellar of the building, was discovered at 8 o'clock by a member of the Invincible Club, the handsome detached house which adjoins the apartment house.

Half a dozen members, with a policeman of the Grand Avenue Station, ran through the building, giving the alarm. They carried to the street several children from the upper floors. The policeman and two members of the club found Mrs. Amelia Murphy, 50 years, old, lying helplessly ill on the third floor. By that time the lower part of the house was all ablaze, and the halls were filled with stifling smoke. With difficulty the rescuers succeeded in getting the woman down the stairs and into the clubhouse, which had been thrown open as a shelter for the tenants. Mrs. Murphy was seriously affected by the smoke, but she recovered after she had been attended by an ambulance surgeon.

The first firemen to arrive, fearing that the blaze would extend to the apartment house and clubhouse adjoining on either side, turned in a second alarm. This brought Deputy Commissioner Wise and Deputy Chief Lally to the scene. After the fire had been put out a policeman found a young man moving around on the top floor. The man admitted that he did not live in the house, but explained that one of the tenants had asked him to go into the building to hunt for a pocketbook she had left behind. This explanation did not satisfy Commissioner Wise, and he directed that the man be arrested. At the Grand Avenue Police Station the prisoner said he was Henry Nally, 22 years old. He refused to tell where he lived, and was locked up on a charge of vagrancy.

The fire caused about $2,500 damage. The police and firemen found that it had started in a woodbin. They also learned that no one living in the house had been near this woodbin during the day. Fire Marshal Beers will make an investigation to-day.

The many fires which caused terror on the Park Slope and in the southern part of the Bedford District two years ago were all started in woodbins in the cellars of apartment houses. Although plain-clothes policemen from the Bergen Street and Fifth Avenue Stations swarmed in the district for weeks watching for the firebug, there was a blaze there almost nightly.

Finally a young man was arrested, but although he confessed to having started some of the fires the incendiarism continued for some time after he was arrested.

On Saturday there were two suspicious fires in the Park Slope. One was in the cellar of an apartment house in Prospect Place and the other in an apartment house in Union Street. Both were started in woodbins.

A SCOLDING FOR CRAVEN.

Denounced by Labor Men for Not Giving White Wings Union Overalls.

More kicks were made yesterday at the meeting of the Central Federated Union against Street Cleaning Commissioner Craven. The principal complainant was Financial Secretary Herman Robineon, who reported for a committee which saw the Commissioner last week to ask him to see that the overalls for the street cleaners be made by a union firm. According to Robinson the committee could get no satisfaction, as Mr. Craven refused to be guided by any precedents.

"Mr. Craven is the toughest proposition I ever stacked up against," he continued. "He told us he was in sympathy with labor, but he did not show it. We had an affidavit to show that another Commissioner had agreed to have the overalls made in a union concern, but he refused to look at it."

After Mr. Craven had been denounced by many of the delegates, it was decided to carry the complaint to the Mayor.

Lumber Handlers Draft New Scale.

It was announced by the Lumber Handlers' Union yesterday that it will demand a new wage scale, to go into effect on May 1, to be enforced wherever the demands are refused. The union demands 30 cents an hour and 45 cents an hour for all overtime before 7 A. M. or after 5 P. M., and a nine-hour work day. These demands will be sent to the employers in about a week.

A Moral
It isn't only on April 1st that people are fooled. "Looks" don't make good clothes. It's what's beneath the surface—the tailoring—that counts. The Moe Levy label is a mighty good guide to good clothes.

10,000 PAINTERS TO STRIKE TO-DAY

Men in All Boroughs of the City Will Be Withdrawn from Buildings.

DEMAND HIGHER WAGES

Master Painters Did Not Answer Request—Unions Ask the Central Federated Body for Help.

A conference committee, consisting of five members each of the Amalgamated Painters' Society and the Brotherhood of Painters, which was appointed to take charge of the strikes of the two unions this week for the new wage scale, notified the locals of the unions in all five boroughs of the city yesterday to withdraw their men to-day from all buildings where the union scale is not paid.

Secretary George Finger of the Brotherhood of Painters estimated yesterday that about 10,000 painters will be out to-day on hundreds of buildings and in shipyards. The demands are for an increase of wages of 50 cents a day. The wages now demanded are $4 a day for plain painting and $4.50 for decorative painting in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx and $3.50 and $4, respectively, in Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond. The gilders demand $4 a day and the shipbottom painters 40 cents an hour. Double wages for overtime and Sunday work are also demanded.

A report was made at yesterday's Central Federated Union of the status of affairs up to the present date. After stating that the demands would be enforced to-day, the report said that the Master Painters' Association had made no reply to the demands, and up to the present were therefore in the position of having refused them. The delegate of the Brotherhood of Painters said:

"We have been trying to find out the sentiments of the affiliated unions which are under the arbitration agreement in reference to refusing to work with non-union men during the strike. This is a most important matter to us, as before non-union men are put to work we want to know how we stand with the other unions, because, as far as the Master Painters' Association is concerned, the strike of the Brotherhood of Painters will be a violation of the arbitration agreement, and we are putting ourselves in the position by striking of being locked out, if we do not receive the support of the other unions."

The matter was referred to the Executive Committee, which will without delay call on the unions to see what they are going to do in the matter. The Central Federated Union has no power to order any union to go on strike.

BUILDING STRIKE IN JERSEY.

Four Morristown Unions, Who Demand Increased Pay, Walk Out To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., March 31.—A strike of the carpenters, painters, plumbers, and tinners of Morristown for increased wages will begin to-morrow morning. The several unions held meetings last night, at which it was definitely decided to walk out. There is very little building going on in Morristown at present and very little in prospect, and the bosses say that if the men go out it will be a long strike. The carpenter bosses offered 41 cents an hour, while the journeymen want 45 cents for a 44-hour week. The painters have also been offered 41 cents, but ask 45 cents. The plumbers and tinners demand 48 cents.

DISAPPROVE THE TUNNEL BILL

Central Federated Union Wants Inspection by Practical Tube Workers.

Delegates of unions whose members work in the tunnels made many objections yesterday to the bill of Assemblyman Schoeneck providing that the Commissioner of Labor and the Factory Inspection Department may appoint men to inspect mines, tunnels, and quarries. The protests were made when the measure was submitted to the Central Federated Union for indorsement.

Thomas Curtis of the Rock Drillers' Union said that a provision that only a competent graduate engineer should inspect tunnels where the work was being done in an atmosphere above the normal air pressure was a very bad one.

"An engineer knows nothing about tunnel work," he said. "Only a competent tunnel worker should inspect tunnels. This provision wipes out all that we wanted to have kept in the bill."

The bill was referred to the Executive Committee.

ARREST BY WHITMAN AGENT.

Magistrate's Friends Watch Excise Violations—Police Active.

The police of this city without any special order from Police Commissioner Bingham started out yesterday to clean up all precincts so far as excise violations were concerned. The arrests in all boroughs were twice the number made one week ago yesterday, or forty-two in all.

It was reported about the Tenderloin several days ago that when Magistrate Whitman took his place on the bench in the Jefferson Market Court he proposed to police the five precincts which come within the territory of the Second District Magistrate's Court with men of his own selection from several prominent clubs of this city. The precincts thus included are Charles Street, Macdougal Street, Mercer Street, West Twentieth Street, and the Tenderloin Station.

It was also reported that while he was sitting in the Second District Court the excise law would be rigidly enforced. Three arrests, one in each of the lower precincts in the Second District, were made in the day. No arrests were reported from the West Twentieth Street Station, and up to 11 o'clock the Tenderloin Station reported no arrests. Soon after 11 o'clock one arrest was made at the instigation of a man who said he was a member of the Magistrate's law class. He said he anticipated other excise arrests in the Tenderloin before the night was over.

Inspector Walsh's men made one arrest and Capt. Daly's detectives made three. There were six arrests in Harlem, none in the Bronx, Brooklyn had five, and the Borough of Richmond one.

It was learned yesterday that Magistrate Whitman had been giving brief lessons in law, especially excise law, to more than a hundred men who will act under his instructions in an effort to keep the five precincts in the Jefferson Market Court district clean so far as excise violations are concerned.

AMERICA SOUND, SAYS SCHUSTER,

Money, Not Railway Attacks, Cause of Slump, German Banker Says.

BOTTOM PRICES REACHED

Harriman Revelations Among the Causes of Foreign Distrust.

TRADE CONTRACTION NEAR

But It Will Put Business on a Sounder Basis and Be Beneficial—World's Gold Supply Limited.

Hans Schuster a Director of the Dresdner Bank, one of the largest banks of Germany, and the representative of that institution in the negotiations which resulted in the formation last year of a close working alliance between that bank and J. P. Morgan & Co., expressed the opinion yesterday that political conditions, including the agitation for closer Government control of the railroads, really have had nothing to do with the decline in prices which has taken place in recent months in the New York stock market.

Expansion in commerce and industry beyond the ability of capital to finance it has been the fundamental cause of the disturbed condition of our market, according to Mr. Schuster. He made it clear, speaking for foreign investors, that they have no dread, such as had been expressed in some quarters here, of closer Government control of the railroads or even of Government ownership, though he admits distrust has been created abroad by the manner in which the agitation for closer Government control has been carried on in this country. This distrust has been increased, he says, by such incidents as the Harriman dividend declarations. In discussing market conditions here and abroad he drew an interesting parallel between speculation here and that which is carried on in the German markets.

Prices Have Reached Bottom.

Mr. Schuster's position makes him one of the best informed of European bankers on American affairs, and his views of conditions bore have special value on this account. In his opinion prices in the stock market have seen their lowest level, though some contraction in trade seems to him inevitable. Probably two years, he thinks, will be needed fully to restore the equilibrium in the relations of trade and capital.

This is Mr. Schuster's statement:

"It is a most interesting situation which you have here at present. My present trip to this country, in fact, was largely for the purpose of looking into conditions here and of learning at first hand what people here thought of the situation, particularly in the matter of the movement toward greater control of the railroads by the Government.

"This is a matter that we view abroad very much more calmly than you do here. This for the very good reason that we have gone through all this and gone, in fact, much beyond. In Germany, Italy, and some other countries on the Continent we passed through the period of Government control of the railroads and finally came to the purchase of the railroad lines by the Government. In France, in cases where the Government does not already own the railroads, arrangements have been made to take them over at the expiration of their concessions. In Germany itself the idea of Government ownership has gone much beyond anything proposed here. There is scarcely a municipality that does not own its water works, and many own their tramways, their electric light plants, and other public utilities.

Cause of Foreign Distrust.

"We were prepared, therefore, for the coming of the time when the public in the United States would demand more railroad laws and closer supervision of the railroads. But the way in which you went about this work is what caused alarm abroad. The placing of your best people on the witness stand, the way the press handled the matter, and generally the lack of calmness in dealing with this question of Government control, caused distrust on the part of the public abroad. Even among our bankers the view began to prevail that the situation was radically unsound. They knew, of course, that this country was wonderfully prosperous, but they began to think that its development was unsound, that everything here was watered, and that American methods could not be trusted.

"Then, too, things undoubtedly have been done to aggravate this feeling of distrust. You know, of course, to what I refer, the manner of the declaration of the Union and Southern Pacific dividends. I do not mean to say that the dividends being paid by those roads are not justified by their earnings, but they ought to have been declared under other circumstances. Corporations the size of the Southern and Union Pacific, which together have a capital of close to $400,000,000, cannot be regarded as private concerns, and they ought not to be managed as such. The public is entitled to be prepared for the steps taken in the management of such corporations. Such corporations must necessarily take the public, to a considerable extent, into their confidence.

"Now I find in going over the situation with people here that they think that this movement for Government control of the railroads, closer Government control and supervision, is one of the causes of the decline in prices which has taken place. I do not think that this is the case. The real cause of the recent trouble was that the demands for capital greatly exceeded the supply of capital and retrenchment became necessary. Prices simply had to

ACTOR'S FEET CUT OFF.

Charles W. Wallace Found Mortally Hurt in Columbus Avenue.

Charles Wray Wallace, 32 years old, an actor of 142 West 109th Street, had both of his feet cut off and also suffered from a fracture of the skull ast night at Sixty-ninth Street and Columbus Avenue. The police of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station could find no one who saw Mr. Wallace receive his injuries, although it is believed be must have been run over by a street car. At the Roosevelt Hospital, where he was taken, it was said that he would probably die.

L. B. Harris of 170 West Ninety-fourth Street discovered Wallace's body lying about ten feet from the north-bound car tracks. Thinking that the man had fallen, Mr. Harris started to lift him up, and as he did so he found that the man's feet had been cut off.

Policeman Schreiber of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station responded to Harris's call for assistance. Fifteen feet from where the body was found, between the two tracks, the policeman found the man's feet. Dr. Sammis was hurriedly summoned from the Roosevelt Hospital and removed the man to that institution. The surgeons were unable to revive him.

When the police searched the man's pockets they learned his name and also found a contract which be had made to appear this Summer in amusement parks. The contract, according to the police, was made with Mattbew Grau. Letters were found signed "Mazie Wallace," wbo is thought to be the man's wife.

In a letter dated March 30 the writer stated that she was playing in Oneonta, N. Y., and that sbe expected to arrive in this city in about two weeks. The letter was written on the paper of the "Bon-Ton Company."

PITTSBURG'S RIGHTEOUS 28.

Their Photographs and Biographies to be Perpetuated in a Book.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 1.—Although still carefully guarding the identity of the twenty-eight honest citizens of Greater Pittsburg, whose virtues will be exploited at the banquet to the "Distinguished Sons of Greater Pittsburg" Thursday evening at the Hotel Schenley, the Banquet Committee of the Chamber of Commerce tonight announced the toastmaster and speakers for this affair, and it is reliably reported they are included in the list of the righteous.

Mayor George W. Guthrie will be the toastmaster, and the following persons will speak on these topics: Attorney David T. Watson, "The Nature and Purpose of Municipal Government"; Congressman John Dalzell, "Greater Pittsburg's Contribution to the Nation"; Col. H. G. Prout, "Greater Pittsburg's Contribution to the Saving of Life and Labor"; Prof. John A. Brashear, "Greater Pittsburg's Contribution to Science."

Prout, although of Pittsburg ancestry, was born in England, and served in the British Army, being a member of the famous detachment that went to Gordon's relief in the Soudan. He is now Vice President of the Union Switch and Signal Company.

A book containing the photographs and biographies of the twenty-eight "undefiled" citizens will be given to every guest at the banquet, and the addresses of the speakers will later be bound and distributed free to any person who doubts Pittsburg's greatness.

RUEF ASKS HABEAS CORPUS.

Wants Transfer from Custody of Ellsor to That of Sheriff.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—On the eve of his trial on the charge of extorting $28,000 from French restaurant keepers, Abraham Ruef to-day filed an application in the Supreme Court of California for a writ of habeas corpus. He asks the court to free him from the custody of Ellsor Biggy and order him into the charge of the Sheriff, whom Judge Dunne disqualified on the ground of personal interest.

He avers that he is constantly and minutely watched by eight private guards and the court ellsor, all of them bearing firearms, all of them employed by Rudolph Spreckels, Francis J. Heney, and William J. Burns, and all of them paid out of a private fund of $100,000 guaranteed by Spreckels.

The court took no action.

Edwin T. Earl, owner of The Los Angeles Express, testified before the Grand Jury to-day, Prosecutor Heney said:

"I asked Mr. Earl to appear before the jury to-day, because I thought he might be able to enlighten the jury on certain Home Telephone Company mattere. I afterward learned that Mr. Earl had no knowledge at all of wrongdoing in connection with the Western Trust Company or the Home Company. He answered readily questions put to him, but he could add nothing to the investigation because he knew nothing."

Special Agent Burns to-day announced the receipt of a cable dispatch stating that Theodore V. Halsey, indicted on ten counts for the alleged bribing of Supervisors in behalf of the Pacific States Telephone Company, would start for San Francisco from Manila on April 9 on the steamship China, in charge of Capt. Trowbridge, chief of the Secret Service of the Philippines.

COLD SNAP GENERAL.

But Warmer Weather is Expected Today and To-morrow.

The drizzling rain of Easter Sunday changed early yesterday morning to a snowstorm, and by breakfast time had covered the city with white. But the temperature was rarely below the freezing point, and the snow melted rapidly. The maximum temperature was 39 degrees at 5 P. M. The minimum, 30 degrees, registered at 10 P. M.

At the Weather Bureau it was predicted that to-day will be fair and warmer and that to-morrow will almost reach the Springlike condition of last Saturday. The cold snap affected the whole country. There was a heavy fall of snow in the New England States and upper New York. In the South Atlantic States the low temperature was accompanied by showers. As far south as Maryland there was snow on the highlands. An inch of snow fell at Cumberland, Md., and the thermometer dropped below the freezing point.

Though lesser winds are predicted for New York, storm signals are up along the New England Coast and from Norfolk to Key West.

HUGHES DEFENDS THE UTILITIES BILL

Governor Says the Will of the People Cannot Be Permanently Disregarded.

PROPERTY RIGHTS SECURE

No Occasion to Make All Orders of the Commission Reviewable by the Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., April 1.—Three hundred business and professional men of this city at the Chamber of Commerce banquet this evening heard Gov. Hughes give the reasons why there should be a State Commission in whose hands should be placed a control of railroads that he believes would be for the best interests of the public. His arguments were frequently cheered, and when he had done speaking he received quite an ovation.

The Governor reached the city at 1 o'clock. At the Fort Schuyler Club this afternoon he met at a luncheon given by Assemblyman Hart about 100 representative citizens.

After luncheon he paid a visit to the State Hospital for the Insane. He went into every detail of the work in that institution, asked hundreds of questions concerning the care and treatment of the patients, and visited all departments.

At 6:30 o'clock the Masonic Temple was thrown open to the public, and for nearly an hour the Governor was constantly engaged in shaking the hands of those who called to greet him. Introductions were made by Assemblyman Hart, Thomas R. Proctor, George E. Dunham, and President F. E. Kendrick of the Chamber of Commerce. It is considered somewhat remarkable that every one who paid his respects to the Governor bad a word of encouragement to offer. "You are all right, Governor," "You are on the right track," "We like your style," "You are the man to follow Roosevelt," and similar expressions were frequently heard. Fully as many Democrats as Republicans were in the throng.

GOV. HUGHES'S SPEECH.

In bis speecb at the Chamber of Commerce dinner Gov. Hughes said:

"The importnnce of providing effective State supervision of public service corporations seems to be generally conceded. I shall not recount the grievances which have made the subject one of paramount public intsrest. It is sufficient to say that the people, without animosity toward rights of property, but with a just insistence upon the performance of public obligations, demand that the State shall exercise its power over its creatures and compel due regard for the duties which are correlative to the privileges it has granted.

"Federal regulation is not a substituto for State regulation. Federal powers and State powers are exercised in different spheres. Congress has complete authority over inter-State commerce, and the State cannot interfere with the exercise of its prerogatives; and it is desirable that the Federal authority shall be fully exercised until every abuse incident to inter-State commerce is ended.

"But however broadly inter-State commerce may be defined, there will remain the problem of transportation wholly within the State and of other local public service. Over local or domestic commerce, as distinguished from inter-State commerce, Congress has no power to exert control, and if the citizens of the State are to be protected against abuses of corporate privileges, in connection with such local or domestic commerce, they must look for their remedy to the State, and to the State alone.

"It has been suggested that it is a grievous thing that a railroad corporation, for example, should be subjected to the laws of many different jurisdictions. Undoubtedly annoynnces may be caused by variety of laws and regulations. But so far as inter-State commerce is concerned the Federal authority is supreme, and as to all matters of through transportation there is no room for conflict. We may be sure that if the act of any State Legislature, or the order of any State commission, operates as a regulation of inter-State commerce, it will instantly be challenged by the watchful and astute representatives of the corporations affected, the Federal courts will take jurisdiction, and the supremacy of the Federal authority under the Constitution will be vindicated.

"It is proper, of course, that the State, in the exercise of its authority, should take account of wise legislation of Congress. Useful efforts may also be made to promote harmony in State legislation. And any State that sets a high standard in its legislative scheme of State supervision and in its efficient administration of the law will contribute powerfully toward similar action in other jurisdictions and to the establishment throughout the country of proper administrative standards. But there is no reason why the State of New York should fail to enact a just law in the interest of its citizens because of the action or inaction of other States.

Reasons for a Commission.

"The first question presented is, Why should there be a Railroad or Public Service Commission? Every power that a corporation has is derived from the Legislature which creates it. The Legislature defines what powers it shall exercise and the conditions upon which it shall conduct its operations. As a public service corporation it is constantly subject to legislative control to the end that it may be required to perform in a proper manner the service it was chartered to render. So that every question of rate or fare, of safety appliance, or of suitable equipment and facilities is a question primarily for the Legislature, which, within constitutional limits, has a right to define the obligations of the corporation.

"But the questions which thus arise are of extraordinary number and variety; they call for investigation and for the consideration of a multitude of details. Special conditions must be examined and suitable flexibility of action must be provided. To-day the Legislatures of our States are flooded with special bills aimed at this or that grievance in management. But the Legislatures sit only a portion of the year

SEA FLOODING HAVANA.

The Prado a Sheet of Water—Boats Rescuing Inhabitants.

HAVANA, April 1.—A portion of this city along the water front is inundated. Exceedingly high waves are dashing over the seawall outside the harbor, and many streets are flooded.

The famous Prado is a sheet of water almost as far as the Central Park. In some cases horses caught in the flood have had to swim out.

The police are using boats to rescue persons from buildings of one story. It is feared that some of the houses under water will collapse.

The Fire Department has been called out to Vedado, where the water appears to be endangering lives. Firemen are saving property along the seafront and rescuing those in danger.

The water has put a stop to the street car traffic between Havana and Vedado.

BIG BROOKLYN REALTY DEAL.

Office Buildings Exchanged for Large Acreage—All Valued at $2,500,000.

The biggest real estate deal made in Brooklyn in years was put through lste yesterday afternoon by Edward P. Smith, Vice President of the Leonard Moody Real Estate Compsny. The transaction was an exchsnge, and the vnlue of the property involved on both sides was $2,500,000. Stokes & Knowles, a leading firm of realty operators, and ex-Senator Charles Cooper and Vennotte F. Pelletreau were the parties to tho deal.

By the transaction Stokes & Knowles become the owners of the Continental Building, at the southwest corner of Court and Montague Streets, and the Phenix Building, adjoining in Court Strcet. The value agreed upon was $1,250,000. In exchange, Stokes & Knowles gavs to Cooper and Pelletreau several large tracts of Long Island property and some undeveloped land in Brooklyn, valucd together st $1,250,000. Tnese properties consist of 100 lots on Lombardy and Varick Streets, Brooklyn; seventy acres of land at Franklin Square, on the Hempstesd and Jamaica Turnpike; 1,000 acres at South Port Jefferson, Suffolk County, and 210 acres at Goram, near Port Jefferson.

The Continental and Phenix Buildings are two of the oldest office buildings in Brooklyn. They are five-story brick and stone structures, facing the Borough Hall Square. The property has a depth of 125 feet on Montague Street and a frontage of 100 feet on Court Street. Ex-Senator Cooper and Mr. Pelletreau purchased the property recently from the Continental and Phenix Insurance Companies for $1,100,000. They planned to raze the old buildings and erect on the site a twenty-story office structure, which would be the tallest building in Brooklyn. The plan, however, was abandoned.

At the office of Stokes & Knowles, in Montague Street, it wns ssid that the firm had no plans for improving the property, and would put it in the market again. An offer for it was received soon after the deal had been put through.

SUGAR TRUST'S DENIAL.

Statute of Limitations, It Says, Bars $30,000,000 Anti-Trust Suit.

The answer of the American Sugar Refining Company and Henry O. Hnvemeyer and John E. Parsons to the suit brought against them by George H. Earle, as receiver for the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, to recover $30,000,000 for conspiracy under the anti-trust law, was filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. The answer, which covers five legal pages, is a general denial to each and every charge made by the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company through their attorneys, Battle & Marshall.

After making a general denial the defendants allege that none of the acts mentioned in the complaint comes under the anti-trust laws, and even if this were true, they are now barred by the Statute of Limitations.

The complaint alleged that, as a result of conspiracy on the part of the defendants, the big plant of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company in Philadelphia, with a capacity of 4,000 barrels of sugar a day, although completed over three years ago, has not been operated. To this charge the answer filed gives an emphatic denial of all responsibility for the plant not having been operated.

E. T. MORGAN'S TICKET WINS.

Mrs. Mackay's Friends Lose In Roslyn Church Election.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSLYN, L. I., April 1.—Edwin T. Morgan, yachtsman and banker, and his entire ticket defeated the Mackay faction to-day at the annual Easter election in Trinity Church. Those elected with Mr. Morgan as Vestrymen were Henry M. W. Eastman, Harry W. Moore, Frederick Davis, and A. J. Penney. Mr. Morgan's elected Wardens are George W. Eastman and W. J. Withe.

Mr. Morgan's ticket received 13 votes to 11 for the ticket headed by Dr. John Ordronaux for Senior Warden and H. M. W. Eastman for Junior Warden. Among the candidates for Vestrymen were Samuel Hooper, J. Earl Clark, and Eugene Cornell. Mr. Hooper has been a leader in the faction opposed to the Rev. Mr. Peck, who recently resigned from the rectorship, and was succeeded by the Rev. Dr. Hutton, a close friend of Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay.

His defeat is considered by those who have followed the fortunes of the church as a defeat for Mrs. Mackay, who is also understood to have been anxious to have Mr. Peck resign.

MAJOR SALMON CONVICTED.

Missouri Banker Sentenced to Three Years' Imprisonment.

Special to The New York Times.

WARSAW, Mo., April 1.—Major Harvey W. Salmon, one of the owners of the private bank of Salmon & Salmon, which failed at Clinton on June 21, 1905, with liabilities of $1,000,000, was convicted tonight and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Major Salmon, with his brother, Dr. Y. G. Salmon, and Dr. Salmon's son Frank, were indicted on charges of grand larceny for receiving deposits when the bank was insolvent. Dr. Salmon and Frank Salmon are yet to be tried.

JEROME GETS CLOSE TO POOLROOM RING

Search of Downtown Syndicate's Books Reveals Names of Men Higher Up.

MADE $20,000 MONTHLY

"Grady" Got 16 Per Cent. Monthly for Years—C. G. Gates and Others May Testify.

District Attorney Jerome yesterday made public the contents of the various ledgers found in the raid on the headquarters of the downtown poolroom syndicate, at 112 Fulton Street last week. Tbey sbow that five men made a profit of over $20,000 monthly for many months, the net receipts for one month reaching the high-water mark of $30,791.97, on a settlement which they made on March 1, 1901. The records which the District Attorney disclosed extended from Jan. 1, 1899, to about September, 1901. The District Attorney bas the records after that time to the present, but refused to make tbem public, because they, unlike those which be gave, are not barred by the Statute of Limitations.

Tbroughout these records the initials of five men who shared in the profits appear. The names of Robert H. Davis, Charles Reilly, and J. P. Robinson are among those which have been mentioned in connection with the running of the poolroom syndicate heretofore. The initials "R. H. D.," "C. R.," and "J. P. R.," occur frequently in the books as persons to whom large sums of money were paid.

Michael J. Riordan, with whom Senator Thomas F. Grady bad the telephone interview from Albany yesterday, is said to be wanted by District Attorney Jerome as a witness, as his initials also appear opposite various sums paid. Up to this time Senator Grady bas been spoken of as being wanted as a witness on a subpoena. In view of the repeated appearance of the initials "T. G.," "T. Grady," and "Sen. G.," who is referred to in the ledgers as having been paid large amounts, the District Attorney was asked again for what purpose he wished to interrogate Senator Grady, but he refused to say.

"T. G.'s" Profits 16 Per Cent. Monthly.

There is much interesting memoranda in tbs ledgers, showing, among other things, that there were months witbin the last year, notably last Summer, when "T. G." wns not paid at all, but was settled with at a later date. His percentage of the monthly profits figure up about 16 per cent. all the way through the years. There was one other member who fared as well, but the others, mostly, got less.

Early in the entries it was shown that there was kept in the bank by the syndicate only about $5,000 or less, but about May, 1901, the smount kept in reserve by the poolroom was never less than $10,000. Whatever profit the concern had made above that amount it sbared according to a schedule. Profits of over $18,000 per month are numerous above the amount kept in the bank which is facetiously entered as "B. R.," evidently meaning bank roll. When the profits fell low, say to $1,000 or less, which for several years appeared like an April-fool joke in the month of April, the syndicate would not divide at all, but would bulk the profits of months. They svidently were not very badly in need of money and agreed to wait until the amount was worth taking.

The bookkeeping accounts do not always balance clearly.

Anxious Visitors to Jerome.

There was a good deal of excitement in and about the District Attorney's office yesterday because of the raids. Men who had never been seen in the Criminal Court Building before clustered about the door of Assistant District Attorney Vandiver's office to have a little talk with him. Those were the most courageous if not the most anxious of the men who had received subpoenas to appear before the Grand Jury to tell wbat they knew of the cluster of poolrooms operated so conveniently near their offices and with such nn obliging and smootb running system.

Some of these men are directly concerned in the outcome of the crusade, others merely as witnesses, but who felt equally anxious because they were anxious not to have it known tbat they ever had bet on a horse race. From what was learned of the progress of the case being prepared against the poolroom men, there is good reason for the anxiety because in this case the District Attorney has better evidence. It is said and is now nearer the man "higher up" than he has ever been before.

The persons who paid a visit to the Assistant District Attorney were the two young women Clara Robinson and Erna Sanntrock, who were both taken in the Keator raid at 47 Broadway; William B. Townsend, who was merely asked to enlighten the District Attorney about some matters concerning the poolrooms be is believed to know about, and one or two others who had already received their subpoenas, but who are not very well known. Several of the others, who have already been mentioned as having been subpoenaed by the District Attorney to assist him in prosecuting the men who have been running the poolrooms by telling him what they know, have left town, and therefore they have not yet been served. E. Berry Wall is at Atlantic City, and Newton Bennington, who is at Washington, and another man, who has thus far been spoken of only as "the Tuxedo man," are wanted.

Some Big Men Wanted as Witnesses.

In addition to the men who are already known to have been subpoensed and others who will be subpoenaed when they get within the jurisdiction of the county, some well-known names were added to the list of men who will be asked to help in the prosecution of the poolroom syndicate yesterday. Among them are Charles G. Gates, E. R. Thomas, H. K. Vingut, Blair Painter, and S. Ambrose Clark. It should be made clear that these men are not wanted by the District Attorney for any connection with the poolroom syndicate, but are merely asked to tell what they

HARRIMAN PAPERS STOLEN.

Sold to a Newspaper, and Mr. Harriman is Indignant About It.

Edward H. Harriman announced last night that certain private papers of his had been stolen and garbled and sold to a newspaper, which, after receiving information that the documents were not the property of the vendor, had refused to give them up, and declared its purpose to print them. Mr. Harriman asked THE TIMES to make it known that he was not a party to the publication and to print his description of the transaction in the terms used above.

HUGHES'S CAR HIT BY STONE.

Snapped from Ground and Broke Window—Started False Report.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., April 1.—It was reported here this afternoon that a bullet was fired at the Empire State Express upon which Gov. Hughes came to Utica to-day just before the train reached this city, and it was declared that a window was broken in the coach in which the Governor was sitting.

BUFFALO, April 1.—William A. Thornton, Pullman conductor on the Empire State Express, made this statement to THE TIMES correspondent:

"No bullet was fired through the window of the Victorine. It is true that a stone snapped from the ground broke the outside window pane of one of the double windows. It did not break the inside pane. The Governor was not disturbed by the accident."

KAISER'S SON IN RUNAWAY.

The Crown Prince and His Wife Have a Narrow Escape.

BERLIN, April 1.—Crown Prince Frederick Willism and the Crown Princess had a narrow escape to-day while driving home in a dogcart from a visit to Prince Eitel Frederick.

The horse took fright at an automobile and bolted. For some distance the animal ran madly, but with the assistance of a passerby the Crown Prince finally gained control near the Brandenburg Gate, after which the horse continued quietly.

Neither of the occupants of the dogcart was hurt.

YALE TO ACCEPT $300,000.

Secretary Stokes Says the University Will Try to Get $1,700,000 More.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 1.—Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., Secretary of Yale, insists that the university will accept the latest John D. Rockefeller gift. It had been reported that the $300,000 offered by Mr. Rockefeller through the General Education Board might be declined because of the irksome condition that $1,700,000 must be donated before the $300,000 would be paid.

"The university intends to try to fulfill the conditions of the gift," Mr. Stokes said.

Yale has just received word of the award, and no details of the plans for raising the $1,700,000 have been made.

Woman Suffering from Spinal Affliction Tries to Starve to Death.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, April 1.—Suffering from a spinal affliction, Mrs. Catherine V. T. Smith, aged 85 years, one of the pioneers and wealthiest residents of the Biddinger settlement, just outside Harrison, Ohio, has abstained from food for the last fifty-two days, and continues to pray for death to end her sufferings.

Mrs. Smith has been afflicted for the last twenty years. About two months ago she gave up all hope of regaining her health and asked to be left alone and be allowed to join her husband, who died 26 years ago. During this prolonged fast Mrs. Smith has taken only a sip of water at long intervals. Besides her spinal affliction, Mrs. Smith suffers from catarrh of the stomach.

SENATE LAUGHS AT ODELL.

Cohalan Points Out That Pilgrimages to Newburg Have Ceased.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—Senator Taylor, a Democrat who was elected from ex-Gov. Odell's home city, called up a bill in the upper house to-night to relieve Newburg from responsibility in case of personal injuries growing out of defective highways.

Senator Taylor insisted that it was purely a local bill.

"That would be true," Senator Fuller of Brooklyn said, "if it were not for the fact that New Yorkers and Brooklynites and people from other cities have occasion to visit Newburg occasionally. They have some rights, too."

"Isn't the gentleman aware," asked Senator Cohalan of New York drily, "that there has not been a visitor to Newburg for three years since a certain gentleman dropped out of politics?"

Amid the laughter that followed this sally the bill was passed.

WISE VILLAGERS STAY ABED.

Think Fire Alarm an April Fool Joke—Hotel Is Destroyed.

KENT, Ohio, April 1.—Because every one in the village regarded an alarm of fire turned in as only an April fool joke the Sperry House, a local hotel, was destroyed early to-day.

No one responded to the alarm, and the house was soon in ruins.

MRS. EDDY'S SURPRISE.

Will Be Sprung in Court at Concord To-day, It Is Said.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., April 1.—It is said that the only occurrence to-morrow, when the Christian Science lawsuit comes up in the Supreme Court, will be the filing by Gen. Streeter, as counsel for the unwilling and involuntary plaintiff, Mrs. Eddy, a document which will make most entertaining reading, especially to ex-United States Senator William E. Chandler, senior counsel for the petitioners in the suit.

It is said that Lewis C. Strang is being succeeded as assistant private secretary of Mrs. Eddy by H. Cornell Wilson, who formerly was chief of the Christian Scientists Publication Company in New York.

OLD STOCK SAFE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

White House Statement Says He Would Stop Only Future Stock Watering.

HIS IDEAS NOT CHANGED

He Sends Extracts from Speeches and Messages to Illinois Manufacturers.

NO PLAN FOR VALUATION

That Is Left to Railroads—Will Ask the Next Congress to Deal with Overcapitalization.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—That President Roosevelt has no intention of squeezing any water out of present railroad securities was made plain in a statement issued from the White House to-day. As foretold in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Sunday, his plan to prevent overcapitalization has reference only to the future. The statement says it is "utter nonsense" to suppose "the Government has the slightest intention to take any action which would invalidate the safety and stability of the railway securities now issued."

This document is nominally a newspaper dispatch, and is written in the third person. It came from the White House, however, and is intended as the President's final answer to the questions about Mr. Roosevelt's attitude. In fact, it answers nothing, for it leaves open the nature of his programme for the first session of the Sixtieth Congress. About all it settles is the fact that he is seeking a remedy for overcapitalization. It contains numerous assurances of friendliness to the railroads, but such assurances are in the form of extracts from speeches made at the beginning of his railroad rate campaign, which the railroads considered the reverse of a friendly campaign.

At the same time the publication is regarded here as the best possible reply the President could have made. It merely says over again in public what the President had repeatedly said in private—namely, that there was nothing mysterious about his policy; that it had been published in speeches and messages for two years and more, and that those who asked him to reassure the country about his intentions were simply ignoring the fact that he had repeatedly done so.

In private Mr. Roosevelt told his railroad visitors that he had repeatedly given the assurances of friendliness which they were urging him to give, and that there was no sense in his doing it over again; that if people paid no attention to these assurances of his when he made them first, there was no reason to suppose they would give greater heed to a repetition. This White House statement is simply an enlarged repetition of these private remarks, with chapter and verse to back it up. The statement is as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE STATEMENT.

"President Roosevelt has decided not to accept the invitation of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association to deliver a speech at Springfield, Ill., on the railroad situation. He addressed a letter yesterday to C. H. Smith, President of the association, stating that it would be impossible for him to accept their invitation, extended last week, because he did not feel that he had anything to say at this time in a special address on this special subject.

"The President has received a great number of requests for a statement by him or a speech to be made by him in connection with the railway situation. He has given these requests the utmost weight and most careful consideration. After fully looking into the matter the President informed his advisers that he had come to the conclusion that there was nothing new which he had to say at this moment on the railway situation; that he did not deem it either wise or proper to say anything with a view to any immediate situation in Wall Street, and that as he should only give expression to the definite and settled policy to be carried out wholly without regard to the exigencies of the moment and as his views on the policy in question were already a matter of record, it did not seem necessary at this time to repeat them.

Not to Deviate from His Policy.

"To the different men, friendly and unfriendly, who have visited him or written to him he has answered verbally or in writing that his words and acts spoke for themselves and needed no explanations whatever, and that he should not in his future course deviate one hand's breadth from the course he has pursued in the past and was now pursuing.

"The statement was made from an authoritative source to-day that even a most cursory examination of what the President has repeatedly said in speech and in message will show the utter nonsense of supposing the Government has the slightest intention to take any action which would invalidate the safety and stability of the railway securities now issued, the whole legislative programme of the President having been proclaimed again and again as one to insure the future against the mistakes and delinquencies of the past. The President holds that every executive action taken under his administration, whether by the Department of Justice or by the Interstate Commerce Commission, has furnished its own ample justification.

"It was pointed out to-day in administrative circles that the President has made no references in his speeches or messages to the question of the physical valuation of railroads. His position on this question, it was said, is that the roads themselves will work out this problem as an item of bookkeeping, and reference was made to the fact that two roads, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, already have submitted figures as to their physical valuation

Overcapitalization on Programme.

"It can be stated on authority that the President again will ask Congress, at its next session, for power to deal with the question of over capitalization of railroads. A similar request was made at the last session, but favorable action was not taken upon it.

"In his letter to Mr. Smith the President inclosed copies of the speech he made at Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 19, 1905, and the one he delivered before a delegation of railway employes in this city on Nov. 14, 1905, together with his messages at the beginning of the first and second sessions of the last Congress. The President concludes his letter to Mr. Smith as follows:

"'You will see in the two speeches and the two messages that I have said about all that I would say if I spoke now. As I said to your body the other day, I have already expressed again and again my carefully thought out beliefs. I am more firmly than ever convinced that these beliefs are wise and that the policy I recommended in my messages at the opening of each of the last regular sessions of Congress must be carried out. Just at the moment I do not see that I have much to add to what I have already said, and I think that what has occurred since I wrote the two messages in question merely illustrates in striking fashion the desirability of the course I therein outlined."

Railroads Must Be Controlled.

"The portions of the Raleigh speech the President marked read:

"'I do not believe in Government ownership of anything which can with propriety be left in private hands, and in particular I should most strenuously object to Government ownership of railroads. But I believe with equal firmness that it is out of the question for the Government not to exercise a supervisory and regulatory right over the railroads; for it is vital to the well-being of the public that they should be managed in a spirit of fairness and justice toward all the public.

"'Actual experience has shown that it is not possible to leave the railroads uncontrolled. Such a system, or rather such a lack of system, is fertile in abuses of every kind, and puts a premium upon unscrupulous and ruthless cunning in railroad management; for there are some big shippers and some railroad managers who are always willing to take unfair advantage of their weaker competitors, and they thereby force other big shippers and big railroad men who would like to do decently into similar acts of wrong and injustice, under penalty of being left behind in the race for success.

Would Permit Some Competition.

"'Government supervision is needed quite as much in the interest of the big shipper and of the railroad man who want to do right as in the interest of the small shipper and the consumer.

"'Experience has shown that the present laws are defective and need amendment. The effort to prohibit all restraint of competition, whether reasonable or unreasonable, is unwise. What we need is to have some administrative body with ample power to forbid combination that is hurtful to the public and to prevent favoritism to one individual at the expense of another. In other words, we want an administrative body with the power to secure fair and just treatment as among all shippers who use the railroads—and all shippers have a right to use them. * * *

"'But in my judgment the most important thing to do is to give to this administrative body power to make its findings effective, and this can be done only by giving it power, when complaint is made of a given rate as being unjust, or unreasonable, if it finds the complaint proper, then to fix a maximum rate which it regards as just and reasonable, this rate to go into effect practically at once—that is, within a reasonable time, and to stay in effect unless reversed by the courts. I earnestly hope that we shall see a law giving this power passed by Congress. * * *

Inquiry Into Railroad Finance.

"'If there is in the minds of the commission any suspicion that certain railroads are in any shape or way giving rebates, or behaving improperly, I wish the commission to have power as a matter of right, not as a matter of favor, to make a full and exhaustive investigation of the receipts and expenditures of the railroad, so that any violation or evasion of the law may be detected.

"'This is not a revolutionary proposal on my part, for I only wish the same power given in reference to railroads that is now exercised as a matter of course by the National Bank Examiners as regards National banks. My object in giving these additional powers to the administrative body representing the Government—the Inter-State Commerce Commission, or whatever it may be—is primarily to secure a sham control and not a sham control by the Government representatives. The American people abhor a sham, and with this abhorrence I cordially sympathize. Nothing is more injurious from every standpoint than a law which is merely sound and fury, merely pretense, and not capable of working out tangible results. I hope to see all the power that I think it ought to have granted to the Government; but I would far rather see only some of it granted, but really granted, than see a pretense of granting all in some shape that really amounts to nothing.

Railroads Must Be Protected.

"'It must be understood, as a matter of course, that if this power is granted it is to be exercised with wisdom and caution and self-restraint. The Inter-State-Commerce Commissioner or other Government official who failed to protect a railroad that was in the right against any clamor, no matter how violent, on the part of the public would be guilty of as gross a wrong as if he corruptly rendered an improper service to the railroad at the expense of the public. When I say a square deal, I mean a square deal; exactly as much a square deal for the rich man as for the poor man; but no more. Let each stand on his merits, receive what is due him, and be judged according to his deserts.'

"In his address to the delegation of railway employes' orders in this city, Nov. 14, 1905, the President said:

"'There has been comparatively little complaint to me of the railroad rates being as a whole too high. The most serious complaints that have been made to me have been of improper discrimination in railroad rates. For instance, in two recent cases affecting great corporations the complaints that have been made to me have been that they are too low as regards certain big shippers; the complaint in both these cases is about the differential, the difference of treatment of two sets of users of the railroads, the difference in favor of one set of shippers as against another set of shippers. * * *

"'If you will look at my Raleigh speech and my other recent utterances you will see my principles clearly set forth. I have said again and again that I would not tolerate for one moment any injustice to a railroad any more than I would tolerate any injustice by a railroad. I have said again and again that I would remove a public official who improperly yielded to any public clamor against a railroad, no matter how popular that clamor might be, just as quickly as I would remove a public official who rendered an improper service to the railroad at the expense of the public.

Ideas on Fictitious Capital.

"'But I am convinced that there must be an increased regulatory and supervisory power exercised by the Government over the railways. Indeed, I would like it exercised to a much greater extent than I have any idea of pressing at the moment. For instance, I would greatly like to have it exercised in the matter of over-capitalization.

"'I am convinced that the "wages fund" would be larger if there was no fictitious capital upon which dividends had to be paid.

"'I need hardly say that this does not mean hostility to wealth. If you gentlemen here, in whom I believe so strongly, were all a unit in demanding that some improper action should be taken against certain men of wealth, then, no matter whether I did or did not like those same men of wealth, I would defend them against you, no matter how much I cared for you, and in so doing I would really be acting in your own interest. I would be false to your interest if I failed to do justice to the capitalist as much as to the wage worker.

"'But I shall act against the abuses of wealth just as against all other abuses. * * * All I want in any rate legislation is to give the Government an efficient supervisory power which shall be exercised as scrupulously to prevent injustice to the railroads as to prevent their doing injustice to the public. Our endeavor is to see that those big railroad men and big shippers who are not responsive to the demands of justice are required to do what their fellows who are responsive to the demands of justice would be glad to do of their own accord.'

Panics and Speculative Folly.

"In his message to Congress at the beginning of the first session of the Fifty-ninth Congress, Dec. 5, 1905, the President said:

"'The people of this country continue to enjoy great prosperity. Undoubtedly there will be ebb and flow in such prosperity, and this ebb and flow will be felt more or less by all members of the community, both by the deserving and the undeserving. * * * A panic brought on by the speculative folly of part of the business community would hurt the whole business community. But such stoppage of welfare, though it might be severe, would not be lasting. * * *

"'Something can be done by legislation to help the general prosperity, but no such help of a permanently beneficial character can be given to the less able and less fortunate, save as the results of a policy which shall inure to the advantage of all industrious and efficient people who act decently; and this is only another way of saying that any benefit which comes to the less able and less fortunate must of necessity come even more to the more able and more fortunate.

"'If, therefore, the less fortunate man is moved by envy of his more fortunate brother to strike at the conditions under which they have both, though unequally, prospered, the result will assuredly be that, while damage may come to the one struck at, it will visit with an even heavier load the one who strikes the blow. Taken as a whole, we must all go up or down together.

State Must Control Fortunes.

"'Yet, while not merely admitting, but insisting upon this, it is also true that where there is no Governmental restraint or supervision, some of the exceptional men use their energies, not in ways that are for the common good, but in ways which tell against this common good. The fortunes amassed through corporate organization are now so large and vest such power in those that wield them as to make it a matter of necessity to give to the sovereign—that is, to the Government, which represents the people as a whole—some effective power of supervision over their corporate use.

"'In order to insure a healthy social and industrial life, every big corporation should be held responsible by, and be accountable to, some sovereign strong enough to control its conduct. I am in no sense hostile to corporations. This is an age of combinations, and any effort to prevent all combination will be not only useless but in the end vicious; because of the contempt for law which the failure to enforce law inevitably produces. We should, moreover, recognize in cordial and ample fashion the immense good effected by corporate agencies in a country such as ours, and the wealth of intellect, energy, and fidelity devoted to their service, and therefore normally to the service of the public, by their officers and directors.

"'The corporation has come to stay, just as the trades union has come to stay. Each can do and has done great good. Each should be favored so long as it does good. But each should be sharply checked where it acts against law and justice. * * *

National Government Must Act.

"'Experience has shown conclusively that it is useless to try to get any adequate regulation and supervision of these great corporations by State action. Such regulation and supervision can only be effectively exercised by a sovereign whose jurisdiction is coextensive with the field of work of the corporation—that is, by the National Government. I believe that this regulation and supervision can be obtained by the enactment of law by the Congress. Our steady aim should be by legislation, cautiously and carefully undertaken, but resolutely persevered in, to assert the sovereignty of the National Government by affirmative action. * * *

"'It has been a misfortune that the National laws on this subject have hitherto been of negative or prohibitive rather than an affirmative kind, and still more that they have in part sought to prohibit what could not be effectively prohibited, and have in part in their prohibitions confounded what should be allowed and what should not be allowed.

"'It is generally useless to try to prohibit all restraint on competition, whether this restraint be reasonable or unreasonable; and where it is not useless it is generally hurtful. * * * What is needed is not sweeping prohibition of every arrangement, good or bad, which may tend to restrict competition, but such adequate supervision and regulation as will prevent any restriction of competition from being to the detriment of the public, as well as such supervision and regulation as will prevent other abuses in no way connected with restriction of competition.

Inflation that Invites Panics.

"'Of these abuses perhaps the chief, although by no means the only one, is over-capitalization—generally itself the result of dishonest promotion—because of the myriad evils it brings in its train; for such overcapitalization often means an inflation that invites business panic; it always conceals the true relations of the profit earned to the capital actually invested, and it creates a burden of interest payments which is a fertile cause of improper reduction in or limitation of wages; it damages the small investor, discourages thrift, and encourages gambling and speculation; while perhaps worst of all is the trickiness and dishonesty which it implies—for harm to morals is worse than any possible harm to material interest and the debauchery of politics and business by great dishonest corporations is far worse than any actual, material evil they do the public.

"'Until the National Government obtains, in some manner which the wisdom of the Congress may suggest, proper control over the big corporations engaged in Inter-State commerce—that is, over the great majority of the big corporations—it will be impossible to deal adequately with these evils. * * * This power to regulate rates, like all similar powers over the business world, should be exercised with moderation, caution, and self-restraint; but it should exist, so that it can be effectively exercised when the need arises. * * * I do not believe in the Government undertaking any work which can with propriety be left in private hands. But neither do I believe in the Government flinching from overseeing any work when it becomes evident that abuses are sure to obtain therein, unless there is Governmental supervision.

Would Let Railroads Agree.

"'The best possible regulation of rates would, of course, be that regulation secured by an honest agreement among the railroads themselves to carry out the law. Such a general agreement would, for instance, at once put a stop to the efforts of any one big shipper or big railroad to discriminate against or secure advantages over some rival; and such agreement would make the railroads themselves agents for enforcing the law.

"The power vested in the Government to put a stop to agreements to the detriment of the public should, in my judgment, be accompanied by power to permit, under specified conditions and careful supervision, agreements, clearly in the interest of the public. But in my judgment, the necessity for giving this further power is by no means as great as the necessity for giving the commission or administrative body the other powers I have enumerated above; and it may well be inadvisable to attempt to vest this particular power in the commission or other administrative body until it already possesses and is exercising what I regard as by far the most important of all the powers I recommend—as indeed the vitally important power—that to fix a given maximum rate, which rate after the lapse of a reasonable time, goes into full effect, subject to review by the courts. * * *

"A system of examination of railroad accounts should be provided similar to that now conducted in the National banks by the bank examiners, a few first-class railroad accountants, if they had proper direction and proper authority to inspect books and papers, could accomplish much in preventing willful violations of the law. * * *

Good and Bad Railroad Men.

"'Let me most earnestly say that these recommendations are not made in any spirit of hostility to the railroads. I believe that on the whole our railroads have done well and not ill, but the railroad men who wish to do well should not be exposed to competition with those who have no such desire, and the only way to secure this end is to give to some Government tribunal the power to see that justice is done by the unwilling exactly as it is gladly done by the willing. * * *

"'It is in the interest of the best type of railroad man and the best type of shipper no less than of the public that there should be Governmental supervision and regulation of these great business operations, for the same reason that it is in the interest of the corporation which wishes to treat its employes right that there should be an effective employers' liability act, or an effective system of factory laws to prevent the abuse of women and children. We wish to insure as fair treatment for the small town as for the big city; for the small shipper as for the big shipper.

Danger of Public Ownership.

"'It is because, in my judgment, public ownership of railroads is highly undesirable and would probably in this country entail far-reaching disaster, that I wish to see such supervision and regulation of them in the interest of the public as will make it evident that there is no need for public ownership.

"'The opponents of Government regulation dwell upon the difficulties to be encountered and the intricate and involved nature of the problem. Their contention is true. It is a complicated and delicate problem, and all kinds of difficulties are sure to arise in connection with any plan of solution, while no plan will bring all benefits hoped for by its more optimistic adherents. But, while I fully admit the difficulties in the way, I do not for a moment admit that these difficulties warrant us in stopping in our effort to secure a wise and just system. * * *

"'At present we face such utter lack of supervision, such freedom from the restraints of law, that excellent men have often been literally forced into doing what they deplored, because otherwise they were left at the mercy of unscrupulous competitors. To rail at and assail the men who have done as they best could under such conditions accomplishes little.

"'What we need to do is to develop an orderly system, and such a system can only come through the gradually increased exercise of the right of efficient Government control.'

Larger Power of Supervision.

"In his message to Congress at the beginning of the second session of the Fifty-ninth Congress, Dec. 2, 1906, the President said:

"'The inter-State commerce law has rather amusingly falsified the predictions, both of those who asserted that it would ruin the railroads and of those who asserted that it did not go far enough and would accomplish nothing. During the last five months the railroads have shown increased earnings and some of them unusual dividends, while during the same period the mere taking effect of the law has produced an unprecedented, a hitherto unheard-of, number of voluntary reductions in freights and fares by the railroads. * * *

"'It must not be supposed, however, that with the passage of these laws it will be possible to stop progress along the line of increasing the power of the National Government over the use of capital and inter-State commerce. For example, there will ultimately be need of enlarging the powers of the Inter-State Commerce Commission along several different lines, so as to give it larger and more efficient control over the railroads.

Chaos from Control by States.

"'It cannot too often be repeated that experience has conclusively shown the impossibility of securing by the actions of nearly half a hundred different State Legislatures anything but ineffective chaos in the way of dealing with the great corporations which do not operate exclusively within the limits of any State. In some method, whether by National license law or in other fashion, we must exercise, and at an early date, a far more complete control than at present over these great corporations—a control that will among other things prevent the evils of excessive overcapitalization, and that will compel the disclosure by each big corporation of its stockholders and of its properties and business, whether owned directly or through subsidiary or affiliated corporations.

"'This will tend to put a stop to the securing of inordinate profits by favored individuals at the expense, whether of the general public, the stockholders, or the wageworkers. Our effort should be not so much to prevent consolidations as such, but so to supervise and control it as to see that it results in no harm to the people.

Fights Reactionaries and Agitators.

"'In enacting and enforcing such legislation as this Congress already has to its credit we are working on a coherent plan, with a steady endeavor to secure the needed reforms by the joint action of the moderate men, the plain men who do not wish anything hysterical or dangerous, but who do intend to deal in resolute, common-sense fashion with the real and great evils of the present system.

"'The reactionaries and the violent extremists show symptoms of joining hands against us. Both assert, for instance, that if logical we should go to Government ownership of railroads and the like; the reactionaries, because on such an issue they think the people would stand with them, while the extremists care rather to preach discontent and agitation than to achieve solid results.

"'As a matter of fact, our position is as remote from that of a Bourbon reactionary as from that of the impracticable or sinister visionary. We hold that the Government should not conduct the business of the Nation, but that it should exercise such supervision as will insure its being conducted in the interest of the Nation. Our aim is, so far as may be, to secure for all decent, hard-working men, equality of opportunity and equality of burden.

Combination of Capital Needed.

"'The actual working of our laws has shown that the effort to prohibit all combination, good or bad, is noxious where it is not ineffective. Combination of capital, like combination of labor, is a necessary element of our present industrial system. It is not possible completely to prevent it, and if it were possible such complete prevention would do damage to the body politic.

"'What we need is not vainly to try to prevent all combination, but to secure such rigorous and adequate control and supervision of the combinations as to prevent their injuring the public, or existing in such form as inevitably to threaten injury—for the mere fact that a combination has secured practically complete control of a necessary of life would under any circumstances show that such combination was to be presumed to be averse to the public interests.

"'It is unfortunate that our present laws should forbid all combinations, instead of sharply discriminating between those combinations which do good and those combinations which do evil. Rebates, for instance, are as often due to the pressure of big shippers (as was shown in the investigation of the Standard Oil Company and as has been shown since by the investigation of the Tobacco and Sugar Trusts) as to the initiative of big railroads.

"'Often railroads would like to combine for the purpose of preventing a big shipper from maintaining improper advantages at the expense of small shippers and of the general public. Such a combination, instead of being forbidden by law, should be favored. In other words, it should be permitted to railroads to make agreements, provided these agreements were sanctioned by the Inter-State Commerce Commission and were published. With these conditions complied with it is impossible to see what harm such a combination could do to the public at large.'"

HALL OF FAME CEREMONIES.

Eleven Tablets and a Bust to be Unveiled on Memorial Day.

Chancellor MacCracken of the New York University made an announcement yesterday on behalf of the University Senate in regard to the programme for the unveiling of the tablets in the Hall of Fame on University Heights on Memorial Day. Gov. Hughes and Gov. Guild of Massachusetts have both accepted invitations to be present and make addresses. There are to be eleven new bronze tablets to commemorate the eleven persons selected by the one hundred electors. There will be also a bronze bust and pedestal unveiled in honor of Horace Mann.

Gov. Hughes will speak on "The Statesman and the Warrior." Five of the tablets bear the names of James Madison, Alexander Hamilton, and John Quincy Adams of the statesman class, and of John Paul Jones and William Tecumseh Sherman of the warrior class.

Gov. Guild's theme will be "The Author and the Teacher." This class includes James Russell Lowell, John Greenleaf Whittier, Louis Agassiz, Horace Mann, Mary Lyon, Emma Willard, and Maria Mitchell. Six of these seven were residents of Massachusetts most of their lives, and five of them were natives of that State.

The bust and pedestal in honor of Horace Mann have been given in the name of the teachers of America. Eleven organizations of National standing have been invited to unveil the tablets. The President of the National Education Association has been invited to appoint representatives to unveil the bust of Mann.

TO AID CHILD'S PLAY IN CITIES

Playground Association to Have Exhibits at Chicago and Jamestown.

The Playground Association of America, of which Theodore Roosevelt is Honorary President, and Jacob Riis, is Honorary Vice President, is making arrangements for two great demonstrations of the value of playgrounds and play to municipalities.

The first of these, a convention in Chicago, from June 20 to June 22, to which President Roosevelt has urged every Mayor in the United States to send an official representative, will consist of practical demonstrations of organized play by 7,000 school children of all ages, and a series of papers by such leaders of the play movement as Judge Ben D. Lindsey of the Children's Court of Denver, Jane Addams of Hull House, Dr. G. Stanley Hall of Clark University, and United States Commissioner Elmer Ellsworth Brown.

In connection with the convention the South Park System of Chicago will demonstrate fully the workings of its chain of twelve day and night open and indoor playgrounds for children and adults. It is expected that these gatherings will attract an adult attendance of nearly 50,000 people. The Chicago committee already has begun to erect a monster stand to accommodate the visitors.

The second enterprise of the association is a great play exhibit at the Jamestown Exposition, which will be installed and kept in daily operation if the necessary money can be obtained. The exposition authorities have offered free space, and also to provide halls for a series of meetings and lectures.

come down. It may be that the distrust arising from the railroad situation helped to put prices a little lower than they would have gone otherwise, or in the absence of this distrust, the recovery might have come a little sooner, but the relations of the Government to the railroads had nothing to do with the decline itself.

Dear Money Brought Prices Down.

"Money has been dear here, as, indeed, it has been dear all over the world, and the problem that confronted the markets was to bring the volume of business down to the level at which it could be handled with the money that we had. This dearness of money, by the way, I think, is in no small measure the result of the adoption of the gold standard by so many countries at once or in close succession.

"Look at conditions in Mexico. So long as the country was on a silver basis foreign capital went there with reluctance and only when there was a chance to invest there on a gold basis. The adoption of the gold standard by Mexico has been followed by the accumulation of a gold reserve of $90,000,000 or more, and of late capital has been flowing into Mexico by millions and millions. Much the same is true of Argentina and some other countries. Look at the money that America and more particularly Europe has sent to Japan. Japan could never have gone through the Russian war had she not been on a gold basis. She simply could not have borrowed on any such scale. Russia, too, in recent years has accumulated a vast amount of gold. Now the burden of these demands for gold in connection with the adoption of the gold standard fell almost entirely on Europe. As the absorption of gold exceeded the production, it meant a reduction in the European stocks of gold at a time of expansion in trade. Dear money was necessarily the result. Gold is not money, but it is the measure of value, and in it trade differences have to be settled. The more trade, the greater the differences, and so the larger the demand for gold.

Trade Contraction Must Come.

"It is not strange, indeed, that interest rates should have been high nor that the decline in prices should have followed the condition which developed in the money market. Contraction in trade as an outcome of these conditions is inevitable—it simply has to come. The plain fact is that capital is not available for the continuance of trade on the scale that has prevailed. Your railroads borrowed all they could borrow. They borrowed capital at 5 per cent., at 5½ per cent., then at 6 per cent., and even 7 per cent. It was thought, apparently, that by advancing the interest rate you could always borrow, but when the capital is not there it cannot be had if 50 per cent. interest were offered.

"And when new capital is borrowed at 7 per cent. it is inevitable that capital invested at lower rates should suffer. It was really the heavy borrowings by the St. Paul, the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, and the Northwest, not to include the many note issues, that started the ball rolling. The holders of those stocks had the money to take up all this new stock, and so they sold other things. They could, indeed, afford to sell anything, for they were getting a 7 per cent. stock at par.

"Trade expansion cannot continue when the bond market has got into the condition in which your bond market is at present. Even in Germany, though money is high, the conditions are in no wise similar to conditions here. The unfavorable factors in our situation have been greatly exaggerated. It is true that we do not put out new issues on the scale that has been in vogue here, $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 at a time, but bonds have been salable in Germany. Only a while ago the City of Hamburg put out $50,000,000 of 4 per cent. bonds, and despite the dearness of money the whole issue was subscribed twice over at 100½.

Speculation in Germany.

"True, heavy declines have occurred in our industrial shares, but the movement of these stocks is misunderstood here. We have a monthly settlement on the Boerse, and nearly all the speculation that is done is carried on for the monthly settlement. But only three classes of securities, bank stocks, railroad issues, and shipping company stocks, are dealt in for the monthly settlement. All dealings in industrial shares are settled from day to day just as your transactions here are settled. The speculative accounts in bank stocks represent in the aggregate a very small amount; there are but two groups of shipping stocks, and as for the railroad issues, they have largely disappeared from the market owing to the repurchase of the lines by the Government. This reduces the speculation to a narrow field.

"So far as the industrial shares are concerned, these stocks are scattered among a great many holders, and the market for them is very narrow. In times like these, market orders in such stocks bring large declines, but prices recover just as easily on a little buying. The position of these stocks, I should say, closely resembles the market in your bank stocks, wide fluctuations in which pass by entirely unnoticed. We have a great many industrial companies in Germany, many with small capital issues. On the Berlin Boerse alone there are about 600 of them, besides the many that are traded in on local Exchanges.

No Water in German Stocks.

"The question whether or not it is good to have such a multiplicity of industrial corporations is one that must be judged by local conditions. In Germany there can be no watering of stock; every share of capital must be issued for its full value in cash. If under conditions existing here you had such a multiplicity of industrial corporations as we have, there is no telling what would result.

"But to return to the effects that dear money has had upon the situation. I think people are beginning to realize that a smaller volume of business done under more favorable conditions will be best for all concerned. No real good has come of the recent excess volume of business. Wages, on the one hand, are high, but, on the other, the cost of living and the price of materials are high and money is so dear that larger business done under existing conditions shows less profit than would be shown by smaller business done with capital that costs less.

"I think that business will come down to the level at which it can be readily handled. I think that it is likely that, say in two years, conditions will right themselves again. With contraction in trade and the continued large production of gold, it is likely that within that time monetary and industrial and commercial conditions will fully readjust themselves and that we will then be ready to go on with new development.

"So far as prices are concerned, I think that we have seen the worst. And it is well if it is so, for, although the market has stood the decline in a way that is wonderful, it has been made clear that the losses have been borne on strong shoulders. It is a question, though, if the market could withstand another test without the open admission of serious losses.

Some Foreign Buying Here.

"The present attitude of foreign investors toward this market unmistakably reflects the feeling of distrust to which I have referred, but nevertheless we have been buying here to some extent—not, however, to the extent that would be likely were entire confidence felt in the situation here. We ourselves have always favored investment in good American securities whenever conditions at home warrant such investments. The needs of our own country must, of course, be provided for first, but when they have been met we always regard good American railroad issues with favor. We look upon them as the safest class of securities and as a very satisfactory substitute for our own railroad securities, which to so large an extent have been removed from the market through the repurchase of the railroads by the Government."

SHERIFF ARRESTED AND FINED

Convicted in Another State of Carrying a Revolver.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 1.—It has just become known that recently Sheriff Rabon of Aiken County, this State, was arrested in Jefferson County, Georgia, charged with carrying a pistol. He was convicted, the sentence being $20 fine or four months on the chain gang. The South Carolina official was armed with requisition papers from Gov. Terrel, and was endeavoring to arrest a fugitive from this State.

PRESIDENT SORRY FOR SUBSIDY BILL

Says Its Defeat Is a Serious Injury to the Nation's Commercial Interests.

THOUGHT IT TOO MODEST

Thanks Western Congressmen for Their Patriotism in Supporting the Measure.

OMAHA, Neb., April 1.—Congressman E. M. Pollard of the First Nebraska District has received a letter from President Roosevelt, dated March 19, thanking him for his support of the Ship Subsidy bill, congratulating him and other Western Congressmen for taking a broad and patriotic view of the situation, and deprecating the defeat of the bill as a serious injury to the commercial interests of the United States. In addition to reiterating what he said in his last message to Congress on the subject, the President says in his letter to Mr. Pollard:

"My Dear Mr. Pollard: I feel that it is due not only to you, but to the other Western Congressmen, the Congressmen from the interior, who voted for the Ship Subsidy bill, that I should express to you, not only for you, but for all of them also, the reasons why I think you have rendered a great and patriotic service.

"At the outset, let me emphasize the fact that the present proposed Ship Subsidy bill has nothing whatever in common with certain previous measures of the same name. There were well-founded objections to certain features of these previous measures, but in the present measure all these objectionable features have been eliminated. I should heartily favor the present measure in any event, but the experiences of Secretary Root on his trip to South America and the course of events on the Pacific seem to me to render it of the utmost consequence to pass the proposed bill. As a matter of fact, my only objection to it is that it does not go far enough. I personally, for instance, would like to see a line to South America from one of our Gulf ports.

"I feel that you men from the West, who stood by the cause of American shipping in supporting the Ship Subsidy bill, deserve the same praise that should be accorded to those men of the seacoast regions, who voted for, and by their votes succeeded in establishing, our present system of National irrigation in the States from Kansas, Nebraska, and the Dakotas, westward, to California, Oregon, and Washington.

"At that time the argument was made to me by many men representing the country east of the Mississippi that it was not fair to ask their support of a measure purely to benefit the States of the Great Plains and the Rockies. My answer to them was that anything that benefited a part of this country ultimately benefited all of it, and that we were in honor bound to support any such measure, even if our particular locality was not affected. The same argument applies now in reference to the Shipping bill.

"It is deeply discreditable to us as a Nation that our shipping should be driven from the high seas, and if has thus been driven, partly because our steamship lines are quite unable to compete with foreign steamship lines, English, German, Japanese, French, which are heavily subsidized by their Governments, and partly because the high standard of wages and of living, which we exact for our seamen, puts our ship masters and ship owners at a disadvantage when forced to compete even with unsubsidized ships of foreign powers.

"This difference in standards, and the subsidization of our foreign competitors, taken together, have created an obstacle to the development of our shipping which is insurmountable except by a subsidy, and this obstacle must be cleared away as we would clear away a bar from the mouth of a river.

"I felt that the loss of the Ship Subsidy bill at the last session of Congress was a real blow to our country, and that it was particularly to be regretted because it has tended to dampen some of the enthusiasm for closer relations with this country which Secretary Root's visit aroused in South America."

HELD ON CHILD'S CHARGE.

Crippled Girl Says Coakley Stole $10 from Her.

Sitting on the Magistrate's desk in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday, 11-year-old Ellen Woods, a little cripple, who has long worn a jacket of plaster of paris, identified John J. Coakley as the man who, on the day before, snatched from her a $10 bill for which she had been sent out to get change.

She said that her aunt, Miss Anna Woods, of 277 Ninth Avenue, had sent her on the errand. Coakley, she said, heard her ask for the change, followed her, snatched the bill, and fled. Policeman Stewart of the West Twentieth Street Station arrested him after a short chase.

Coakley was held for trial in $1,000 bail.

Multiplying a Stenographer's Usefulness

IT takes half of a stenographer's time to write and read her notes. An Edison Business Phonograph, by eliminating this feature, enables her to get out twice as many letters as she otherwise would. Making a stenographer twice as valuable as she is is but one of the many good features of the Edison Commercial System. We equip a business house with the system and prove its superiority before suggesting its adoption.

SWEPT FROM LINER AT SEA.

Seaman Battles Bravely for Life, but Sinks Before Boat Reaches Him.

The story of the loss of one man at sea and a narrow escape of three others was brought into port yesterday by the officers of the Anchor Line steamship Columbia, which sailed from Glasgow on March 23. On the first day out four sailors, among whom were Alexander McLeod and his brother, James, were busy painting ventilators on the forecastle deck, when a big wave broke over the port bow and swept down on them. The men, except Alexander McLeod, were washed down to the main deck and jammed against the rails and left almost unconscious in the scuppers.

McLeod was not so fortunate. He was caught on the crest of the wave and carried out to sea. Capt. Wadsworth stopped his vessel and ordered a boat lowered. McLeod was a strong swimmer, and the officers caught sight of him once as he waved his hand to them.

The Columbia was a quarter of a mile away from where he had been seen when a boat, in charge of Fourth Officer Roberts, left the side of the vessel. In the rough sea the small boat made slow progress. Once more the men caught sight of the swimmer, but instantly he was lost again in the trough of the sea.

For half an hour they searched without success. An hour later the small boat had again been hoisted to the davits and the liner was plowing her way toward this port.

MISS MORGAN IN COURT.

Financier's Daughter Appears Against Boy—Says He Sold Her Brooch.

Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, appeared in the Children's Court yesterday as a witness against Joseph McDonald, a fifteen-year-old hallboy in the Ladies' Colony Club, who was arrested last Saturday charged with selling a diamond and ruby brooch belonging to Miss Morgan, which he said he found in the Colony Club. Miss Morgan arrived at the court in an automobile, and was accompanied by Herbert L. Satterlee, Mr. Morgan's son-in-law.

During the court proceedings, which were very brief, Miss Morgan stood behind the prisoner. She said nothing, relying on the affidavit prepared by her lawyer. In this the value of the brooch was put at $100, and it was charged that McDonald, after finding the brooch at the club, had sold it to a dealer in old gold on Second Avenue.

Justice Zeller lectured McDonald, and then parcelled him to report to the court on April 20. Miss Morgan was escorted out of the building by a rear exit, through a yard, and to her automobile, which shot down the street at a lively gait.

The camera fiends arrived in time to see the Morgan automobile disappear around a corner.

MOUSE IN A SPECIALTY.

Fine Attraction in a Broadway Store Window on Easter Day.

If a member of the concern which sells gas appliances in a Broadway store just north of Twenty-sixth Street had passed by the store yesterday afternoon he would have been delighted to see the great attention his gas stoves apparently were attracting. At least twenty-five persons were gathered on the sidewalk in front of the store, apparently lost in admiration of the stoves and the nicely browned pieces of toast which are always displayed with them to show what the stoves can do.

But the people were not thinking of the stoves or their products. They were watching a little mouse which had walked into the window, attracted by the Easter Sunday calm, and was disposing of the toast. Having nibbled all the best parts of one piece, the mouse would toss it contemptuously away and start on a second.

The crowd of onlookers grew. Even women forgot their fear of a mouse and lined up before the window. But the little mouse was not stage-struck. It seemed to know that nobody, not even a policeman, would break into the store to hinder the celebration.

When last heard of the mouse, although swelled to an outrageous size, was still going strong on a second batch of toast.

Puccini's Opinion of Weber Pianos is shown in the following letter after a month's experience with the Small Grand now in this sale:

February 25th, 1907.

The WEBER PIANO CO.:

On the eve of my departure for Europe, I wish to express to you my best thanks for your kindness in sending a piano to me, for my private use, during my visit to New York.

The piano has afforded me much pleasure, and I congratulate you upon its fine tone and general excellence.

Wishing you great success, which your efforts merit, I am

GIACOMO PUCCINI.

This annual dispersal of the opera artists' pianos is the most notable event in the entire year of piano retailing in New York. Both Grands and Uprights are included. The price-saving is important, although the pianos themselves have seen such slight use that they are not distinguishable from new.

To own your favorite opera artist's favorite piano is an object. But when, in addition, you can obtain the instrument in perfect condition and at a price not obtainable under ordinary conditions, the exceptional character of the opportunity is apparent.

Each piano is plainly ticketed with the cash selling price and the name of the artist who has used it. Moderate monthly payments when preferred, simple interest being charged on the unpaid balance.

MINORITY MAY SUE BETHLEHEM STEEL

Lively Stockholders' Meeting Expected To-day Over Dividends.

TALK OF A FREEZEOUT

Lawyers for Smaller Holders to Talk Plainly to Mr. Schwab To-day.

That the dissatisfaction of the minority stockholders of Charles M. Schwab's Bethlehem Steel Corporation will crystallize into action at the annual meeting of the company in Newark to-day became known in Wall Street yesterday. The result will be a determined effort to get information about the financial condition of the company, bearing particularly upon the question whether or not the earnings justify the policy of the management in cutting down the dividend on the preferred stock to three-quarters of 1 per cent. for the last two quarters and withholding all dividends from the common stock. Those who were in touch with the matter yesterday looked forward to one of the liveliest fights that has occurred in a stockholders' meeting for some months past.

The minority stockholders, for the purposes of this meeting, at least, have been brought together to the extent of upward of 40,000 shares, common and preferred, out of the 300,000 shares of both kinds of stock outstanding. The majority holdings, comprising most of the stock that is not represented by to-morrow's protestants, is held almost entirely by Mr. Schwab and his immediate circle of friends, which includes several men classed as among the Morgan interests. It has been said recently that the conditions of this majority stockholding were such that the Morgan interest was dominant in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation; that is one of the things that the minority stockholders are anxious to find out for the purpose of focalizing the responsibility for the policy of the present management.

Minority United for a Fight.

Among the minority stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation there are two groups of individuals, one represented by Samuel Untermyer as counsel, and the other, which includes George C. Boldt of the Waldorf-Astoria and Stuyvesant Fish, by the Commonwealth Trust Company and its attorneys. For the purposes of to-day's proceeding the law firm of Pitney, Harden & Skinner of Newark has been retained by the Commonwealth Trust Company element, and it is not improbable that Mr. Untermyer will attend the meeting in person to co-operate with the Newark lawyers. At all events, the entire minority interest as described will join in the demand for information bearing on the dividend question.

Thus the issue between the minority and the majority in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation will be, for the first time, squarely joined. The representatives of the minority holders of the stock declared yesterday that the fight started in the annual meeting will be but a beginning of a larger fight that will take the question of dividends into the courts. From the formation of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation out of the wreck of the old United States Shipbuilding Company, practically down to the present time, it has been understood that its earnings were largely in excess of the 7 per cent. dividend requirement on the preferred stock; indeed, at the time of the reorganization, when the Bethlehem Steel Company, through which Mr. Schwab got his grip on the Ship Trust, was taken over by the reorganized corporation, it appeared that that concern had piled up a surplus of several millions even during the receivership.

The existing minority interests got into the Bethlehem Steel Corporation very largely through the first mortgage bonds of the old United States Shipbuilding Company. Mr. Schwab, who was himself a large purchaser of the old first mortgage bonds prior to the reorganization, has been understood to have 75 or 80 per cent. of the entire stock of the reorganized institution.

Tried a Freezeout, Possibly.

This situation has been very well understood by the minority holders of the stock from the beginning, and the understanding has been that a waiting game would be attempted by the management to see if the minority would not get tired and sell out. But the minority thus far have declined to do this, the Commonwealth Trust Company interest even reducing the nominal capital of that institution not long ago so that outstanding loans obtained on Bethlehem Steel stock might be taken up and that particular source of pressure eliminated. These loans had been made in connection with settling litigation, and the Bethlehem Steel stock was acquired in connection with such settlements.

So the market quotations of the Bethlehem Steel securities, originally about 75 for the preferred, a 7 per cent non-cumulative stock, and 25 for the common, have ranged on an extremely limited volume of trading between a maximum of 85 for the preferred and 36 or 38 for the common down to the present quotations of about 50 for the preferred and 10 for the common, and the minority in forcing the issue at this time are mindful of the information circulated in Wall Street some months ago that 50 and 10 respectively would be maintained as the quotations of the Bethlehem Steel stocks until the minority holdings were dislodged.

A Big Money Maker, Minority Say.

It is not considered likely that the question of dividends will be brought up at the annual meeting by the majority party more than it may appear from such reports as are made that the earnings were withheld for the purpose of making additions and betterments in the property. But that is what the minority stockholders propose to drive at in their fight, starting from the proposition that the withholding of the earnings is a part of the campaign to shake out the minority stock. They will point to the fact that the first statement of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, issued a year ago, showed a surplus of $1,843,619, or better that 12 per cent. on the common stock after paying a half year's dividend of 3½ per cent. on the preferred, and the contention is that the earnings of the company have not fallen off appreciably in the last year. The minority stockholders are prepared to urge that the earnings not only justified a full 7 per cent on the preferred, but a substantial payment on the common, and that if they are withheld for the purpose of financing betterments and additions the stockholders are at least entitled to scrip bearing such interest as the company would have to pay if it raised the needed funds by bonds or notes.

This argument, it is understood, will be backed up by the fact that $4,000,000 of the $12,000,000 bonds authorized a year ago for the new construction remain in the treasury of the company unsold, and it will be contended that if the true earnings of the property were disclosed the credit of the company would be such that there would be no difficulty in disposing of them and financing the construction in that way.

BELIEVE POLICE BILL SAFE.

Thirty-three Senators Are Expected to Vote for Bingham Measure.

From the present outlook it is expected that the bill will receive at least 33 affirmative votes out of a total of 51.

and cannot deal with these matters satisfactorily. Experience has shown the advisability of creating a subordinate body or commission with appropriate powers for this purpose.

"Now what is the function of such a commission? It is an administrative board. The object of its creation is to secure the performance of public obligation. The Legislature may, within its constitutional powers, establish standards of service. A railroad corporation, for example, is bound to give safe, impartial, and adequate service for a reasonable charge. It is the function of the commission to secure safety, impartiality, adequacy of service, and reasonable charges; that is, compliance with the requirements of the law. For this purpose it should have full power to conduct investigations and to make whatever orders in relation to operation that may be necessary to secure proper service upon fair terms and without unlawful discriminations.

"Undoubtedly, very broad powers are required reaching the various departments of management. But it should be remembered they are designed to secure the safety and convenience of the public. It is no answer to say that these powers may be abused. Every officer of the Government who has power adequate for any purpose may abuse his power. The safeguard is found in official responsibility and accountability. But the possibility of abuse is no reason why powers which, in their proper exercise are needed for the protection of the public, should not be conferred.

"It has been urged that the granting of such broad powers is incompatible with the maintenance of the freedom of management said to be incident to the property rights of the corporations. Such an objection has a certain plausibility, but will not stand critical examination. The Legislature, in safeguarding the public interest, has the power to require such equipment and facilities, and such manner of operations, as will secure good service. It will hardly be claimed that the existence of this power is inconsistent with property rights. The property of a public service corporation has been acquired subject to this power. And the power conferred upon the commission is conferred for the purpose of securing the performance of obligations to which the right of property is subordinate.

Its Relation to the Courts.

"Another question is, What is the relation of the courts to such a commission? As has been said, the commission is an administrative body. It would not be proper for the Legislature to confer these powers upon the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. It is not in accordance with the theory of our Government that an attempt should be made to convert the court into an administrative board. It is not this proper function of the courts to fix rates or to make orders as to the facilities which should be supplied or the safety appliances which should be used. This is the function of the Legislature, or of the administrative board which it may create to aid in securing the performance of the duties it has imposed. It would be most unfortunate if, with the necessary extension of State supervision of public service, our courts should have cast upon them such burdens of administration.

The power of the Legislature and of the commission it creates is not, however, without limits. And where the Legislature goes beyond its constitutional powers, or where the administrative board exceeds its authority or passes its constitutional limits, the matter falls within the jurisdiction of the courts, who will declare such action null and void and prevent any attempt to enforce the provisions of the obnoxious statute or order.

"Both the State and Federal Constitutions prohibit the depriving of any person of property without due process of law, and the taking of private property for public use without just compensation. Nor can a State deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. Neither the Legislature nor the commission can escape these salutary checks upon their authority. So that if it be claimed that the action of the Legislature or of a commission in fixing a rate operates as such a deprivation of property, a judicial question is presented and the courts will take jurisdiction and determine that question.

"They will determine it in the light of all the circumstances, seeking to ascertain whether the Legislature or the commission has exceeded that power which the Legislature may properly exercise in its discretion, or which it may properly confer upon an administrative board, or whether under the guise of regulation there has been confiscation. So, if the claim is made that the action of the Legislature or the commission in professing to provide for safe and adequate service lies outside the field of legislation in defense of the public interest, or of administrative power under legislative authority, the claim presents a matter for judicial consideration, and if the courts find it to be sustained they will invalidate the statute or order assailed.

"It thus appears that there is of necessity a court review where such questions are presented. And the distinction between the function of the courts and the function of the Legislature or of the commission it creates is clearly indicated by the fact that the question for the courts is whether under the Constitution the matter under consideration is one that falls within the scope of the authority of the Legislature or of the administrative board. If the courts decide that it falls within the limits of that authority they decline to interfere; if they decided that it does not, they declare the statute or order void.

Cannot Curtail Court Review.

"This court review the Legislature cannot curtail. The courts proceed by virtue of their inherent powers under the Constitution. It is idle to attempt, and no good citizen desires to attempt, to fetter their action. Frequently the courts have set aside rates established by Legislatures and commissions, and they do not hesitate to grant an injunction prohibiting the enforcement of the rate pending the suit.

"Property rights are thus abundantly safeguarded, and it is futile to claim that either through the establishment of the commission or through the exercise of its broad powers the invasion of any property right will be threatened without adequate redress.

"A different question is presented when it is urged that all orders of the commission should be reviewable by the courts regardless of the question whether the commission has exceeded its authority or any constitutional privilege has been ignored. There is no occasion for such a broad provision for court review unless it is desired to commit to the courts those matters which do not involve the question of deprivation of property without due process of law or without just compensation, but are matters which might appropriately be decided by the Legislature or by an administrative commission.

"To provide a right of appeal to the courts from every order of the commission not only invites delay and an unnecessary multiplicity of proceedings, but has for its object the substitution of the judgment of the court for the action of the commission. To give the court power to hear such appeals, to take evidence, and to reverse or to modify the orders of the commission comes simply to this: that the court becomes in effect the ruling commission and the commission created by the Legislature is simply a board to take evidence and make what are, in effect, recommendations. It may be said that the corporations would not, necessarily avail themselves of the right of review in all cases. But it is not sound public policy for the Legislature to create a board whose effectiveness will depend on the option of the corporations.

"The delays that are incident to proceedings attacking the action of the commission as unconstitutional are inevitable. But there is no good reason why delays should be multiplied by allowing court review in all cases. There is a broad field of supervision which admittedly lies within constitutional authority, and in this field it is of the greatest public importance that the commission within its own proper province should act with reasonable dispatch, that its orders should be promptly obeyed, and that the public patience should not be vexed by dilatory proceedings.

"It is vital to the interests of the community that in dealing with these matters we should deal both justly and effectively. Merely because there are questions which, as we have seen, must inevitably be passed upon by the courts, we should not run the risk of making the scheme of State supervision abortive by committing to the courts the decision of other matters with which properly they have no concern. Proper regulation of corporations is a matter so important and the attitude of the public toward our public service operations presents so serious a question that we should provide the most efficient means of regulation that is consistent with the constitutional powers of the Legislature.

Rights of Corporations Protected.

"Let us understand that no fundamental right of the corporations can be taken away; that the corporations, commanding vised as to their legal rights and equipped with the most perfect machinery for the presentation of their claims, will not suffer any deprivation of their just rights of property. These will be protected by the Constitution and the courts. If they entertain any serious fear of effective regulation, it is not that they will be deprived of what rightfully belongs to them.

"What is needed is a commission of dignity, of force, of ability, representing the best intelligence of the State available for the purpose and proceeding in a responsible manner. It should have such an equipment and such technical assistance as will enable it to deal with the matters befors it thoroughly and expertly. With the highest respect for the courts, I believe that such a commission can best deal with the matters which properly fall within its province, and we may be sure, as has already been stated, that in cases where any doubt can exist as to whether there is an invasion of property rights or whether the matter does not lie within the province of the commission, the courts will be called upon to exercise their admitted jurisdiction.

"There are many other phases of the subject to which I should be glad to call attention. The power to issue stock and bonds and to invest in the securities of other corporations is a power derived from the Legislature and subject to such conditions as it may impose. No consolidation or merger of interests can take place except pursuant to legislative authority. Evils that have resulted from an abuse of the freedom which has been enjoyed under our corporate laws are patent to all. It is not simply or primarily the question of protection to the investor. The paramount demand is that through the improper issue of securities there shall not be provided a motive for crippling the public service or a basis for demanding extortionate returns. The power of the State should be exercised to compel respect for the public interest.

"I cannot at this time discuss these questions or other matters such as the selection and removal of Commissioners, which are involved in the proposed scheme of regulation. As I have said, these questions are of grave public consequence. There is no greater mistake than to suppose that the will of the people can be permanently disregarded, and it is the duty of patriotism to provide for the just expression of that will and to remove the causes of unrest which lie in abuses of public privilege.

"And in attempting to provide remedies for the correction of known evils let them be real remedies, not mere makeshifts, which will bring the law and its administrators into contempt, but effective measures which in their just operation will promote our tranquillity and enhance respect for law and order."

OPPOSES BROAD COURT REVIEW

Jackson Does Not Want It Inserted in the Utilities Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—A week ago Attorney General Jackson introduced in the Legislature a Public Utilities bill that was thought to represent his own views and possibly those of Mr. Hearst on the subject of controlling public competitors. To-day Mr. Jackson came out and said that, while he was opposed to many features of the Page-Merritt Public Utilities bill, he was thoroughly in accord with the friends of that measure, that the broad court review should not be inserted.

"I think, with the friends of the Page-Merritt bill," said Mr. Jackson, "that the corporations affected are already amply protected through their recourse to the Federal courts on Constitutional grounds."

SURGEON ASKED TO RESIGN.

Refused to Care for Insane Patient —Ambulance Driver Discharged.

Dr. George Houston, an ambulance surgeon attached to the staff of the Washington Heights Hospital, last night resigned his position. His action, however, was not voluntary, but was taken after ex-Coroner Gustav Scholer, a Director in the hospital, had sent him a request to hand in his resignation and to do so without delay.

The Washington Heights Hospital, which is located at 554 West 165th Street, was a storm centre yesterday, and not only were complaints received about the conduct of the young physician, but the question agitated the police of the West 152d Street Station. Not only was Dr. Honston asked to resign, but Raymond Nafer, an ambulance driver, was dealt with with less ceremony. He was discharged.

All this trouble grew out of the fact that on Sunday Harry Oliver, a wealthy contractor, who lived with his mother at 526 West 151st Street, became suddenly insane. The call for an ambulance was sent in to the Washington Heights Hospital, and it was Dr. Houston who got the call.

When he arrived and found that the man was insane, it is charged that he not only declared that he would not take the man to the hospital, but he would have nothing to do with the case. The matter was then referred to Sergt. Becker of the West 152d Street Station. He argued with the physician, but the latter told him that it was no a case for him.

He declared that he knew what he was talking about, for the instructions from the hospital were that no insane cases were to be taken there. It was not his duty to handle the case, he is alleged to have said; and he was not going to have anything to do with it.

The Sergeant, weary of argument, threatened the doctor with arrest unless he took the man, but even this did not move the physician. The Sergeant declared last night that he did not want to go to the extreme of arresting the surgeon, so he took no further action in the matter, and the latter, gathering up his instrument case, got on the ambulance and ordered it back to the hospital.

After he left another call was sent in and this time an ambulance from the J. Hood Wright Hospital responded. The physician, after examining Oliver, took him to Bellevue Hospital.

Dr. Scholer said last night that the young man was at fault. He had got his instructions twisted, the former Coroner said. The instructions are not to bring insane patients to the hospital, but to treat them and remove them to Bellevue for examination.

ADD $2,500,000 TO PAYROLL.

Baltimore & Ohio Increase Announced —Higher Rates Justified.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 1.—President Murray of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad announced to-day a readjustment of the company's payroll providing for an annual increase in the aggregate to be disbursed to employes of $2,500,000 to $3,000,000.

Mr. Murray said the company, instead of making a horizontal advance, has rewarded those employes most faithful and deserving with proportionate increases of wages and salaries. He also pointed out that the advance adds to the expenses of the company and makes it obligatory upon the railroad to add to its revenues.

"When we consider," he said, "that rates in general are very low at present, and expenses all along the line have largely increased, it would seem that the railroads of the country are perfectly justified in advancing freight rates on certain commodities. The cost of operating a railroad has largely increased the past years, while rates remained the same.

"In equipment it is estimated that during the years 1905 and 1906, as compared with the preceding half decade of 1899-1904, the increased cost to the Baltimore & Ohio for various kinds of freight cars ranged from 20 to 80 per cent."

know as witnesses of the existence of the syndicate.

Nothing that transpired in and about the office of Mr. Vandiver was half so interesting.

As stated, the account books made public by the District Attorney begin about Jan. 1, 1899. They begin to grow interesting a month or two later. Taking up the figures on May 31, when there is a record of a settlement, the profits run like this:

Profits of the Syndicate.

May 31, total, $5,596.99.

The division of this amount is given in the memorandum as follows:

C. R.	$1,199.89
G.	895.52
P.	895.52
M.	358.20
D.	2,826.36

"Grady" Got $1,764.80 This Month.

July 1, 1899—Total, $11,030; division as follows:

C. R.	$2,206.00
Grady	1,764.80
P.	1,780.00
R. H. D.	4,888.40
M. J. R.	706.00

Aug. 1, total, $4,397.50. Divided as follows:

C. R.	$879.40
T. G.	703.52
Park	703.52
M. J. R.	281.40
R. H. D.	1,829.16

Sept. 1, total, $18,379.75. Division:

C. R.	$3,675.05
T. G.	2,940.66
P.	2,940.66
M. J. R.	1,176.26
R. H. D.	876.00

In this case there is a small memorandum indicating that the money to R. H. D. is still due.

Oct. 3, 1899, total, $18,488.49.

R. H.	3,697.60
T. G.	2,958.08
J. P. R.	2,958.08
M. J. R.	1,188.23

There is some skipping of bookkeeping about this time, which seems to indicate that the poolrooms moved from a place on Mercer Street. The next place moved to, according to small entries, seems to be Broad Street. Next comes a settlement made in December, 1899. This settlement seems to have been made at the place where the raid occurred, 112 Fulton Street. This settlement was on Dec. 4, and is as follows:

More Money for "T. G."

Dec. 4, total, $6,029.09; division:

R. H. D.	$2,008.64
C. R.	1,385.93
Park	1,108.75
T. G.	1,108.75
M. J. R.	332.62

Jan. 1, 1900, total $16,205.80; division:

R. H. D.	$6,776.12
C. R.	3,233.17
P.	2,602.53
T. G.	2,965.53
M. J. R.	1,041.01

March 1, 1900, total $24,454.80; division:

R. H. D.	$6,013.21
C. R.	2,890.96
Grady	2,312.76
Park	2,312.77
M. J. R.	9,225.10

The total for March 1, 1900, is an error, but it appears in the account that way.

There is another entry next—April—which shows the poor luck month spoken of, when "T. G." only received $405.80.

"T. G.'s" Profits Up Again.

The next division occurred on July 1, 1900, when the figures are again as follows:

July 1, $22,909.59; division:

R. H. D.	$9,530.41
C. R.	4,581.91
T. G.	2,983.53
M. J. R.	1,466.21

Thus the profits rose or fell from month to month. January, 1901, gave the poolroom men a profit of $28,215.09, in which month "T. G." got $4,250. His profits after that in the records of the books frequently run up to above that amount.

Between the entries in 1900 and 1906 and beyond that date up to the present the District Attorney also has a list of the actions of the syndicate, but he would not reveal them for the reason that has already been given, namely, that they are not barred by the Statute of Limitations. This was generally understood to mean that Mr. Jerome might want to use these facts in presenting the case to the Grand Jury. All that he would say on the subject was:

Chance to Put Some One in Jail.

"I cannot give you these figures because they are not barred by the Statute of Limitations."

Mr. Jerome also has the clearing house sheet of the syndicate. This gives a great many names which he would not disclose. They are for small amounts, and it is not clear whether these are the records of amounts paid to winers or not. They seem to be. On this sheet the two words "Sen. G." frequently appear.

The records of the moving of the poolroom men from place to place Mr. Jerome seemed to remember because he smiled when he came to these memoranda. The reporters remembered them, too, because of raids which were made at these places. There is an abundence of evidence, however, showing that when the raids were made only the tributary, or branches of the sydicate, were touched, although in one instance Mr. Jerome was pretty near the fountain head in one of his raids, but did not seem to know it then.

A $500 Grady Deposit Slip.

Besides the disclosure of the account books of the poolroom enough was learned from Assistant District Attorney Vandiver to indicate that, through the efforts of Safe Breaker Wood, strong evidence has been obtained. He has, for example, quite a bunch of deposit slips, such as was found in the safe at No. 112, showing a credit of $500 to Senator Grady. Not everybody seems to understand what these deposit slips mean, and Mr. Vandiver took the trouble to explain, although he would not say how many he had or to whose credit the money had been deposited. These credit slips, in a word show that a man has deposited a certain amount in a bank to the credit of another man.

To show that the depositor actually did deposit that amount for the other man he gets the deposit slip. Often they are destroyed after the two men have had an understanding with one another—over the 'phone or by other means. In this case some of them were kept. They will show who got the money out of the profits of the concern, and will come pretty close to the man "higher up."

Mr. Vandiver also received yesterday a great bunch of check vouchers from the banks with whom the syndicate did business, showing beyond doubt to whom the large amounts of money were paid.

The Grand Jury will meet to-morrow, when many of the men subpoenaed will appear before it. On that day also the preliminary hearing of the poolroom men under arrest will take place.

Among themen who are wanted as witnesses to aid in the prosecution of the poolrooms is also a Magistrate, whose identity Assistant District Attorney Vandiver would not disclose.

WANT LOWER CANDLE POWER.

Gas Companies' Experts Don't Agree with the State Commission.

ALBANY, April 1.—It was announced to-day at the office of the State Gas Commissioner that it had received from a committee of experts representing the gas companies of the State of be affected, a report regarding a standard of candle power for coal, water, and mixed gas supplied by the companies in this State.

It is the intention of the State Commission to establish a candle-power standard by official order, and at the hearing given to the representatives of the companies a few weeks ago it was suggested by the commission that possibly a standard of 16 candle power for coal gas, 18 for mixed gas, and 20 for water gas would be decided upon.

The gas companies asked the commission for a little time to have experts report a standard which would be agreeable to all the companies concerned.

The committee of experts fixed upon standards of one candle power lower in each case than the State Commission had suggested.

HARRIMAN TO BUILD IN FIFTH AVENUE

He Has Acquired a Plot on the Northeast Corner of Fifty-second Street.

J. H. SMITH HAD OWNED IT

He Sold It to Commodore Bourne, However, After Buying the Whitney Residence.

E. H. Harriman will build a handsome residence at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street, where he has just bought a plot 50 by 180 feet. For this site, which was originally part of the old Hotel Langham property, Mr. Harriman pays about $700,000. The purchase was made from Frederick G. Bourne, President of the Singer Manufacturing Company, through Broker John N. Golding.

The sale of this property to Mr. Harriman will mark the fourth transfer since the Langham was torn down about four years ago.

When it became known that the Shannon heirs had decided to sell the Langham, the Vanderbilts, headed by William Douglas Sloane, stepped in and bought the property for $1,200,000, fearing that it might fall into unfriendly hands and be made the site of a huge apartment house or hotel, directly opposite their mansions. The entire Langham plot measured 130 feet on Fifth Avenue and 115 feet on Fifty-second Street.

Soon afterward the late James Henry Smith, who was then looking around for the site for a fine residence in which he might give greater force to his claims to social prominence, went to the Vanderbilts and paid them $650,000 for the plot, 50 by 130, on the immediate corner.

Before Mr. Smith could have plans prepared for his new house, William C. Whitney died, and Mr. Smith took advantage of the opportunity to obtain, for about $2,000,000, the Whitney mansion at Fifth Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street, together with many of its costly furnishings and works of art. The Fifty-second Street corner then was of no further use to him and he promptly sold it to Mr. Bourne for $500,000—pocketing a loss of $50,000 on the deal. The rest of the old Langham plot is still owned by the Vanderbilts.

Mr. Harriman now lives at 11 East Sixty-second Street, a six-story, forty-five-foot house, which he occupies under lease from Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri.

PETERS ENJOINS LEAGUE.

Accused Alderman Stops Move of Hearst Organization to Expel Him.

When the General Committee of the Kings County Independence League met last night at the Imperial Assembly Rooms on Fulton Street, Brooklyn, for the purpose of taking action toward expelling Alderman Henry Clay Peters, the Chairman announced that Peters had obtained a temporary injunction late yesterday afternoon from Supreme Court Justice Thomas, in Brooklyn, restraining the committee from acting. It is returnable on Wednesday.

Alderman Peters, who is a members of the Independence League General Committee, is one of the men involved in the bribery charges in the election of a Recorder.

The committee decided last night to send a lawyer to court on Wednesday to oppose the motion to make the injunction permanent.

Massachusetts Overtime Bill Passed.

BOSTON, April 1.—The Overtime bill, which prohibits the employment of women and children in textile establishments between 6 P. M. and 6 A. M., was passed, to be enacted in the Massachusetts House of Representatives to-day. The measure now goes to the Senate.

WHOLE FAMILY FLOGGED.

Man and Three Women Victims of Virginia Whitecaps.

Special to The New York Times.

ROANOKE, Va., April 1.—News has just reached this city of a white-capping affair in Franklin County, near Rocky Mount, Va. A body of masked men visited the home of John W. Enedy, took the entire family, consisting of Enedy, his wife, his mother, and his wife's sister, out of their beds, carried them for some distance into the woods, partially stripped the women, and entirely stripped the man, after which all of them were whipped with rawhides until their backs were lacerated.

The victims were then untied and warned that the entire family must leave the county, after which the masked marauders disappeared in the darkness. None of their assailants could be recognized. The family had been unwelcome in the community for some time.

Oakland Racing Season Extended.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—President Thomas H. Williams of the New California Jockey Club to-day announced that the season at Oakland would be extended six weeks longer than originally scheduled. The meet will run until June 22 instead of May 11.

A SALE OF SILKS.

MAIN FLOOR.

A really unprecedented sale of Silks in infinite variety, priced at less than to-day's wholesale cost!

THE trade has been notified of another forthcoming raise in prices on Silks of the better grades—the raise is to be put through to meet a material increase in manufacturing cost.

It is only natural that this will have an effect immediately on the retail prices of Silks, and consequently to day's regular prices are to be considered economically low.

But in face of this, we offer, beginning to-day and continuing while the lots we have last, Silks of the most desirable qualities and in the newest shades at prices brought about through special purchases early in the year that are actually as low, and in many instances lower, than the wholesale cost of such Silks to-day.

WE warn you that Silk prices are to take a sharp advance, and that even if this weren't to be figured, the following pricing on Silks makes it absolutely imperative that dressmakers, costumers, and in fact every woman who has any immediate or future need for Silk should take advantage of this really unprecedented Silk sale.

7,500 yards of 75c quality Newest Colored Taffeta at 59c

ACTUALLY, to-day's price to the trade! On this one particular grade of Silk alone, we offer you a saving in the face of a sharp price advance that is absolutely sensational for the beginning of so markedly a Silk season as this.

PLAN FOR SPECIAL PEACE CONFERENCE

Proposal That Only Great Powers Shall Discuss Limitation of Armaments.

A NEW HAGUE PROGRAMME

Revised List of Subjects Submitted by Russia—America Said to Oppose Naval Limitation.

ROME, April 1.—The Giornale d'Italia prints with reserve a statement that Signor Tittoni, the Italian Foreign Minister, is sounding Vienna in an effort to learn if Austria-Hungary is ready to join Italy in a proposition to postpone the discussion of the question of the limitation of armaments at The Hague Conference and bring up the matter before another special conference, to which only the great Powers shall send delegates.

The Giornale d'Italia publishes an interview with Prince Bulow, the German Imperial Chancellor, who had a long conference yesterday with Signor Tittoni at Rapolla. In the course of the interview the Prince said:

"Italy and Germany are bound to solid friendship. Their alliance serves admirably to maintain peace and preserve the territorial status quo in Europe. The two countries have no conflicting interests, while their mutual interests serve to unite them more closely."

BERLIN, April 1.—The Russian Government has submitted to the principal powers, confidentially, a revised programme of the subjects to be discussed at the approaching peace conference at The Hague. Correspondence in this connection between the Russian Foreign Office and the Foreign Offices of the powers continues, the object being to reach an agreement in advance of communication with the minor Governments.

Great Britain has not formulated a precise plan for the limitation of armaments, and seems unwilling to do so. Nevertheless, it is considered most probable that a discussion of the limitation of armaments will find a place in the programme, owing to Great Britain's insistence.

The precise position of Germany will not be disclosed until the programme is finally decided upon, but the assertions made in London that Germany will withdraw from the conference rather than have the question of the limitation of armaments discussed are unfounded.

The United States, it is understood, will reserve its decision regarding participation in a discussion of the armaments question, the general view at Washington being. It is asserted here, that as the United States is outside the European system it is not in a position to urge the Continental powers to reduce or arrest their land armaments, while upon the subject of naval armaments the authorities at Washington appear to be indisposed to cease their development.

BE PATIENT, SAYS THE POPE.

Americans Who Want Another Cardinal Will Be Satisfied Later.

ROME, April 1.—The disappointment of a large number of Americans at the fact that there is not an American among the prelates who are to be created Cardinals at the Consistory of April 15 has been brought to the attention of the Pope, who said:

"Let them have patience; they will be satisfied later. The number of red hats is limited while the candidates are many."

The Pontiff said he appreciated the situation in the United States and the progress that Catholicism had made there, and that he would soon give these circumstances due consideration.

HOLY SEE'S LIST OF ERRORS.

Document Similar to Syllabus of Pius IX. Approaching Completion.

ROME, April 1.—Work on a document which will point out the errors that have been condemned at various times by the Popes since the Syllabus of Pius IX., published in 1864, is approaching completion.

Although the Vatican does not wish this document to be called a new syllabus, it is evident that the two productions will have much similarity and that the new document will cause as much discussion as did the syllabus of 1864.

POPE TO ROOSEVELT.

Asks Mr. and Mrs. Robinson to Convey His Most Affectionate Regards.

ROME, April 1.—The Pope to-day received in private audience Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson of New York, who were presented by Bishop O'Gorman of Sioux Falls.

The Pontiff asked his visitors to convey to President Roosevelt his most affectionate regards.

Friends of Russia In Need of Funds.

The Friends of Russian Freedom, a society organized to arouse American public opinion in favor of establishing a representative Government in Russia, is in need of funds to carry on its work of distributing literature and of arranging a series of public meetings to be held in the principal American cities, at which addresses will be delivered by prominent Russians. Remittances will be received by Treasurer William Jay Schieffelin, 500 Fifth Avenue.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

MADRID, April 1.—Owing to the inability of Queen Victoria to participate in public functions, it is announced that the visit to Madrid of King Edward and Queen Alexandra will be postponed until the Autumn.

LYONS, April 1.—The Independent Socialist Congress to-day adopted unanimously resolutions condemning anti-militarism, direct, violent action against capitalists, and general strikes, as being dangerous to the interests of the working people. The Congress came to a close after voting adhesion to the doctrines of the International Socialist Bureau in so far as these do not run counter to complete political autonomy. Every country represented at the Congress voted in favor of female suffrage.

VIENNA, April 1.—The Second Secretary of the American Embassy here, Francis G. Landon of New York, has resigned for personal reasons, and will return to America in May. The Military Attache, Major McClintock, will leave Vienna after being received in farewell audience by Emperor Francis Joseph. It is believed that the American Military Attache at Berlin, Col. Wisser, will also be accredited to Vienna.

MADRID, April 1.—The reports that the Queen Mother, Maria Christina, is seriously ill are without foundation. The illness of the Queen Mother has been grossly exaggerated. She has merely been suffering from a slight feverish catarrh, from which she has almost entirely recovered.

ROUMANIAN LOOTERS SHOT.

136,000 Troops Under Arms—System of Drives Adopted.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, April 1.—According to official information the military operations are proceeding satisfactorily in the western districts. No further cases of incendiarism or revolt are reported.

The troops now under arms number 136,000. In the military zones into which the revolted districts are divided a system of "drives" has been adopted similar to that practiced by the British troops in the South African war.

Persons found looting or seting fire to buildings are immediately shot. Great numbers of arrests have been made by the troops—more than 300 in the district of Roman alone.

NO DETAILS FROM BITLIS.

Report of Severe Earthquake Received in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 1.—The report that a severe earthquake has occurred at Bitlis, Turkish Armenia, appears to be confirmed, but the number of casualties is unknown.

Beyond a brief message from the missionaries at Bitlis reporting that the town is badly damaged; that they are homeless, and that their people are encamped in the snow, which in places is twenty-five feet deep, no news of the disaster has reached this city.

LONDON, April 1.—The situation of Bitlis, which is built on a rocky slope, with houses constructed of stone, having flat earthen roofs, causes fear here that a great amount of damage has been done. Bitlis is a picturesque, densely populated town, having but few Europeans among the population. A British Vice Consul is stationed there, but at present he is absent on leave.

Instructions have already been sent to the local authorities to afford relief to the inhabitants, but there is no doubt that outside help is needed.

Officials here of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions said yesterday that there were at least four American missionaries at Bitlis—the Rev. and Mrs. Royal M. Cole and the Misses Charlotte E. and Mary A. C. Ely. They added that they believed Mr. and Mrs. Cole had a family.

From other sources it is learned that Dr. Herbert L. Underwood and Miss Nellie A. Cole were probably in Bitlis at the time of the earthquake. They are connected with the work of the American Board.

The American Board's station at Bitlis was established in 1859. There are as a rule on the staff one missionary and his wife, three women assistants, and twenty-nine native workers, men and women. The principal structure at the station was a girls' boarding school, which was conducted by the Misses Ely.

MOUNT OF OLIVES HOSPITAL.

Foundation Stone of German Institution Laid—Cheers for Kaiser.

JERUSALEM, April 1.—The foundation stone of the new German hospital on the Mount of Olives was laid yesterday afternoon in the presence of the Governor of Jerusalem, the other local officials, and many spectators.

Cheers were given for Emperor William and for the Sultan of Turkey, who gave the land and authorized the construction of the hospital. Dr. Dryander, the Court chaplain at Berlin, represented Emperor William, and Baron von Mirbach represented the Empress.

Dr. Dryander read a telegram from the Emperor greeting the Germans, the local authorities, and the representatives of other nations and faiths who attended the ceremony, and invoking the blessing of the Almighty on the hospital.

TO CANONIZE PIUS IX.

The Entire Proceedings May Take a Century.

ROME, April 1.—An ecclesiastical "process" looking to the beatification and finally the canonization of Pope Pius IX., who was elected in 1846 and died in 1878, has been begun in the Diocese of Sinigaglia, where Pope Pius was born, and will be continued in the Diocese of Imola, where he served as Bishop.

The "process" starts with inquiries and the examination of witnesses. The entire proceedings are very long, in some cases lasting for a full century.

ABRUZZI SAILS FOR AMERICA.

Leaves Spezia on the Varese—Going to Newport News and Jamestown.

SPEZIA, April 1.—The Duke of the Abruzzi left here to-day on board the cruiser Vnrese for Newport News.

The Varese will be one of the warships to represent Italy at the opening of the Jamestown Exposition.

MOORS WELCOME FRENCH.

Tribesmen Announce That They Will Send 800 Sheep to Oudja.

LALLA MARNIA, Algeria, April 1.—In view of the satisfactory condition that prevails in the Oudja region Gen. Lautey, the commander of the French column of occupation, has decided to turn over the command of Oudja to Gen. Delanneau and to return to his regular duties at Oran. He will leave Oudja to-morrow.

The Bodamama tribesmen, who are encamped in the Oudja district, have expressed much satisfaction with the French occupation and have announced their intention of sending 800 sheep to the Oudja market. This is an indication of the confidence inspired among the frontier tribesmen by France's manifestation of power.

TANGIER, April 1.—The most alarming rumors are current in connection with the Sultan's reception of the news of the occupation of Oudja by the French troops.

These, however, are not based on facts, as it is impossible for the Fez courier to return here before to-morrow.

CHILE PARTIAL TO US.

George Duval Says There Has Been No Dispute Over Embassy Matter.

Concerning the published report that the delay on the part of Chile in appointing a new Minister to Washington was due to an offended feeling that our Senate opposed the project of the Administration to advance our legation in Chile to an embassy, George L. Duval, who has just returned from Chile, said yesterday that there was no such feeling.

Notwithstanding the prosperity of Chile, Mr. Duval said, the conservative element deemed it wise to retrench in the matter of expenses of foreign representation after the earthquake of August last. The curtailment of representation in Europe was resolved upon, and a willingness at the same time to advance the rank of its representative in Washington is the best evidence of friendly sentiment. The delay in naming a Minister was due to the Embassy bill then pending in Congress. Subject to the enactment of that law, the Dean of the Chilean Diplomatic Service was named as the first Ambassador.

Mr. Duval says that much enthusiasm was displayed over Secretary Root's visit to Chile, and it has had very beneficial results.

DUMA DISCUSSING AGRARIAN PROBLEM

Is Forced to Consider the Question as a Concession to the Peasants.

ULTIMATUM BY CABINET

Principle of Inviolability of Property Must Be Maintained, Says Minister of Agriculture.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 1.—The discussion of the agrarian problem, to which the first Russian Parliament almost entirely devoted its legislative activity, began in the lower house to-day. Over 100 speakers immediately signified their intention of participating in the debate, to which, according to the plans of the Parliamentary leaders, only one day a week will be devoted.

The question is considered to be of far less importance now than it was last year. Neither the Constitutional Democrats nor the Socialists have much expectation of arriving at practical results in the course of the life of the present Parliament. They are convinced that any measure involving the compulsory expropriation of land, which is the basic principle of all the Liberal solutions, will immediately be vetoed by the Emperor and be regarded by the Cabinet as justification for the dissolution of Parliament.

The House was forced to begin the discussion of the agrarian problem as a concession to the peasant constituents of many of the members. Each political party has put forward three or four spokesmen, but the great mass of the speakers are to be peasants, whose remarks will contribute but little to a solution of the question. The real work will mainly be done by the committee to which the various projects will be referred.

The project of the Constitutional Democrats, which was introduced to-day, is practically identical with last year's. It involves the compulsory expropriation of all estates above established maximums to be determined in each province by commissions created for this purpose. This bill contemplates individual ownership, whereas the project of the Group of Toil, which also was introduced to-day, proposes the nationalization of all the land in the empire.

The first speaker to-day was Prince D. N. Sviatopolk-Mirsky, a Monarchist and land owner of Bessarabia and a relative of ex-Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky. He made a long speech in defense of individual property, quoting liberally from American and English authorities on the subject.

Prince Vassilchikoff, Minister of Agriculture, speaking on behalf of the Cabinet, outlined the Government's agrarian programme, laying down as an ultimatum the maintenance of the principle of the inviolability of private property. The expropriation of land, he added, was permissible, but only in exceptional cases.

Prince Vassilchikoff promised a series of measures increasing the quantity and raising the level of the cultivation of the peasants' lands.

BULGARIAN RAID IN SERVIA.

Seven Men Reported Killed and Thirty Houses Burned.

BELGRADE, April 1.—It is reported here that a band of Bulgarians has attacked the old Servian towns of Rudnik and Topolcha, burning thirty houses, killing seven men, and maltreating a number of women and children.

Increasing bitterness is being displayed here toward the Bulgarians owing to the belief that, while the powers have called the attention of the Governments of Servia and Greece to the atrocities perpetrated by Servian and Greek bands, they have made no protest to the Bulgarian Government against the actions of Bulgarian bands.

BONILLA MAY SURRENDER.

United States Warships Ordered to Amapala, Where He Is Surrounded.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—President Bonilla of Honduras is still surrounded at Amapala, according to dispatches received to-day at the State Department, and his surrender is expected at any time.

At the instance of the State Department, instructions have been cabled to the American warships on the west side of the Isthmus to proceed at once to Amapala. The gunboat Princeton is at Corinto, about sixty-five miles distant from Amapala, and the cruiser Chicago is at Acajutla, about 135 miles away, and it is left to the respective commanders to determine which ship shall first respond to the department's call.

Dean R. Wood, the American Consul at Celba, Honduras, who has just arrived in Washington from Central America, was in conference to-day with various State Department officials concerning the war situation in the Central American republics.

Mr. Wood was in Celba when the American gunboat Marietta landed troops there, and says a warship was never more heartily welcomed anywhere. The arrival of the vessel and the landing of the party of bluejackets sent to guard the American Consulate and preserve order in the city restored the confidence of the panic-stricken public.

Puerto Cortez and Celba were not taken by the Nicaraguans, according to Mr. Wood, but are in sympathy with the movement against President Bonilla and ready to join with any army which seeks his overthrow. The war is said by Mr. Wood to be largely personal and directed against Bonilla and his advisers. Mr. Wood says the victories of the revolutionists, assisted by the Nicaraguans, are not regarded as engagements in a war of Nicaraguan conquest. The Hondurans cherish their independence and would not assist in any war which would result in ending their republic, but the sentiment against Bonilla became so strong that any means of effecting his overthrow was heartily welcomed by his enemies.

Mr. Wood says the war on the north coast of Honduras was conducted with great fairness. The property of foreigners was not molested, and the only loss which foreign property owners have suffered so far has come about through the lack of labor, due to the drafting of able-bodied men into the army. When the Nicaraguans landed their large force at Trujillo there were orders against plundering, and the commanding officers paid for the supplies they needed for their forces.

SUE JACKSON FOR DEBTS.

Shoemaker and Printers Say the Attorney General Owes Them.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, April 1.—Two suits against Attorney General William S. Jackson have been entered in the Municipal Court in the last few days by creditors.

George F. Welck, a West Side shoe dealer, alleges that Jackson owes him $90 on a long-standing bill. Welck says he has industriously endeavored to collect the debt, but has failed. The Wenborne-Sumner Company seeks a judgment for $42 for printing in the last campaign, which resulted in Jackson's election.

The Lake Champlain Tercentenary.

OTTAWA, April 1.—Horace W. Bailey and L. Hays of Burlington, Vt., interviewed Sir Wilfrid Laurier to-day and asked him to attend the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain in July, 1909, and also to obtain the co-operation of Canada in the celebration. Sir Wilfrid said that as he was about to leave for England very soon he would not make any definite promise, but he viewed the matter very favorably.

Evenly Balanced in A Double Usefulness

Loeser Player-pianos.

FOR the trained pianist these instruments are superb Pianos, responsive, easy of action, rich toned and durable. That is one side of the balance.

For the untrained lover of music they are—just by opening a slide in front and letting down the pedals—Pianos which anyone can play by aid of perforated music rolls. That is the other side of the balance.

These instruments have thus a double usefulness. They are two Pianos in one. They open the door of music to everyone. They should be in every home—and they are fast getting into many homes where the hunger for good music was never satisfied before.

Does it seem impossible that you, who perhaps do not know one note from another, can sit down at the Piano now—to-day—and play well?

Does it seem impossible that after a few weeks of practice—perhaps only a few hours, if you are apt—you cannot only play, but play with expression, interpreting the music in a way to give delight to all who listen?

It is not impossible. It is fact. It is done every day by owners of the wonderful Player-pianos.

These instruments—the Reiman, Heller and Loeser Player-pianos—are sold exclusively by the Loeser Store. They are priced from $500 to $900.

We will make the terms of payment easy, if you wish—so easy that you will feel them no tax at all, and you can have and enjoy the Player-piano while you are paying for it. We will also take all ordinary makes of Pianos in exchange at a fair valuation.

Investigate the matter now. Come in and see for yourself how wonderful these instruments are.

The Embroidered Unmade Robes in Colors Are Flying Out.

PALE BLUE, OR PINK, OR LILAC, or ecru mull, daintily embroidered in eyelet or solid effect in white or self color—they are so pretty that we can't keep them on the counters. They are snapped up as soon as shown. The prices are half the secret—between $13 and $25, and when one considers how very simple it is to put together one of these lovely, almost-ready frocks, $13 to $25 is very little indeed for a costume that will be so rich and distinguished when completed.

Sheer white Robes, ready to put together, are here in the best assortment in Brooklyn. The range is enormous—as high as $78 for an elaborate imported Robe, and for a pretty Robe of lawn, daintily trimmed with lace and embroidery in flounce effect, as low as $8.98.

$12.98 to $60 Linen Robes, $8.98 to $37.50.

All reduced now for quick selling. Some of the handsomest patterns we have had are in the lot. The linens are from medium heavy to sheer handkerchief weights, and with each embroidered skirt portion comes enough material for a blouse or little jacket.

ALDERMAN NOONAN FREE.

Court Dismisses Charge of Assaulting a Special Policeman.

Cornelius D. Noonan, the Municipal ownership Alderman, who was arrested on Sunday night, charged with assaulting Special Policeman Dooley, was discharged by Magistrate Finelite in the Harlem Court yesterday.

Dooley testified that he had arrested Arthur Thornton for acting in a disorderly manner, and that when he returned to the New Star Theatre, where he is stationed, Alderman Noonan asked him why he had arrested Thornton. There was a row, and, according to Dooley, the Alderman struck him.

Noonan told the Magistrate the policeman had used bad language, and that he had been subjected to great humiliation.

Policeman Sackett testified that he had seen no blows struck, and a witness for Noonan declared that the Alderman had been treated in a "shameful" manner.

BELLEW'S NEW PLAY CHOCK FULL OF MORAL

With "Construction, Characterization, and Dialogue" by J. Hartley Manners.

"A MARRIAGE OF REASON"

Every Kind of Play but a Good Play, in Which Mr. Bellew Labors Earnestly.

Rita Forrest	Miss Fannie Ward
Lady Ratcliffe	Miss Julia Dean
Mrs. Ellison	Miss Margaret Fuller
Mrs. Belmont-Taylor	Miss Maude Ream Stover
Nurse	Mrs. Minnie Storey
Captain Ellison	Frederic De Belleville
Lionel Meredyth	Conway Tearle
Tony	Master Richard Storey
Ben	J. K. Adams
Groom	R. L. Smith
Parker	C. Russell Sage
Lord Delcombe	Kyrle Bellew

Mr. J. Hartley Manners is a brave man. On the programme at Wallack's he modestly announces that "the story of 'A Marriage of Reason' is founded on a novel by Mrs. Arthur Kennard," adding that the "construction, characterization, and entire dialogue" are his. That, at any rate, lets Mrs. Kennard down easily. Whether the author was imbued with the same kindly intention toward Mr. Kyrle Bellew and the other actors in the cast when he made one of his characters say, "You have got us all into a pretty mess," cannot be asserted so positively. But it undoubtedly describes the situation.

Mr. Manners's play is chockful of dialogue; also of morals. The characterizations are not quite so apparent. But one could never be in doubt of the morals. For instance, one learned that if an English gentleman of title divorces his wife because of an unjust suspicion and without allowing her to make an explanation she will be unhappy for a time, but he will be able eventually to marry a rich American heiress whose father's money will replenish his depleted purse. Also one learns that if a man has "bought his wife with false coin" and if their "marriage is a mockery" they will be happy in the end if he only has patience enough to wait. But the lesson of all others that projects itself with most force is that no real gentleman and no real lady will ever forget to dress for dinner.

In the third act of "A Marriage of Reason" the husband and his second wife are anxiously awaiting news of their little boy who has come a cropper from his pony and who is lying critically ill. Several doctors are in attendance and "the worst" is expected. The first wife—the boy's mother—has been summoned at the little fellow's request. The tension is something fearful. One knows that, because everybody says so. But "mother" comes from the bedside in a gorgeous "creation," decolette, as if ready for the opera, and father is in immaculate evening dress. One feels like mentioning these little things because they give at least a suggestion of what "A Marriage of Reason" is like. And to give an adequate description of this play is a task which only those who have seen it can appreciate.

Rita Forrest, heiress from Chicago, agrees to marry Lord Delcombe. He has a title and nothing else. They agree to make it a "marriage of reason," as neither feels any sentimental yearning for the other. Lord Delcombe has previously divorced a wife. His nephew, who is a poet, is in love with Miss Forrest. Mrs. Ellison, wife of an army officer, takes a friendly interest in Delcombe. Capt. Ellison has persistently neglected his wife, but is insanely jealous of her.

The heroic Delcombe is magnanimous to both men. He can see everybody's folly but his own. He makes a man of the poet, which is really doing something. For such a thing seems beyond hoping for. Before he is through he also succeeds in making the jealous husband ashamed of his folly. He is a veritable Mr. Fixit, and as he is Mr. Kyrle Bellew, it may be truthfully said that he is consistently graceful and charming, even when the playwright makes him seem most impossible.

By the time the best clothes appear one is prepared for anything, even the visit to the hero's room of the sentimental but innocent woman, whose husband bursts in a few moments later to denounce her and the man he believes has betrayed him. Your only interest then is in finding out what is to become of the divorced wife, as it has long since appeared to everybody except the principals to the match that the marriage of reason has really developed into a marriage of love. Then wife No. 1 calmly remarks that her boy is out of danger and she has received a telegram from her husband to come home. And you discover that you have been "sold again." She, too, had found her consolation.

Mr. Manners's play is all kinds of a play except a good play.

Mr. Bellew's earnestness, his polish, and his air of good breeding enable him to create a certain degree of interest in the central figure despite the absurdity of the situations in which he is placed, but the others labor to little purpose. Presumably Miss Fanny Ward is a novice and will do better in time. Miss Julia Dean can be sincere on occasion, but she is wholly artificial in this play. Mr. De Belleville provides one bright spot in the last act in a scene which is wholly out of key, but which he acts very excellently.

CARLE LIVELY AS HIS CHICKEN

Actor's All Fools' Day Joke on Train a Boomerang—He Wasn't Hurt.

Richard Carle appeared once more in "The Spring Chicken" last night at Daly's Theatre. Alice Hageman took the eccentric comedy rôle formerly played by Emma Janvier.

Mr. Carle, when seen in his dressing room, was manifestly unscathed and denied the telegraphic story that he had been injured on Sunday night while traveling with his company from Chicago to New York. It seems that Mr. Carle, thinking to play a joke on his fellow-travelers, left his car at a way station and started to board the locomotive.

As he clambered into the cab he dropped his glasses, and as he is very near-sighted, scrambled down again to pick them up. The train was going faster than he appreciated, and he just caught the rear platform of the last car as it went by. The door was locked, and he had to spend a couple of hours in the cold.

When the next station was reached and he got inside again he took something to warm him and went straight to bed. His managers would not permit him to be disturbed at Harrisburg, and the incident was misinterpreted.

NOVELLI AS KEAN.

Italian Actor Starts His Final Week with Elder Dumas's Play.

Plays about actors have always been more or less popular with the players themselves, providing as they do a fine opportunity for the thespian's exaltation of his own profession. The public, too, has often responded to the romance of the theatre as it is set forth in such plays where the actor-hero almost always shows his superiority to the common run of mortals against whose prejudice he must struggle in order to realize upon his one grand passion. With "Garrick" played by a long line of actors the English stage has long ben familiar, and the elder Dumas's "Kean," florid, verbose, and sentimental as it is, has been no stranger in New York. Under the title of "The Royal Box," the late Charles Coghlan acted it for several seasons.

The play served Signor Novelli at the Lyric last night. "Kean" is a part in which the romantic actor can best shine, but the Italian has enough of enthusiasm, and of romantic feeling to suggest the effective stage figure intended by the author. The revival of the old play provided a pleasant occasion for Novelli's admirers, and as usual they were lavish with their demonstrations of approval.

STOCK PLAYS AT LINCOLN SQ.

The William Morris Company Opens with "When We Were Twenty-One."

The William Morris stock company opened last night at the Lincoln Square Theatre with a presentation of Henry V. Esmond's "When We Were Twenty-one." A considerable audience was present to witness the inauguration of the stock company.

William Morris appeared as Richard Carew. The Imp, the cause of all the trouble and centre of affection, was played by Jack Storey. The leading feminine rôle was performed by Blanche Stoddard, and Mary Lawton was seen as the Firefly.

YALE BOYS IN IBSEN PLAY.

"The Pretenders" Produced in Elaborate Fashion by Dramatic Association

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 1.—Henrik Ibsen's five-act drama of Norwegian history, 'The Pretenders," was given to-day at the Parsons Theatre by the Yale University Dramatic Association. It will present the play to-morrow evening at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

The production was under the direction of Frank Lea Short, and was a decided success. The play is well staged, and appropriately costumed. The speaking parts number about twenty, and the company numbered about seventy-five.

The play deals with the assumption in the thirteenth century of the Norse throne by King Haakon, whose title has been established by his mother Ingar. The pretenders gather to see Haakon win the right to the title, which he does in spite of Earl Skule, the mightiest of the pretenders, and Nicholas, Bishop of Oslo.

The chief rôles were taken by these students: Haakon, G. L. Stuart; Ingar, C. T. Crocker; Earl Skule, Thomas Achsila; Lady Ragnhild, D. W. Porter; Sigrid, S. C. Rand; Margrete, T. L. Riggs; Nicholas, C. R. Hopkins.

MRS. CARTER PLAYS AGAIN.

She Gets a Warm Reception in "Du Barry" at Norfolk.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., April 1.—For the first time since she left the management of David Belasco, Mrs. Leslie Carter appeared on the stage to-night. She played at the Academy of Music in "Du Barry." Many army and navy officers were present.

Mrs. Carter was repeatedly encored. The Academy was sold out long before the curtain went up, and other houses along her route are sold out.

NEW LOUISVILLE THEATRE.

The Mary Anderson Is Opened with Ceremony.

LOUISVILLE, April 1.—The Mary Anderson Theatre was opened to-night in the presence of an audience which crowded the handsome new playhouse. Gen. John B. Castleman made the presentation address and De Wolf Hopper, whose company gave "Happyland" as the opening attraction, spoke.

It was distinctly a "Mary Anderson" night, and every mention of the actress's name or recital of incidents of her girlhood days in Louisville by Gen. Castleman, was received with prolonged applause.

The theatre, which is under the direction of the Shubert Brothers, is fireproof, the only wood used being in the stage floor and the doors.

OVATION TO MISS FARRAR.

Opera Singer Welcomed Back to Her Home State.

BOSTON, April 1.—It has been many years since an operatic star has received such a welcome from a Boston audience as that accorded to-night to Miss Geraldine Farrar, who, after an absence of seven years, returned to her home State to sing in grand opera. Miss Farrar appeared to-night as Marguerite in "Faust," with the Metropolitan Opera Company. She was enthusiastically greeted during her brief appearance in the first act, and at the close of the second act was recalled many times, the last one to receive a great floral display sent to the stage by her admirers.

LOOKING FOR MISS YAW.

Mr. Hammerstein Wants to Engage Soprano with the High Range.

Oscar Hammerstein is searching for Ellen Beach Yaw, in an attempt to add her to his list of singers for the last two weeks of the opera at the Manhattan. It is his intention in the last fortnight, if it can be arranged, to present an opera every night, and to do this he will need to add to his list of singers. He will also probably engage a basso to assist Mr. Arimondi.

Miss Yaw is a soprano who is famous for her phenomenal range. She is somewhere in the West at present.

Mme. Calvé will probably appear in "La Navarraise" on next Monday evening and in "Carmen" on the following Wednesday. It is likely that "La Navarraise" will be given twice, and Mme. Calvé will make her last appearance in "Cavalleria" according to present plans.

Miss Grey to Aid Bide-a-Wee Home.

Miss Katherine Grey will give a special matinée of "The Beckoning," now running at the Berkeley Lyceum Theatre, in aid of the Bide-a-Wee home for animals on next Friday afternoon. Miss Grey voluntarily offered to give the performance because of her great interest in animals and the work of the home. The Secretary will provide tickets for the performance at the home, at 143 West Thirty-eighth Street. Some of the best-known women in New York City are actively interested in the work of the Bide-a-Wee. In the season prominent actors and actresses frequently contribute their best efforts to assist the work.

Students in Successful Burlesque.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—The Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania offered as its annual theatrical production to-night at the Chestnut Street Opera House the operatic burlesque "Herr Lohengrin." The book by William Ernst tells how the kingdom of Brabant has been impoverished by the theft of the goose that lays the golden eggs. "Elsie from Chelsea," the daughter of Mother Goose, is accused of stealing the bird. Herr Lohengrin comes to the rescue of Elsie and brings forth the supposed goose, which at an inopportune time is shown to be a gander. The play is a great success.

"The Mills of the Gods" Moves.

The production of "The Mills of the Gods," by George Broadhurst, formerly seen at the Astor Theatre, moved last night to the Manhattan. "The Mills of the Gods" succeeds "Mrs. Warren's Profession" at the Manhattan, and will probably be the last play to be offered there before the theatre is demolished by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Return of the "Social Whirl."

Charles J. Ross began a New York return engagement last night at the Majestic Theatre in "The Social Whirl." Elizabeth Brice appeared in the rôle of Violet Dare, formerly played by Adele Ritchie, and Maude Raymond was seen in her effective old negro character, singing "Bill Simmons."

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The twenty-five-hundredth performance of Gen. Lew Wallace's "Ben-Hur" will be observed at the Academy of Music this evening by the distribution of copies of a special edition of the novel illustrated with scenes from the play. Klaw & Erlanger, in conjunction with Gilmore & Tompkins, have arranged an after-theatre supper on the stage for the company and invited guests.

A performance in French will be offered at the Hudson Theatre on Friday afternoon for the benefit of the Friendly Aid Settlement. The entertainment is to be a comedy, entitled "Chateau Historique," by Alexandre Bisson and Berr de Turique. The presentation will be arranged by the Cercle Dramatique de l'Alliance Francaise.

Rose Stahl has just completed a play and has named it "The Answer." The play is said to be as modern as Miss Stahl's performance in "The Chorus Lady."

"As You Like It," produced in the modern manner, was the offering by the Ben Greet Company last night at the Garden Theatre. The bill for to-night is "Much Ado About Nothing."

HAWTREY MAKES HIT IN A NEW PLAY

Real Star in "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott" at the Astor Theatre.

STORY OF A STATE SECRET

Much-Married Woman Who Had Been Named in a Scandal Involving a Sovereign.

Senator Amos Pierce	Neil Moran
Lawrence Winthrop	Leo Ditrichstein
Richard Winthrop	Charles Cherry
Count Arpad Stephen Hegedy	William Hawtrey
The Butler, at Mrs. Alcott's	Fred R. Gurke
The Colored Butler, at the Pierces'	John Artbur
Mrs. Pierce	Kenyon Bishop
Alice Pierce	Julia Taylor
Mrs. Louise Alcott	Dorothy Dorr
Anna Petrovna	Ruth Chester

A considerable portion of the audience at the first performance of "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott" last night at the Astor Theatre recognized William Hawtrey as the real star of a starless production. He played the part of a foreign Count and diplomat; a man who "hoped he was a gentleman and knew he was a man of the world." His acene in the third act gave him an opportunity for serious acting different from any he has heretofore had in the metropolis.

"The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott" is a play in four acts by Leo Ditrichstein and Percival Pollard, and is described on the programme as a comedy. The fact remains that the central character, played by Dorothy Dorr, calls for the most extreme emotional acting. It is the story of a State secret which is also a woman's secret—and of a kind not to be unveiled.

Mrs. Alcott, it must be understood, has been already twice married, the two experiments being made respectively for money and position. Now she has it in mind to be married a third time, for love, to one Richard Winthrop, a man much her junior, who holds a position in the State Department at Washington.

Lawrence Winthrop, the elder brother of Richard, has himself had a similar "calf-love" with the same woman as the object of his adoration. He was Secretary of a certain embassy when she threw him over and married the Ambassador, and he is the only man in Washington who positively knows the truth of the scandal connecting her name with the name of the sovereign of that foreign country. However, he cannot use his weapon, as it is a State secret. This secret, by a mistake in the handling of some papers, also comes into the possession of Senator Pierce, father of Alice Pierce, the dear and good girl of the atory to whom Richard should naturally be married, and whom he does marry after the fall of the curtain.

The play bristles with bristling situations. Count Hegedy, Ambassador of said foreign country, gets the President to forbid Pierce to use the aforesaid secret. Lawrence incriminates Mrs. Alcott by a clever trick of speech, and Hegedy, who is himself in love with that remarkable woman, lies from heart trouble as he casts the fatal documents into the flames of a lighted fireplace. Thereafter things properly readjust themselves.

Mr. Ditrichstein played the rôle of Lawrence, the humorous and determined, in a manner that elicited much applause. Dorothy Dorr struggled bravely with her adventuress part, for the struggle was apparent. Charles Cherry was the sentimental young man, and Julia Taylor was very sweet as the good little girl.

TRENTINI TO REMAIN HERE.

The Singer Not Strong Enough to Make the Sea Voyage Home.

Emma Trentini, the soprano of the Manhattan Opera House, is still very ill, but the danger line has been passed and it is certain now that she will recover. As a result of her illness, however, Miss Trentini has decided to spend her Summer in America.

"I like America," said Miss Trentini yesterday, "and I will not go back to Milano this Summer. I am not strong and cannot undertake the sea trip."

The singer will employ her Summer in the study of English, and it is Mr. Hammerstein's present intention to exploit her in English comic opera in a couple of seasons. Next year, however, she will continue to sing her parts of this year and also many new parts, including rôles in the new Opera Comique.

Dr Rice, house physician of the Manhattan, said yesterday that it might be possible for Miss Trentini to make her reappearance next week.

MR. MANSFIELD IMPROVED.

Actor Taking More Nourishment—Alarming Reports Unwarranted.

Alarming reports as to the condition of Richard Mansfield, who is ill at his residence, 316 Riverside Drive, appear to be unwarranted. B. D. Stevens, manager for Mr. Mansfield, said last night that the physicians "did not apprehend any change for the worse" and that the actor was taking more nourishment than at first.

He said that Mr. Mansfield was resting quietly and that he had seemed to show a slight improvement in the last twenty-four hours.

Dr. George R. Lockwood, a specialist in digestive diseases, consulted yesterday afternoon with Dr. Floyd Crandall and Dr. Egbert Le Fevre, the physicians regularly in attendance, for the purpose of making a minute diagnosis and prescribing a diet. Apart from his extreme nervous exhaustion, Mr. Mansfield's illness has been largely the result of a disordered stomach.

Dr. Crandall said that the erroneous report that Mr. Mansfield was in an almost fatal condition had probably originated from the fact that a consultation of physicians had been called. "If his condition had really been such as reported we certainly shouldn't have waited twenty-four hours to consult," said the doctor. "He was slightly worse on Sunday, but there has been no material change. He is doing all right."

POOR SUBSTITUTE FOR JOKE.

Ambulance Hurried a Mile and a Half to the Hippodrome.

Somebody with a false sense of humor perpetrated an April Fool joke on the Police Department and Flower Hospital last night. Police Headquarters were asked to send an ambulance in a hurry to a theatre, which was described as being the Hippodrome, at Sixth Avenue and Forty-third Street.

Sergt. Battin, on duty in the telephone room, received a telephone call at 7:42 o'clock from a man who said he was "Mr. Temple," stage manager in the theatre, and said that three men had been injured on the stage by a heavy piece of scenery falling from the flies. When the ambulance from Flower Hospital reached the scene, after a run of nearly a mile and a half, the surgeon was informed that nobody had been hurt.

Edward P. Temple, stage director of the Hippodrome, sincerely regretted that such a mistaken joke should have been perpetrated, and declared that he would make every effort to detect the "joker."

CALVE AGAIN AS CARMEN.

Large Audience Hears the Opera Well Sung at the Manhattan.

"Carmen" was given again at the Manhattan Opera House last evening, and it goes without saying that the house was crowded. This has been the case at all of the sixteen performances of this opera at this house.

Mme. Calvé appeared as Carmen for the second time this season. As both Mmes. Trentini and Giaconia are ill, they were replaced by Mmes. Lejeune and Severina. Mme. Donalda was the Micaela and Mr. Ancona the Escamillo. Mr. Dalmorès is again singing in his best voice, and his performance of Don Jose was a delight. The chorus parts of the opera were given with the spirit which is characteristic of the Manhattan performances. The opera was under the direction of Mr. Campanini.

SINGS SONGS OF CHILDHOOD.

Miss Kitty Cheatham Heard in Recital at the Hudson Theatre.

Kitty Cheatham gave a very delightful recital, consisting mostly of children's songs, in the Hudson Theatre yesterday afternoon. It was scarcely a song recital, as the words of many of the songs were spoken and others given in the sexiess voice of childhood. Besides, Miss Cheatham probably lays no claim to the possession of a voice of power. But as a chanteuse—more exactly, a diseuse—she stands among the first of those in America who are giving this sort of entertainment.

Twice yesterday, in songs of Wekerlin, she braved Yvette Guilbert on her own ground, and scarcely with credit to herself. But otherwise she was always charming, original, and suggestive of the child or the negro whom she depicted through the medium of her song.

Perhaps the most successful songs were those of John Carpenter from "When Little Boys Sing," a book of songs dedicated to the "solemn thoughts of little boys," in its entirety very clever. Miss Cheatham brought out the tragic humor of "Practicing" with great success.

"If No One Ever Marries Me," from Liza Lehmann's "Daisy Chain," and Mrs. Gaynor's "Jerushy" were almost equally delightful. To vary the programme, Miss Cheatham gave several recitations, including "When Melinda Sings," by Paul Lawrence Dunbar, and "The Tar Baby," by Joel Chandler Harris.

Flora MacDonald played the accompaniments, part of them on a harpsichord.

"THE LAND OF NOD" IS SAME OLD STORY

But "The Song Birds" at the New York Theatre Has New and Lively Ideas.

OPERA RIVALS ARE STAGED

Uproarious Chorus, Lively Disputes, Grand Contest of Singers in the Burlesque.

Bonnie	Mabel Barrison
Bonnie's Mother	Emily Hoff
The Jack of Hearts	Helen Bertram
The Weather Man	William Sellery
The Chorus Girl	Carrie De Mar
The Joker	Gus C. Weinburg
The April Fool	Knox Wilson
The Welsh Rarebit	Neil McNeil
The Telephono	Henry Gibson
The Hair Tonic	Walter Blair
The Man in the Moon	Joseph E. Howard
The Sandman	William Burress

Miss Mabel Barrison very smartly disguised in a very short, childish pink frock, and singing in a very high, childish treble, declared last night at the New York Theatre that the critics were going to call "The Land of Nod" "the same old story." You may take Miss Barrison's word for it.

The book, by Frank R. Adams and Will M. Hough, has been rearranged by George V. Hobart, and the music, such as it is, is by Joseph E. Howard, whose name also appears in the cast. He it is who as the Man in the Moon sings duets with Miss Barrison. And undoubtedly Miss Barrison, singing thus, is deliciously childish and charming in voice and figure. Also, there are other amusing things—especially an April Fool, a Welsh Rabbit, a Joker, (minor cards in the pack also furnish picturesque suggestions,) and Miss Carrie De Mar as a Chorus Girl. Miss De Mar is always in high spirits and sometimes in excellent voice. She simulates a jag contagiously and wears a singularly pretty frock and hat at least once. And she does other things more or less well.

But in spite of Miss Barrison and Miss De Mar and Mr. Mitchell's costumes and the really clever clowns, it is only when the "Land of Nod" gives place to "The Song Birds," another "operatic" outburst by Victor Herbert, (words by George V. Hobart,) that the show ceases to be the same old thing. Then it becomes positively mellow and jovial. For then Mr. Oscar Hammerstein and Herr Direktor Conried take the stage (in effigy and bring on their rival uproarious opera forces—Robinson Caruso, Alexander Bouncy, Mme. Yelba, Emma Screams, Peter Pantson, A La Monday, and full-voiced choruses.

Then there is lively disputation between the rivals—the scene is the Manhattan Opera House—excellent fun and a grand contest of the songsters. The burlesque is admirable for the impersonations, for the talk, and for the music, and the readings of Mr. Hammerstein (William Buress) and of Herr Conried (William Sellery) are delightfully realistic. They are altogether worth seeing and hearing, these "song birds," whatever may be said of the rest of the performance.

VICE CRUSADE IN HARLEM.

Law and Order League to Hold Mass Meeting To-night.

The campaign of the Harlem Law and Order League will be opened this evening at a mass meeting to be held in the Y. M. C. A. Building, 5 West 125th Street, at 8 o'clock. A vigilance committee will be appointed for the enforcement of law and the suppression of vicious forms of the penny arcade and similar places. Among those on the Organization Committee are Frank Moss, D. J. McMillan, Frank G. Banister, and James M. Horton.

The Law and Order League has been carrying on secret preparations for the last six weeks, and the results of its work will be shown to-night. Private detectives have been employed in getting evidence, and it is said that their search has not been in vain. The fact that twelve murders have been committed in Little Italy alone since the first of the year is thought by members of the league to be significant of the feeling of lawlessness in parts of Harlem. In striking at the vicious amusements and at Magisterial laxity the league believes it will be getting at the root of the trouble. The advance notice says, in part:

There have come to Harlem the Sullivans, the Paul Kelly gang, and desperate and dissolute characters of both sexes. The Bowery and Fourteenth Street will be introduced in Harlem very soon unless good people act promptly and vigorously. In addition to the perfecting of the organization, it is expected that some highly interesting information as to the extent of vice in Harlem will be brought forward.

Frank Moss said yesterday that the meeting to-night would be an entirely non-political combination of the citizens for the purpose of rooting out evils which, he said, had been increasing at an "appalling rate" in the last few years.

"Not so long ago," he said, "Harlem was a typical innocent village. She is now fast becoming a Bowery.

According to the statement of a merchant interested in the League, there is a possibility of "some unpleasant things being said of certain Magistrates." Mr. Moss had nothing to say on this point.

THAW'S WIFE CALLED AGAIN TO TESTIFY

Mr. Jerome Subpoenas Her to Appear at the Insanity Hearing To-day.

HIS MOVE A SURPRISE

Defense Not Alarmed, and Thaw Is Said to be Cheerful—Jury Again Excused.

"Do they expect me to testify against my husband?" asked Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw yesterday when a subpoena from the District Attorney's office was served on her.

She was greatly perturbed. The subpoena server, noticing her agitation, stammered a bit and said:

"It may be only a matter of form, ma'am."

Mrs. Thaw had just left the corridor outside of the cell her husband occupies and had started to leave the Tombs. She took the slip of paper and fingered it nervously.

"What does it mean?" she asked.

"The District Attorney wants you to appear before the lunacy commission in the morning," said the subpoena server.

It was a new and unexpected move. Mr. Jerome would not say why he wanted the prisoner's wife to face the commission, and he would not say whether he would put her on the stand should the commission give him that privilege.

Mrs. Thaw has waived her right to refuse to testify against her husband. When she took the stand in his behalf, she put herself in the hands of the representative of the People for further examination. But there is little probability that she will testify as to Thaw's present condition of mind.

It was suggested yesterday that a severe examination of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw before the commission might result in Thaw showing the commission his real state of mind. He might break under the strain and prove his incapacity to confer with his lawyers.

The Thaw jury reported to Justice Fitzgerald yesterday morning and was discharged until Thursday morning. Thaw was brought into court and remained just long enough to hear the Justice instruct the jurors not to read the newspapers and not to discuss the case either with outsiders or among themselves. He was taken back to his cell. He found his wife awaiting him there.

A. Russell Peabody of his counsel had a long talk with the prisoner, and said afterward that Thaw was in good condition and cheerful, believing that he would be declared sane by the commission. Later Henry C. McPike, assistant to Mr. Delmas, visited him, and after him Daniel O'Reilly made a visit.

Clifford W. Hartridge, counsel of record for Thaw, said yesterday afternoon that the summoning of Mrs. Thaw by Mr. Jerome did not in any way interfere with the case for the defense before the commission, and that, whatever Mr. Jerome might contemplate doing with her as a witness, was not a matter that concerned him to any great extent.

Mr. Hartridge has received from Dr. Britton D. Evans a letter written him by Dr. W. A. White, the alienist brought on from Washington to testify for the defense. Mr. Hartridge said that the letter was in the nature of a reply to Mr. Jerome's insinuation that Dr. White had not made an affidavit in the matter of the appointment of a commission, because he knew that Thaw was not sane at this time. Dr. White, in his letter, said that he had not been actuated in any such manner in not making affidavit, and that he had made no study of Thaw's condition during the trial, his testimony being entirely on the hypothetical question and the exhibits, and his opinion pertained entirely to Thaw's condition of mind when he killed White. He said that he was in court during portions of two days only, and had a seat behind the defendant. He was more interested in the proceeding than in the prisoner. He felt that he would be placing himself in a false position if he attempted to give an opinion as to the mental condition of Thaw during the trial when he had made no examination or study of him. He wrote that he knew of nothing that would have made him believe that Thaw was incapable of conferring with his lawyers during the trial, and that any suggestion that he did have any such information was a false suggestion. He concluded that he would come back to New York and testify again if reasonable notice was given.

The commission meets again this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton will take the stand. Just how much of the evidence he has at his disposal will he allowed before the commission is a matter of conjecture. He has an abundance of material to support his belief that Thaw is a paranoiac, evidence placed in his hands when he was employed by the defense before he withdrew from the case because he believed the prisoner a madman.

Mr. Jerome will fight to get before the commission all of this matter. If he gets it in evidence the chances are that Thaw will be declared unfit for trial, and the end of the case will be at hand. Should the commission find otherwise, the case will go back to trial, the jury will file into the box once more for business, and there will be little hope of seeing the end of the case for at least two weeks.

SCHURZ MEMORIAL FUND.

Many Generous Contributions Have Been Received.

The committee in charge of the fund for the Carl Schurz Memorial will mail to any one requesting it a copy of the pamphlet containing the full proceedings of the meeting in honor of Mr. Schurz's memory which was held in Carnegie Hall on Nov. 21 last. Such requests may be made at the office of the committee, 11 Broadway, New York City, to which also checks to the fund may be sent to Isaac N. Seligman, the Treasurer. CITY SELLS OLD BUILDINGS.

Step Toward Clearing Site for New Bridge Terminal.

Controller Metz yesterday sold the first of the buildings in the neighborhood of Park Row and Chambers Street, which are to be torn down to make room for the new Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge. Fourteen parcels were sold in all and the amount realized was $6,025 for the lot.

The buildings sold were 80 to 96 Park Row, 6 to 20 Chambers Street, 5 to 15 Chambers Street, 3 to 7 City Hall Place, 24 Reade Street, 12 Centre Street, and the triangle between Centre, Reade, and Duane Streets. None of the buildings was of particular importance, but No. 12 Centre Street used to be a great Tammany resort when it was known as the Tiger Café and was run by "Humpty" Hanover, the Mayor of Avenue D.

The buildings sold must be vacated by May 1 and the ground must be cleared within thirty days thereafter. Some of the buildings on the triangle to the south will be sold next month, and another sale will probably be held in the Fall when the Staats Zeitung Building will be disposed of. The tenants of that building have obtained an extension of time from the city, as has the East River Savings Bank on Chambers Street.

The selling was done yesterday by Bryan L. Kennelly, auctioneer, who was accompanied by John M. Gray, of Mr. Metz's office. They drove from building to building in a carriage, followed by a crowd of wreckers anxious to bid and a lot of curious people. A second-hand clothing dealer who occupied one of the buildings sold, had his "puller-in" get to work in the crowd and sold three suits during the sale.

No. 12 Centre Street went for $450, Nos. 9, 10, and 12 Chambers Street together for $300; Nos. 16, 18, and 20 Chambers Street for $925; No. 86 Park Row brought $110; Nos. 90, 92, and 94, $675; Nos. 84, 86, and 88, $130; Nos. 80 and 82, $300, and the other property averaged in price about $430 a parcel. Most of the purchases were made by D. Davis, a Brooklyn wrecker.

ANNUALLY VETOED BY MAYOR.

Bill to Return East River Park Assessments Bobs Up Again.

Mayor McClellan held several hearings yesterday on legislative bills. One was on the bill to refund to the property owners the assessments paid in connection with the acquisition of title to the East River Park, at Eighty-sixth Street and Avenue B.

To Walter H. Martin, who appeared for the property owners, the Mayor declared that he had vetoed practically the same bill every year he had been in office. He asked Mr. Martin whether it was his intention to go to the Legislature and have the measure repassed over his veto as the Livingston Street, Brooklyn, property holders had done.

"All we want is a hearing before the Board of Estimate," said Mr. Martin. "You probably are not aware that the property owners have been assessed twice for this improvement."

The Mayor will doubtless veto the bill.

WANT MUNICIPAL FERRIES.

Williamsburg Business Men Hold Meeting to Demand City Ownership.

Business men of Williamsburg declared for municipal ownership of ferries at a meeting last night in the assembly hall of the Long Island Business College, under the auspices of the Broadway and Grand Street Municipal Ferry Association and the Grand Street Board of Trade. Before the meeting there was a business men's parade.

Isaac S. Remsen was Chairman of the meeting. Controller Metz spoke in favor of the proposal, as did Thomas O'Neill, President of the Civic Conference, and Thomas P. Peters, editor of The Brooklyn Times.

Borough President Coler, who is in Michigan, wrote to the meeting that he was convinced that the municipal operation of the ferries would in a great measure relieve the crush at the bridge terminals.

No Queens Court House Agreement.

Borough President Bermel of Queens and Controller Metz met yesterday, but were unable to reach an agreement on the contract for the completion of the court house in Long Island City. Mr. Metz will not certify the contract, which is all ready for signing, until he ascertains definitely just what the cost is to be.

Autolst Held for Child's Death.

George H. Plume, a retired blacksmith, of Newark, N. J., was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury yesterday for causing the death of four-year-old Sarah Stocker on Sunday night. Plume was riding along Sixth Avenue, Newark, in his automobile, when the little girl, who was playing in the street in front of her home, was run down and mortally injured.

WOMEN WILL WAR ON CAR EVILS HERE

New Society Takes Up the Protection of Passengers' Rights.

CLEANLINESS FIRST AIM

Overcrowding of Cars Also to be Investigated — Four Committees Named for Summer Work.

The Society for the Protection of Passengers' Rights held a business meeting yesterday and laid out a plan of work for the Summer along the lines of investigation. At the first meeting in the Fall returns will be received, and the society is then going to work with a vim that will make people in town "sit up and take notice," as one of its members, falling into slang in her enthusiasm, said yesterday.

The S. P. P. R. is a new organization, but it intends to make its work felt. There was originally the word "car" in the name, but if car reforms work well the society may turn its attention to cab service and what not, and it is not going to handicap itself with a restricted title at the outset.

Four committees were appointed yesterday, to look out, respectively, for conditions in the Subway, on the surface roads, on the elevated roads, and to investigate the matter of transfers. They will be glad of assistance, and reports of infractions of passengers' rights will be gladly received from non-members of the organization.

The society will, in the first place, turn its attention to the conditions of the cars, to see that they are kept clean. It asks, also, why the conductors and guards should not also be clean, and if there is any reason, if a policeman must pass inspection before going out on duty, to see that he is spick and span, why car conductors should not have at least whole uniforms and moderately clean hands.

The members are going to ask why dead cars are run when the other cars are crowded and why cars should be crowded to the point of indecency. They wish to know why, when they board a Subway local train, it takes them past their station without warning that it is not going to stop. They say that there is altogether too much rowdyism in the cars and that women are annoyed and insulted by young ruffians without interference from the conductors.

There had been a "Car Passenger's Rights Society," whose President was Mrs. Richard Henry Savage, but which did not get down to real work. The new society is reorganized from the old, with Mrs. Savage as Honorary President. The new President is Mrs. John Fowler Trow; First Vice President, Mrs. Robert Hamilton Rucker; Second Vice President, Mrs. Albert Canfield Bage; Recording Secretary, Mrs. C. C. Ruthrauff; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Darwin Truss; Treasurer, Mrs. Doré Lyon; Directors, Mrs. Gerard Bancker, Mrs. S. Dickinson Lewis, Mrs. E. N. Hurlbert, and Mrs. L. D. Alexander. The organization has met so far at the homes of its officers.

AHEARN INQUIRY NEXT WEEK.

Mr. Ellison First to Take Up the Matter of Asphalt Paving Contracts.

Public investigation into the conduct of Borough President John F. Ahearn's office will be begun next week, probably on Monday, in connection with the investigation that has been carried on quietly for the last few months by John P. Mitchell, special Assistant Corporation Counsel, and William M. Ivins. Mr. Ahearn asked for an investigation some months ago when reports of mismanagement were in circulation.

The open hearings will be in charge of Corporation Counsel Ellison in person for the city, and he will be assisted by Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Ivins, the latter appearing on behalf of the Citizens' Union. The Commissioner of Accounts will preside and will be empowered to swear witnesses.

The investigation will probably be held in the old Council Chamber and may last several weeks. It is understood that the first matter to be taken up is the letting of contracts for paving the streets with asphalt and the maintenance contracts.

TROLLEY SMASH IN YONKERS.

Series of Mishaps Ends in Serious Injury to One Motorman.

In a head-on collision of two McLean Avenue trolley cars near Radford Street, Yonkers, yesterday afternoon, Patrick Sullivan, motormen of a north-bound car, was severely injured. Motorman Douglas of the south-bound car sustained a few bruises. The passengers escaped injury.

Previous to the accident a tree had fallen across the roadway, carrying down the telephone, electric-light, and trolley wires. When the wreckage had been partly cleared, four north-bound cars were switched to the south-bound track and sent through. Before the fourth started a team of horses owned by Jacob Smith & Co. of New York City became entangled in the live wires and were thrown from their feet across the south-bound track.

When they were out of the way Sullivan's car was sent through. Douglas, thinking that the road was clear, started south, and the two cars met at a good speed. Sullivan is in St. Joseph's Hospital.

FIGHT FOR $300,000 ESTATE.

The Late Michael Donahue's Granddaughter Asks for Receiver

Miss Cecilia M. Donohue, a grandchild of the late Michael Donahue, through her attorney, James M. Fisk, applied to Justice Bischoff in the Supreme Court yesterday for a receiver for the estate of her grandfather, pending the adjudication of the suit now in the courts to compel Mrs. Lucy A. Ledwith, the only daughter of Mr. Donahue, to give an accounting of his estate. Miss Donahue is acting in behalf of not only herself, but of the other grandchildren of the deceased, all of whom are the children of the late Michael Donahue, Jr.

The plaintiffs say that in Mr. Donahue's old age his daughter had a great influence over him, and that at the time of his death he had transferred or given to her his entire estate valued at about $300,000. The property is mostly in real estate in this city.

In her answer Mrs. Ledwith says that much of the property was given to her by her father during his life time, and that the action is barred by the Statute of Limitations. As administratrix of her father's estate the plaintiff declares that when Mrs. Ledwith filed her final accounting as administratrix she declared that her father's own property at the time of his death consisted of about $100 worth of wearing apparel only.

Judge Bischoff reserved decision.

City Must Pay Mrs. Freel $21,980.

A referee appointed to hear testimony in the action brought by Catherine Freel as executor of the will of her late husband, Edward Freel, a sewer contractor, to recover $85,000 from the city, has decided that Mrs. Freel is entitled to $21,980 and interest from June 25, 1896. Freel built a large sewer through the Bedford district of Brooklyn. There was a dispute over his claim, and before he could bring action he died.

Coal 50 Cents Cheaper in Jersey.

The New Jersey Coal Dealers' Association sent out circulars yesterday announcing a reduction of 50 cents a ton on all coal of the domestic sizes. The new rate, which is $5.75, went into effect yesterday.

Miss Cram Leaves $430,000 Estate.

Miss Ethel M. Cram, sister of J. Sergeant Cram, who died on Sept. 14, 1905, after she had been thrown from her carriage, left an estate worth $431,416.24, according to the report of the appraiser filed with the Surrogate yesterday.

GERMANS SEEK HERE MODEL FOR TUNNEL

Three Hamburg Engineers Will Begin a Tour of Inspection To-day.

TO BORE UNDER THE ELBE

Come to New York as Centre of Greatest Work on Lines They Are to Follow.

The three German engineers, Otto Stockhausen, Eduard Meyer, and Paul Rheindorff, who have been sent to New York by the Municipality of Hamburg to study the tunnel work now in progress here, spent most of yesterday in making official calls upon Karl G. Buenz, Consul General of the German Empire, and others to whom they have letters of introduction. They had no time to begin their work of inspection, but hope to do so to-day, probably with the Pennsylvania tunnels.

Eduard Meyer explained to a TIMES reporter yesterday at the Hoffman House the object of their visit.

"We shall be here for about a fortnight," he said, "learning all we can of the methods used in the great excavating works in your city. The City of Hamburg is constructing immense docks, and it is necessary to build a tunnel under the Elbe. It will be about 500 yards long, and a good part of the way we shall have to cut through rock and sand. We shall have to use caissons and compressed air, as the tunnels will be about ninety feet below the water level."

Electric elevators are to be installed at each shaft. These elevators will engage the principal part of Mr. Meyer's attention while he is here. He is the Superintendent of Mechanical Installation in Hamburg Harbor, and on him will rest the responsibility for the six big elevators, which are to be fitted both for freight and passengers.

Otto Stockhausen is the Commissioner appointed by the city for the work and is the head of the delegation. Paul Rheindorff is the engineer in charge of the tunnel building, and has had a great deal of experience in this kind of work in Germany.

The tunnel is necessary because of the swiftness of the Elbe tides, which make it dangerous for ferries to cross. The choice lay between a bridge, on the lines of the Brooklyn Bridge, or a tunnel. It was impossible to construct practicable grades to and from a bridge of the height needed.

The works which the engineers at present plan to inspect are the Pennsylvania system under the Hudson and East Rivers and through the heart of the Island of Manhattan, the Belmont tunnels at Forty-second Street and the East River, the McAdoo tunnels to New Jersey from Cortlandt Street, and the Subway extension from the Battery toward Brooklyn.

McCARREN MEETS BINGHAM.

The Senator Says He Thinks Police Bill Will Be Defeated.

Senator Patrick H. McCarren, who has been fighting the Bingham Police bill, visited the City Hall yesterday, and just as he was leaving the Mayor's office came face to face with Police Commissioner Bingham himself. The two men simply shook hands in a cordial fashion and adjourned to an anteroom to talk over the bill.

Later Senator McCarren was asked whether the Commissioner had convinced him of the merits of the bill.

"Well, not quite," replied the Senator.

He went on to say that he thought the chances of the bill being defeated were fairly good and that its supporters were inclined to overestimate their strength. Told that it was generally assumed that Mayor McClellan believed the measure would pass, the Senator said:

"Well, the Mayor isn't a member of the Legislature."

150 NEW POLICEMEN.

Sworn In Yesterday—200 More on May 1.

Commissioner Bingham had before him yesterday 150 men who have been attending the school of instruction and learning the routine work of the Police Department in a sort of graduating exercise, ending with all being sworn in as patrolmen. The Commissioner said that by May 1 there will be 200 more graduates from the school, exhausting the list, and making about 600 who have been added to the force since Jan. 1.

The ceremony was attended yesterday by a large number of the friends of the new policemen.

ACCUSED POLICEMAN FREED.

Man Who Said Dawkins Robbed Him Had No Witnesses.

Policeman George Dawkins of the Adams Street Station, Brooklyn, who was charged by John Farley, a stereotyper, with having robbed him in the street while in uniform and on duty, was discharged by Magistrate Dooley after a hearing in the Adams Street Court yesterday. Farley alleged that he had a drink early on Saturday morning with the policeman in a saloon on Myrtle Avenue. When they came out of the place, he asserted, Dawkins seized him and took $12 from his pocket. On Farley's complaint Dawkins was suspended and put under arrest.

Farley was unable to produce a witness in court yesterday, while Dawkins had several. The bartender of the saloon testified that he had closed the place hours before the time Farley alleged he was in there with Dawkins. A bootblack also told of having seen Dawkins elsewhere at the time.

Dawkins will now be returned to duty.

The Ten-ness of Brill Clothes.

Brill clothes are the achievements of ten organizations of tailors, ten designing organizations, ten careful and critical fabric-expert organizations. They embody the ideas of many minds.

Because of this ten-ness Brill clothes eliminate the sameness noticeable in ready-to-wear garments produced by any one organization of designers and tailors.

At this time when fashion permits great latitude of style, and individuality is the desideratum, clothes produced by one concern have a oneness of sizes, models, fabrics and construction that cannot always fit the forms and suit the personal tastes of all men.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Is Offered to the Public Upon Its Record of Results Accomplished. These Well-Known Medical Men Speak From Experience.

"THE SAFEST, SUREST AND MOST AGREEABLE AGENT FOR REMOVING URIC ACID FROM THE SYSTEM."

Dr. Allard Memminger, Prof. Chemistry and Hygiene and Clinical Prof. Urinary Diagnosis, Medical College of South Carolina, Charleston: "I have used in my own case and prescribed BUFFALO LITHIA WATER for Uric Acid Troubles with excellent results. I regard it as the safest, surest and most agreeable agent for the removal from the system of this most pernicious derivative of Urea."

"IS SPECIALLY INDICATED IN ALBUMINURIA OF PREGNANCY."

Dr. B. M. Baker, Member Virginia State, Seaboard and Norfolk City Medical Societies, Visiting Surgeon to St. Vincent's Hospital, and Physician to Norfolk City Prison: "I have no hesitancy in saying that BUFFALO LITHIA WATER has proven itself, in my hands, to be a most valuable remedy for the many ailments due to excess of Uric Acid in the system. It is especially indicated in Albuminuria of Pregnancy."

ITS VALUE IN RENAL COLIC.

Dr. Edward McGuire, Prof. Gynecology, etc., University College of Medicine, Richmond, Virginia: "BUFFALO LITHIA WATER has done me a great deal of good. Up to two years ago, when I began drinking this water regularly, I had been suffering with repeated attacks of Renal Colic. Since then I have not had an attack. I attribute this to the use of the water entirely."

THE VALUE OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Personal knowledge is the winning factor in the culminating contests of this competitive age and when of ample character it places its fortunate possessor in the front ranks of

The Well Informed of the World.

A vast fund of personal knowledge is really essential to the achievement of the highest excellence in any field of human effort.

A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in questions of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an ethical product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of—Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, whether you call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

WAHLE CRITICISES MAYOR.

Magistrate Says Boys Have No Right to Play Ball in the Street.

Criticising Mayor McClellan, who appointed him, and the Board of Aldermen, Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle in the Tombs Court yesterday discharged ten boys and young men arrested on Sunday by the police of the Church Street Station for playing ball on "the farm," as the open wharf space along West Street, north of Cortlandt Street, is known in that vicinity.

George A. Munsey of 815 Garden Street, Hoboken, was the complainant. He told the Magistrate that a ball knocked a meerschaum pipe worth $10 out of his mouth. Alderman Doyle of the First District, of which Magistrate Finn is the Tammany leader, appeared for the boys and told Magistrate Wahle that the Board of Aldermen, in a resolution approved by Mayor McClellan, had set aside "the farm" as a playground for the boys between 10 A. M. and 6 P. M. on Sundays and from 6 to 9 P. M. on week days.

"Under that resolution," the Alderman continued, "the boys had a perfect right to be playing ball at that place, and the injury to Mr. Munsey's pipe was the result of an accident."

"The Board of Aldermen or any other board, the Mayor, or any other official," said Magistrate Wahle, "has no more right to make part of a street a playground than to give boys a right to play ball in my parlor.

"I'll discharge these boys, but I warn them that they will be fined the next time they are brought before me for playing ball on that 'farm.'"

TAFT MAY NOT INDORSE BROTHER

Foraker Republicans Profess Doubt of Final Acceptance of Challenge.

NO STUMP TOUR, ANYHOW

The Word from the Secretary Is Eagerly Awaited—Senator's Trip to Ohio.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 1.—Foraker Republicans here say that Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati made a blunder in his eagerness to advance the interests of his brother, William H. Taft, as a candidate for the Presidential nomination. Conspicuous leaders refuse to believe that Secretary Taft in any way gave his sanction to the statement issued by his brother, calling for the political annihilation of either Senator Foraker or the War Secretary.

The friends of Secretary Taft among the active Republican politicians in this county have not been thrilled by the tocsin of war as sounded by Brother Charles. They will not don fighting clothes until the word comes from the Secretary himself.

At a gathering of Cleveland Republicans to-day it was agreed that if Secretary Taft engaged in a scramble for favor in Ohio it would be contrary to anything he has ever done in his long public career. A letter from the Secretary received here just prior to his departure for Panama expressed his feelings at the time.

In this letter it is reported that Secretary Taft said he would enter no fight for honors in Ohio. This is taken as an indication here that Charles P. Taft issued his call to arms without definite authority from Secretary Taft.

Letters from Congressman T. E. Burton, expected via New Orleans no later than to-morrow, are being eagerly awaited. Burton has been fully informed of the exciting events which have taken place while the Taft party has been on the way to Panama.

The close advisers of Congressman Burton here state emphatically that under no circumstances will the Congressman consent to be shelved, no matter how strained the situation may become in Ohio. They are indignant over the intimation that Burton is to be hitched onto the Taft movement.

There is a strong belief that the situation will so shape itself that Burton will go to the front as the real spokesman for Secretary Taft on the Ohio stump. This would obviate the necessity of Secretary Taft getting out on the firing line, a thing which it is known he does not believe compatible with the dignity of a Presidential aspirant, in advance of actual nomination.

There is outspoken opposition here against the suggestion that an expression on the State situation be obtained at the regular municipal elections next November. The County Central Committee is a unit in the position that it will not do to overshadow the coming Mayoralty campaign in Cleveland with a disturbance in State politics.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Senator Dick serenely suggested to-day that he interpreted the recent statement of Charles P. Taft as an acceptance of Foraker's challenge to a joint debate as well as of Foraker's challenge to a primary. And Dick kept a perfectly straight face when he said it.

The Senators want to get the big War Secretary as deep down in the mad scramble of a stump campaign as they can beguile him. Above all, they want to inveigle him into a joint debate with that master of rough-and-tumble stump speaking, Senator Foraker.

While it is possible that Secretary Taft will make a dignified speech or two, or perhaps three or four, in Ohio, no one here expects to see him chasing Foraker around the stump.

The Senators had another conference to-day on the form of a primary they will recommend to the State Central Committee. Foraker still is disposed to insist that the primary shall select State Convention delegates as a more binding method, while Dick is urging a general primary which would not select convention delegates, but in which each Republican would vote his preference for President and Senator between Taft and Foraker. Dick is satisfied that the subsequent State Convention would accept such a vote as binding. Both Senators regard the November municipal elections as the most satisfactory date for the primary.

The heat to which the fight in Ohio has already risen is shown by the fact that Senators Foraker and Dick are going out there on Monday, although Foraker cannot stay more than two weeks.

He is going to take advantage of the recess of the Brownsville Investigating Committee, which will be for a fortnight, beginning next Saturday. Foraker may, indeed, start for Ohio Saturday afternoon. His real fight will not begin until the Brownsville committee adjourns for good, but his anxiety to be at the front is shown by the fact that he rushes off to Ohio the minute he can get away from Washington, short as is the time he can stay. Nicholas Longworth also goes to Ohio on Monday. Nobody has yet been able to find out what he is going to do.

DUNLAP WEDS MISS BYERS.

The Couple Finally Choose Milwaukee as Place for Ceremony.

WHITMAN JARS LAWYERS.

Drives Them Beyond Railing in His Court—Excise Cases Heard.

Magistrate Whitman, just back from a visit to Congressman Parsons in Washington, presided in Jefferson Market Court yesterday. One of his first orders was to Sergt. Casey of the Court Squad to bar all lawyers from inside the rail until their cases were called. In doing this the Magistrate was trying to rid his court of those lawyers who, when allowed inside the rail, approach the line of prisoners and canvass for business and fees.

A woman lawyer, sitting on a seat inside the rail, was ordered to the outer bench with her male colleagues.

John Adams, who was arrested on Sunday night charged with violating the excise law, at the instigation of Lester B. Ward, an amateur excise reformer, was arraigned before Magistrate Whitman. According to the prisoner's testimony he was only a customer in the saloon when the beer was sold. He was discharged.

From Jefferson Market Court Mr. Ward went to the West Side Court, where Magistrate Moss was sitting. There he testified that he had bought beer in the rear room of the Lafayette Hotel, at 562 Seventh Avenue. Benjamin Levy, the bartender, served it to him. He told the Magistrate of calling in Patrolman O'Connor, who arrested Levy. Magistrate Moss adjourned the case until next Friday.

Mr. Ward was asked if it were true that he was a member of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, Sunday school class. He refused to answer.

TWO GRAND JURIES AT WORK.

One Will Take Up Insurance Inquiry and the Other Regular Cases.

Two Grand Juries were sworn in in New York County yesterday, one in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court by Justice Blanchard and the other in General Sessions by Judge O'Sullivan. Owing to the large number of cases awaiting disposition by the Grand Jury the General Sessions Grand Jury will sit in the morning and Justice Blanchard's jury in the afternoon. The latter jury had originally been called to hear insurance cases. District Attorney Jerome, however, being otherwise engaged, the Supreme Court Grand Jury will devote its time for the present to handling the regular routine of cases.

It is the anticipation of the District Attorney to present the case of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to the Grand Jury some time next week.

In charging the General Sessions Grand Jury, of which Pierre de Peyster Ricketts, an engineer of 115 East Seventy-ninth Street, is the foreman, Judge O'Sullivan read from the statute books and said that there was nothing of public importance to call their attention to.

In swearing in the Supreme Court Grand Jury Justice Blanchard told them that it was their duty to be very careful in indicting persons charged with crime.

"You should indict only when legal evidence warrants. By making a mistake of finding an indictment against an innocent person you might blast his reputation forever," said the Justice. He made no reference whatever to the insurance investigation. That is to come later. The foreman of the Grand Jury is John C. Klatzl, a real estate dealer, at 45 West Eighty-third Street.

Justice Blanchard, on the application of Mr. Jerome, signed an order also for a special May Grand Jury. The work is way behind both on prison and bail cases. The April term of the Criminal Branch was put over until next Tuesday, so that the courtroom may be free for the sessions of the Thaw lunacy commission and the trial.

WANT NEW LAND TITLE LAW.

Real-Estate Brokers Favor Adoption of the Torrens System.

The Real Estate Board of Brokers opened its campaign in favor of the Torrens system of land registration with a meeting yesterday afternoon in the board room, 135 Broadway.

After M. J. Hanson had outlined the workings of the system, President Clarkson introduced Daniel O'Connor, ex-Postmaster General of New South Wales, who is just ending a visit of several months to this country. Mr. O'Connor told of the operation of the Torrens act in Australia and said that no serious defects in it had been discovered.

"A title once registered under the Torrens act," added Mr. O'Connor, "is absolutely secure against attack, and may be transferred cheaply and quickly. It is a disgrace to the greatest State in the United States that it still employs antediluvian methods in conveying real estate."

G. W. Thompson, Deputy Register of Kings County; Sidney V. Lowell, and Joseph L. Buttenwieser also spoke in favor of the change.

At the close of the meeting it was decided to send a delegation to Albany tomorrow to attend the hearing on Assemblyman Prentice's bill providing for the introduction of the Torrens system in this State.

DINERS WELCOME DEPEW.

Senator Unexpected Speaker at the St. Nicholas Society.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew surprised the St. Nicholas Society last night by appearing at its dinner in Delmonico's. He had not been expected. He was once President of the society, and was warmly greeted by his many friends. He took a chair on the left of the President.

The first speaker was Henry B. F. MacFarland, President of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia. He began with a series of witticisms which made Senator Depew chuckle mightily.

Mr. Depew followed. He spoke at first with some of his oldtime crispness, and told a story or two. He discussed the value of the Dutch stock, and how it counted to-day as in the days of old.

When the Senator finished his address there was a hearty round of applause. He seemed gratified at his reception.

LEADERS ROUTED BY SENATE REBELS

Highway Bill Passed, Only Five Senators Supporting Armstrong and Raines.

BIG EXPENSE IS INVOLVED

Senator Armstrong Protests Vigorously—The Assembly Passes a Similar Bill Without a Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—The insurgents in the Senate to-night made another concerted attack on the old members who follow Raines and Armstrong, and scored another victory, passing by a vote of 35 to 7 the Burhyte bill providing for a payment by the State to towns on a dollar for dollar basis for highway improvements. The bill was advanced to third reading a few days ago after a similar rally of the newcomers by a vote of 25 to 10. The West bill, a similar measure, was passed by the Assembly to-night.

Senator Armstrong, against whom the revolt in the Senate was chiefly directed, made two long arguments against the passage of the bill. He said it would induce a wasts of the State's money.

"This bill if made a law will take from the State Treasury some $414,000 this year," he declared. "Next year the amount will be $1,515,000. I want to tell the Senators that the Controller estimates the income of the State from all sources this year at $32,500,000. After the fixed charges of the State have been paid, there will be just $3,500,000 left from which to provide for some $33,000,000 in special appropriations now pending before the Legislature."

Senator Armstrong said the State Grange had a plan by which the assessment for road purposes would be fixed on a mileage basis instead of the dollar-for-dollar basis. He said this would give the poorer towns a fair show, where the Burhyte bill would not. He asked that the bill be laid over until Thursday morning, and in the meantime invited the Senators to confer with State Engineer Skene on Wednesday night.

"Since when is the Senator working in harmony with the State Engineer?" asked Senator McManus of New York.

Senator Armstrong recently had caused the introduction of measures that would take practically all the good roads patronage away from the State Engineer's department.

"I want to say that I have not a single act affecting good roads which has not been in full accord with the State Engineer's measure," retorted Armstrong.

Senator Armstrong spoke for more than an hour trying to put off action on the bill. Senator Cobb, however, moved for immediate action. The bill was passed with these members voting against it: Armstrong, Raines, Ramsperger, Agnew, Saxe, Dunn, and Hill.

The vote showed that the Senators, irrespective of party, are antagonistic to Mr. Armstrong for keeping their local business in committee.

The Assembly, without discussion, passed the West bill, which provides that the State shall pay the entire cost of future highway improvements under the $50,000,000 bond act.

TO CONTROL ALDERMEN.

Republicans Press a Bill Depriving Borough Presidents of Votes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—The Conkling bill, depriving Presidents Ahearn, Bermel, Haffen, Color, and Cromwell of membership in the Board of Aldermen and limiting President McGowan's vote to measures of finance only, was advanced in the Assembly to-night after a fight.

Assemblyman Oliver drew from Leader Moreland the statement that both State Chairman Woodruff and County Chairman Parsons wanted the legislation. Its object is to make the apparent majority of the Republicans in the board actual. At present the Democrats and Municipal Ownership Aldermen can control.

Following the advancement of this measure the House machine determined to bring out the Robinson redistricting bill and have it go hand in hand with the other to the Senate. The Robinson bill redistricts the Aldermanic districts of New York City and reduces the number from seventy-three to sixty-three. The Republicans are hopeful of gaining two or three members at the election this year under the redistricting bill and getting control for 1908-9.

TRIES TO STOP CANAL WORK.

Senator Cassidy Suddenly Discovers a Waste of Millions.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—Senator Cassidy has come to the conclusion that the 1,000-ton barge canal is all wrong. He introduced a bill in the Senate to-night, which if passed would stop work on that project.

"Canals which connect two great bodies of water and permit vessels to pass from one to the other are good," he said. "This one wouldn't. Vessels, no matter where they were consigned, would have to unload to railroads. Canals are no distributors, railroads are. Canals can only serve as transmitters. The Erie Canal has ten times the capacity for work that it has demands on its services. What's the use of building another of one hundred times its capacity?

"The extravagance of Nero would be only Raines law sandwiches to this. It's better to break off this bad business now with a cost of $20,000,000 than it would be to have it go on until we have spent $200,000,000."

DEFEND HUDSON RIVER ICE.

State Dealers Say It Is Not Impure—Small Crop in Maine.

ALBANY, April 1.—The Empire State Ice Association, formed mainly of dealers who harvest their crop from the Hudson River, at their annual convention here to-day adopted a protest against the charges that ice taken from the Hudson River is impure.

Surrogate Van Derzee of Albany, President of the association, declared that he "never read of a single case of sickness caused by the existence of disease germs in ice gathered from any stream or lake in this State from which ice is gathered for market in any city of considerable size. One fact is worth a bushel of theories. The City of New York, which uses most of the ice gathered from the Hudson River, and which ice has been designated as 'frozen sewage,' 'congealed microbes,' and the like, has the lowest death rate from morbific germ diseases of any considerable city in the country."

He criticised the report of Dr. Jackson, chemist of the New York Water Supply Department, on the ground that samples of ice for his analysis were not taken from the cakes that had been planed.

GARDINER, Me., April 1.—Careful estimates make the Maine ice harvest between 700,000 and 800,000 tons.

Contrary to the expectations at the opening of the season, the harvest of ice in Maine was not a record-breaker, as the steady cold weather permitted the cutting of a bigger crop on the Hudson River than had been looked for, and it was found unnecessary to work the Maine icefields to the greatest capacity.

TELEGRAPH RATE RISE.

Speculation in Washington as to What the Government Will Do.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—No information was obtainable to-day at the Department of Justice as to the possibility of any action on the part of the Government to proceed against the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies because of their simultaneous increase of rates. The Inter-State Commerce Commission has no jurisdiction over telegraph companies, so that if anything is done in the matter it will have to be by the Department of Justice.

The question to be determined first would be whether in the opinion of the Attorney General there was a combination between the two companies in restraint of trade. There is no other law under which the Government can proceed. Attorney General Bonaparte will have to be satisfied, before any move is made in the matter, that the sending of telegraph messages is "trade" and that a combination between the two companies to increase rates is a "conspiracy in restraint of trade."

ALBANY, April 1.—Attorney General Jackson, when asked to-night whether the simultaneous action of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies in raising their toll rates was in violation of the Anti-Trust laws of this State and an act suggesting a combination or trust, replied that it was too large a proposition to answer offhand.

He made it clear that without delay he would endeavor to discover whether there had been a violation of the anti-trust statute, and that he would be guided by the result as to what course he would pursue.

BETRAYED THE GIRL WHO STOLE FOR HIM

She Decided to Quit Dishonest Life and He Telephoned Police.

SHE'S IN CELL; HE'S FREE

After She Refused Longer to Do His Bidding He Beat Her.

As the result of a "tip" over the telephone from a man whose friend she had been, Sophie Sanders, a pretty, refined-looking girl of 20, was arraigned in the Morrisania Court yesterday, charged with stealing $25.

Last Saturday morning Sophie Sanders got a place as saleswoman in the bakery of Henry Knierien, at 989 East 161st Street. About noon the baker happened to look over his cash and found that it was $25 short. He then also discovered that his new saleswoman had disappeared.

He rang up the police, and Detective Sergts. Cavanagh and Jimenez were put on the case. The baker did not have the girl's address, and could give the detectives no clue. But, while they were talking with him in his shop the telephone rang, and the baker received this message:

"If you want to find the girl that robbed you, go to 630 East 155th Street and arrest Sophie Sanders."

The detectives found the girl at the address given. She was living there with her parents, and her arrest was a great shock to them. She was taken to the Bronx Detective Bureau, but refused to say anything until she was told of the telephone message to the baker. Then she told her story to Detective Sergeant Price.

She said that some time ago she met a man whose name the police would not divulge, and fell in love with him. Shortly after he showed her the advertisement of a storekeeper for a saleswoman, and told her to apply for the position, and then rob the cash drawer. She said $2 was the amount of her first theft. The man then directed her to apply for a position at another store that had advertised a vacancy. The girl stole $5 there, she said.

It was at Knierien's bakery that she got her third position. After escaping from the store with the $25 from the cash drawer she met her lover and turned the money over to him, she said. He then named another store where he wanted her to obtain a position, but she said that she had had enough of that kind of life and wanted to quit it. The man insisted, but met with a flat refusal. Even a threat to inform the police as to her whereabouts did not shake her resolve.

Angered by this, the girl said, he struck her in the face. The girl then left him and returned to her parents.

A short time after this interview had occurred Baker Knierien received the message over the telephone. It was in a man's voice.

When the girl was arraigned in court yesterday the Magistrate held her for trial in Special Sessions. The police are looking for the man in the case, but have little hope of finding him.

Ellis Island Boat Disabled.

The ferryboat Ellis Island, while on her 1 o'clock trip from the Battery yesterday afternoon, struck some submerged wreckage when nearing the New Jersey side, and disabled her machinery. She had about fifty passengers, and there was some excitement when she began to drift with whistle blowing for assistance. The cutter Immigrant went out from the Barge Office and towed her to the slip at Ellis Island.

BUSSE IS FAVORITE FOR CHICAGO MAYOR

But Betting Men and Other Observers Expect a Close Vote To-day.

ISSUE MADE ON TRACTION

Should Dunne Win He Will Seek Immediate Public Ownership of Railways.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Postmaster Fred A. Busse, Republican candidate for Mayor, is a slight favorite over Mayor E. F. Dunne in some of the bets that have been made to-day on the Municipal election to-morrow. Most of the bets, however, have been laid at evens. Although each party is declaring that it will have between 30,000 and 40,000 plurality, the betting men believe that the result will be very close.

The Republicans announce also that a house-to-house canvass made by their agents shows 194,000 votes for Busse and 121,000 for Dunne. Straw balloting by newspapers favoring Busse's election is said to have resulted similarly. Unbiased opinion seems to be that an unusually heavy vote will be cast, and the successful candidate for Mayor, whether Republican or Democratic, will be elected by a small majority—probably in the neighborhood of 12,000.

Carter H. Harrison, Dunne's Democratic predecessor as Mayor, defeated Charles Graeme Stewart, Republican, in 1903, by a majority of about 8,000. Dunne defeated John M. Harlan, Republican, in 1905, by a majority of about 26,000. The Republicans have not elected a Mayor in Chicago since 1895, when George B. Swift was their candidate.

In the present election the Republicans base their hope of victory principally on the personal popularity of Busse, his strength as a party manager for many years, and the fact that all factions of the party are united in support of the speedy improvement in local traction service promised by the traction ordinances which the party indorses. These ordinances, which were vetoed by Mayor Dunne, would give twenty-year franchises to the present companies with supervision and profit sharing by the city.

The Democrats, on the other hand, find grounds for hopefulness in the fact that the city is normally Democratic, and in the belief that their stand for immediate Municipal ownership of traction lines will get them the votes of the "common people" almost regardless of party affiliations. The Democrats will have the support of the Socialist Party in their fight on the traction ordinances.

If the ordinances fail of public adoption and Mayor Dunne is re-elected, efforts will be made at once to procure immediate municipal ownership of the street railways by condemnation and purchase. The ordinances before the people provide that the city, on six months' notice, may acquire the street railway systems for $50,000,000 plus the cost of rehabilitation, which is to be undertaken immediately under the supervision of a city engineer. The ordinances also provide for through routes, universal transfers, five-cent fares, and the payment to the city of 55 per cent. of the net income. The books of the companies are to be open to the city.

Several non-partisan organizations have worked with the Republicans to procure the adoption of ordinances, and the prediction was made to-night by the heads of these independent bodies that the ordinances would be adopted to-morrow.

The Mayor elected to-morrow will serve four years, instead of two, as heretofore. The campaign which closed to-night with both parties holding scores of meetings all over the city, has been the most spirited fight for Mayor that has ever taken place in Chicago. The feeling between the candidates and their various lieutenants became so bitter during the campaign that personal abuse attacks were freely made.

The weather indications for to-morrow are clear and warm.

ELECTION IN MICHIGAN.

Republicans Get 75,000 Plurality—Carnegie Library an Issue.

DETROIT, Mich., April 1.—With about a normal Spring election vote cast in Michigan to-day, the Republican State ticket has received a plurality of about 75,000. The successful candidates on the State ticket are: Supreme Court Justices—Aaron V. McAlvay and William L. Carpenter; Regents of the State University—Junius L. Beal and Frank B. Leland; Member of the State Board of Education—William A. Cotton.

There was little interest in the election except in those cities which had a local fight of importance, and in the Congressional District, where the Republicans held a primary for a candidate to succeed Senator William Alden Smith. G. J. Diekema, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and Senator Huntley Russell were the contestants, and Diekema has apparently won.

Mayor William Thompson of Kalamazoo, was re-elected despite a hard campaign made against him. In Jackson, Mayor W. W. Todd, Democrat, was defeated by B. J. Glasgow. In Bay City, Mayor Gustavus Hine, Democrat, was re-elected.

In Detroit much interest attached to the vote on a proposition to accept $750,000 from Andrew Carnegie for a library, and to issue bonds to support the institution. The result on this is in doubt.

ST. LOUIS ELECTION FRAUD.

But St. Louis Circuit Attorney Fails to Get Indictment.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, April 1.—Soon after the April Grand Jury was sworn in this afternoon Circuit Attorney Sager went before it and asked it to vote indictments against men whose names he presented, charging them with fraud in connection with the municipal election to be held to-morrow. The Grand Jury discussed the request and informed Sager that indictments would not be voted. They said that such action would be illegal.

Late in the afternoon Sager filed seventy-five informations with the Sheriff for service to-morrow. They carried names that had been fraudulently registered at previous elections, and will be placed in the hands of deputies for service at the polls.

The Democratic campaign managers say that their entire Council ticket will be elected to-morrow by majorities ranging from 3,000 to 5,000. They base their estimates upon the strength of their own ticket and the weakness of the Republican ticket and the influences back of it. The Democrats assert that the sentiment against a Council ticket dominated by Charles Kratz, former fugitive in connection with the famous boodle exposé here, is strong enough to carry it down to defeat. Republican boss Howe and other leaders repudiated the ticket after the convention.

Lewis E. Ehrlich, the Republican nominee for the House of Delegates from the Third Ward, was convicted of larceny in the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis in 1879, and he served two years in the penitentiary. If elected he would be ineligible to hold the office. Ehrlich was convicted of stealing military clothes. When confronted with his record to-day he told the correspondent that he would withdraw from the ticket as soon as he could find Nick Polito, the city central Committeeman from the Third Ward.

NASSAU'S SPRING ELECTIONS.

Farmers Raise the Auto Race Question as an Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 1.—The Spring election for Supervisor, Town Clerk, and other officers of Nassau County will be held to-morrow, and a lively fight is expected in all three towns.

Among the issues raised by farmers in Oyster Bay and North Hempstead is whether the Supervisors of their districts had any right to give away their public highways for the use of automobile races. Some of the farmers, who always opposed the races hold the Supervisors responsible for the death of the man who was killed at Krugs Corner in the race last Fall.

Supervisor William Jones of Oyster Bay and Supervisor Edwin C. Willetts of North Hempstead, who voted for the race against Supervisor Seabury's "No," are candidates for re-election.

CLASH IN PAINTERS' STRIKE.

Two Unions Did Not Act Together—Many Men Out.

There was a mix-up yesterday in regard to the instructions received by the Brotherhood of Painters and the Amalgamated Painters' Society for the conduct of the strike for the new wage scale which went into effect yesterday morning, and, in consequence, the business agents intrusted with ordering the strikes were unable to say how many men in all were out. In Manhattan and the Bronx, no figures could be given, and in Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond, it was estimated that 1,000 had quit work. This included Brownsville, where there was a general strike.

The strike instructions, which were sent yesterday morning to the officers of the two unions by Richard Waldron, Secretary of a joint board, were as follows:

You are hereby notified that at a meeting of the above board, held Saturday, March 30, 1907, a motion was carried, 8 to 2, to enforce the wage scale as per agreement entered into by both organizations and approved by the Central Federated Union and American Federation of Labor Peace Committees.

You are expected to notify all business agents to enforce this demand in all shops, arbitration or otherwise, not later than Monday, April 1, 1907. Failure to comply with this demand will render your organization liable to charges of violating the agreement entered into by both organizations on Feb. 13, 1907.

In accordance with these instructions the delegates of the Amalgamated Painters' Society were directed to be on hand early yesterday, to order strikes. It was provided, however, in the agreement of Feb. 13 that the delegates of both unions would work together in ordering strikes, and the delegates of the Amalgamated Painters reported to Secretary Connell that, as far as they could find, the delegates of the other unions had received no instructions.

Connell was indignant, an dtried to catch Secretary Collins of the District Council of the Brotherhood of Painters on the telephone, but failed. Collins would neither admit nor deny that he had received the letter of instructions. He said the brotherhood had been enforcing the demands against the independent employers, but could not say until to-day how many were out.

Connell was still very angry last evening. He said that the delegates of both unions would meet at 8 A. M. to-day, and after arranging a plan for quick action, would proceed to order strikes wherever the demands were refused, without any reference to Mr. Collins.

"We have 2,000 copies of agreements embodying all the demands, each addressed to a different employer, which will be delivered by the delegates to-morrow. They will order strikes on every contract where they are refused," he said. "If there is any delay in getting the strike under way quickly Mr. Collins is responsible for it."

The wages demanded are $4 and $4.50 a day for plain and decorative painters, respectively, in Manhattan and the Bronx, and 50 cents a day less in all the other boroughs.

Among the buildings affected by the strike yesterday is a large structure at the foot of West Forty-fifth Street, which is being erected for the Mallory Steamship Company.

HOPE TO AVERT A STRIKE.

Western Railroads and Employes Prepared to Make Concessions.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 1.—After another day of negotiations with heads of railroad employes' organizations, with the United States Commissioners acting as mediators, railroad officials at night expressed the belief that a settlement of differences is near at hand.

The optimism that prevailed was said to be due to the fact that the representatives of the men had agreed to make several important concessions. The prospect was that the roads would give the full 12 per cent. wage advance asked to at least one class of train employes, probably to flagmen. In return the men were said to be prepared to waive their demands for a nine-hour day.

Commissioner Neill said that further meetings with both the railroad officials and the men will be held to-morrow. He would not prophesy that a joint conference was an immediate possibility. It is said the Commissioners prefer to keep the negotiators separated until they feel they have removed every stumbling block in the way of peace.

TUG SINKS IN RIVER, 2 OF CREW MISSING

Struck by Ferryboat in the Blinding Early Morning Snowstorm.

FIVE MEN ARE RESCUED

The John D. Dalley Goes Down Off Twentieth Street Under Blow from the Musconetcong.

During the blinding snowstorm yesterday morning the D., L. & W. ferryboat Musconetcong struck and sunk the tug John D. Dalley of the Dalley Towing Line in the North River off Twenty-third Street. Two members of the tug's crew are believed to have lost their lives. Five others were rescued in an exhausted condition after they had struggled about fifteen minutes in the icy water.

All day the wrecking boat William E. Chapman and the tug George J. Moser swept the river trying to locate the sunken boat. As soon as they find her divers will be sent down to search for the bodies of the two men who are believed to have gone down in their craft.

The missing men are John Shanaphy, mate, of South Amboy, N. J., and James McClusky, a deck hand, of 10 South Street. The rescued men are Maurice Landrigan, who lived on the boat; Frank Fields, engineer, 247 West Twenty-eighth Street; James McGowan, deck hand, 388 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City; George Norman, 65 Hamilton Avenue, Long Island City, and Matthew McGowan, deck hand. The Captain was not on board.

The collision occurred about 4 A. M. According to Capt. Condell of the ferryboat, it was so thick that it was impossible for him to see twenty yards ahead. The Musconetcong left Hoboken at 3:45 o'clock and was proceeding under third speed with her fog whistle going when suddenly the tug appeared dead ahead and so close in that it was impossible to turn the big craft from her course. The heavy hull of the ferryboat struck the tug amidships so that she careened as though she would go all the way over.

When the shock cams the crew of the tug, who were below, rushed up on deck. The two vessels held together for a minute, and then the strong tide separated them, and the tug drifted off to sink off Twentieth Street not ten minutes after the heavy bow of the Musconetcong had cut into her side.

The railroad company reports that as soon as the ferryboat's bow cleared the sinking tug Capt. Condell stopped his engines and lowered his small boats to render assistance. He declares that the tug drifted off and was lost in the storm, and that the men in the boats did not even hear a single cry for assistance.

Four of the Dalley's crew were rescued by the men on the tug John Smith, which was bound up the river. Their shouts for help were heard, and one by one the tug crew rescued four of them. The rescued men after being treated in the fireroom of the Smith were brought ashore and hurried to Roosevelt Hospital. Later they were transferred to Bellevue, where it was said last night that they would recover. Capt. Allen Howell of the tug Greenwich picked up Matthew McGowan.

The only damage done to the Musconetcong was the bending of a rudder pin. This was repaired and she continued on her regular run.

The Dalley was built at Chester, Penn., in 1873. She was of 79 tons register and 75 feet long.

Charles D. Davis Robbed of Jewelry.

By using a jimmy, burglars entered the bachelor apartments of Charles D. Davis, brother of Richard Harding Davis, at 30 West Thirtieth Street a few days ago, and $500 worth of jewelry was taken. Mr. Davis was absent in Philadelphia, and the robbery was discovered by his valet. He gave this list to the police of the pieces of jewelry stolen: One pair of pearl studs, $100; gold cigar case, $200; gold chain, $25; gold pencil, $25; silver match safe, $25, and a gold pin, $10.

FAVOR OPEN RACE FOR TOURING AUTOS

Foreign Machines May Be Admitted in A. A. A. Contest Over Cup Course.

CONDITIONS ARE EXPLAINED

Mr. Smith Shows How Cylinder Capacity Limitations Will Furnish Practical Results.

There is a strong possibility that a request will be made to the American Automobile Association at the meeting of engineers in Indianapolis on April 13 to discuss conditions for the proposed touring car contest over the Vanderbilt Cup course that foreign machines be admitted on an equal basis with American cars. There has been a decided tendency within the last few days to modify the original suggestion that the two or three day contest be limited solely to American cars. H. O. Smith of Indianapolis, who was in the city last week discussing the plan with the officers of the National Association, stated yesterday that he was heartily in favor of encouraging foreign cars to compete if they can be subjected to the same restrictions as imposed upon the American cars.

"If the foreign car as a regular product is better than the American car," said Mr. Smith, "the American manufacturer wants to know it. If the American car is as good as the foreign car we want the public to know it. The foreigners, it must be remembered, have had decided advantages in the racing field due to the large number of high-priced cars they have been able to dispose of and the fact that opportunities for fast drivers are greater in Europe than in this country, thereby producing a larger number of expert drivers."

Indications pointed strongly yesterday to the possibility of some cylinder displacement limitation being required for the Vanderbilt Cup race itself. The news was received in the city that the Ardennes circuit, the long distance speed contest of Belgium, would not, after all, be run this season under the old weight limitation. The rules have just been revised, raising the weight limit to 2,600 pounds, and absolutely requiring every car to carry that weight, in addition to some limitations in the cylinder capacity. All of the big foreign races, therefore, have now abandoned the old weight conditions, and at the present time the Vanderbilt Cup race stands as the only one adhering to the time-honored principles.

"So far as I know," said a motorist who has been active in all former cup events here, "Mr. Vanderbilt has not sent any suggestion of changes. He is due to arrive to-day, and I presume within a few days the exact conditions will be publicly announced. I feel sure there will be a more generous weight limit, at any rate. It is probable that the entries will be kept open a month longer than was the case last year, when the entries officially closed on July 1."

There is no question that the weight limit as the sole test of racing eligibility is obsolete, and in its place certain restrictions in cylinder capacity are meeting with greater favor.

"The weight limit," said Mr. Smith yesterday, "has produced in many cases motors of abnormal size, with a tendency toward too frail construction of the chassis. International speed contests should have a direct bearing upon the product turned out for actual use by each manufacturer. The question of horse power is misleading, and cylinder displacement is probably the only fair basis of determining a limit. For example, take the cubic contents of four cylinders of 5½ by 5½ inches or 5½ by 6 inches. A motor conforming to these requirements would probably represent all the horse power necessary to produce a satisfactory car either in respect to speed or its ability to perform well on the road. Such a motor in a touring car as used to-day would easily be able to attain a speed of 45 to 50 miles an hour. With six cylinders the individual units would be smaller. With such limitations on the power of the motor it would be safe to allow the designer to determine the weight of his chassis without any restrictions in that direction.

"Under such conditions, therefore, a fair comparison might be drawn between various motor car products. The results of a competition arranged along these lines would place the makers of successful cars in a position to assure the public that the contest represented a true and accurate test from which the purchaser could readily determine the real value and ability of the cars."

Several members of the Importers' Salon, under whose auspices the foreign touring race is being arranged, said yesterday that no matter what opportunities might be granted by the A. A. A. for foreign cars to enter the American touring car event, the Importers' Salon race would be held just the same. There are now eight members of the Salon, and each one is permitted to enter two cars, making a possible total of sixteen cars. Fourteen cars have already been entered. It is barely possible that one or two new foreign agents may be admitted to membership at the meeting next month, which would, therefore, increase the racing possibilities.

St. Bartholomew A. C. Road Run.

The annual road race of the St. Bartholomew Athletic Club will be held next Sunday. The run was scheduled for March 10, but owing to the weather conditions it was postponed. The run is for members only, and all the seniors in the boys' department are entered. The run will start from the clubhouse of the Mohawk Athletic Club, 156th Street and Walton Avenue, at 3:30 P. M. The Jerome Avenue course, which is four and one-fourth miles, has been selected. Gold and silver medals have been donated as prizes for the first three boys finishing the course. A time and novice prize has been offered by the association.

"JIM" DUFFY RESIGNS.

Superintendent of New York A. C. Leaves After 21 Years' Service.

Regular members who frequent the New York Athletic Club missed the bustling figure and smiling face of James J. Duffy yesterday. The twenty-one years of service which he had fulfilled with the organization as Superintendent came to an end with the twilight of the Easter Sunday. In that period he had witnessed many changes in the organization. But in the clubhouse at the southern boundary of Central Park it was always Supt. Duffy who skillfully attended to the administration of the plans which the various committees and the Board of Governors of the Mercury Foot organization outlined.

The resignation of Supt. Duffy leaves more than a gap to be filled in the list of employes. He began his work with the club during the administration of William R. Travers, an uncle of District Attorney Jerome, as President. Then, in order, he attended to his duties under the administrations of A. V. De Goicouria, Jennings S. Cox, W. G. Schuyler, A. G. Mills, Bartow S. Weeks, August Belmont, James Whitely, Thomas L. Watson, and John R. Van Wormer. To the greater portion of the membership he was known as plain "Jim." Duffy, and he knew each individual member of the big list, no matter how seldom he visited the clubhouse, and could call him by name.

Changes have been taking place since the election of George W. Kuhlke as President. Many have been so quietly effected that the members have not been aware that anything out of the accustomed order of things was astir. But a number of the old members gave Duffy a send-off Easter, and the marble entrance hall and office seemed strange without him yesterday.

President Kuhlke and the Governors met last night and considered several men to fill the Superintendent's vacant position. No decision will be made for several days to come.

YACHT RULE UNDER FIRE.

Complain That There Is Too Much Latitude for Discrepancies.

In the wide discussion of the uniform rating rule of measurement for yachts to determine handicaps for races there has been practical unanimity of opinion among designers of the desirability of the rule in its restrictive influence. A few have opposed the rule, and there have been various suggestions of further limitations that are deemed desirable, but taken all in all, it may be said that sentiment is practically agreed that the rule is a success, and that it should be in future applied to the America's Cup races instead of the old and admittedly undesirable waterline length and sail area measurement.

There has been, however, general complaint of the difficulty of applying the rule accurately in obtaining measurements for rating purposes. The principal cause of complaint has been the habit of accepting the displacement figures furnished by the designer as conclusive, opening up as it does, a wide scope for dishonesty in the designer if he desires to bolster up his boat by misstatement of its real measurements.

C. Sherman Hoyt, the measurer of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club and a promising young designer, now points out further difficulties that may be met with by reason of the lack of sufficient restriction upon the conditions under which measurements are made.

In a calculation of a theoretical condition that might readily be assumed to exist he shows that in the calculation of displacement a measure by any one of seven methods which are open to him might get results from the same boat that would make the rating vary so much that over a thirty-eight-mile course there would be as much as 1 minute and 38 seconds difference in the allowance granted the same boat. His figures show that by five different calculations on a 55-footer he obtains these results and variances:

Displacement.	Rating.	Allowance.
191.16	55.0	50s.
193.23	54.75	1m. 28s.
184.87	55.5	Scratch

A difference such as this, which is not only possible, but probable, would have changed the result of the Astor Cup race last year and given quite another winner, and would have accomplished the same result in the King's Cup race—the two most important events of the year.

In precisely the same way by stowing the ordinary gear and fittings of a yacht in the bow or stern or amidships, the length can be affected so as to increase or decrease the measurement and the allowance would vary accordingly. Dropping the head 1 inch below the designed line of flotation by the placing of 400 pounds of gear and the filling of forward water tanks and the emptying of the aft tanks would alter the time allowance 30 seconds. Dropping it two inches below the line of flotation would change the allowance 1 minute and 35 seconds. Reversing the process and dropping the stern would make the same difference, but conversely.

It is probable that after the work on the scantling restrictions is completed some means will be devised to at least minimize the possibilities of variance.

The New Jersey trout season opened at daybreak yesterday morning and thousands of anglers are now whipping the streams throughout that State. The State Fish and Game Commission has spent a great deal of money in stocking the waters, and the supply is good. The fish are all of a good size. There is a scarcity of public streams, and the regular organized fishing clubs that have their own places to fish will receive the best of the sport. The best fishing is in Morris and Sussex Counties, where the brooks have been well cared for, and it is said that the young fish that were placed by the Fish Commissioners a few years ago have thrived, and are now of a legal size. The season will remain open until July 15.

The Ever Jolly Fishing Club of Newark, N. J., has organized for another season, with Frank Herringer, President; John Berger, Vice President; William Wister, Treasurer; James Tittle, Secretary, and Andrew Tittle, Sergeant at Arms. The club has chartered the seagoing auxiliary boat Seabov, and will make trips as follows: May 12, June 16, July 7, July 28, Aug. 18, Sept. 8, Oct. 18, and Nov. 10.

The United States Fish Commission realizes that there is little to be gained by the efforts to cultivate shad in the polluted waters of the Delaware or the Hudson and the shad hatcheries in these streams are likely to be abandoned. The small shad that are carried up the Delaware by the employes of the Fish Commission are gobbled up by the black bass and have no chance to thrive. The same condition prevails in many parts of New Jersey where the streams have become more or less polluted by the manufacturing establishments that are scattered along those streams.

The Pastime Fishing Club has chartered the propeller. Rudolph Brothers for the coming season. The officers of the club are: President—Julius G. Spingler; Vice President—Robert Krut; Corresponding Secretary—Adam Piereth; Financial Secretary—George Heingnickel; Treasurer—Anton Bell; Sergeant at Arms—John Lockhouse; Captain—George Howe. The member of the club catching the largest fish during the coming season will receive a ball-bearing reel.

Jamaica Bay reports good flounder fishing, and the fish are increasing in numbers. A throng of anglers was out yesterday. Charles Mullen of the Mochican Fishing Club had several companions out at Hammels and returned with a nice mess.

NOT REASSURING.

Railroad men, capitalists, and investors who had counted upon the distribution of some crumbs of comfort in a speech it was reported the President would deliver at Springfield, will rise from the perusal of the White House statement given out yesterday in lieu of a speech with the feeling that they have partaken of a somewhat meagre and unsatisfying repast. The statement declares that with the "immediate situation in Wall Street" the President has nothing to do, that he is concerned only with a "definite and settled policy, to be carried out wholly without regard to the exigencies of the moment." Furthermore, "to the different men, friendly and unfriendly, who have visited him or written to him" the President, it is now avowed, has said "that he should not in his future course deviate one hair's breadth from the course he has pursued in the past and is now pursuing."

This is what the President says, and that it is not reassuring anybody can see. Whether Mr. ROOSEVELT disclaims any change of purpose from pride of opinion, while at the same time inwardly resolving to abate the ardor of his pursuit of the corporations because of a disquieting fear that there may come of it business disturbances most unfortunately timed in respect to the Presidential election next year, is a psychological problem which may be left to those who have confidence in their power to read the Executive mind. The written word gives no promise of abatement in anything.

Perhaps exception should be made of the valuation of the physical property of the railroads. It has been widely understood, and we had thought with sufficient warrant, that the President would press upon Congress next Winter a measure authorizing the Inter-State Commerce Commission to make an appraisal of railroad property as a basis for fixing of rates. The White House statement points out "that the President has made no references in his speeches or messages to the question of the physical valuation of the railroads"; his position is "that the roads themselves will work out this problem as an item of bookkeeping." If there is reassurance in that the railroads are entitled to such comfort as it may give them. The problem of overcapitalization is distinctly on the Executive programme of reform. The President will ask Congress to empower the Government to exercise "increased regulatory and supervisory power" over the railways, notably in respect to "the matter of overcapitalization." This is to be inferred from the introductory matter of the statement as well as from those portions of Mr. ROOSEVELT'S previous utterances liberally quoted from in the letter to Mr. SMITH of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association. But the President has not "the slightest intention to take any action which would invalidate the safety and stability of the railroad securities now issued." It is his aim "to insure the future against the mistakes and delinquencies of the past."

The gravest doubt which this statement of the President's unchanged position raises is that of railroad extension. Existing systems of railroads can get along under a law regulating and supervising capitalization. But that under such a law administered in the spirit of Mr. ROOSEVELT'S utterances capital will come forth to extend present lines or build new lines in the great Northwest or in the South, for instance, is dubious to the verge of improbability. There is an empire of resources in the States lying west of the Great Lakes, notably in Washington and Oregon. The South is astir with new industrial life, and beyond doubt the most notable increase in the National wealth during the next quarter of a century will be observed in the Southern States, where development has been so long held back by the consequences of the Civil War. It may be thought that if development is sure and increase of wealth is sure, then new railroad investments would confidently be made. That is not true. The reality of the new wealth may not be doubtful; the history of nations tells us that it is well-nigh certain. But the history of new enterprises tells us no less surely that new railroad ventures are always in some degree speculative, and often very highly so. Money that would be attracted to established industries by the prospect of a moderate return could be secured for railroad extension and new construction only by the hope of a much more considerable ultimate yield. The capitalization of future profits is not always a matter of "stock watering." It is a method by which undertakings not otherwise practicable may be begun.

Whether the Administration has contemplated this and all other possible results of its policy is beyond the scope of inquiry. It is needless to inquire, indeed, for the Administration's mind is made up. If Congress confers the necessary power, past mischiefs and delinquencies will be reproved by future regulation. If greater mischief shall ensue, if States and whole regions now hopeful of speedy development shall be cheated of their hope as a result of the new policy, the wisdom that comes of sore experience will know how to find and apply the remedy. The remedy of prevention evidently will not be prescribed by Mr. ROOSEVELT.

HIGHER TELEGRAPH RATES.

The Western Union and the Postal Telegraph Companies have advanced their rates, but have not thus far seen fit to take the public into their confidence by a statement of reasons. The public is manifestly interested in the matter, for a prompt exchange of communications between near or distant points is of business and social necessity. The telegraph companies are public service corporations.

An advance of rates for any kind of transportation, whether of passengers, goods, or messages, is something of a novelty. For a generation the tendency has been the other way. The strongest point, the most effective argument, made in behalf of corporations subject to Governmental control against attempts at regulating them has been based upon the progressive diminution of their charges. Now comes a halt, and charges are increased. It is well understood, of course, that the cost of supplies, like the cost of living, has of late gone up. President CLOWRY points out that there has been an increase of from 25 to 100 per cent. in the cost of copper wire and other telegraph materials, and that general maintenance is more expensive than it was a few years ago. These specifications count for something. There is an impression, however, that labor-saving inventions and new devices have materially lowered the cost of telegraphic service. The public, which supports the telegraph companies, would like to know whether their financial condition, whether the relations of earnings to capital, make the increase in charges necessary.

The United States Steel Corporation has won much favor by its policy of issuing full and detailed statements of its business. We are not aware whether the telegraph companies are in a position to follow its example, but in these days, when there is so much talk about the regulation of rates, the prevention of stock-watering, and the general control and supervision of service corporations, it would, we think, be wise for the Western Union and the Postal Company to submit to public examination and judgment the financial grounds of their decision to increase rates.

GALUSHA A. GROW.

It seems inevitable that when a man has passed his eightieth birthday he shall be regarded as mainly a landmark and a survival. "Though some be so strong that they come to fourscore years, yet is their strength then but labor and sorrow." The announcement of the death of one of them, to the generation which is at the time in the vigor of life and carrying on the work of the world, is apt to be a sudden reminder to that generation that it was but yesterday that he was alive, and that he has borne in his remote time, if it be so, his conspicuous share in those activities.

As the world grows older, not only is the average of longevity higher, but men may still be useful and active past the extreme limit of the Psalmist. We can hardly imagine a George Washington in our day, say in the fourth generation after his, giving his "advanced age" of fifty-six as a disqualification for the Presidency of the United States. And of the same birth year with that of GALUSHA A. GROW, the year 1824, was HENRY G. DAVIS, active enough three years ago to be a candidate for the Vice Presidency and to derive interest and amusement from that position. And of the same year were Col. T. W. HIGGINSON and GOLDWIN SMITH, from whose contributions to the current magazines and newspapers their juniors continue to derive instruction and entertainment. Of the same year is Senator WHYTE. Senator PETTUS is two years older, and Senator MORGAN but two years younger. And these literal "Senators" are not "mere antiques," but among the most efficient and influential members of the body to which they belong.

The increase of longevity, still more the prolongation of activity to and beyond the assumed limit of human life—these are real and valuable conquests over nature. Mr. GROW did not prolong his active life to the limit of his actual survival. But it is immensely impressive to be reminded by his death that the man who was the law partner of WILMOT of the "Wilmot Proviso," who was first elected to Congress in 1851, and was thus almost a prodigy of political precocity, should have been elected again in 1894, having in the meantime been the second Republican Speaker, next to BANKS, and having within the interval borne a full part in all the great and stirring events that marked the active period of his life. Such a career is the conspicuous refutation of SWIFT'S awful satire on the evils of survival, a satire, it is sad to reflect, most awfully painted by Swift's own fate of senile degeneracy. GALUSHA A. GROW was a conspicuous and well-deserving actor in the public life of the United States for well-nigh half a century, and an American to be held in honor by his successors and survivors.

GOV. HUGHES'S APPEAL.

Gov. HUGHES in his speech at Utica last night stated adequately, but with admirable terseness, the principle underlying the establishment of commissions for the regulation of the business of public service corporations:

The Legislature may within its Constitutional powers establish standards of service. A railroad corporation, for example, is bound to give safe, impartial, and adequate service for a reasonable charge. It is the function of the Commission to secure safety, impartiality, adequacy of service, and reasonable charges; that is, compliance with the requirements of the law.

When the Governor added later in his speech that "the power of the State should be exercised to compel respect for the public interest," he had presented a justifying reason for the passage of the Public Commissions bill.

The Governor was not equally successful, we think, in his argument against the court review amendment. He set forth clearly and candidly the broad principle that, whether the review clause is included or not, the right of appeal to the courts against an invasion of property rights cannot be destroyed or abridged by any act or omission of the Legislature. If the Legislature, in establishing standards of service or charges, transcends its Constitutional powers or if the Commission exercising administrative functions "exceeds its authority or passes its Constitutional limits" the right of appeal to the courts may at all times be invoked. But it seems to Gov. HUGHES that delay, confusion, and a defeat of the legislative intent would result from conferring upon the courts the right to review all orders of the Commission; it would substitute the judgment of the court for the action of the Commission, and practically limit that body to the function of taking evidence and making recommendations.

Is not that apprehension groundless? We are confident that the courts would not willingly make themselves "instruments of delay and unnecessary multiplicity of proceedings." They would be exceedingly careful not to encourage or permit complainants to find through the right of appeal to them a way to avoid compliance with the will of the people expressed through the Legislature. The public service corporations would very soon learn that frivolous and obstructive appeals would avail them nothing, and that they could act profitably and confidently under the review clause only when they had a substantial grievance.

Gov. HUGHES'S view of the bill is influenced in some degree, we imagine, by his antecedent knowledge of the character of the commissions he will appoint. He knows in his own mind, and the public knows because it has full confidence in him, that the members of the first Commissions will be men of high character. A Commissions law without the court review would doubtless be safe and perfectly workable if administered by such Commissioners as he will name. But there will be other Governors not of his mind, not of his conscience, not of his sense of public duty. The danger that the powers of the act will be abused by future Commissions not subject to judicial check is materially greater than the danger that under any kind of Commissions the right of appeal to the courts will be misused to the public detriment.

OUR STREET PAVEMENTS.

Last Autumn the Merchants' Association, through its very competent Committee on City Conditions, and with the hearty co-operation of the Mayor, made a report on the defective condition of the streets, particularly of Manhattan Borough. The result was the appointment by the Mayor of a Commission on Street Administration. Pretty soon after the appointment of this Commission, Nov. 28, 1906, there came a snowfall, followed by other snowfalls and complicated with accumulations of dirt and refuse which rendered the pavements invisible. The Commission could not have ascertained their condition without a permit and an appropriation for carrying on mining operations.

Now, however, the clemency of the weather, possibly incidentally aided here and there by the labors of Commissioner CRAVEN, has once more brought the pavements partly into view. The inspection shows that the pavements are in a worse condition than ever. The condition of them is literally "shocking," not only to those who traverse the streets in rubber-shod automobiles, but to those who make their way in cabs, well within the legal rate of speed, and find themselves jolted to an extent that threatens dislocation of the dorsal vertebrae. Gaping wounds diversify the surface of the asphalt and form ambushes and pitfalls for the unwary chauffeur or the even less vigilant Jehu. It is an awful state of things.

Now that the pavements are partly visible, it is evident that something ought to be done about them. The Corporation Counsel puts the bad condition of the pavements up to the Borough President. By the conditions under which the asphalt was laid, the contractors were bound to keep it in order for five years free of charge. After that the expense of maintenance was to devolve upon the city. The Borough President is charged with the enforcement of the conditions of the contracts. If the contractor does not fulfill them, he has the right to have necessary repairs made by his own subordinates, and to charge the cost of them against the fund retained as part of the contract price. But more than that, there are half a dozen departments empowered to make holes or dump obstructions or to permit the making of holes or the dumping of obstructions by persons or corporations of which the interest is not to clean up after themselves. Besides the wear and tear of traffic, of which it is eminently true that a patch in time saves nine, there are the gas and electric openings, the Water Department openings, the sewer openings, the plumbers' openings, and the nuisances with which builders are anomalously and unjustifiably permitted to incumber the streets. There are among the beneficiaries of these various forms of public nuisance those who are better than the law, who take a pride in doing their work with a minimum of inconvenience to the public, hastening it to the utmost, and as promptly as possible restoring the pavements to their original condition or a better. But it would be contrary to what we know of human nature if all, or if a majority, were of this mind. The only safeguard effective as to the majority is the certainty of vigilant inspection and prompt accountability.

THE OHIO PRIMARIES.

It is the troubles of their own which make the Democrats take such a genial interest in the fracases within the Republican Party, and that in Ohio is exceptionally interesting. A better way of advertising that factional troubles exist could not be imagined, and if anybody thinks that the result will settle anything he is mistaken. Will the rest of the United States allow Ohio to settle the Presidential campaign by a little preliminary vote of its own? Not at all. All the other States with sons will demand primaries, and Democracy will extend a welcoming hand to each and every defeated one.

Why should not Mr. FAIRBANKS trot a warming-up heat, so to speak, and can it be that Illinois will allow Ohio to monopolize the Nation's attention? Will Uncle JOE vote for TAFT if he wins, or for FORAKER in the contrary event, without giving them both an opportunity to see how he runs in his own little State? Then again, why should TAFT and FORAKER run in Ohio alone? Has no other State an interest in their relative merits, not to mention the side issues which are even more absorbing than their personalities? Why should other States be denied the privilege of voting for the candidate Ohio rejects, and for that reason alone? Is it not conceivable that there might be something local to Ohio which would be allunde in a National contest?

Let us not be misunderstood. We are not in the least interested in putting out the fire in Ohio. We are rather hoping and trusting that the conflagration Mr. ROOSEVELT has lighted there may extend elsewhere.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Not Help Dr. Wiley?

Of all the men in the country, of course, the big meat packers ought to be most interested in ascertaining the exact effects on health of the different food preservatives, and in a way, therefore, it was the most natural thing in the world for the college Presidents and professors who are getting up a National commission for the investigation of nutrition problems to apply to the packers for financial assistance.

In other ways, however, it was not the wisest thing in the world, for though we all know that the packers have now become paragons of all the virtues, their attainment of this exalted state was somewhat recent, and it will be the general impression, we think, that a commission of the sort proposed would command more of public confidence if it were financed from other quarters. Indeed, there is something just a little alarming in the news that the meat packers responded very readily to the appeal for assistance, and one cannot help wondering if they did not offer to supply the new commission with experts to conduct the experiments and to make elaborate reports on them, as well as with money.

And we do not see just why the President of the University of Illinois, who seems to be the moving and leading figure in this enterprise, is not content to leave the investigation of foods and preservatives to Dr. WILEY of the Agricultural Department, who has done some most excellent work in that line and has promised to do more if Congress will only let him alone and not cut down his appropriations. Would it not have been as well if President JAMES and the eminent professors associated with him, instead of setting up a commission in rivalry with Dr. WILEY, had contented themselves with bringing their large influence to bear on the Senate and House of Representatives?

Thus might they have secured for us the careful sewing up of several large holes in the pure food law—that relating to the dating of cans, for instance—or at least have saved us from having any more rents made in it, which now seems rather more than likely unless a new excitement arises to prevent it. And it would be very dreadful if President JAMES'S commission, financed by the Meat Trust, should reach conclusions about preservatives that differed from those of the investigators paid by the Government. People have come to be so suspicious and skeptical of late that it would be nothing surprising, in that contingency, if they thought many cruel things—and said a few.

Romantic, But Not Commendable.

It was highly interesting—almost thrilling, in fact—to read that BIGGY, the Elisor, has notified all and sundry not to attempt the rescue of the amiable RUEF, warning those who may be meditating any such enterprise that the moment the would-be rescuers seem to have even the chance of succeeding he or his minions will shoot their prisoner until he is thoroughly dead.

This takes one right back to the Middle Ages, or at least as far back as the days of the Vigilantes, a period which, though now rather remote, is still well remembered in California. It is more than interesting, more than thrilling; it is romantic and sounds a good deal like a page out of a Hope novel. Moreover, BIGGY, the Elisor, is a most businesslike person, with a habit of doing what he says he will, so that it is at least possible that he would carry out his threat.

But, all things considered, we do not see just what right he would have to do it. As can readily be imagined, we do not worry—much—about the fate of Mr. RUEF, who is, apparently, a man who could be as well spared from San Francisco or the world as any whose name we recall at the moment, but Mr. BIGGY forgets, we fear, that his prisoner is held for other and more important purposes than that of punishing him for the crimes with which he is charged. There is a high expectation that he can be used in bringing to justice the real enemies of San Francisco—the men whose money he took and in part distributed. Mr. HENEY has made it very evident that he is after larger game than RUEF, and it is conceivable that the larger game, utilizing the Elisor's warning, might get up a rescue party whose object would be, by getting RUEF killed, to rescue those imperiled by the testimony he could give.

So it seems to us that Mr. BIGGY will have done his whole duty when he has carefully guarded his prisoner, and if necessary died in the effort to keep him in safe custody. That would be much more businesslike and in every way more satisfactory, though we admit that it would be less romantic and less simple. If the prisoner were shot by his guardians it would never be known just what the act accomplished—whether it covered the attacking party with sorrow and chagrin, or whether it filled them with delight and enabled them to pocket the easily earned price of blood in large quantities.

Worrying About Transportation.

More attention than it has yet received is deserved by the report recently made by a committee of the Dry Goods Association on the city's transportation facilities and the best method of increasing them to something like adequacy. The committee declared, not only what we all know, that the existing situation is almost unendurable, but also that unless the municipal authorities and the traction companies cooperated in the attainment of the desired ends it would be difficult or impossible to secure the capital necessary for extending the transportation system rapidly enough to meet the city's ever-growing needs.

"As a definite programme," the report concluded, "we recommend that the association appoint a committee from its members, whose duty it shall be to take up this problem and confer with all authorities, State and municipal, with all interests represented in the transportation systems of New York, and with all other local organizations and civic bodies, and with full power to discuss and negotiate, formulate, and report any plan or plans looking to that relief of which the whole people of the city stand so sorely in need."

It may be that the members of the Dry Goods Association, or of its committee, exaggerate a little antagonism between the traction interests and those of the municipality and State. If not that exactly, they exaggerate the disastrous consequences of it. For the two seem to be working together fairly well as it is, and the tendency is for the corporations to take what they can get and to make the not at all bad best of it. The timidity of capital is proverbial, but perhaps it is not quite as timid as it pretends to be or as it wants to be thought. However that may be, the dry goods men are to be commended for the careful attention they are giving to public matters.

BLAMES ELECTRIC ENGINES.

Suggestion That Builders Be Indicted for Inventing "Man Killers."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the jury in the New York Central indictment had called upon experts for an opinion on the evidence and the facts, they would have included in their criminal category the builders of the electric engines. They are the real offenders, for they have built a "man killer," not an engine in any proper sense for fast passenger use, and they have represented its capacity to inexperienced men—with apologies to the officials of the railroad who were indicted and those under them who were not indicted, but still even more responsible than the men now found culpable by the presentment.

The engines are the crassest so-called electric engines ever built, and do violence to every law of locomotion that has been developed in a "century of steam and steel." At the dawn of this "century of aluminium and electricity," we are at least masters in the single item of locomotion and should have men in charge of such construction capable of putting up an engine intelligently developed so far as traction, pilotage, and proper proportions of wheel base and distribution of weight are concerned.

The engines violate every one of the laws, and will in another few years be pronounced faulty in conception and execution, so far as the proper observance of the laws of construction and operation of traction and its corollary of safety appliances are developed at the present day. J. H. H.

Short Weight in Ice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of a few days ago I noted the items that the President of the American Ice Company had said that there had been no ice famine, and that the price of ice this Summer would remain thirty cents a hundred. It is and will remain that in name only. Again and again I have weighed the ice delivered to me and find that it is invariably short weight. Only this morning I ordered a fifty-pound piece and found it weighed thirty-five pounds. This same thing happens to thousands and thousands of people every day in this city, but they are unaware of it. By its little trick of cheating me this morning out of fifteen pounds the company was able to rake off four and one-half cents to which it was not entitled. On one hundred thousand customers its graft would be $4,500 a day. It has many more customers than this. In view of this system the price of thirty cents a hundred is meaningless.

Can nothing be done about it? J. S.

British Army's First Trousers.

From the London Chronicle.

Perhaps the army revolution of deepest interest to the soldier himself was that effected in 1823, when for the first time he was put in trousers. The announcement from the Horse Guards took the following remarkable form: "His Majesty has been pleased to approve of the discontinuance of breeches, leggings, and shoes as part of the clothing of the infantry soldiers, and of blue-gray cloth trousers and half-boots being substituted." In order to indemnify the "clothing colonels" for any hardship which the new order might cause, it was decided that these gentlemen should no longer be called upon to provide the waistcoat of Tommy, but that Tommy should himself supply it out of his shilling a day. To reassure him it was pointed out that he was in a position to do so with comfort, because he would no longer have to buy gaiters.

Credit Given Incorrectly.

DEFENDS EVENING SCHOOLS.

Pupils Declare Their Work Equals That of Day High Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with a great deal of surprise the article which appeared in Thursday's issue concerning the evening high schools. The Board of Education was condemned for its appropriation for the maintenance of the evening high schools on the ground that no good was being derived from them. I am compelled to defend the evening high school. For the last three years I have been a student in the evening high school, and at present am registered as a student in the De Witt Clinton Evening High School.

I can truthfully say that if the young men who attend these evening high schools are serious and sincere in their efforts a great deal can be accomplished. The students who drop out of the evening high schools have proved to be the dull ones, with no serious purpose. But there are always an encouraging number to remain through the school year, which is an argument in favor of the evening high school. These schools have never closed for lack of attendance.

The work done in the evening high schools compares favorably with work done in the day high schools, was a statement made by Principal Mitchell of the De Witt Clinton Evening High School a few weeks ago. The certificates of these schools are accepted by the Board of Regents in lieu of the Regents' examination. That in itself is a strong argument for the character of the work done in the evening high schools. Six years of study in the evening high schools will admit one to the City College. Many students have been prepared for college through the evening high schools. I have in mind a young man who is now a student in Phillips Andover Academy who prepared in the evening high school. Personally, I have been benefited through the evening high school. I am preparing for Harvard University, and a great deal of my preparation is being received in the evening high school.

The Board of Education should not be condemned, but praised, for its appropriations for these schools. If it were not for these evening high schools many ambitious young men would be deprived of a high school education. Because a few students drop out before the end of the school year does not necessarily mean that the school system is defective or inefficient. The evening high schools are for young men who are sincere in their efforts. CLEVELAND G. ALLEN.

New York, March 29, 1907.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer has read with interest the discussion in your columns regarding the lack of interest on the part of young men in the work of the Evening High Schools. I have attended Harlem Evening High School (116th Street) for the past few years, and I can say—and any fair-minded person will agree with me—that the instructors are not to blame for the meagre attendance in some of the classes. Each season when the Evening High Schools first open the classrooms are crowded almost to suffocation, leading one to believe that nearly every young man is anxiously seeking an education. This condition lasts for about one month or six weeks; then a noticeable decrease in attendance occurs. We have the reasons here: When the cool weather sets in social clubs renew their activity and a few of the students forsake their studies to attend dances. Then constant attendance at theatres attracts a few more. Bowling alleys and gymnasiums appeal to several, and they quit school. When the ice-skating season sets in nearly all of the remainder give up their studies in order to go skating. Thus have I, three successive seasons, seen classes which on Sept. 15 contained forty to forty-five students, dwindle down to four or five before Dec. 10. HARLEM STUDENT.

Have You a "Quick Temper"?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every now and then one comes into contact with persons who indiscreetly believe and by their utterances make others believe that they are possessed of one of the most undesirable traits of human nature, a quick temper, and, strange to say, seem to take an unconcealed pride in their alleged possession. Especially are such people conspicuous after a quarrel or dispute, when the most unmannerly conduct is apparently explained away by mere mention of their masterly passion.

Persons of this character ought to be disillusioned. That they do not analyze their natures frankly and intelligently is clear. Among the many things that mark off an individual who merely imagines himself to possess a certain characteristic from the one who truly possesses it the most cogent is that the former is always talking about the trait, whereas the latter never even mentions it. It seems to me, therefore, that those who plead a quick temper whenever they get into trouble must be regarded with suspicion. We may take a man's blows and curses, his impulsiveness, or even his red hair as an indication of the fact that he has a quick temper, but verbal explanation and apology are here strangely out of place.

It is true that the proverbial hot-tempered man deserves some consideration at our hands, for, generally speaking, he is a man whose animal passions are superior in strength to his will. The secret of self-control with which the generality of mankind is to some extent endowed is lacking in his makeup and cannot easily be acquired. In contradistinction to those whose disposition is only irritable and untrained his is violent and often untrainable.

As civilization advances it is to be hoped that the traces of a former animal nature will be eliminated from the constitution of man, and that the human race will occupy a more distinct position in the universe. This progress will be greatly furthered if those will restrain their impulses who have hitherto given free scope to them under the plea of a nature that perhaps does not exist in them.

Preserve Riverside Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. John J. Rooney's protest in Sunday's TIMES against the spoliation of Riverside Park is indeed opportune. Every citizen of New York should be up in arms against the proposed vandalism of that bandit corporation, the New York Central.

No city in the world can boast such a parkway and river view as New York here possesses, and it is beyond belief that civilized Americans will tolerate a further extension of the intolerable nuisance which the Central now inflicts on our citizens. At the present time the free air of the Park is poisoned with sulphurous smoke, the quiet of the river is broken by the puffing and snorting of locomotives, the clang of bells, the bleating of entrained cattle, the squealing of swine. At times the stench from cattle cars is insufferable.

The city should compel the Central to bury or roof over its existing tracks and electrify its equipment. But the present proposition to actually multiply to six tracks, to make a switch yard of the finest river park in the world, is a piece of insufferable arrogance almost beyond comprehension.

In its Hudson River, Riverside Drive, and the residence district fronting it New York possesses a prize of beauty, health, and inspiration unapproached the wide world over. Truly we live in a barbarian age if a grasping corporation can be permitted to prostitute such natural wealth to its own enrichment. Yet this will most certainly result unless the citizens of New York, led by its public-spirited press, do not now take forceful steps to check the despoiler. It was first the tunnel massacres, then the Woodlawn crime, and now Riverside. I trust THE TIMES will take up actively this cause of the people.

LEEDE FOREST.

New York, March 31, 1907.

BLAMES THE PRESIDENT.

His Policy Held Responsible for the Recent Drop in Stocks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the Roosevelt panic seems to have been checked, for the moment at least, it may be well to make a retrospect of the situation and to express one's disgust. To my mind, to have a man at the head of this great country who knows no better than to bring on such a crisis is simply amazing.

In your leading editorial under date of Jan. 31 (which I kept for future reference) you clearly foreshadowed what has come about since. I thought at that time that it was intended for President Roosevelt's perusal, as a warning to him to call a halt in this ceaseless agitation against corporations. But no heed was paid; word came every day "the President stands pat," allowing this impression to grow that all the heretofore supposedly able men at the head of the great railroad systems were a set of scoundrels and any one interested in their securities had better stand from under.

The result is fortunes have been wrecked, many have been financially ruined, and the savings of years swept away. Finally after the damage is done the new Secretary of the Treasury takes action to restore confidence, although the same day a telegram to The Evening Post reports that Mr. Cortelyou is pleased to see a panic, as it gives him an opportunity to define his policy. The same paper in its dispatches from Washington quotes the President as saying that he was not responsible for what has occurred, but on the advice of his Cabinet and many others he will condescend to say something soon to allay the alarm, particularly as he does not wish to see hard times during his Administration.

Ex-President Cleveland in his interview with your paper March 17 hit the nail on the head when he said, "The country will be ashamed of this business sooner or later." And already public opinion is rapidly drifting that way. The fact is, Roosevelt is no business man, and that he has been meddling with matters he does not understand is now plain. He has done more damage than he can repair if he should live to be as old as Methusalah. I met him twelve years ago when he was running for Mayor of New York. I saw then that he was self-opinioneted, and his rapid rise to the office of Chief Executive seems not to have had a sobering influence, but rather the opposite effect. I voted for him at the last Presidential election—being a life-long Republican—but now see my mistake and know many who feel the same way.

Pavements Should Be Repaired.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may be necessary that a fatal accident occur by reason of the outrageous and dangerous condition of the street pavements before any earnest effort is made to repair them. A story in your issue this morning shows that claims for damages are piling up against the city treasury. Would it not be more economical in the end to enforce the repair contracts with the asphalt and other companies, even if it involved further outlays? What must any stranger, either from abroad or other parts of this country, think? Certainly that our public departments are woefully mismanaged, and that our citizens are easily imposed upon.

Matters have gone so far that a general uprising should take place and the taxpayers assert themselves. This empire town has several times in the past overthrown objectionable individuals and features, and if its indignation is further roused some one will suffer. Patience often ceases to be a virtue, and right makes might. Your paper has done good work before in correcting public matters, and the present is an occasion where you will receive the thanks and praises of your fellow-citizens if you will exert your efforts. Likes "To the Peace Congress."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES frequently prints in its "poet's corner" verses very far removed from commonplace, but I have seen nothing for a long time in your columns which has impressed me so strongly and which I consider of so high a poetic quality as the lines in your issue of today addressed "To the Peace Congress" by Annette Kohn. They strike a deep, true note, and give a condensed and thrilling expression to woman's horror of the cruelty and devastation of war, and her sighs for the advent of a nobler civilization which will protect and not destroy what is sweet and fair in human life.

Surely the coming peace congress will not be allowed to pass away without leaving a profound and abiding mark on the laws regulating national intercourse, which will make possible the approach of an era which with some degree of truth we may style Christian. T. G.

East Side Streets Unclean.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you permit me through your columns to call attention to the fearful condition of some of our east side streets? In the section roughly bounded by the Bowery, East River, Houston, and Grand Streets the condition beggars description. The garbage has not been removed for many days, perhaps weeks. Many of the heaps are large enough to fill an ordinary dump cart.

Our honored Mayor paid a hasty visit to Berlin last year and on his return is reported to have announced that the city of Berlin was no cleaner than New York. If he will go to Chrystie Street he will find more filth in one heap than he could find in a day's drive in Berlin. ALBERT R. LAWTON.

BUCCANEER MIKE.

There once was a bold pirate Captain,
Whose nickname was Buccaneer Mike.
He was most amazingly apt in
The taking of life and the like.

But lo!—to this burly assassin
The whisper of Cupid once came
And caused him to ogle a lass in
Some tropical isle—hang its name!

So Mike cut his whiskers and beard off
And stood 'neath her lattice ere long,
And managed to get something weird off
To her in the way of a song.

But while he was singing: "Oh, come where
I live!" to the lattice above
Another swain dashed up from somewhere
And let out one holler of love.

And lo! the coy maid of the bower
On her balcony high did appear
And tossed the newcomer a flower.
"Stop that!" yelled the bold buccaneer.

"I'm Buccaneer Mike! Let us marry!
Bid me wait while you pack, lady fair;
Bid me shoot this young Tom, Dick, or Harry
While you are arranging your hair.

But the maiden remarked: "I prefer the Young man with no piracy blot.
His features, though crowded, are worthy;
Your own, though distinguished, are not."

Then she culled, with the sweetest of poses
That ever a maiden did strike,
One hundred and twenty-nine roses
And didn't give ANY to Mike!

Both suitors knew what such a bomb meant,
Their songs simultaneously ceased.
The pirate dropped dead without comment,
The other man ran for a priest.

W. H. EMORY, JR., TO WED MISS STEVENS

Engagement of Debutante to Admiral's Son Will Be Announced To-day.

FRIENDS SINCE CHILDHOOD

Bride-to-be and Her Mother Have Just Returned from a Trip Through the South of Europe.

Miss Elizaeth Winthrop Stevens, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, and William H. Emory, Jr., son of Rear Admiral William H. Emory snd Mrs. Emory, are announcing their engagement to their intimate friends, and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens will send out formal announcements to-day.

The engagement is of special interest to the old Knickerbocker set, and also to the very young set, as Miss Stevens, who is a granddaughter of the late Dr. Alexander H. Stevens and of the late Dr. O. O. White, made her début in the last Winter and attended most of the fashionable entertainments of the Winter, as did her fiancé, Mr. Emory.

Miss Stevens and her mother rsturned on last Saturday from a trip to Europe, where they traveled through Spain, Sicily, and Italy. They returned with Mrs. Stevens's sister, Mrs. Berkeley, Mostyn, and her daughter, Miss Stevens.

Miss Stevens end her fiancé have known each other since childhood. Mr. Emory's mother, before her marriage, wes Miss Blanche Willis. Rear Admiral Emory and Mrs. Emory were at one time stationed at the New York Navy Yard, and it was whils there that the marriage of Mr. Emory's sister, Miss Matilda Emory, to Horatio L. Whitridge was celebrated. He also has an unmarried sister, Miss Blanche W. Emory.

Miss Stevens's grandmother, Mrs. Alexander H. Stevens, who was Miss Lloyd of Lloyd's Neck, L. I., is still living at the advanced age of 90. Miss Stevens's mother, Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, was befors her marriage Miss Elizaheth Winthrop White, a daughter of the late Dr. Octavius O. White. Mrs. White, her mother, had been Miss Elizabeth Chanler, and through her mother, Miss Stevens is not only a lineal descendant of old Peter Stuyvesant, but is related to the Rutherfurds, Chanlers, Wintbrops, end other old families.

She is a cousin of Miss Muriel White, daughter of Ambassador White; of Winthrop Rutherfurd, who married Miss Morton, of Alfred Ely, Jr., of Mrs. Gilliat Ghéquiere Schroeder, of Miss Alexandra Stevens, and of Oscar Egerton Stevens, who is to marry Miss Caroline Morgan.

She is also a niece of Mrs. Berkeley Mostyn, whose first husband was the late Alexander H. Stevens.

Her grandfather, Dr. White, came of a distinguished Southern family. He left Charleston, S. C., at the close of the civil war, and made New York his home. His father was an eminent jurist and shortly before his death Dr. White presented a bust of his father to the City of Charleston.

HOBBY HORSES IN BALLROOM.

Dancers Play Polo at Mrs. Coe's Cotillion for Grandson.

Mrs. E. Frank Coe of 763 Fifth Avenue gave a dance at Sherry's last night to celebrate the twenty-first birthday of her grandson, Elmore Coe Kerr, son of Mrs. Chauncey Kerr. The party, which was for young people, included many Yale students.

About 500 invitations were issued for the event, which proved unusual on account of some of the novel features of the cotillion, danced after midnight.

A supper at 12 was followed by the cotillion, which was led by Elmore Coe Kerr and Miss Catharine Burton. The favors were floral souvenirs designed for the occasion.

One of the novel figures danced was the polo match. The young men mounted hobby horses in the ballroom and carried polo mallets, while the young women held the goal posts painted in white and gold and trimmed with white ribbons.

Another figure presented was the "Horse Show," in which eight young women dancers drove tandems. The winners were decorated with vari-colored rosettes. In the dancing of the polo figure the young women also snapped horsewhips trimmed with white ribbons.

SOCIETY IN WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Representative and Mrs. James W. Wadsworth of New York gave a cotillion this evening for their daughter, Miss Harriet Wadsworth, to which about seventy-five couples were asked. Capt. Gilmore led the cotillion, which began after a supper. Several members of the cast of "We Are In Society," given in the Belasco Theatre, as well as many of the audience, went there after the performance. Mr. and Mrs. Wadsworth received the guests, assisted by their daughter, the latter wearing a blue velvet gown. A section of the Marine Band played, and the favors consisted of picturesque parasols, Easter lily wands, necklaces, cigarette cases and holders, and pigskin purses.

A large audience of society people witnessed the opening performance of Phelps Brown's musical comedy, "We Are in Society," given to-night in the Belasco Theatre for the benefit of the National Junior Republic, organized and maintained by a large number of prominent persons, headed by Mrs. Fairbanks, wife of the Vice President. The cast was composed entirely of musicians in smart society, who were clever in their songs, and some of them in their dances. Mrs. Thomas C. Noyes sang the leading rôle, and Miss Olga Converse, daughter of the Rear Admiral, did a clever dance.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. John S. Loud, U. S. A., retired, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dollie, to Francis W. Longley.

The Austrian Ambassador will leave Washington to-morrow for Biltmore, N. C., where he will be the guest for the remainder of the week of Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt. He will return to Washington next Monday.

Senator and Miss Kean entertained a small dinner company this evening, the guests going to the Wadsworth ball afterward.

ALL FOOLS' PARTY GIVEN IN BOSTON

Men Judge Millinery, Women Judge Neckties, and Sexes Are Debated.

BRILLIANT OPERA NIGHT

Miss Sallie Pierce of Brookline Announces Her Engagement to James L. Huntingdon.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 1.—There was no end of fun at the All Fools' Festival given today in the Woman's Athletic Club, in St. Botolph Street, for the benefit of the George Junior Republic. Society men and women indulged in competitions of a ridiculous nature.

A millinery contest was judged by men, a necktis contest was judged by women, and in a tea-brewing contest men took part. A debate, gymkhana sports, dancing, and a tambolo were other interesting features. The subject of the debate was, "If either sex should be abolished, which?" Mrs. E. H. Bradford, Mrs. R. C. Cabot, Miss Amy Lowell, and Mrs. Barrett Wendell were the speakers, and the judges were Mrs. Lorn F. Deland, Mrs. George F. Tyson, and Mrs. Roger Wolcott.

There was an auction sale, with Lorin F. Deland as auctioneer, with "an extraordinary collection of garden ornaments, live stock, and parlor furniture to be sold without reeerve." Assisting Mr. Deland were Miss Dorothy Forbes and Miss Emily Bacon. Following the auction came the necktie contest for the blue ribbon prize, open to gentlemen only, the prize being awarded for color, beauty, and striking effects. The judges were Miss Dorothy Forbes, Miss Barbara Higginson, and Miss Katherine Roosevelt.

There was great activity in society today with the grand opera as the feature. The scenes in and around the Boston Theatre, where the opera began this evening, was one of brilliancy. Most of the leaders of Boston society were present.

Miss Sallis Pierce of Brookline, a Vincent Club girl, this afternoon announced her engagement to James L. Hundigdon of Hanover, N. H., a senior in the Harvard Medical School. Miss Pierce is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Pierce, and is the sister of Mrs. Thomas Barbour. Miss Pierce is a daring horsewoman, yachtswoman, and tennis player.

Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, sister of the ex-President, is a guest of her longtime friend, Miss Evelyn Ames.

Boston will soon have a bride of the Roosevelt family in Corinne Douglas Robinson, who will wed George Draper of Hervard, son of the late Dr. William Henry Draper and grandson of the late Charles A. Dana.

Among the engagements newly announced is that of Miss Lillian Baldwin, a niece of Mme. Nordica, to F. K. Burnham of New York.

VAUDEVILLE AT BELLEVUE.

650 Patients Enjoy the Jokes and Songs Like Any Other Audience.

If an old joke had made its appearance last night on the stage of the amphitheatre of Bellevue Hospital it would have been hustled into the etherizing room, for the audience was a critical one, though some of the patients who composed it came in chair carriages, some on cots, and some on stretchers. The majority limped in on crutches to witness a vaudeville show given under the direction of Miss A. M. Stahl, the organist of the Bellevue Memorial Hospital Chapel.

The entertainers included some who perform daily in the amphitheatre, like Dr. J. C. Mabey, who has charge of the surgical department of Bellevue. Last night Dr. Mabey did not require the aid of a trained nurse to carry on his performance. Instead he had a pianist who accompanied him in a baritone solo.

There were men in the audience who begged the doctors to remove bandages from their jawe long enough to enable them to have a good laugh, hut as they were patients with broken jaws, the doctors took no chances.

One who occupied a eeat high up in what a small boy termed the gallery had his face completely covered with bandages, but the doctors removed enough of them to permit him to aee what was going on. Another who had no hands to applaud with showed his appreciation by stamping his feet. Still nthers, who had no feet to stamp with, ehouted their approbation.

There are 950 patients now in the hospital, and ahout 650 of them weer permitted to see the show. Many convalescents from the medical ward were there.

The shnw was opened by the Yama San Minstrels, made up of professionals, including Lew Hyman, Al Hoyt, Jack Briefner, Will Marion, Jack Anderson, Dick Robinson, the McWeenys and the Geigerman Sisters.

The songs were all up to date and the acts new. Miss E. Phillips, a soprano soloist, sang several songs. After the opening chorus, a negro patient with his head done up in bandages shouted:

"Sing dat 'ere song, 'I Can't Help Dancing When the Band Begins to Play.'"

"He means 'Bill Simmons,'" chimed in another negro patient, "but if you play dat I'll have to climb on da job."

Little Natalie Newman in a monologue kept the patients in roars of laughter for half an hour.

The entertainment concluded with the appearance of Lew Hyman, the comedian, and then the patients tendered a vote of thanks to the entertainers and returned to their cots in the varioue wards of the hospital.

GROOMS STRIKE IN 3 RIDING ACADEMIES

All Men Out at Durland's, Central Park, and Metropolitan Riding Schools.

WON'T RECOGNIZE UNION

Riding Masters and Others Take Strikers' Places and Police Are on Guard.

Because the proprietors of the three leading riding academies in New York and eeveral livery and sales stables refused tn recognize the newly formed Grooms and Stablemen's Union, every groom in those establishments, to the number of 150 or more, went on strike Sunday. Now the grooms are out of a job, and, according to the men who run the academies and stablee, not one of the strikers will be taken back even if he agrees to work for nothing. The academies affected are Durland's, the Central Park Riding Academy, and the Metropolitan Riding School.

At Durland's eight policemen from the West Sixty-eighth Street Station are on duty, and last night Manager Chambers said that the situation remained unchanged so far as the striking grooms are concerned. Mr. Durland, he said, had agreed to grant the increase in wages, but he would never recognize the union, the acceptance of the terms governing of which would mean that Mr. Durland could not employ or discharge a single groom without first consulting a representative of the union.

Strike With Horse Show On.

Durland's annual horse show begins tonight, and as there are between 600 and 700 horses to be shown, the outlook for an emple force of grooms to care for them seemed dark last night. Mr. Durland, however, declared that this show would be held as scheduled, and was confident that he would have the necessary force of men on hand. The result of the strike was that the owners of horses who board their animals at Durland's had to send their own grooms, or else go themselves to the academy to look after their horses yesterday.

Many of the patrons, worried about their horses, hurried to the stable when they heard of the strike, to see that their animals were not being neglected. They found, in most instances, that the proprietors had been able to care for the horses by calling into service riding masters and other employes. Last night there were several riders practicing in the ring, and the Durland scouts, it was said, were out looking for men to replace the 100 grooms who walked out on Sunday.

The entry list for the show this year is unusually large, and among the horses to be shown are many that won prizes at the Madison Square Garden exhibition last November. Some of those who will show horses, and all of whom are affected to a more or less extent by the strike of the Durland grooms, are C. W. Watson of Baltimore, who will show Lord Baltimore, Novena, Tennessee, and other prize winners, and Thomas J. Ryan, James G. Marshall, W. A. McGibbon, Mrs. John Gerken, Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Arthur Cortles, Jefferson Seligman, Charles Lanier, and Mrs. R. E. Tod.

At the Central Park Riding Academy, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, the manager said last night that every one of the grooms employed there quit work on Sunday.

Struck Without Notice.

"Only recently," he said, "we raised the wages of the grooms to $13 a week, and then, the first thing we knew, every one of them walked out of our place without giving us any notice whatever. Despite this handicap, we had 120 horsee out on Sunday, and managed to care for all in our stables, thanks to the goodnature of our riding masters and other employes, who pooled their affairs and acted as grooms when they were informed what had happened. Why, these grooms wanted ue to not only give them more money, but also to recognize their new union, which meant that they were to have the privilege of employing and discharging the men who are employed as grooms in this establishment. Well, we simply do not intend that they shall run this place, and now that they are out they can stay out. We will get men to take their places, and can get along very well without their services."

"Like the other schools," said the mnnager of the Metropolitan Riding School, at 124 West Fifty-eixth Street, "we naturally refused to give in to the demands of our grooms and they all walked out. They wanted us to sign a paper giving them the privilege of running the place, so far as the grooms are concerned, but we could not see the proposition in their way. We did a little business to-day and will do more to-morrow. We will have an entire new force within a few days. Not a single one of the strikers will be taken back here, and I underetand that the other riding schools have determined to follow the same course."

At the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station it was said that no trouble had occurred as a result of the strike and that none was anticipated. However, the police are ready for any emergency, and men are stationed at all of the academies to see that the strikers do not attempt to interfere with the work of the places.

It was said that the strike of the grooms also affected several of the prominent livery establishments, among them Fiss, Doerr & Carroll's and the New York Cnb Company. At the offices of these companies it was stated that it was not believed that any considerable number of their grooms were in sympathy with the strike.

ALFRED DE CORDOVA VERY ILL

Banker and Sportsman a Victim of Grip with Complications.

Alfred de Cordova, the banker, who was brought home seriously ill from Atlantic City on Sunday, was reported last night to he in a critical condition. In the afternoon Dr. Arthur Lyman Fish, who is attending him at the Spencer Arms, Broadway and Sixty-ninth Street, found it necessary to etimulate Mr. de Cordova's heart action by charging the atmosphere of the room with oxygen. The usual method is to administer the oxygen directly to the patient.

Mr. de Cordova has been ill for nearly six weeks. Grip was the trouble at first, but two weeke ago his heart and kidneys became affected and he was removed to the Traymore Hotel, in Atlantic City. His wife and trained nurses accompanied him. He did not improve, however, and his return to thia city was decided upon a few days ago.

Mr. de Cordova retired six years ago from the management of the banking firm of Alfred de Cordova & Co., of which he was the founder. He was born on the Island of Jamaica, on Aug. 19, 1848, of an old family descended from the de Cordova who annexed Granada to Spain. In the early seventies he came to this country with his two brothers, Altamont, who died several yeare ago, and Eustace, who succeeded to the management of the banking house. For a time he was a broker in petroleum, but in 1875 bought a seat on the Stock Exchange. He was elected a Governor of the Exchange in 1894. He sold his seat last year for $95,000, the highest recorded price.

Mr. de Cordova alwaye has been interested in outdoor sports. He formerly owned a large farm in New Jersey, where many trotters were bred. He kept in touch with the farm by a carrier pigeon service from his office. He was the first Commodore of the American Steam Yacht Club and President of the Fleetwood Driving Association and of the New York Driving Club.

The Gorham Co.
Fifth Avenue

THE GORHAM COMPANY announces the complete preparation of its Spring exhibit of Sterling Silver wares.

It is especially notable in the following respects:

For the selection of Wedding Gifts it presents a scope that has never been equaled;

The assortment of objects at very moderate prices is more extensive than in any previous season;

New ideas in vogue abroad, as well as many creations of the Company's designers, pertaining to the table service and other uses, are now shown in New York for the first time.

The Gorham Company desires to impress upon the public its superior standard of design and workmanship, which will be found uniform in all of its productions irrespective of cost.

COURT FIGHT FOR MEMPHIS GOLD CUP

George Spear Says $10,000 Was the Price Demanded for Drugging Lou Dillon.

SANDERS WOULD "FIX" RACE

Witness Declares E. E. Smathers Was Willing to Pay $5,000 for Major Delmar to Win.

The famous Memphis "Gold Cup Scandal" has reached the Supreme Court of this city. The Memphis Trotting Association is endeavoring to secure the cup awarded to Elmer E. Smathers, which his horse, Major Delmar, 1:59¾, won by defeating Lou Dillon, 1:58½, owned by C. K. G. Billings, in a contest at Memphis in 1904. The trial was begun yesterday before Justice Greenbaum and a jury in Part IV. of the Supreme Court. The case has occupied the attention of the trotting world for nearly two years, and Murray Howe, the secretary of the Memphis Trotting Association, is the complainant against Mr. Smathers. The case was heard by the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association last Spring, and the board decided in favor of Mr. Smathers.

The men who testified before the Board of Review swore to the best of their judgment Lou Dillon had been "doped" just before the race, and E. Maloy swore he saw Millard Sanders, trainer of the mare, try to give a bottle of champagne to the trotter. George Spear, who was trainer for Mr. Smathers at the time, submitted an affidavit in which he swore he had instructions from Mr. Smathers to insure the race to Major Delmar.

Spear was again the principal witness yesterday. He testified that Mr. Smathers had told him to see "Ed" Sanders, who was the brother of Millard Sanders, who trained Lou Dillon, and see if there was some way in which Major Delmar could win from Lou Dillon. Sanders wanted $10,000 to fix the race, but Mr. Smathers said it was too much; that all he would offer was $5,000.

His second visit to "Ed" Sanders brought out the demand for the same amount, and although he and Sanders did have a subsequent conversation about how the race could be arranged, his transaction ended there.

Spear denied that he furnished the information that started the suit, and showed a remarkable lack of knowledge for a trainer on matters relating to the records and performances of Major Delmar. He said he was discharged by Mr. Smathers in 1905, and up to that time he had not disclosed the fraud in the cup race. He had spoken of it to some friends. Spear also said he understood Murray Howe had formerly been a driver in Mr. Billings's employ. After his discharge by Mr. Smathers he stopped over in Chicago and told Mr. Howe the story of the race. The first day of the Memphis meeting Spear said he saw Mr. Smathers talking to Ed Sanders.

Millard Sanders, who was the trainer of Lou Dillon, was the only other witness examined. He described in detail the performances of the mare during 1904, and said when the season of 1904 began she was in perfect condition. On July 20, at Cleveland, Lou Dillon was driven to a wagon on a bad track in 2:05¾.

"When the mare reached Memphis on Oct. 1, 1904, for the cup race she was better than at any time in her life," said Sanders, "working miles in 2:04 and 2:05 with ease. She was as good as she could be. One day she worked a mile with a runner in 2:01 and a fraction. She had all her speed and was going splendidly. After a hard work-out or a fast heat the mare cooled out as quickly as any horse I ever knew. She had a wonderful lung capacity. As always before a hard race, there was a let-up in her fast work several days prior to the Gold Cup race. She was jogged along and breezed daily through the stretch, and seemed in the best of condition."

In his opening address Judge Hatch said that he would show that several days before the race Mr. Smathers conceived the plan to unfit Lou Dillon so that she should lose the race and entered into a conspiracy to prevent the mare from winning the race and then carried out the conspiracy. He declared the mare was in perfect condition thirty minutes before the race, but between the time of her "cooling out" from her preparatory race the mare was drugged, and when she was hooked to the wagon in preparation for the race she showed that something was wrong. On reaching the half-mile post the mare suddenly stopped, and Major Delmar finished the mile in 2:07, while Lou Dillon was only able to finish in 2:18. A veterinary surgeon was called, and he informed the judges that the mare was unable to race in the other heats.

HERRESHOFF'S MEDAL SCORE.

Interscholastic Golf Champion Captures 36-Hole Contest at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 1.—Keen play ruled in the thirty-six-hole qualification round of the seventh annual united North and South amateur golf tournament today, Fred Herreshoff, the interscholastic champion, and Warren K. Wood, the title holder, fighting it out to the home green in the contest for the gold medal offered for the best score. Herreshoff winning with 165 to Wood's 166.

C. L. Becker of the Woodland Club, Massachusette, and Nathaniel F. Moora of Chicago followed with 170 each, and the balance of the field close up. L. A. Sculler Greer Going to Henley.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 1.—Frank B. Greer of this city, one of the greatest of America's amateur oarsmen, is going to Henley to compete for the Diamond Sculls.

"This is to be my last year of rowing," said Greer, "and I am anxious to make a big record. If the National Association will name me, and my entry is accepted, nothing will give me greater pleasure than to go to England and try and win out in the Diamond Sculls, the greatest rowing event in the world to-day."

Greer is former amateur champion of the United States. He rows in the colors of the Boston Athletic Association.

AMERICANS WORK LIGHT.

All the Players Except Elberfeld in Fairly Good Shape.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 1.—Despite the fact that the coldest weather yet experienced since the Greater New Yorks have been encamped here existed to-day Manager Griffith had the team go through the usual practice in the forenoon. However, the workout was extremely light, as "Griff" will not run the risk of any mishaps in the way of stiff arms and "charley horse" befalling the men at this juncture. In the afternoon the players rested, as they have on every day when another team was playing Atlanta at the local park. Cleveland was here for the first of two games today.

Half of the squad has only one more workout on Georgia soil, as a full team departs on Wednesday for the Virginia trip. The others will remain for several days longer and play two more exhibition games with the Atlantas on Friday and Saturday. With the exception of Elberfeld, who has left for New York, the team is in fairly good condition. Anyway, they are all working and striving to be fit for the call of play in Washington on April 11.

This week Griffith will deliver his ultimatum to Manager Smith of the local club in regard to a pitcher. This is the means by which the grounds are secured for next year, and as Detroit has taken no definite action, it is highly probable that the New York chief will turn over a man.

NO TROUBLE FOR GIANTS.

New York Defeats Montgomery in Slow Game by Score of 6 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 1.—The Giants this afternoon defeated Montgomery in a slow and uninteresting game owing to coldness of the weather, by a score of 6 to 1. The slippery condition of the field caused costly errors on both sides. Montgomery's only run was scored on an error of Seymour. Shay of the Giants made the only home run of the game, at a time, however, when the bases were cleared.

The New York players left Montgomery to-night for Nashville, Tenn. Manager McGraw says that they are in the best of condition, and is looking forward with interest to the game with Philadelphia on April 11. Score:

Brooklyn Shuts Out Macon.

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., April 1.—Macon and Brooklyn fought out a scrappy game this afternoon, and the major leaguers won by the score of 5 to 0. Owing to the sudden drop in the temperature only a small crowd saw the contest. For the first inning Hollis faced Brooklyn, and was scored upon, but in this same length of time but one hit was made off him. In the sixth inning Jordan made a home run hit with two men on bases. Rucker pitched well for the visitors, and was cool when men were on bases. Score:

ATLANTIC LEAGUE SCHEDULE.

Season Begins May 4 and Ends Sept. 8—Brooklyn's Dates.

The Atlantic Baseball League, an independent organization, has outlined its plans for the coming season, and with eight clubs, all except one having well-appointed grounds, the officials of the league anticipate as successful a career as that of the Tri-State League when the latter was playing "outlaw" ball. At a meeting yesterday at Newark a schedule was adopted, which provides for the opening games on May 4 and closing on Sept. 8. The league is composed of eight clubs—Brooklyn, Elizabeth, Newark, Easton, Allentown, Chester, Reading, and Pottsville, the last five cities in Pennsylvania.

According to the schedule arranged by A. W. Lawson, the Brooklyn team will open on the home grounds May 4 and 5 with the Newarks, and will not play again until it meets Elizabeth at Elizabeth on May 8 and 9. The Brooklyns have only two holiday games at home—on the afternoon of Decoration Day with Elizabeth and the morning of Labor Day with Newark. Two games will be played at Newark on July 4, the morning game conflicting with the Newarks of the Eastern League.

The Newark team's first games at home will be with the Easton Club on May 8 and 9. In addition to the two games on July 4 with Brooklyn and the afternoon game on Labor Day with the same club, the Newarks will have no more holiday games at home. On Decoration Day they will play two games at Chester, Penn. The Reading Club seems to have been well taken care of, for it plays Pottsville on the afternoon of July 4 at home, meeting the same team in the morning at Pottsville. Then Reading has the afternoon of Decoration Day at home, as well as two games on Labor Day.

NEW HAVEN CLUB SOLD.

Report That John T. Brush of the Giants Is the Purchaser.

MERIDEN, Conn., April 1.—That the franchise of the New Haven Baseball Club of the Connecticut League, held by C. J. Danaher of this city, has been sold; that with the exception of paying over the money, which will occur to-morrow probably, the transaction is virtually completed, and that the new owner is from Bridgeport, was made public by Mr. Danaher here to-night. He would make public neither the name of the purchaser nor the price to be paid. It is understood that the money involved is in the neighborhood of $8,000.

There is a rumor that John T. Brush, President of the New York National League Club, has secured the property, and will use the club as a sort of a farm to develop future stars for the Giants.

This rumor has been current each Spring for the past three years.

PIONEER'S 'CHASE AT BENNING TRACK

Son of Hamburg Takes Easter Monday Race from Good Field of Starters.

Jockey Kienck Thrown, but Is Unhurt—Favorites and Outsiders Divide Card.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 1.—Favorites and outsiders divided the card at Benning to-day. The weather was unpleasantly cold, and a sharp wind swept the course and blew into the grand stand. The spectators had to keep moving about in order to keep warm, but as the layers also were moving, bookmakers in fact, the players had to do a hop, step, and a jump to keep within striking distance of the men who "accommodate the public."

The races were run off in quick order because, doubtless, the air was too raw even for the Stewards. Had it not been that three first choices won the day would have had no compensating feature, but inasmuch as the bettors in many cases quit the sport winners, they concluded that they were glad they were present.

Miller's absence gave the races a more open appearance and had a good effect on prices laid in the ring, for in the past anything that Miller was on was sure to be quoted at several points below the proper figure.

The Easter Monday Steeplechase was the feature of the card, but it was disappointing. Of the original six entries two were scratched, and of those remaining Pioneer was selected as the best on all form. He ran as his price indicated, and it is evident that Mr. Colt has more than a fair jumper in this son of Hamburg. He is not so fleet through the field, but can outrun most of the horses on the flat. In the race to-day he trailed far in the rear, but once straightened out in the stretch he made Souvigny, which had been the pacemaker, and which had turned into the stretch six lengths in front, look cheap.

The surprises of the day were furnished by the juveniles, both of the baby races going to outsiders. In the first of these Lady Powell displayed such a startling burst of speed that it took the breath out of those who were watching the race. Laudable, in this event, got tangled upon the upper turn and stumbled, throwing his jockey, Kienck. The boy lay stunned until he was picked up, when it was found he was not hurt.

Fred Littlefield won out the winner of the second two-year-old race, a son of Compute and a likely looker.

Reidmoore, Shields's much-improved plater, took his third race of the meeting when he captured the last in a gallop. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—For fillies and mares, three-year-olds and upward; five furlongs, Columbia course. Anna May, 99 pounds, (J. Johnson) 9 to 5 and 7 to 10, won, Rose of Dawn, 105, (McIntyre,) 3 to 1 and 6 to 5, second; Revenue, 95, (Englander,) 10 to 1, third. Time—1:02 3-5. Diamond Flush, Idle Dream, Cousin Kate, Asstricke, Princess Royal, Black Flag, Nellie Carita, Old Colony, Willetta, and Sweet Elisen also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For fillies and geldings, maiden two-year-olds; half mile, old course. Lady Powell, 99 pounds, (Henry,) 13 to 1 and 4 to 1, won; Beckon, 99, (Brooks,) 20 to 1 and 8 to 1, second; Merrimac, 99, (Mahon) 30 to 1, third. Time—0:50 1-5. Arkobee, Metches Mary, Luzetta, Wedding, Polaris, Long Ball, Essex Belle, Vistula, Beget, Black Mask, False Garter, Glorious Betsy, and Laugnable also ran.

THIRD RACE.—For colts, maiden two-year-olds; five and a half furlongs, old course. Jubilee, 102 pounds, (Radtke,) 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, won; Glaucus, 102, (Mountain,) even and 1 to 3, second; Superstition, 102, (J. Johnson,) 7 to 1, third. Time—1:07. Patrician, Bob Callahan, Jr., Gold Foil, and Bilfil also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—The Easter Monday Selling Steeplechase, for four-year-olds and upward. $750 added; about two miles and a half. Pioneer was selected as the best on all form. He ran as his price indicated, and it is evident that Mr. Colt has more than a fair jumper in this son of Hamburg. He is not so fleet through the field, but can outrun most of the horses on the flat. In the race to-day he trailed far in the rear, but once straightened out in the stretch he made Souvigny, which had been the pacemaker, and which had turned into the stretch six lengths in front, look cheap.

The surprises of the day were furnished by the juveniles, both of the baby races going to outsiders. In the first of these Lady Powell displayed such a startling burst of speed that it took the breath out of those who were watching the race. Laudable, in this event, got tangled upon the upper turn and stumbled, throwing his jockey, Kienck. The boy lay stunned until he was picked up, when it was found he was not hurt.

Fred Littlefield won out the winner of the second-two-year-old race, a son of Compute and a likely looker.

Reidmoore, Shields's much-improved plater, took his third race of the meeting when he captured the last in a gallop. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—For fillies and mares, three-year-olds and upward; five furlongs, Columbia course. Anna May, 99 pounds, (J. Johnson) 9 to 5 and 7 to 10, won, Rose of Dawn, 105, (McIntyre,) 3 to 1 and 6 to 5, second; Revenue, 95, (Englander,) 10 to 1, third. Time—1:02 3-5. Diamond Flush, Idle Dream, Cousin Kate, Asstricke, Princess Royal, Black Flag, Nellie Carita, Old Colony, Willetta, and Sweet Elisen also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For fillies and mares

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise Sharply — Call Money Rates, 4½@2½ Per Cent.

TRADING WAS PROFESSIONAL

Short Covering Responsible for Much of the Day's Advance—Money Market Easier.

In spite of the large volume of business in yesterday's stock market, the trading was in the main professional and took the form of a vigorous move against an extensive short interest. As prices were driven up the huying to cover short contracts became more and more hurried, and as this manoeuvre was repeated in practically every active stock in the list, the movement finally took on the form of a broad rise in securities, which left prices at the close of the day from 2 to 4 points above the level of last Friday night. In those issuee in which the outetanding short interest was largest the advance was naturally the grentest. The maximum gain was made by Canadian Pacific, which at one time sold 7½ points above its closing price on Friday and 34¾ points above the low figure of the slump a week ago. The move here, however, wae helped by the fact that the London market was still closed and that the supply of etock from that source upon which the bears might depend was very limited. The existence of a large short interest was also betrayed by the course of Union Pacific, which rose nearly five points at one time, and nt the end of the day was up 3¾ points. The same facts held true of Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting, and the Steel shares, and in all of these etocks the gains were substantial. The professional speculators who were so largely responsible for the day's forward movement took advantage of the favorable bank return on Saturday, as well as of reports from Washington during the day that Mr. Roosevelt would issue a reassuring statement of his position in regard to the railroads. This latter report was hardly borne out, since the President's letter to the Illinois Manufacturers' Association was little more than a repetition of his previous public declarations upon this point. It is axiomatic in stock market affaire that such a driving in of the short interest as took place yesterday works to weaken the technical position of the etock market, and that where its elimination is not followed by outside buying the result is usually a period of considerable dullness. It is by no means certain, however, that the short interest in the present instance has been wholly eliminated.

There was evidence yesterday of further ease in the money market, this being found in the easing rates on botb call and time loans. The relief measures of the Treasury Department, which have resulted in the deposit of many millions of dollars with local banks, have put an end to the anxiety which existed over the ability of the money market to finance the April disbursements, which are now going forward smoothly. An interesting development of the day was the sharp upturn in the foreign exchange market, where demand sterling rose 50 points, this reflecting, apparently, the easier position of money in this city and indicating the postponement of further importations of gold.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—The public utility stocks advanced sharply. Change in the city administration, which went into effect to-day, was given as the cause. Keystone Telephone and General Asphalt were lower. Cambria steel, Lehigh Valley, and a few other etocks were well bought and rose sharply, as did also some of the inactive issues. Total sales, 42,042 shares.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 1.—There was more activity on the local exchanga than has been seen for some time. Chicago Edison sold up to 140, which is a gain of 10 points over the price a week ago. Subway showed only nominal improvement, but Union Traction gave a feeble response through a fractional gain on a sale of 50 shares of the common. Illinois Brick was steady at 50.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A rise of 7½ points in Canadian Pacific yesterday, on top of the 12-point advance of Friday, was apparently the result of a cleverly timed move against the short interest in this stock. The primary market for Canadian Pacific is London, and the stock is at most times no more active in this market than it is in Berlin, where it is also listed. The London market was closed yesterday, and the speculators who forced the shorts to cover here counted upon this fact to further their plans. If the London market had been open, so sharp a rise in prices here would have undoubtedly brought forth selling orders from London, and therefore a supply of stock for those who were yesterday compelled to climb for it. As it was, some of the English holders of the stock were apparently in touch with the market here, for a few selling orders were cabled over during the course of the day, one of them coming from Brighton, it was said, where the seller was perhaps sojourning over the holiday. A little stock was also forthcoming from Berlin, but the market there had closed before the fireworks in Canadian Pacific were really under way. The recovery in the stock has been the most violent recorded, it having sold at 155 on Monday last.

One of the stories connected with the rise in Canadian Pacific was that J. Brandt Walker, who was credited with clearing up $2,000,000 on the bear side, had been caught short of Canadian Pacific, and was being mulcted of part of his quickly made profits. The authority for the statement was not very well defined, but the impression prevailed quite generally that the 35-point recovery in Canadian Pacific since the low price of last week was due chiefly to somewhat precipitous short covering, and Mr. Walker was picked out as a convenient name to which to hang the story of heavy losses on the bear side.

What with the Canadian investment holdings of Canadian Pacific and with the large amount of the stock that is held permanently in England and Germany, it is thought that the floating supply of the stock in the New York market is relatively small, despite the fact that the Canadian Pacific has a total of $121,000,000 of common stock outstanding. Yesterday's advance from 177½, the low point of the day to 180¾, and the subsequent reaction to 184, where the stock closed, with a net gain of 1¾ points, all occurred on trading in 39,000 shares. The wide fluctuations on such limited dealings seemed to point to a relatively narrow market in the sense that the floating supply of stock is small.

The weakness of Great Northern rights yesterday, despite the generally strong tone of the market, was put down in the Street's record as another proof that rights to subscribe to new stock issues may always be depended upon to decline in value as the time for payment on the new stock arrives. In the case of the Great Northern rights payment of the first four subscriptions amounting to 40 per cent. will have to be met a week from to-day, and many holders of Great Northern stock eppear to be selling out their rights instead of subscribing to the new stock. Yesterday, which was the first day the rights were traded in on the Stock Exchange, the price declined from 10½ to 8¾. On Friday last they closed on the curb at 10⅝.

Formal arrangements have not yet been made for the issuance of any new notes of the Erie Railroad to replace those, amounting to $3,000,000, which mature next Monday. It is thought most likely, however, that the Erie Railroad will raise the money to meet these notes by another issue of short-time obligations. The railroad management has received the assurance of its bankers that the notes will be provided for, but the exact form of the provision to be made seems to have been left for determination some time between now and next Monday. It is thought that any action which may be necessary by the Erie management will be taken at to-morrow's meeting of the road's Executive Committee.

Wall Street yesterday the publication of the text of the statement which President Roosevelt was reported during the day to be about to issue defining his position in the matter of the Government's relations to the railroads. When it was discovered after the market closed that the President's statement amounted to a refusal to do more at this time than reiterate his previous public statements on the question of railroad control, there was expressed a good deal of disappointment, despite the fact that the Street had been fully convinced already that the President had in nowise changed his attitude toward railroad legislation. It was hoped, though, that even if he repeated what he had previously said on the subject, a statement issued at this time might yet contain assurances that might lessen the distrust which has of late been shown toward railroad securities, and that in this way the statement would be helpful to the stock market. It was in the light of these expectations that Wall Street expressed disappointment at the President's refusal to say anything new about the railroad situation.

With call money loaning as low as 2½ per cent. yesterday, 4½ per cent. being the maximum rate of the day, it was being asked in some quarters why any effort should be made at this time to import gold from abroad. Notwithstanding this fact, however, it was generally understood that a prominent international house was accumulating exchange yesterday with the object of securing gold in London upon the resumption of business there to-day. Partly as a result of this buying, exchange rates stiffened yesterday and closed firm at $4.8375 for demand sterling, an advance of 25 points.

Payments made by the Sub-Treasury yesterday on account of the deposit of customs receipts with the National banks brought the total paid out to the banks on this account since the issuance of Secretary Cortelyou's special order on Tuesday last up to $15,900,000, or $300,000 in excess of the amount which under the terms of that order were to be deposited with the banks immediately. The inference drawn from the fact that the deposits have already exceeded the amount named in the order, was that in addition to depositing this lump sum the Treasury Department is adding to the deposits in the National bank a portion of the current receipts of customs, which in round numbers amount at the port of New York to about $4,000,000 a week.

A discussion which occurred yesterday over a ticker in a Stock Exchange office concerning the merits of Southern Pacific serves to illustrate the impression made upon speculators by the losses in the market which followed the announcement early in the Winter of very heavy stock issues by a number of railroads. To a suggestion by one of the group that Southern Pacific began to look cheap, the stock by the way at that moment was selling at 79¾, the high price of the day, this reply was made by another member of the group:

"I was in Southern Pacific once and lost between $5,000 and $6,000 in it. The stock may look cheap, but I for one am not going into it again until all of that $80,000,000 of preferred stock in the treasury has been issued. Until that is done you will never know where you stand in Southern Pacific. Doubtless it's cheap as it is now, but the common stock wouldn't be very cheap at 80 if the Directors should decide suddenly to put out $60,000,000 of preferred stock, and they could do that over night if they wanted to. No, I do not care to buy Southern Pacific so long as the Directors have it in their power to saddle the market with $60,000,000 more of the company's preferred stock."

Twenty banks were shown by Saturday's bank statement to be holding less than 25 per cent. reserve against deposits. Ten of these were National banks and ten State banks. A week ago there were twenty-six banks which showed reserves below requirements, and an equal number were deficient in reserves in the corresponding week last year. In the last week of March, 1905, there were twenty-four banks which showed less than the required reserves, in 1904 seventeen banks, and in 1903 twenty-eight banks. The twenty banks whose reserves were below requirements on Saturday had a total of $4,352,225 less than the amount required. Had all the banks held the required amount of cash the surplus would have amounted to $17,483,500 instead of $13,131,275.

PENNA. EARNINGS FALL.

Decrease in Net of $306,800 Shown for First Two Months of 1907.

The statement of the Pennsylvania Railroad for February shows that the increased cost of operation is making further inroads into the net earnings of the railroads, despite continued increases in gross earnings. The Pennsylvania lines directly operated show for February an increase of $628,800 in gross, but a decrease of $306,800 in net earnings. The lines west of Pittsburg and Erie fared better, showing an increase of $552,700 in gross and an increase of $62,100 in net.

The changes for February and for the first two months of the year, compared with the corresponding periods in 1906 for the several lines in the Pennsylvania system, are shown below:

THE COTTON MARKET.

Quiet, with Liverpool Closed, Closing at 2 to 4 Points Loss.

WEATHER IN COTTON STATES.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The Federal Weather Bureau issues the following forecast for Tuesday and Wednesday for the Cotton States:

North Carolina and South Carolina—Fair Tuesday and Wednesday, with slowly rising temperature; brisk northerly winds on the coast.

Georgia and Eastern Florida—Partly cloudy Tuesday and Wednesday, with slowly rising temperature; fresh northwest winds, diminishing.

Western Florida, Alabama, and Mississippi—Fair, warmer Tuesday and Wednesday; light to fresh northerly winds.

Louisiana—Fair and warmer Tuesday. Wednesday, partly cloudy; light variable winds, becoming southerly.

Eastern Texas—Partly cloudy and warmer Tuesday. Wednesday, fair; fresh southeasterly winds.

Western Texas—Showers Tuesday, with colder in northern and western portions. Wednesday, fair.

Oklahoma, Indian Territory, and Arkansas—Fair, warmer Tuesday. Wednesday, partly cloudy.

Tennessee—Fair and warmer Tuesday and Wednesday.

The cotton market was quiet. The fact that Liverpool was closed checked business somewhat, but the market had been pretty well evened up prior to the holidays and news was too conflicting to excite fresh commitments on either side of the account. The close was steady, at a decline of 2@4 points, as compared with last Thursday.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points and the market eased off to a net loss of about 5@7 points on the active months. Frost in the belt later restricted offerings and supporting orders on dips.

Supt. King's weekly total crop movement figures follow: Port receipts, 8,959,634 bales, 6,050 bales added port receipts season, against 6,719,884 bales last year; overland to mills and Canada, 1,029,864 bales, against 767,684 last year. Southern mill takings, estimated, 1,715,000 bales, against 1,575,000 last year; stock at interior towns in excess of Sept 1, 358,541 bales, against 350,509 last year; brought into sight thus far for season, 12,063,039 bales, against 9,413,077 last year.

The total crop movement is for 210 days this season, against 211 days last season.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

The local market for spot cotton was quiet with prices unchanged at 10.95c for middling upland and 11.20c for middling Gulf. Sales, 4,500 bales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Savannah dull, unchanged, at 10¾c, sales 56 bales; St. Louis quiet, unchanged, at 10¾c, sales 135 bales; Mobile quiet, unchanged, at 10½c, sales 100 bales; Houston quiet, unchanged, at 10 13-16c, sales 257 bales; Memphis steady, unchanged, at 10½c, sales 1,000 bales; Galveston quiet, unchanged, at 10 13-16c, sales 1,050 bales; New Orleans quiet, 1-16c lower, at 10¾c, sales 1,725 bales.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—With foreign markets closed and Chicago facing a holiday on Tuesday, the trade in wheat was restricted yesterday to professionals, except for occasional business inspired by bullish crop news from the Southwest. Green bugs were reported plentiful, and a sharp drop in temperatures gave rise to some apprehension regarding the Winter wheat belt. There was a heavy movement at interior points, notably the Northwest, which induced some selling from that quarter during the day. The market started out higher and ruled irregular for the greater part of the day. Cash wheat in New York closed as follows: No. 2 red, 82¾c, elevator, and 83¾c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 89¾c, opening navigation; No. 2 hard, Winter, 87¼c, free on board, afloat. Exporters bought 13 loads.

CORN.—The market was very narrow all day. After an early show of steadiness, the market yielded to big receipts and was depressed up to the last hour, when it steadied up slightly on good clearances. World's shipments aggregated 3,323,000 bushels, against 8,965,000 bushels last week. The visible supply decreased 680,000 bushels. Because of recent high temperatures in the Southwest, complaint was made that corn was heating in the cribs and in bad condition at some points. Exporters took 2 loads. Cash corn here closed as follows: No. 2 corn, 56c, elevator, and 52c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 54¾c, and No. 2 yellow, 52c, free on board, afloat.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Strong Tone on Stock Exchange Reflected in Buoyancy in Curb Market.

GAINS THROUGHOUT LIST

Chicago Subway, United Copper, and Cole-Ryan Stocks Conspicuous in the Upper Movement.

The strong tone assumed by the stocks on the big Exchange yesterday was promptly reflected in a better sentiment on the curb, and gains were made practically without exception throughout the entire list. Trading on the upward scale, however, was extremely light. Chicago Subway, United Copper, and the Cole-Ryan stocks were among the most conspicuous issues in the advance. Chicago Subway sold as high as 20¾, 1⅛ above the opening, and closed at 19¾. United Copper sold up from 58 to 60, closing at 59¼, after transactions of 2,000. Nevada Consolidated was one of the few mining issues to show recessions at the close. The price ranged between 14¾ and 13⅝, closing after transactions of 4,000 at 13¾.

HILL CALLS FOR CASH.

40 Per Cent. of Subscriptions on Great Northern Stock Payable April 9.

This notice, referring to the payments to be made on account of the $60,000,000 stock issue of the Great Northern Railway, was issued in the form of a circular to the stockholders yesterday:

The decision of the Supreme Court of Minnesota in the suit brought by the State to restrain the issue of the company's capital stock having been favorable to this company, the company will proceed with the issue in accordance with resolutions of the Directors and the terms of the circular dated Dec. 11, 1906. The transfer books will be closed at 3 P. M. April 2, and will remain closed until 10 A. M. April 15.

Subscriptions from stockholders who have not already subscribed will be received by the company up to the close of business April 2. Assignments of rights will be received for filling up to the close of business April 6. The first four installments of 10 per cent each, payment of which has heretofore been postponed by reason of the proceedings brought against the company, will now fall due on April 9.

The further installments will remain payable as follows: Five per cent. May 7, 5 per cent. June 7, 5 per cent. July 8, 5 per cent. Aug. 7, 5 per cent. Sept. 6, 5 per cent. Oct. 7, 5 per cent. Nov. 7, and 5 per cent. Dec. 6, 1907. The following installments will be due in 1908: Five per cent. Jan. 7, 5 per cent. Feb. 6, 5 per cent. March 6, and the final one of 5 per cent. April 7.

Secretary Ely of the Stock Exchange issued notice yesterday that all transactions in Great Northern preferred to-day, April 2, will be ex rights. The Committee on Securities has named Thuraday, April 4, as settlement day for transactions in Great Northern stocks.

MORE NIPISSING DIRECTORS.

Minority Motions Voted Down at Augusta—Estimate of Finances.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 1.—The first annual meeting of the stockholders of the Nipissing Mines Company was held here to-day. The chief business transacted was the re-election of the old Board of Directors and the enlargement of the Directorate from nine to eleven members. The new Directors are Samuel Newhouse of Salt Lake and Lyman B. Kendall of New York. No contest developed, the New York interests having an overwhelming preponderance of proxies. Of the 837,221 shares, 718,489 shares were controlled by Charles H. Doynton and W. H. Orr of New York. Motions to permit minority holders to see the Directors' minutes were voted down.

The officers of the Nipissing Mining Company made public yesterday the estimated statement of the company's financial affairs for the past eleven months which had been prepared by President Earle to use at the annual meeting held yesterday in Augusta, Me.

Since May 1, 1906, there have been produced, according to the statement, only 1,100 tons of what President Earle calls "first-class ore." Second-class ore has been taken out in the same period to the amount of 1,300 tons, and 32 tons of cobalt ore. The amount received from sales, "including ore on hand," was $1,008,000. Added to this, the inventory of May 1, 1906, brings the total up to $1,632,000, against which is charged cost of production and other expenses amounting to $176,000. A surplus of $656,000 left after the payment of dividends is made up of "cash and ore en route and at smelters," $546,000; accounts receivable, $28,000, and mining equipment, $82,000.

PANAMA ROAD ELECTION.

Major G. W. Goethals Elected President of Government Line.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Panama Railroad Company, which is now owned by the Government, was held yesterday at the company's general offices at 24 State Street, at which the President's new army appointees to the Canal Commission and ex-Senator Blackburn were formally elected to the Board of Directors. The new Directors are G. W. Goethals, D. Du B. Gaillard, W. L. Siebert, W. C. Corgae, Jackson Smith, H. H. Rosseau, and J. C. S. Blackburn.

R. R. Rogers, the new counsel for the commission, was also elected to the Directorate, and the following old Directors were re-elected: C. R. Edwards, O. H. Earnst, M. T. Endicott, E. A. Drake, and P. C. Hains.

Major Goethals was elected President of the railroad to succeed T. W. Shonts and former Secretary and Treasurer E. A. Drake was made a Vice President to assist Major Goethals. C. H. Rossbottom and H. Deming, assistants to Mr. Drake in his former double office, were elected Secretary and Treasurer respectively.

While local copper shares have shown an excellent undertone all day price changes outside of a few specialties have been merely nominal. Amelgamated has been in demand, advancing about 8 points, a large part of its buying apparently being for New York account. Trinity again came to the front, gaining about 5 points on large transactions. Calumet & Arizona recorded a gain of 2 points, Osceola and Old Dominion about 8 each, while the balance of the list has all been steady and fractionally higher. The close was strong with no stock pressing for sale. Complete list of transactions follows:

COPPERS

WALL STREET FUNDAMENTALS.

What goes up will come down—. What is down will go up.

Since the beginning it has been so. Until the end it will be so.

Who buys when stocks are down, makes. Who buys when stocks are up, loses.

Since the beginning it has been so. Until the end it will be so.

The "System"—the few—always buy low—sell high.

The public—the people—always buy high—sell low.

RESULT.

The "System" have the millions—the public—the people—pay interest upon them.

The "System" must have actual money with which to buy the stocks which the people sell when panic-stricken because of tumbling prices. All real money belongs to the people—the record shows they own the billions deposited in the savings banks and trust companies. Therefore:

It is the public's—the people's—money which the "System" actually uses to buy tumbling-price stocks.

Therefore:

The security behind the people's deposited savings which the "System" must have use of—do have use of—when the "System" buys stocks, is the stocks themselves.

(All authorities agree if the panic of March 14th had spread another day, banks and trust companies would have failed. Banks and trust companies fail only when they cannot get back the people's savings they have loaned on stocks.)

CONCLUSION I.

When the "System" buys stocks, if they go up, they, the "System"—the few—make the profit—the profit which comes from the public—the people—to whom they sell on the rise. If stocks do not go up, but continue on down, the people, whose money has been borrowed from the banks and trust companies, suffer the loss.

FACT 1. The public—the people—receive from the banks and trust companies for the use of their savings not the 20, 50, 100, 1,000 per cent. profit made because of the purchase of stocks at low prices and the sale of stocks at high prices, but the 3 to 4 per cent. per annum which they, the public—the people—have been educated to believe is all their savings do, or can, earn.

FACT 2. The banks and trust companies and the Stock Exchange are the syphon by which the public—the people—are deprived of their surplus earnings—their savings.

CONCLUSION II.

While this syphon is allowed to work, the public—the people—will grow poorer—the "System"—the few—will grow richer.

FACT 3. The public—the people—do grow poorer—the "System"—the few—do grow richer. In 1906 the prosperity of the American people was so great that their necessity-supplying corporations multiplied their business to such an extent that they could have, and should have, reduced the price of necessities, and in the end they, the public—the people—would have had a larger surplus of earnings, while the "System"—the few—would have received the usual large dividends and interest upon the capital employed.

ILLUSTRATION I.

Three illustrations will show what really happened in 1906, because of the prosperity of the American people: The high freight and passenger rates on railroads were maintained; steel and its products cost the American people much more than they cost the people of Europe, and copper, the metal, (and its products,) cost the American people 25 cents per pound instead of 12½ cents, the 1905 cost; Union Pacific jumped its dividend from 6 to 10 per cent.; the Steel Trust made a net profit of $630,000,000 upon less than $300,000,000 actual capital employed, and copper stocks increased their dividends 300, 400, 500, and 600 per cent.

A NON-GET-AWAY-FROM FACT.

During the unprecedented prosperity of the past few years the annual interest paid the American people upon their billions of savings by the banks and trust companies has remained practically at the low 3 to 4 per cent. rate, while the dividends paid upon the billions of stocks held by the "System"—the few—have increased 100 to 1,000 per cent.

ANOTHER NON-GET-AWAY-FROM FACT.

All insurance, railroad, and corporation regulation, either State or Federal, or both, which does not reverse the present operations of the people and the "System"—operations whereby the people deposit their savings at 3 to 4 per cent., and the "System," after borrowing them, by their stock market manipulating operations make them return 10 to 100 times 3 or 4 per cent., is but dressing the cancer and soothe-syruping the tuberculosis, which, at the present time, are destroying the American industrial structure.

WHAT THE PEOPLE MUST DO.

The people must buy stocks when the "System" sell—when the "System" because the American people by withholding their savings from the banks and trust companies, send up Wall Street money rates, become panic-stricken themselves and sell. The people must sell out to the "System" what they have bought low when their purchases and the purchases of the "System" have again carried the price of stocks over the high-price danger line.

ILLUSTRATION:

Because of the absorption by the American people of the teachings of "Frenzied Finance," they, the people, have not during the past three years bought from the "System" the stocks they, the "System," have manipulated to high prices, but, on the contrary, have retained their savings in their local banks and trust companies or invested them in real estate to such an extent as to cause the money rates of Wall Street to go up to prohibitive rates, and thereby bring about a panic which tumbled stocks until their price was again low.

NOW IS THE PEOPLE'S OPPORTUNITY TO REVERSE.

The people have just taught the "System" their first practical lesson.

Let the people now withdraw their savings from the banks and trust companies—many are already doing so—and buy stocks with them—buy stocks at the present low level of prices. I advise them to do so under the following conditions:

Buy only stocks representing properties which are earning and paying dividends, (except in rare cases I will later cite;) which are of undoubted size and standing—which are listed and traded in on the great Stock Exchanges—New York, Boston, or Philadelphia—and then to buy only for cash—under no circumstances upon margin.

AMALGAMATED.

Before advising as below I would make plain:

My only interest is to give the public—the people—the benefit of a lifetime experience in stocks—the benefit of a knowledge of stocks they with their inexperience cannot possess, to the end that I may put another screw in the "System's" coffin.

I advise the people to invest their savings in Amalgamated Copper Stock from 65 (the present price) to 107½.

FIRST. Because the Amalgamated Company is owned and absolutely controlled by men who cannot, because of their great wealth and business standing, shirk the responsibilities attaching to false statements—men who, in the present state of the public mind, dare not assume the responsibility of wrecking a great enterprise—I refer to Messrs. Rogers, Rockefeller, and Stillman, of the "Standard Oil" and National City Bank.

SECOND. Because these men unqualifiedly state that the company they manage and control is at the present time earning over 20 per cent. per annum, has a cash surplus of over $25,000,000, and is paying regular dividends of 8 per cent. per annum.

THIRD. Because of my faith that my following of over 400,000 investors have confidence enough in my statements to purchase, if necessary, the entire 1,550,000 shares of Amalgamated stock, and thereby, if necessary, to thwart any attempt to interfere with their rights, take into their own hands the control of the company.

FOURTH. Because the buying of my following will compel an advance in the price of Amalgamated stock to a figure higher than the one at which I will publicly advise them to sell it back to the "System" for the purpose of taking their profits and placing themselves in a position to await the next level of low prices.

DON'T MISUNDERSTAND. That every one may understand just what my advice means, I will say further: Amalgamated Copper has been "dropped" from 120 to its present price of 85; that its controllers and the "System" are now buying it, preparatory to raising the price to 150 or 160 by increasing the dividend and by other means.

That those who buy now will, under all circumstances during the time they hold it, receive more upon their money than they now receive upon it from the banks and trust companies where it is deposited. That I will give public notice when to sell, that is, when the public's and the "System's" buying has carried the price up to a point where purchases made now will show a large profit upon the investment.

In another advertisement I will show how the success of this Amalgamated movement will be another step in the overthrowing of the "System"—how its complete success will do more to regulate the "System" than all the present talked-of State and Federal legislation.

TRINITY.

No better illustration of the evil of the present method of stock gambling than Trinity—recent Trinity.

I first sold 80,000 shares of my personal holdings to 1,400 of the public at $10 per share. Then I personally spent over $350,000 and much effort in a fifty days' campaign to demonstrate to the public the merits of Trinity.

I publicly stated: Trinity is now worth 75. It will sell at that price, then will be worth, and sell at, 100 and over, because:

It is a great copper property;

It is in the control of a man who believes, and has demonstrated, it pays best in stocks to give the public a square deal;

Its properties, finances, and affairs have been passed upon by the authorities of the Stock Exchange;

It has been on the Listed Department of the Stock Exchange for six years—the highest honor which can be paid a stock;

It has for six years been the most actively traded in stock on the Stock Exchange;

It has spent over $500,000 developing one block of its ore, so that all may now see this block—800,000 tons;

It is thoroughly equipped for producing its ore;

It has just been examined by the experts of the greatest copper producers, who, in competition for a contract for its ore, have made it possible for the Trinity Company to enter into a ten years' contract for the smelting of its ore by one of the greatest combinations in the copper world—American Smelting-Balaklala;

By this contract others have invested in a smelting plant $1,500,000 to $2,000,000, which Trinity would otherwise have had to invest itself—because of this Trinity will be able to devote all of its earnings to the payment of 16 to 32 per cent. annually upon its capital stock;

Its great property is all paid for;

It has no debt;

It has cash enough on hand for all its purposes;

In addition to its developed ore it has enormous territory, embracing many other mines, any one of which may, and some of which probably will, develop into greater properties than the one now developed.

I publicly stated my object in assisting the public to make the millions they will make, instead of making them for myself, was: That I might give the public a convincing demonstration of my theory that there should be a reform in stock market methods.

For fifty consecutive days I publicly said: "Under no circumstances buy on margin. Under no condition place a 'stop' order on your purchase, but, on the contrary, pay for what you buy, take it out of the market, and shortly it will be worth, and sell for, much more than you paid for it."

Trinity advanced from 11 to 42—the public made millions.

The public made the difference between 11 and the high prices, because the public owned nearly all of the 240,000 shares of Trinity's capital stock.

Time and time again I quoted the history of my other copper campaigns—Butte from 2 to 130, Tri-Mountain from 10 to 125, and Copper Range from 10 to 105, and each time showed how the timid holders had been stampeded into selling at a loss and how in the end, when all three stocks were on the basis I had predicted—permanent 8 per cent. dividend basis—many former holders looked back and saw what fools they had been by allowing themselves to be tricked into selling on panic days.

Then, what happened:

Owing to Wall Street's deviltry the panic came, and many holders of Trinity, disregarding my repeated warnings, threw over their stock at the artificial price made for them by the speculators, who, it is unnecessary to say, bought what they sold.

Two Stock Exchange days ago, Trinity was slaughtered to 15. When it sold at 15 it was the same Trinity as when it sold at 42, and the same Trinity which will sell at 75 and 100, but in the next two days the frightened holders got back their senses, just as before Butte, Tri-Mountain, and Copper Range holders emerged from stupid panic into caneland. There had been no change in the Trinity mines, the Trinity Company, or any of its affairs, yet the stock the first day bounded from 15 to 25, and to-day with 28,218 shares traded in on the Boston Stock Exchange alone, it shot up to 32, and closed strong at 31¾ bid.

All I can say further in this advertisement to holders of Trinity is: Take warning, and on next panic day—whenever it comes—it may be when the price is between 45 and 55, it may not be until when the price gets to between 65 and 75—but when panic day comes, don't be the foolish tools of men no wiser than yourselves, but meet their scare-cries and market treachery with:

"You cannot frighten us. We have our stock paid for. We know what it is worth, and it matters not to us what you do with other stocks, you cannot affect the value of our Trinity."

PUBLIC NOTICES.

INVITATION TO CONTRACTORS.

LEXINGTON AVENUE ROUTE.

The City of New York (hereinafter called the City,) acting by its Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners (hereinafter called the Board,) contemplates building a Rapid Transit Railroad along the routes described below. By this advertisement the City invites proposals to construct such railroad upon the routes and in accordance with the detailed plans and specifications adopted therefor. Such proposals may be submitted for any one or more of the eleven separate parts of which such railroad consists, as hereinafter stated.

The points within the City between which the said several parts of the said road are to run and the route or routes to be followed, are briefly as follows:

Section 5-O-3: This part of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan, begins at Lexington Avenue and 129th Street and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about 50 feet north of 103rd Street.

Section 5-O-2: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O-3, and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about 50 feet north of 71st Street.

Section 5-O-1: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O-2, and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point between 42nd and 43rd Streets, the Southerly end of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan.

Section 5-A: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan and runs thence under private property, 42nd Street and private property again to a point in Park Avenue between 38th and 41st Streets, at which a junction can conveniently be made with the existing subway.*

*This Section will not be contracted for at present if a contract for Section 5-D-3 is let.

Section 5-B: Begins at the northerly end of Section 5-O above described and runs thence northerly under the Harlem River to the Borough of the Bronx, where it continues under Third Avenue and Morris Avenue and then curves under private property to a point in 149th Street between Morris Avenue and Cortlandt Avenue, at which a junction can conveniently be made with the present subway.

Section 5-C-1: This part of Section 5-C as described in the routes and general plan, begins at the northerly end of Section 5-O above described, and runs thence northerly under Lexington Avenue and the Harlem River to the Borough of the Bronx, and then continues under Park Avenue to 156th Street.

Section 5-C-2: This part of Section 5-C consists of a spur beginning at a point on the main line of the route of Section 5-C at Park Avenue and 149th Street, and runs under private property, 153rd Street, Exterior Street and Sedgwick Avenue to the intersection of Sedgwick Avenue and 164th Street.

Section 5-C-3: This part of Section 5-C consists of a loop beginning in the Borough of the Bronx at a point in Park Avenue between 151st and 152nd Streets, and runs thence northwesterly and westerly under private property and connects with the spur Section 5-C-2 above described near the point where the centre line of said spur would intersect 151st Street if produced.

Section 5-D-3: This part of Section 5-D as described in the routes and general plan, begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O above described in Lexington Avenue between 42nd and 43rd Streets and runs thence southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about half way between 36th and 37th Streets, at which point the tracks will diverge into two branches. One of these branches will curve southwesterly under private property to 36th Street, and then run westerly under 36th Street, curving southerly into Fifth Avenue, and then under Fifth Avenue to a point where it will be rejoined by the second branch diverging as above stated. The second branch will run from the said point of divergence southerly and westerly under Lexington Avenue and 35th Street to Fifth Avenue, where it will rejoin the branch first described at a point between 34th and 35th Streets. From the last mentioned point, the route of this Section will run southerly under Fifth Avenue along Madison Square and into Broadway; thence southerly under Broadway to a point about half way between 17th and 18th Streets.

Section 5-D-2: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-D-3 and runs southerly under Broadway (passing under Union Square) to a point about 50 feet north of Reade Street.

Section 5-D-1: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-D-2, and runs thence southerly under Broadway, Vesey Street, Church Street, Trinity Place and Greenwich Street to a suitable terminus under Battery Park.

The general plan of construction calls for a railroad placed in subways or tunnels. The road is intended to be operated by electricity or some other power not requiring combustion within the tunnels and the motors are intended to be capable of moving trains at a speed of not less than forty miles per hour for long distances, exclusive of stops.

For all of Sections 5-O-1, 5-O-2, 5-O-3 and 5-A there will be four tracks. For Section 5-B there will be two tracks. For Section 5-C-1 and Section 5-C-2, there will be two tracks. In the loop above described as Section 5-C-3, there will be one track. For Section 5-D-3 there will be four tracks as far south as the point between 36th and 37th Streets, where the line diverges as above described; there will be two tracks from the point of divergence through 36th Street and Fifth Avenue to the point where the lines reunite and two tracks from the point of divergence through Lexington Avenue and 35th Street to the point in Fifth Avenue where the lines reunite, and for the remainder of the distance southerly under Fifth Avenue and Broadway there will be four tracks. For Section 5-D-2, there will be four tracks. For Section 5-D-1 there will be four tracks to the Chambers Street Station. South of the Chambers Street station southerly under Broadway, Vesey Street, Trinity Place and Greenwich Street there will be two tracks. Additional tracks for terminal purposes are to be constructed under Battery Place and Battery Park. Suitable stations, as shown on the plans, together with crossovers, turnouts, and sidings as may be necessary, are to be provided.

The tracks are to be of standard gauge. The tunnels are to have a height of not less than 13 feet in the clear; and a maximum width of 15 feet for each track, except at stations, curves, &c., where the width may be increased. The roof of the tunnels is generally to be as near the surface of streets as street conditions and grades will permit, but will be depressed whenever necessary to avoid grade crossings as well as where approaching the Harlem River. The roof and sides of the tunnels will be of iron or steel and masonry.

Entrances to stations will in general be placed within private property, rights in which will be acquired for the purpose.

Construction is to be generally carried on by means of tunnelling or excavation under cover, except as may be otherwise specially provided in the contract, or in places where the Board shall give express permission to construct by open excavation. In the City Hall Park, Battery Park, or other places under the jurisdiction of the Department of Parks, all trees injured or destroyed in the course of construction are to be replaced by the contractor under the direction and to the satisfaction of said Department.

The Board has included in the detailed plans for construction, provisions for pipe galleries through and along the principal longitudinal streets of all portions of the route except Sections 5-A and 5-C-3. Bids for the construction of the Railroad on any one or more of these Sections must be accompanied by bids for the construction of the pipe galleries appurtenant to such section or sections; and if not so accompanied will not be considered by the Board. The Board reserves the right to accept a bid for the construction of any section of the Railroad and at the same time to reject the accompanying bid for pipe galleries.

The Board has also included in the detailed plans for construction, provisions for third tracks in 35th and 36th Streets; and for two additional tracks under Greenwich Street, Battery Place and Battery Park south of Morris Street and additional station and terminal facilities in Battery Park. Such additional tracks and facilities are intended ultimately to form part of other railways heretofore duly authorized and approved. Bids for the construction of Sections 5-D-3 and 5-D-1 must be accompanied by separate bids for the construction of such additional tracks and station and terminal facilities; and if not so accompanied will not be considered by the Board.

If proposals satisfactory to the Board are received for the construction of one or more of the several parts of the road as above described, the Board may contract (subject to the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment as provided by law) for those parts for which satisfactory proposals are received, reserving the right to make a separate contract or separate contracts thereafter for the remaining part or parts.

A fuller description of the said routes is set forth, and other requirements, provisions, details and specifications are stated in the printed form of contract now on file in the office of the Board, No. 320 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, and in the detailed drawings therein referred to, at which office copies of the contract and of the form of bond and contractor's proposal may be had on application. The contract drawings may be inspected at the same office. The printed form of contract and the detailed drawings are to be deemed a part of this Invitation.

The words "the Railroad" wherever used hereafter in this Invitation are to be construed to mean the part or parts included in any contract entered into in pursuance hereof.

Payments to the contractor for construction will be made monthly as the work proceeds, as provided in the form of contract.

The work of construction (including pipe galleries and the additional tracks and terminal facilities above mentioned) is to be completed as soon as practicable, and within the periods mentioned in the form of contract.

Proposals may be submitted for construction alone; or, at the option of the bidder, for construction, equipment, maintenance, and operation.

In case a satisfactory proposal is received from any person, firm or corporation to construct, equip, maintain and operate the Railroad, the contract will provide for such maintenance and operation for a term of twenty years, and for a renewal thereof for a further term of twenty years from the expiration of the original term, all as stated in the form of contract; the contractor to pay an annual rental for the use of the Railroad which shall be ascertained as stated in the form of contract and which shall begin as soon as any portion of the Railroad shall be declared by the Board to be ready for operation.

Sealed bids or proposals will be received at the said office of the Board, at No. 320 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, until the 25th day of April, 1907, at twelve o'clock noon, at which time or at a later date to be fixed by the Board the proposals will be publicly opened.

Proposals shall be in the form prescribed by the Board, copies of which may be obtained at the office of the Board.

Each proposal must be signed and acknowledged and also verified by an affidavit of the bidder (or if it be a corporation then by an officer thereof) to the effect that the several matters therein stated are in all respects true. If the proposal is made by a firm, it will be sufficient if the proposal is signed and acknowledged, and the affidavit sworn to, by one member of the firm.

Each proposal must specify an office within the City of New York at which notices may be delivered; and delivery of a notice at such office shall be deemed a sufficient delivery and notice to the bidder.

Each proposal or bid must contain the name and place of residence of the person or persons making the same, the names of all persons interested with him therein, and if no other person be so interested, it shall distinctly state that fact; and if the bidder shall be a corporation, there shall be submitted a certified copy of its certificate of incorporation, with a certificate of the amount of stock paid in in cash, and the names and business addresses of all officers and directors of the corporation shall be stated; also, that it is made without any connection with any other person making a proposal or bid for the same purpose, and is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud, and that no member of the Board of Aldermen, head of department, chief of bureau, deputy thereof or clerk therein, or other officer of the corporation, or any member or employe of the Board, is interested, directly or indirectly, as contracting party, partner, stockholder, or otherwise, in or in the performance of the Contract, or in the supplies, work or business to which it relates, or in any portion of the profits thereof.

Bidders shall specify separately in their proposals the amounts for which they will construct each separate part as described above; the amounts for which they will construct pipe galleries; and the amounts for which they will construct the additional tracks and terminal facilities above mentioned if they bid on Sections 5-D-1 or 5-D-3. They may, however, make their bid for any one section of this proposed railroad conditional upon either the acceptance or rejection of their bid for any one or more of the other sections which they shall specify, or upon the acceptance or rejection of their bids for any other Rapid Transit Railroad construction submitted by them at the same time.

The price stated for the construction of each separate part shall include the furnishing of all materials and the performance of all labor requisite to the complete construction of such part, including all sewer and street construction and reconstruction and other work caused by or incidental to the construction of the same as set out in the proposed form of contract.

Bidders who submit proposals to construct and also to equip, maintain and operate the Railroad, must specify in their proposals in addition to the matters hereinbefore contained, the following:

(A) An estimate of the cost of equipment of the Railroad upon which the proposal is based. The word "equipment" includes motors, cars, machinery, power houses, all real estate upon which any such power houses shall stand, rails, ties, ballast, telephone and telegraph appliances, and other real and personal property as specified in the form of contract. Such equipment is to remain the property of the contractor, but will be subject to a lien of the City to secure performance by the contractor of all the obligations of the contract, including the payment of rental under the lease during its entire term and during any extension thereof.

(B) The maximum fare (not to exceed five cents) which will be charged a single passenger for a continuous ride over the whole or any part of the Railroad.

(C) What transportation facilities over railways connecting or to connect with the Rapid Transit Railroad the contractor will assure to the City, specifying separately in Schedule A forming part of the proposal the connecting lines over which a continuous trip shall be assured to passengers for a single fare not exceeding five cents, but with or without change of cars at the option of the contractor; and in Schedule C forming part of the proposal the connecting lines over which a continuous trip shall be assured to passengers with or without change of cars at the option of the contractor, for fares exceeding five cents per trip but within limitations to be specified.

No proposal will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever after it shall have been deposited with the Board.

The Board is not obliged by law to accept any of the proposals received by it but may reject all such proposals and readvertise, or may accept any of such proposals as will in the judgment of the Board best promote the public interest and award a contract or contracts accordingly, subject to approval by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment as required by law. If any part or parts of the road are not contracted for, the Board reserves the right to make a separate contract or separate contracts thereafter for the remaining part or parts.

The award of the contract or contracts (if awarded) will be made by the Board within fifteen days after the opening of the proposals. The bidder or bidders whose proposal shall be accepted shall in person or by duly authorized representative attend at the said office of the Board within ten days after the delivery of a notice by the Board that the proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment; and such bidder or bidders shall then deliver a contract in the form referred to, duly executed with its execution duly proved.

At the time of the delivery of a contract, the contractor will be required to furnish security to the City as follows:

(1) By depositing in cash or approved securities for each part of the road for which the contract is made the following amounts, viz.:

For Section 5-O-1, one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars;
for Section 5-O-2, one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars;
for Section 5-O-3, one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars;
for Section 5-A, twenty-five thousand dollars;
for Section 5-B, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars;
for Section 5-C-1, one hundred thousand dollars;
for Section 5-C-2, fifty thousand dollars;
for Section 5-C-3, five thousand dollars;
for Section 5-D-1, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars;
for Section 5-D-2, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars;
for Section 5-D-3, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

If the contract covers two or more parts of the road, the deposit shall be the aggregate of the deposits required in respect of each of the several parts contracted for.

(2) By giving a bond in a penalty equal to the amount of the deposit as above required. At the option of the contractor, cash or approved securities may be deposited instead of giving a bond.

If securities are deposited for any purpose under this contract, they must be of the character of securities in which Savings Banks may invest their funds and must be approved by the Board. Bonds must be in one of the forms annexed to the form of contract.

In addition and as further security to the City, ten per cent. of each amount certified from time to time to be due to the contractor will be retained until the Railroad is completed.

Each bidder must state in his proposal the names and places of business of the proposed sureties on the bond proposed to be given, and describe any securities proposed to be deposited.

Bidders whose proposals are otherwise satisfactory to the Board may, in case the sureties or securities named by them are not approved by the Board, substitute in their proposals the names of new sureties or a different schedule of securities approved by the Board; but such substitution must be made within five days after notice of disapproval by the Board, unless this period is extended by the Board.

In case of failure or neglect to execute and deliver the contract or to make the required deposit or to execute and deliver the required bond, such bidder or bidders will, at the option of the Board, be deemed either to have made the contract or to have abandoned the contract. In the latter case the Board shall give notice thereof to the defaulting bidder or bidders. And the Board may thereupon proceed to make another contract with such, if any, of the original bidders, as, in the opinion of the Board, it will be to the best interest of the City to contract with, or may by new advertisement invite further proposals. The defaulting bidder or bidders shall thereupon be liable to the City for all loss and damage by it sustained, including the excess, if any, of the amount it shall pay any other contractor over the amount of the bid of such defaulting bidder or bidders, and without abatement by reason of any increase of rental which such excess may produce to the City.

Every proposal must, when submitted, be enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed "Proposal for Constructing Rapid Transit Railroad (Lexington Avenue Route) Sections——" and must be delivered to the Board or to its secretary; and in the presence of the person offering the proposal it will be deposited in a sealed box in which all proposals will be deposited. No proposals will be received or deposited unless accompanied by a certified check drawn upon a National or State Bank or Trust Company within the City of New York and satisfactory to the Board, payable to the order of the Comptroller of the City of New York, for an amount equal to TEN PER CENT. OF THE DEPOSIT above required to be made upon the delivery of a contract for construction of the Section or Sections of the proposed Rapid Transit Railroad to which such proposal relates.

If the Board shall give notice to any bidder that his or its proposal is accepted and the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and if the bidder shall fail within ten days thereafter or within such further period, if any, as may be prescribed by the Board, to execute and deliver the contract and make the deposit in cash or securities, and to execute and deliver the bond with sureties, then this Invitation to Contractors and proposal accepted as aforesaid shall be a contract binding the bidder to pay to the City the damages by it sustained by reason of such failure, and in such case the bidder hereby absolutely assigns to the City the ownership of the check accompanying his or its proposal as a payment on account of such damages.

Such check must not be enclosed in the sealed envelope containing the proposal, but must be separately delivered to the Board or to its Secretary, who will give a proper voucher for the deposit.

All such deposits made by bidders whose proposals shall not be accepted by the Board will be returned to the person or persons making the same within five days after the contract shall be executed and delivered. The deposit of the successful bidder or bidders will be returned when the contract is executed and its provisions as to security are complied with.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF New York.—Samuel Korman, plaintiff, against Samuel M. Hoffberg et al., defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the 11th day of February, 1907, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 27th day of March, 1907, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street, distant one hundred and forty-eight feet easterly from the corner formed by the intersection of the easterly side of Avenue A and the said southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street; running thence southerly, parallel with the said easterly side of Avenue A, one hundred and two feet and two inches to the centre line of the block; thence easterly, along the said centre line of the block, and parallel with the said southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street, twenty-five feet; thence northerly, again parallel with the said easterly side of Avenue A, one hundred and two feet and two inches to the southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street; thence westerly, along the said southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street, twenty-five feet to the point or place of beginning. Said premises being known as and by the street No. 506 East Seventy-sixth Street.

Also all that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street, distant one hundred and seventy-three feet easterly from the corner formed by the intersection of the easterly side of Avenue A and the said southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street; thence southerly and parallel with the said easterly side of Avenue A, one hundred and two feet two inches to the centre line of the block; thence easterly, along the said centre line of the block, twenty-five feet; thence northerly, again parallel with the said easterly side of Avenue A, one hundred and two feet two inches to the southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street; thence westerly, along the said southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street, twenty-five feet to the point or place of beginning. Said premises being known as and by the street No. 508 East Seventy-sixth Street.

Also all that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, lying, situate, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street, distant two hundred and twenty-three feet easterly from the corner formed by the intersection of the easterly side of Avenue A with the said southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street; running thence southerly, parallel with the easterly side of Avenue A, one hundred and two feet two inches to the centre line of the block; thence easterly, along the said centre line of the block, twenty-five feet; thence northerly, again parallel with the said easterly side of Avenue A, one hundred and two feet two inches to the southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street; thence westerly, along the said southerly side of Seventy-sixth Street, twenty-five feet to the point or place of beginning.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Site Bought for New Building on Wooster Street—Brooklyn Deal Involving Nearly $2,000,000—Fourth Avenue Corner Sold.

John E. Olson has bought from Ebrun F. Haight 116 and 118 Wooster Street, 50 by 100, between Prince and Spring Streets, and will erect a seven-story loft building on the plot.

E. H. Harriman's purchase of the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street, through John N. Golding, is referred to in more detail in another column.

Brooklyn Corner in Big Trade.

The Continental and Phenix Insurance Buildings, at the southwest corner of Court and Montague Streets, Brooklyn, which were bought recently by Vennette F. Pelletreau and ex-Senator Charles Cooper, have been resold by them for about $1,250,000, to Stokes & Knowles. In part payment, Stokes & Knowles give a tract of 1,000 acres at South Port Jefferson, L. I., at a valuation of $203,400; seventy acres at Franklyn Square, L. I.; 211 acres at Coram, L. I., at a valuation of $50,000, and 100 lots at Lombard Street and Varick Avenue, Eighteenth Ward, Brooklyn, at $116,000. The Long Island properties are all on the line of the proposed trolley line from Port Jefferson to Patchogue.

Fourth Avenue Corner Sold.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have sold for James P. Lee 344 Fourth Avenue and for the Fourth Avenue Company, through James P. Lee, as attorney, No. 346, adjoining, two four-story buildings, on plot 39.6 by 75, at the northwest corner of Twenty-fifth Street. The buyer is the Provident Loan Society, which intends to erect a structure for its own use in about a year.

Richard Collins has sold for Mary McAdam 319 East Thirtieth Street, a three-story dwelling, 19.5 by 98.9, to Edward S. Marvin. The buyer will occupy the house.

Buyers for West Side Houses.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have sold for Frank L. Marshall to Daniel B. Freedman 106 West Seventy-fourth Street, a four-story dwelling, with extension, on lot 18 by 102.2.

Alfred E. Toussaint has sold for Philip C. Donner to N. L. & L. Ottinger 245 West 102d Street, a four-story American-basement dwelling, on lot 18 by 100.11.

Sam J. Redlich has sold 4 West Eighty-third Street, a three-story brownstone dwelling, 18 by 100.2, for Ferdinand B. Hauck of Pasadena, Cal.

Transfer Near Times Square.

The properties 116 to 122 West Forty-second Street, four-story buildings, on plot 50 by 98.9, were transferred yesterday by Edwin W. Coggeshall to Woodbury G. Langdon.

George C. Boldt will spend $50,000 in altering the buildings at 41 West Thirty-third Street and 36 West Thirty-fourth Street and converting them into a single structure.

At Whitestone Landing.

This new residence park surpasses in beauty of location and environments any suburban development in the vicinity of New York.

Not only is every city improvement here, but tangible evidence of a high-class residential colony. A number of artistic houses are now in course of construction—to be finished in May.

Prices of lots are not based on inflated valuations. We have not discounted transportation improvements You can still profit in the benefits which will accrue from the completion of the Belmont Tunnel next summer. By he time the P. R. R. electric rapid transit is in operation —two years hence—values will have trebled.

1,000% PROFIT FOR YOU

In one of the biggest, safest, sanest real estate propositions ever presented to the investing public. We have 5,000 lots in the very best part of Long Island, purchased before the big advance in real estate at the almost "nothing" price of $34 the lot. The owner of this big piece of property will join with a number of investors in organizing a company to place these lots on the market, turning the entire 5,000 lots over to said company at $34 per lot. They are worth to-day from $75 to $300 per lot. We hereby give notice that the owner of the property will be at our office from 10 A. M. until 5 P. M. each day up to Wednesday, April 3, where books will be open for subscriptions. As the owner will subscribe personally to a goodly share of the stock it can safely be promised to all investors that the company will start off with assured profits of 300% and better. The investing public is respectfully requested to investigate and thoroughly, this proposition. It will stand all tests and is an unheard of opportunity. Long Island real estate was never more active, and this activity must continue. W. C. Reeves & Co., 1,123 Broadway, New York City. Telephone, 0947—Madison Square.

ELEGANT

IVINS FLOUTS MAYOR, RAINES, AND D.B.HILL

Makes Crisp Remarks, Too, on "Bosses" Who Oppose the Ballot Reform Bill.

CALLS TAMMANY AN AMOEBA

People's Institute Audience in Cooper Union Cheers Speaker's Thrust at McClellan's Recount Attitude.

In the course of a speech on the Page-Prentice Ballot Reform bill now pending in the Legislature at Albany—or rather awaiting action by a Judiciary Committee—William M. Ivins made some crisp remarks about Mayor McClellan, Senator John Raines, ex-Gov. David B. Hill, and several others at a meeting of the People's Institute in Cooper Union last night. Mr. Ivins was joined in his support of the Page-Prentice bill and his condemnation of the pending Phillips bill, by J. Aspinwall Hodge, who presided; Horace E. Deming, William Allaire Shortt, and ex-Judge William N. Cohen. The institute adopted resolutions accordingly.

Mr. Ivins said that he'd rather he a good and intelligent Trustee of the People's Institute than a poor and questionable Mayor. Whereat the crowd cheered.

Then he told the story about the Good Samaritan, who, coming home early in the morning, sees a man leaning up against a lamppost, leads him into his house, pushes him through a door, finds him again outside, repeats the process three times, and finally discovers that he has been dumping the citizen down an elevator shaft. That, to Mr. Ivins's mind, told the story of the voter and the politician under the existing ballot system.

Tammany an "Organized Appetite."

"Here in New York the job is done principally by Tammany Hall," continued Mr. Ivins. "I was asked once for a definition of Tammany Hall, and I said it was an 'organized appetite.' The lowest of all known animals is the amoeba. It hasn't any mouth; it's all mouth. When it comes to anything it wants, it just opens a mouth at that place and swallows it. That's the way with Tammany, and Tammany is able to have its way because it has the kind of a ballot it wants.

"But the 224,000 votes polled by Mr. Hearst in the last municipal election opened some people's eyes as to the possibility of independence in voting, and it has opened the eyes of the politicians as well to the end that they are more firmly than ever set against any effort for a fair and decent ballot."

Mr. Ivins told the history of some of the efforts to obtain ballot reform, remarking how Gov. Hill, "than whom a more scurvy politician never sat in the Gubernatorial chair"—as he expressed it, vetoed the first reform bill in 1887, and continued with vetoes annually until 1890, when public opinion forced through some kind of a reform measure. Then came various amendments, and of them Mr. Ivins said:

Shot at Senator Raines.

"Ballot reform looks to the ending of party monopoly—a monopoly that exploits the law precisely as the Interborough-Metropolitan combine exploits your necessities of transportation and carriage. The amendments that brought about the present law were devised to protect and perpetuate the monopoly of parties, and every time we have tried to get relief we have been confronted by the worst man in the Legislature.

"And I'll name him, so that if he ever wants to discover himself he can do so without trouble. He's John Raines, who now stands as the forefront of the opposition to Gov. Hughes. He is like Mephisto, who said to Faust, 'I am the spirit that denies.' John Raines is the spirit that denies ballot reform; that denies any reform that this city ever asked; that never gave anything to this city except the Raines hotel law, which is, and has always been, a curse.

"But the Republican Party has been so anxious to keep Raines at Albany that it has given him in the redistricting of the State a district with only 80,000 people in it, as against 200,000 in our districts down here."

McClellan Not Good "Sportsman."

Mr. Ivins said if he were Governor he'd say to Raines that inasmuch as the Senator's constituency was but 80,000, and the Governor's the entire population of the State, no bill affecting the Senator's constituency would be signed by the Governor until the bills affecting the Governor's constituency—the Public Utilities bill, the Ballot Reform bill, the Recount bill, and some others—had received proper consideration by the Legislature.

Mr. Ivins said that he regretted that Mayor McClellan wasn't, among other things, a good enough sportsman to offer to have a recount of the Mayoralty vote," but he predicted that whatever the result of the vote on Mr. McClellan's claim on his present office, it would show conclusively the futility and danger of the existing law.

In the medley of questions that were put to Mr. Ivins after he had finished his formal remarks was one as to what effect the ballot reform bill would have on the bosses. He replied that it would put the parasitic bosses out of business.

"Do you want my definition of a parasitic boss?" queried Mr. Ivins. "I'll give it to you. It's Charley Murphy."

Bosses Afraid of Their Jobs.

Mr. Deming remarked of the Public Utilities bill that it was as "dead as a door nail" until the people frightened the representatives of private interests in the Legislature into voting for it.

"Now, isn't that a pretty kind of representative Government?" he asked. "You have to hold mass meetings and prod your representatives into doing the very thing you put them into the Legislature to do. But is there any one who doesn't know what the trouble is? If we had a certain kind of electoral system certain persons would be put out of business. Now they don't want to go out of business any more than you or I do, and you can depend upon it that they will give you fifty Public Utilities bills before they give you one Ballot Reform bill."

Flatbush Avenue Station Opened.

The new Flatbush Avenue station of the Long Island Railroad was opened at noon yesterday. The construction of the building has taken two years. It is at the junction of the Long Island tunnel in Atlantic Avenue with the subway which is being built in Flatbush Avenue.

Badges Barred as City Ferry Passes.

Dock Commissioner Bensel put a new rule into effect on the Staten Island Ferry yesterday, under which badges are no longer good for free transportation. Uniformed city employes ride free. Others entitled to free transportation have been furnished with blue pass cards, good until Oct. 30.

THE WEATHER.

BRONX DEMANDS MORE FAST TRAINS

Wants the Express Service in Subway and on Elevated Extended.

CALLS ON TRANSIT BOARD

Petitions Prepared at Mass Meeting Ask for Immediate Relief from Overcrowding.

Better transit facilities for the Bronx were demanded by 100 of its representative citizens at a meeting in the rooms of the Associated Board of Brokers last night. Immediate relief from the crowded conditions in the Subway and on the elevated roads will be asked of the Rapid Transit Commission.

With great enthusiasm a permanent organization, known as the Committee of One Hundred on Rapid Transit in the Bronx, was formed. Congressman Joseph A. Goulden of the Eighteenth Congressional District was elected its Chairman. Other officers chosen were: Vice Chairman—John Brandley; Secretary—William S. Germain, and Treasurer—J. Clarence Davies. An Executive Committee of thirty members was formed to "make things hum," as one of the members expressed it.

Bitter attacks were made on the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the Rapid Transit Commission by several speakers during the meeting. Ex-Justice Ernest Hall took the commission to task in these words:

"I hope we can get somebody on the Rapid Transit Commission who is not over 80 years old. I hope we can get somebody on the commission who is young enough to come north and examine conditions for himself. Why, the Commissioners sit downtown in their office, and don't even know there is such a borough as the Bronx in existence. I venture to say none of them has ever seen it.

"If the Utilities bill gets rid of that barnacle called the Rapid Transit Commission it will not have been offered in vain. Oh, the Commissioners are a nice lot of old women! But they are not up to the times. A borough bigger than the city of Boston sits calmly by and lets a commission on which it has no representation play with it."

Julius Haas paid his respects to the Interborough Company. He expressed himself in favor of a proposition made by the company, by which it agreed to bid for the extension of the present subway division through Westchester and Jerome Avenues provided that it received permission to build a third track on the Second and Third Avenue elevated systems. This proposition was accepted by the State Railroad Commission, but failed to pass the Rapid Transit Commission by one vote.

"The company did not make this proposition because it loves us," Mr. Haas said. "It made it because it wants our nickels. Somebody has said that the passenger traffic on the Interborough lines has increased 45,000,000 in one year. The company wants the 45,000,000 nickels. But we will benefit by the proposition and should accept it."

A petition to the Rapid Transit Commission, asking for relief, was adopted. Five hundred copies of this petition were ordered printed, so that they might be circulated among the residents of the Bronx for their signatures. This petition contained three demands.

The first asked for third tracks on the Second and Third Avenue elevated roads with proper facilities for transfer and with adequate express train service from Harlem to the City Hall.

The second asked that the board plan to build the extensions of the divisions of the Subway under Westchester, White Plains, and Jerome Avenues, already considered by the commission.

The third requested the immediate preparation of plans for the addition of two tracks to the present Subway north of Ninety-sixth Street, so as to afford the operation of express trains.

One member suggested that steps be taken to compel the New York Central Railroad to reduce its fare from Harlem to the Forty-second Street Station. The fare at present is 10 cents. The member asked that this be reduced to 5 cents. The suggestion was ignored.

HEALY'S RESTAURANT AFIRE.

A $500 Blaze in Kitchen Drives Diners to the Street.

A fire which started in the basement kitchen threatened to destroy Healy's restaurant at Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue last night. An exhaust fan drew the flames to the upper floor, but the quick work of employes put it out with a loss of $500.

While Jack Garry, the head broiler, was broiling a hunch of crabs some grease dropped on the fire, and in a twinkling the flames spread to the wall and took hold there. The exhaust drew the flames to it and sent them shooting up the exhaust.

Miss Nellie Kelly, the hookkeeper, while sitting in the office just behind the restaurant, felt the heat behind her, and, looking, saw the flames. She stuffed papers and books which were lying loose on a desk into the safe and then notified the cashier that the place was burning.

An alarm was turned in, but before the arrival of the engines the waiters and cooks had the flames under control, and the firemen had little work to do.

There were a number of diners in the restaurant, and they hurriedly left their partly finished meals to get to the street.

WOMAN HELD AS A BURGLAR.

Confesses Robbing Mrs. Butler's House and Begs Court for Mercy.

Mary Hilliard, an unmarried woman of 25, was arraigned in Yorkville Court yesterday charged by Mrs. William Butler of 143 East Thirtieth Street with robbing her house on Sunday, and was held in $1,000 bail for trial by Magistrate Sweetser. Mrs. Butler told the Magistrate how the young woman had entered her house yesterday afternoon while she, Mrs. Butler, was playing the piano, and had been discovered by Mrs. Butler rummaging through a chiffonier.

Mrs. Butler said she signaled to a man who was passing to summon a policeman, and the man returned with Patrolman Conlin of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, who took the young woman into custody. The woman begged for mercy, but Mrs. Butler insisted that she be locked up.

According to the testimony before the Magistrate she had taken a gold watch, a pair of gold link buttons, and a chatelaine bag.

The prisoner pleaded with the Magistrate to give her another chance, saying that up to a year ago she had been for years a saleswoman in a big dry goods store, and had lost her place. She declared that she did not know what tempted her to enter Mrs. Butler's house when she saw the front door standing open, and said she had never stolen anything before.

The woman said in court that her address was 9 West Sixty-fourth Street. When arrested she had told the police that she lived at 205 East Fifty-sixth Street.

JAMES WON'T BE A SAILOR.

7-Year-Old Changes Mind After Breaking His Arm on the Minnetonka.

Seven-year-old James Byron Hilliard wanted to be a sailor bold, but yesterday he arrived with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Hilliard of Louisville, Ky., his governess, and his five-year-old sister, Alice, on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka, with his right arm in a sling and his ambition for a life before the mast gone. The little fellow visited Admiral Davis's fleet in the Mediterranean. He was entertained by the officers and men, and one gave him a tap band on which was inscribed in gold letters "West Virginia." James pinned this about his hat and confided to his father that he was going to be a sailor when he "growed up."

When the family embarked on the Minnetonka James wanted to begin an immediate investigation of the vessel. He was up on the rail, trying to look down ventilators, and doing so many other nautical stunts that his parents told the governess to keep a sharp watch on him.

On Sunday morning the boy disappeared from the promenade deck. Five minutes later a seaman climbed up the companionway from the main deck with the boy in his arms. James had essayed to climb the iron ladder up the side of the foremast leading to the crow's nest, and had fallen. He was picked up with his right arm broken. Dr. W. J. Hill set the arm, and now little James declares that he will not go down to the sea in ships when he is "growed up."

HIS "BOYS" GREET DR. CLARKE

Give Dinner to Their Former Teacher on His 90th Birthday.

In honor of the ninetieth birthday of Dr. George W. Clarke and the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of Mount Washington Collegiate Institute over thirty of his old "boys" entertained him last night at dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

In his speech of thanks Dr. Clarke said: "Gentlemen: I suppose I ought to say boys—the march of progress in the nineteenth century has been wonderful, but I hope the twentieth will explode some of the old superstitions. One of the worst of them was 'The good die young.' Gentlemen, I have tried to go good, but here I am."

A number of those present gave reminiscences of the time they spent at the institute.

BOGUS BUTTER SEIZED.

Commission Dealer Arrested Charged with Selling Oleomargarine.

On complaint of the State Agricultural Association, George Thompsen, a commission dealer, who with two partners conducts a large factory at 240 Washington Street, Jersey City, was arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday on a charge of selling oleomargarine in this State. Magistrate Wahle held him in $500 bail for trial in Special Sessions.

Thompson's stock, it was alleged, consisted of 50 cases of oleomargarine and two packages of "print" butter. Thompson, it was testified, was offering the stuff at 22 cents per pound. The stock was seized.

Agents of the State Agricultural Association said in court that Thompson's arrest was the beginning of a crusade against dealers in butter and allied products who bring imitations of these commodities from other States and dispose of them here.

Talmadge Leek Held for Trial for Breaking Into House Where He Lived.

Talmadge Leek, formerly a well-to-do business man, was held in $300 bail in Jefferson Market Court yesterday afternoon for trial in General Sessions. A few days ago Leek was discovered at 2:30 A. M. using a pickaxe against the front doors of the house at 142 West Thirteenth Street, where he lived with his wife. When arrested he declared that he was using the axe as a latchkey to get to his rooms.

Mrs. Lena Dingfelder of 151 West Thirteenth Street, owner of the house Leek attacked, charged in court that he had damaged the doors to the extent of $125. Leek was sent to Bellevue for five days to be examined as to his sanity. He was sent back to court yesterday as sane and was held for trial.

Mrs. Leek furnished cash bail for her husband. Leek is 45 years old.

CUTS DAUGHTER'S THROAT.

Angered by Refusal to Give Him Money, Italian Kills Her and Escapes.

Enraged at his daughter, Mrs. Marie Tropi, because she refused to give him money, Antonio Lancia, 47 years old, grabbed a carving knife from the kitchen table in the family apartments at 625 Union Street, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, and slashed her throat. Mrs. Tropi staggered to the hall, where she fell dead.

Lancia was released last week from jail, where he had been committed last October for carrying concealed weapons. He has long been known as a bad man among the inhabitants of the Italian colony in South Brooklyn.

He did not appear at his home until yesterday morning. There he found his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Tropi, and her son, Antenlo, 12 years old. To his demand for money the daughter replied that there was none in the house. Mrs. Lancia and her son then went away.

Mrs. Tropi was found dead in the hall a few minutes later by her brother, who went back to see if his father had left.

The police sent out an alarm for the murderer, but he had not been captured last night.

MRS. EDDY CONVEYS HER ENTIRE ESTATE

Deeded to Three Trustees, Who Have Full Power to Prosecute or Defend Suits.

BLOW AT "NEXT FRIENDS"

Motion for Substitution of Trustees in Their Place as Plaintiffs in Pending Action.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., April 2.—Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy's answer to the suit brought to compel an accounting of her property is a motion, filed to-day by her counsel, Frank S. Streeter, for leave to intervene, involving the substitution of duly appointed trustees as plaintiffs in place of the "next friends."

By a deed of trust Mrs. Eddy has transferred her entire estate, with a few minor reservations, to three trustees, Henry M. Baker of Bow, Archibald McLellan of Boston, and Josiah E. Fernald of Concord. These trustees are bonded to the extent of half a million dollars that they will preserve and protect her estate. They are empowered to prosecute and defend for the benefit of the estate any suits at law or in equity, whether now pending or that may afterward be brought with reference to any matter in which she may personally be interested.

Counsel for the original "next friend" plaintiffs, Messrs. T. E. Martin of this city and John W. Kelly of Portsmouth, declined to say anything to-night, preferring that any answer out of court on their side should come from the senior counsel, William E. Chandler of Washington, Chairman of the Spanish Treaty Claims Commission.

Views of Disinterested Lawyers.

Lawyers not engaged on either side, however, who have looked over the original bill and the motion in regard to it filed this afternoon, point out that this is an attempt not to add other next friends to the plaintiffs, but to eliminate the present next friends entirely. They say that the statements of the prayer presupposes that Mrs. Eddy herself is unable to know whether or not she has been dealt with justly by the defendants. There is no assertion, it is noticed, in the bill that Mrs. Eddy is competent to manage her property and its income and disposition.

The main and fundamental question in the case, these lawyers say, is simply Mrs. Eddy's legal capability to manage her estate. If this main issue is sustained the trust deed itself might fail and the three men named in it be removed from a position of great power and profit. This might be held to so personally and powerfully influence them as to preclude them from being proper parties to be intrusted with this litigation.

Frank S. Streeter, who is not only personal counsel for Mrs. Eddy, but also counsel for the trustees to whom Mrs. Eddy has converted her property, made the following statement:

"The creation of a trust to take charge of and care for all her property and business affairs was contemplated by Mrs. Eddy before she had any knowledge that the equity suit was begun or contemplated, and she had consulted me with reference thereto.

"As to the suit itself, if, as asserted, it was begun for the sole purpose of protecting Mrs. Eddy's property interests, the 'next friends' should feel relieved from any anxiety. The high business character and standing of the trustees, as well as their legal obligations under their bond to Mrs. Eddy, insure the faithful performance of their full duty under the terms of the trust deed to conserve all property interests involved, and they will protect her personally to the extent of their ability.

"If the 'powerful interests' said to be behind these proceedings have any ulterior or unfriendly purpose against Mrs. Eddy, her personal rights in this respect will undoubtedly receive the protection of the court."

Defendants to Face Charges.

Samuel J. Elder and William A. Morse, counsel for Ira O. Knapp, William B. Johnson, Stephen A. Chace, Joseph Armstrong, all of Massachusetts, and Edward T. Kimball, a resident of Chicago, five of the defendants, have issued a statement saying that although their clients are not bound to appear and make answer in this case, nevertheless such serious, unfounded, and unwarranted charges have been made concerning them that they decided voluntarily to appear and submit to the jurisdiction of this court, and to meet and make answer to such charges, that there might be no unnecessary delay in obtaining a judicial determination and finding with reference to the accusation against them.

The firm of Eastman, Scammon & Gardiner appears for the following-named defendants, residents of New Hampshire: Calvin A. Frye, Irving C. Tomlinson, Hermann S. Hering, and Lewis C. Strang. Attorney General Eastman of this firm made the following statement:

"Our clients have been charged with a very serious breach of confidence in connection with their alleged relations with Mrs. Eddy, and, among other things, that they have misappropriated funds and wrongfully diverted moneys from her estate for their own benefit. We have no reason to doubt that these charges are wholly without foundation, and the defendants will ask and demand that these charges shall be fully investigated by the court, and to that end we shall do what we reasonably can to bring about that result at the earliest practicable time."

Henry M. Baker, Chairman of the Trustees, in behalf of himself and his associates, gave out the following:

"The trustees can add nothing of importance to the official documents filed in court. Those papers cannot be misunderstood. They are plain and conclusive and represent nothing which has not been carefully and for a long time considered by Mrs. Eddy, and carry out in simple form her instructions to her counsel, Gen. Streeter.

"Mrs Eddy has relieved herself of the care of her estate that she may devote her time and thought without interruption to the advancing cause she represents. Her trustees accepted the trust several weeks ago, and are actively engaged in the details and responsibilities they have assumed. They will not hesitate to protect and defend the estate in-

PASTOR GONE, GIRL, TOO.

There Had Been Gossip About the Two —He Has Six Children.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGETON, N. J., April 2.—It came out here to-day that the Rev. Oscar W. Fischer had resigned as pastor of St. John's German Lutheran Church and had left the city. Later it was learned that Miss Chrissie Scheyhing, one of the members of his church and a singer in the choir, had left a West Commerce Street house, where she had been employed as a governess for the last eight years.

Mr. Fischer came to Bridgeton last June from a small town in Pennsylvania and immediately made friends. He was active in the church work, organized the young members of the church into societies, and was pointed out as a model pastor. Last January, when the week of prayer meetings was held in the city, he was active in the services and addressed congregations in all churches on several occasions.

Miss Scheyhing was one of the unassuming young women of the congregation, seldom mingling with young company except her friends in the church. About three months ago Mr. Fischer's attention to the choir girl was noticed. Recently residents in the neighborhood where Miss Scheyhing was employed saw him meet the girl.

So much gossip was occasioned by the preacher's conduct that the Church Council decided to ask for his resignation at a meeting called for last night. Friends evidently acquainted him with this fact and he forthwith resigned.

Mrs. Fischer is devoted to her husband and will not believe some of the reports in circulation about him. They have six children, all young.

Miss Scheyhing, who is about 24 years old, surprised her employer on Monday by asking for three days' leave of absence, saying that she wanted to go to Vineland. Her request was granted, and, taking a suitcase, she went away. She had previously shipped a trunk containing her dresses.

She told her parents that she was going to Vineland, but instead bought a ticket for Philadelphia.

2,000 WOMEN WOULD WED.

What Was Found at a Matrimonial Agency in Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—Evidence that 2,000 women were willing to become wives was found to-day in the rooms of James Marshall and Tonie Marshall, or Edith Ross. They are charged with conducting a matrimonial agency under the name of the "Mrs. Edith Ross Society." Marshall, apparently, composed the stock of marriageable men.

He was arrested through the unsatisfactory outcome of one marriage which the agency brought about, in which he was the bridegroom. The bride was Mrs. Marjorie Friel of 1,525 Summer Street. They were married on Feb. 20. Both Mr. Marshall and his female companion, whom he represented as his daughter and who lived with the bride and bridegroom for a while at the home of the bride's aunt at 654 Sydenham Street, disappeared after Mrs. Friel had refused to lend money to her new husband.

Mrs. Friel answered an advertisement in a newspaper which read:

WANTED—A wife. Wealthy, refined, elderly gentleman, alone and generous, will be devoted husband to kind wife. Address 5,122 Brown Street, Philadelphia.

Among the letters found in the rooms which Marshall and his "daughter" occupied were several from persons who said they had dowers ranging from $40,000 to $80,000. One wrote sentimentally: "May this be your valentine, Dear Ducky Darling." Another said that she had a husband, but that he was tired of him and wanted a new one with money enough to pay for getting a divorce from the old. A widow wrote that she was "fair, fat, and forty."

"A girl out of her teen wrote that she was a graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music. One girl granted that she was not beautiful, but said she was good enough to make up for that and that beauty was only skin deep anyway. A widow of 65 years with nine children said that she had lost her husband two months before and that she was lonely.

Farmers daughters wrot that they were weary of the farm. Sergant girls wrote that they were weary of the kitchen. School teachers explained how very tired they were o ftraining the young idea to shoot.

All these offers had been carefully classified, those with doweries at the top and those with only natural goodness at the bottom.

JEWS IN TANGIER ALARMED.

Indications of a Secret Organization for Their Persecution.

LONDON, Wednesday, April 3.—In a dispatch from Tangier, the correspondent of The Daily Mail says the ill-treatment here yesterday on the street of an innocent Jew by the populace and several attempts to pick quarrels with Jews are causing alarm among the Jewish residents of Tangier, who fear that a secret party for their persecution is being organized.

TANGIER, Morocco, April 2.—The body of Dr. Mauchamp, the French citizen who was murdered at Morocco City recently, arrived here to-day from Mazagan on board the French cruiser Lalande. It was received here by the French Minister, M. Regnault, and representatives of the Moorish Government and the foreign legations. After a speech by M. Regnault the body was re-embarked for transportation to Marseilles on a passenger ship. The ships in the harbor had their flags at half mast and a salute was fired during the trans-shipment.

ORAN, Algeria, April 2.—The adherents of the Moroccan Pretender declare the latter approves of the French occupation of Oudja and has through his influence caused the submission of the powerful tribes in the vicinity of the town.

PARIS, April 2.—M. Destailleur has been appointed French Commissioner for the regulation of the Algerian-Moroccan frontiers under the agreements of 1901 and 1902. He will reside at Oudja. The nomination of a Moorish Commissioner is expected shortly.

REFERENDUM IN CLEVELAND.

BUSSE ELECTED MAYOR OF CHICAGO

Republican Defeats Dunne, Advocate of Immediate City Ownership.

TRACTION ORDINANCES WIN

Successful Candidate's Plurality is 13,121—Heavy Drop in the Socialist Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 2.—Chicago's Postmaster, Frederick A. Busse, the Republican candidate, was elected Mayor of this city to-day, having a plurality of 13,121 votes over Mayor Edward F. Dunne. The total number of votes cast for Mr. Busse was 164,839 and for Mr. Dunne 151,718. The Prohibition candidate polled 5,875 votes and the Socialist 13,459.

The new Mayor will have the City Council with him. The makeup of this body shows thirty-five Republicans, thirty-four Democrats, and one Independent Democrat. The ordinances settling the street car question were carried by a good majority. The vote on this question was 165,846 for, and 152,720 against.

According to the latest returns at midnight the only Democrat outside of Aldermen elected was John E. Traeger, who was the Democratic candidate for City Trasurer. The indications are that he will be elected by at least 8,000 plurality.

The issues of the campaign have been largely based upon the improvement of the local traction systems. Both parties agreed that present conditions are intolerable, but differed as to the best method of revising them. The Democratic Party, headed by Mayor Dunne, stood for immediate municipal ownership through condemnation of the street car property if the result could not be obtained in any other way.

The Republican Party favored ordinances which were recently passed by a Democratic City Council over the veto of Mayor Dunne. These ordinances provided for twenty-year franchises for the street car companies, the city retaining the right to purchase the systems for $50,000,000 plus the amount to be spent for immediate rehabilitation of the lines, six months' notice being necessary of the city's intention to acquire the property. The ordinances also provide for universal transfers throughout the city, a five-cent fare, and 55 per cent. of the net profits of the companies to be paid to the city.

The vote generally showed a decided reversal of public opinion on municipal ownership, compared with the Mayoralty campaign two years ago. At that time Dunne received 163,189 votes, against 138,671 for John M. Harlan, the Republican leader. The Prohibitionist ticket received 3,294 votes and the Socialist 23,034. The Socialist vote fell this year off heavily.

The campaign has been one of the most bitter the city has ever known. Charges and countercharges have been hurled, the personal lives of the candidates have been discussed, and speakers on both sides have indulged in tirades filled with invectives and abuse.

William R. Hearst came personally from New York to take part in the campaign, and brought with him cartoonists and editorial writers. His papers were the only publications in the city supporting Mayor Dunne, all other newspapers being for Busse and the ordinances. The papers favoring Busse made much of the cry that Chicago was able to manage its own interests without receiving instructions from New York.

The Hearst papers asserted that Mayor Dunne was acting for the best interests of Chicago and that it was, therefore, their duty to support him.

Mayor Dunne appeared greatly affected by the result and said:

"It looks as though the money power has overwhelmed us, but our cause is not lost. Municipal ownership and Governmental ownership will win in the end. This election has merely acted as a check. It will retard us for a while, but the movement will go on and will in the end be successful."

Corporation Counsel James Hamilton Lewis, who has been a stanch supporter of Mayor Dunne, said at 6 o'clock:

"The result came because a combined Republican Party was led by able Captains against what developed to be a distracted and divided Democracy."

Mr. Busse, who is Postmaster of the city, was confined to his home during the campaign because of injuries received in a recent wreck on the Pennsylvania Railroad. When the result was beyond doubt he said:

"I am, of course, greatly delighted at the success of the Republican ticket. It shows that the people of this city favor immediate improvement in our street car service, and that they indorse the ordinances passed by the City Council over the veto of Mayor Dunne."

Mr. Busse continued:

"More than anything else, the vote in Chicago to-day means that the sentiment of the majority of the people in the second largest city in the United States is opposed to William R. Hearst and all the 'isms' that he has sought to thrust upon the community. It is a clean-cut victory for sane, safe, and conservative institutions."

ROOSEVELT IS PLEASED.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—When informed of the election of Mr. Busse as Mayor of Chicago, President Roosevelt made this statement:

"I am exceedingly pleased at Mr. Busse's victory. During his service as Postmaster Mr. Cortelyou and I grew to feel that he possessed in a very marked degree administrative abilities. I believe he will make an excellent Mayor of Chicago, and I heartily congratulate the city."

President Roosevelt also sent a telegram of congratulation to Mr. Busse. The telegram was not given out.

Secretary Cortelyou also sent a telegram to Mr. Busse, congratulating him upon his election.

ELECTIONS IN OTHER CITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 2.—Both Republican and Democratic organization candidates won out in the contests for nominations for Mayor to-day.

Mayor E. Clay Timanus defeated ex-Congressman Wachter for the Republican nomination, carrying eighteen out of twenty-four wards.

In the three cornered fight of the Democrats J. Barry Mahool overwhelmingly defeated George Stewart Brown, the Municipal Ownership candidate and State Senator Linthicus, the vote being: Mahool, 23,904; Brown, 9,316; Linthicum, 7,318. The municipal election takes place May 7.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 2.—In the elections in the cities of the first and second class to-day in Kansas the Law and Order or temperance forces won a decided victory. Women voted and in Topeka fifty women used their private carriages in hauling Law and Order voters to the polls.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 2.—Hartford voted license on the saloon question by 3,672 to 1,339 against in the annual election to-day. The Republicans carried the day on the general ticket by about 1,000 majority.

HARVARD SEAL TO STAY.

Resolution to Remove It from the Rhode Island State House Is Defeated.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, April 2.—The presence of the Harvard University Seal in the scheme of decoration of the State Library in the Rhode Island State House precipitated a lively fight among the legislators to-day. resolution introduced by Representative Theodore Francis Green, of Providence, (Democrat,) a Brown graduate, provided that the Harvard seal should be removed and that of Brown University substituted. The measure had been reported to the House by the Committee on Education, with recommendation of passage, but so vigorous did the arguments become that the matter was fought out on strictly partisan lines, and the measure was defeated by the Republicans, 35 to 24.

Mr. Green, in advocating the change, suggested that as McKim of the firm of McKim, Mead & White, architects for the building, was a Harvard man, it was probably due to the sense of humor of the firm that the Harvard Seal had been put in a building at the door of Brown.

Speaker R. B. Burchard, a Boston millionaire who votes in this State through a residence in Little Compton, took the floor and warmly defended the presence of the Harvard Seal. The Republicans supported Burchard, and the Harvard Seal will remain where it has been for the last five years, and where it has attracted no particular attention until the present session.

ROBBERS HAD $1,000 IN LOOT.

Caught After Running Pursuit In House They Ransacked.

After a lively struggle which was followed by policemen chasing two alleged burglars up and down fire escapes and dumb waitres, the fugitives were finally arrested in the house at 8 West Twenty-eighth Street late yesterday afternoon. When searched, the police say, about $1,000 worth of jewelry was found in their possession.

The janitor, John Closen, surprised the men at work, and they attacked and beat him. They retreated to the street, and Policemen Daly, Converse, and Hartwig of the Traffic Squad were summoned.

When the three policemen reached the house, the robbers fled up the stairway. One jumped out on the fire escape and tried to reach the street through another building. He was caught as he came out of the door. The other man jumped into the dumb waiter and let himself down. He couldn't get out and Policeman Hartwig went to the top, where he got hold of the rope and pulled it to the top and arrested the man.

All the apartments in the building had been broken open and the bureaus and closets ransacked. The two men gave their names as George Albertson of 208 West Twenty-eighth Street and George Fuller, who said he lived at a hotel at Twenty-eighth Street and Sixth Avenue. When Fuller was searched two gold watches, a gold fob, a gold chain, a 32-calibre revolver, a silver cigarette case, a silver cigar case, a silver flask, $2.32 in pennies, a pair of gold cuffbuttons, a pearl scarfpin, and several pawntickets were found in his pockets.

Albertson had a gold purse, a gold chain, a gold bracelet, a silver matchbox, a gold bracelet, a gold fob, a pair of diamond link cuffbuttons, four pearl studs, and $2.57 in pennies.

AUTO KILLS MAN OF 81.

Alden Sampson, Second, Held on Manslaughter Charge.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, April 2.—Alden Sampson, second, faces to-night a charge of manslaughter for having run down and killed an old man on Kellogg Street at noon to-day. Felix Maxwell, the victim, was 81 years old, and had been picking up coal on the railroad near his home, on Kellogg Street.

The car ran tho old man down and dragged him several rods, the coal being widely scattered, which demonstrated the force with which he was struck. Sampson left, but soon returned, and was put under arrest. Early this evening a charge of manslaughter was formulated, and he was released on $8,000 bail.

The bond was furnished by Irving D. Ferry, President of the Agricultural National Bank, who is a personal friend of Senator W. Murray Crane. Sampson will be arraigned in the District Court to-morrow morning.

Sampson has the reputation of being a reckless driver. He is prominent socially and is a member of the Aero Club of America.

ASBURY BUILDINGS UNSAFE.

Half a Dozen Have Been Condemned and Are to be Torn Down.

ASBURY PARK, April 2.—Owing to a report made to the City Council at its meeting last night by Building Inspector Charles Croxom, a number of buildings will be torn down this Spring. Mr. Croxom presented a list of the buildings which he said were unsafe.

Among the buildings that are to be torn down are a one-story building, First Avenue and Broadway, owned by Catherine Cook; Lenox Hotel, Broadway and Ocean Avenue, owned by Albert Stieglitz of New York; two-story buildings, owned by J. M. Green of Trenton; hotel and barn owned by H. S. Terhune, hotel and barn owned by Anna Hertz, Hall Building, Broadway, owned by W. G. Hall estate; Madison Flats, Ocean Avenue, owned by Louis E. Schram of 27 West Seventy-fifth Street, New York.

The buildings will be torn down before the warm weather begins.

JERSEY MAY TAX WHISKERS.

Bill Puts Heaviest Burden on Wearers of "Billy Goats" and Red Beards.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 2.—Assemblyman Cornish of Essex introduced in the House to-day a bill which provides a tax for wearing the hair on the face as follows, to be paid to the tax collector yearly:

Ordinary whiskers, $5; side whiskers, $8; Van Dyke beard, $10; mutton chops, $15; "billygoat," $50; red whiskers, 20 per cent. extra. The tax collector is to receive 25 per cent. for collecting the tax. Speaker Pro Tem. Elvins sent the bill to the Committee on Fish and Game.

WOMAN ELECTED JUSTICE.

Mrs. McCullough Successful in Campaign in Illinois City.

CHICAGO, April 2.—At Evanston today Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, a well-known lawyer, was elected a Justice of the Peace.

She will be the first woman to hold a judicial office in this State.

JAMES J. HILL QUITS AS RAILROAD HEAD

Louis W. Hill, His Son, Succeeds Him as President of the Great Northern.

IS CHAIRMAN OF DIRECTORS

Resignation Taken to Mean His Early Retirement from Railroad Affairs.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, April 2.—James J. Hill, President of the Great Northern Railway since its organization in 1889, and personally the most conspicuous figure in the American railroad world, resigned to-day from the presidency of the road and was elected Chairman of the Board of Directors. He is not to give up, at present at least, his management of the finances and policies of the Great Northern, and will continue to perform as Chairman the duties with which he has been charged for the last eighteen years as President. His son, Louis W. Hill, has been elected President of the Great Northern, and Frank H. McGulgan, who recently came to the Great Northern from the Grand Trunk Railway, was elected vice-president.

These changes in the Great Northern management were announced in this statement, issued after a meeting of the Board of Directors, which Mr. Hill attended:

"At a meeting of the Board of Directors held here this afternoon, the organization of the company was enlarged by the election of a Chairman of the Board of Directors. J. J. Hill was elected Chairman, Louis W. Hill was elected President, and Frank H. McGulgan First Vice President. Mr. McGulgan will have direct charge of the operating department, the other officers of the board remaining as at present. The company's business has doubled in the past five or six years, which renders necessary the increase of the operating staff."

E. T. Nichols, Vice President of the Great Northern, said in this city last night that the action taken in St. Paul yesterday in no sense meant the retirement of Mr. Hill from the direction of Great Northern affairs. He added that Mr. Hill's duties as Chairman would be practically identical with the duties he has been performing in recent years. These have had to do with the general direction of the road's policies and finances rather than directly with the operation of the property.

A Step Toward Retirement.

Nevertheless, the election of Mr. Hill as Chairman of the board is believed to be a step in the direction of his eventual retirement from active participation in the management of the road, which it has been Mr. Hill's desire to do for the last year. He has repeatedly said, however, in discussing with friends the possibility of his retirement, that he would stay with the road as long as there was any trouble to confront, and just at this time, when railroad affairs are under such close scrutiny, it is not thought likely that he will turn over to others the task of directing the Great Northern's affairs.

The Great Northern as it stands today, one of the most important railroad systems in the country, is largely the result of the efforts which James J. Hill has devoted to the upbuilding of the Northwest. Mr. Hill, before he was President of the Great Northern, was President of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba from 1883 to 1889. For many years before he was with the St. Paul & Pacific, which became a part of the Great Northern system. He entered the railroad service in 1865, and has continuously since that time been active, first in minor and later in important positions, in the railroad work of the Northwest.

Mr. Hill long has been regarded as one of the most enterprising and successful railroad men, identified with the upbuilding of the transportation system in the United States. Of late years he has extended his field of activity to Canada, and is now engaged in the construction of a new line from Winnipeg to the Pacific Coast.

In his railroad undertakings in the Northwest Mr. Hill has on more than one occasion come into conflict with the plans of E. H. Harriman, and some battles royal have resulted from the efforts of these two men to carry out their respective plans for the extension of the influence of their roads in the Northwestern States.

Felt He Had Earned a Rest.

Before the Attorney General of Minnesota began suit against the Great Northern to prevent the issuance of $60,000,000 of new stock Mr. Hill's friends thought that the successful flotation of this increase in the Great Northern capital would probably mark the close of Mr. Hill's active connection with the road's affairs. Mr. Hill, in talking to friends in December last, said that he had made up his mind to retire; that he was 68 years old, and felt that he had earned a rest. He meant, he said, to give up the Great Northern Presidency and to go abroad for a year, so that he could not again be drawn into active railroad affairs against his will. He added, however, that he would make no such announcement, because something might turn up to change his plans. That something, his friends agreed, came in the shape of the attack by the Attorney General of Minesota on the validity of the proposed new stock issue, and the subsequent injunction proceedings which were dissolved only last week.

With this difficulty out of the way, the Great Northern, along with other railroads of the country, still has to face the questions arising from the movement for closer control of the transportation lines by the Government. This is a situation in which Mr. Hill's friends would be loath to see him leave the position of head of the Great Northern. Mr. Hill, it is thought, is as little inclined to give up the task now as his friends are to have him do so.

A TOUR TO SEE WASHINGTON.

EX-GOV. GARVIN MARRIED.

Weds Miss Sarah E. Tomlinson, His Blind Protegee.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 2.—Ex-Gov. Garvin of Cumberland, and Miss Sarah Erma Tomlinson, were married at Lonsdale to-night.

The bride, who is many years his junior and a graduate of the Perkins Institution for the Blind, Boston, was his protégé from childhood.

AMERICANS IN PERIL.

Italian and French Steamers Crash Together Near Naples.

NAPLES, April 2.—The Italian steamer Regina Margherita, which left here to-day for Palermo, came into violent collision with the French steamer Senegal and suffered serious damage.

The Italian steamer was taking a number of passengers, including many Americans, to Palermo, but fortunately no one was injured. She was towed back to this port.

SAN FRANCISCO DARK.

Powerhouse Burns—Hall of Justice Is Closely Guarded.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—The electric power house at Second and Georges Streets is burning and several sections of the city are in darkness.

Guards have been thrown around the temporary Hall of Justice and bail is being refused to prisoners, the police refusing to permit any person to enter or leave the building. The new business section of the city is without lights.

WARNING TO KIDNAPPERS.

Jersey House Provides 40 Years' Imprisonment for the Crime.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, April 2.—Assemblyman Buck's bill making the penalty for kidnapping forty years in State prison was passed in the House to-day. Speaking of the bill, Mr. Buck said that the heartrending grief of Dr. Marvin over the loss of his little boy should induce the House to guard against a similar offense in New Jersey by making the penalty as severe as possible. No votes were recorded against the measure.

The House also passed the Jess bill forbidding the sale of cigarettes to children under sixteen.

KILLED BY FAST FREIGHT.

Team Backed Into Train When Gate Was Lowered in Front of It.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 2.—Hurled from his wagon at the Erie Railroad crossing here by a fast freight and thrown upon the pilot of an engine, John Thomson was rendered unconscious for fifty-seven hours and died to-day. It is believed that Thomson would have been able to get across the tracks in safety had it not been for the fact that the gate was lowered in front of his spirited team.

This caused the horses to back into the train.

McVEY TO BE AN UNDERTAKER.

Master of the Larchmont Chooses a New Vocation.

HARTFORD, April 2.—That Capt. McVey, master of the steamer Larchmont, which was sunk in Block Island Sound on Feb. 12, intends to retire from steamboating and go into the undertaking business, is the report that has been stirring the steamboat men of this vicinity for several days.

It is said that he has selected New Haven as the scene of his activity. His choice of a new vocation has provoked a great deal of criticism.

Surprise is being expressed that Capt. McVay has selected an occupation which will serve as a constant reminder of the disaster which resulted in the loss of over 150 lives.

"PLEASE GO AWAY, BURGLAR."

"Certainly, If You Say So," Was the Polite Response.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., April 2.—The burglars who are making entries here at the rate of one every other night are evidently of an obliging disposition. Last night, when they were working at the window of Miss Adeline Rundle, daughter of A. A. Rundle, the young woman called out:

"Go away! Oh, please go away, burglar!"

A voice from outside replied calmly:

"Certainly, Madam, if you say so."

Apparently the burglars went away at once, for the only things left to show that they had been near the house were marks on Miss Rundle's window sill and fragments of a knife.

Later in the evening the home of W. F. H. Lockwood was entered by means of one of the lower windows. The thieves evidently proceeded through the house leisurely. They helped themselves to whisky, cigars, and cigarettes. The only articles of value which they took were Mr. Lockwood's sealskin overcoat and a buck coat. They left no clue behind them.

They also attempted to get into the homes of Cornell Woolley, a New York importer, and Edward Holly.

CAUGHT IN SEA UPHEAVAL.

Leyland Liner Swept by a Gigantic Wave Following Earthquake.

The Leyland liner Planet Neptune, in yesterday from Montevideo, was almost engulfed off the Brazilian coast by a gigantic wave, caused, according to the best belief of Capt. T. Timmis, the vessel's veteran skipper, by a submarine earthquake.

The vessel was several hundred miles off Rio Grande do Sul, on the southern coast of Brazil, on the evening of Feb. 26, when she had her thrilling experience. The seas were calm, when suddenly Chief Officer Brown, who was on the bridge, was almost thrown overboard by the sudden sinking of the vessel into a great hole of water.

A moment later a giant wave swept over the vessel catching Seaman Shalburg, the lookout, and throwing him against a stanchion, breaking his leg and otherwise injuring him. He will be a cripple for life. The wave broke over the superstructure, causing minor damage here and there, after which the seas again became calm and the liner proceeded on her voyage.

In the commotion following the dive of the Planet Neptune Capt. Timmis said the sea for hundreds of yards on all sides was churned into whitewash.

ROOSEVELT HITS AT HARRIMAN

Railroad Man's Tale of Appeal for a $200,000 Campaign Fund Called Untrue.

SECRET LETTERS ARE OUT

Harriman Makes Rejoinder, Declaring the President Does Him Injustice.

SENATOR DEPEW INVOLVED

Ambassadorship to Paris and Senatorship Figured in the Big Fund.

PARKER ASKS AN INQUIRY

Former Democratic Candidate Says the Purpose of Centralization Would Be Shown.

President Roosevelt and E. H. Harriman have come to a clash on an issue of veracity. It was precipitated by the publication in The New York World yesterday morning of a letter from Mr. Harriman to Sidney Webster, the original notes of which were stolen from the office of Mr. Harriman.

In this letter Mr. Harriman said that in the campaign of 1904, at the request of Mr. Roosevelt, he raised a fund of $200,000, which was used to turn 50,000 votes to the Republican Party in New York State. Of this he gave $50,000. He raised the fund, he declared, on the assurance that Mr. Roosevelt would appoint Chauncey M. Depew as Ambassador to Paris, but afterward Mr. Roosevelt refused to carry out the agreement, and so Mr. Depew was again sent to the Senate.

Mr. Roosevelt, in reply, gave out a letter which he wrote last Fall to Representative James S. Sherman, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee. Mr. Sherman had sought a contribution from Mr. Harriman, and Mr. Harriman had said he would not give it, citing as his reasons the statements given in the letter to Mr. Webster. Mr. Roosevelt, in his letter, said: "Any such statement is a deliberate and willful untruth—by rights it should be characterized by an even shorter and more ugly word."

Correspondence that passed between Mr. Harriman and Mr. Roosevelt in 1904 was included in the letter to Mr. Sherman. In one letter Mr. Roosevelt admitted a conference with Mr. Harriman before the 1904 election and said: "If you remember, when you were down here you and I were so much interested in certain of the New York political developments that I hardly, if at all, touched on governmental matters." In one of Mr. Harriman's letters he said that it would show "the attitude of the organization."

It was shown that Mr. Sherman reported to Mr. Roosevelt that Mr. Harriman had said he was willing to let the Hearst men win the New York election of 1906, as they were "crooks" and he could buy them. Mr. Harriman was also quoted as saying that he could buy State Legislatures, could buy Congress, and could buy the courts if necessary.

Mr. Harriman in a statement last night said that Mr. Roosevelt had suppressed a part of one of his letters, which would have shown that he went to Washington at the request of the President to talk over the situation in New York.

It was declared yesterday upon good authority that the $200,000 fund which Mr. Harriman raised for the 1904 campaign was contributed by three individuals besides himself. The names as given are J. P. Morgan, H. McK. Twombly, William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., and E. H. Harriman, $50,000 each. Senator Depew said he had heard about the fund.

Alton B. Parker, who, as the Democratic candidate for President in 1904, had charged that big contributions had been made by financial interests to elect Mr. Roosevelt, last night demanded an investigation of the whole subject. He said it would show the reason for the campaign against States' rights by alleged reformers.

PRESIDENT GIVES THE LIE.

Makes Public Letters Giving His Version of Harriman Incidents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The retort customary was promptly forthcoming from the White House to-day when a letter of E. H. Harriman to Sidney Webster was called to the President's attention. In that letter Mr. Harriman said that in 1904 Mr. Roosevelt had asked him to raise $200,000 for the New York State fight and had promised to appoint Mr. Depew Ambassador to France in return. Mr. Harriman was duly branded as a liar by the President, taking his place in line with Alton B. Parker, Henry M. Whitney, Henry W. Bowen, John F. Wallace, George O. Shields, Gaaton Richard, and a few others.

That Mr. Roosevelt did not regret the incident was shown when he said to some newspaper men:

"I feel particularly fortunate that I have been attacked within the last few days by both ex-Senator Burton and Mr. Harriman."

Came to a Clash Last Fall.

It appears that Mr. Harriman's election to the Ananias Club really took place last Fall, in the Congressional campaign. It was merely the public announcement of that fact which was deferred until today. It had been expected in Washington for some time that some such fate would sooner or later befall Mr. Harriman, and when the Webster letter appeared this morning that expectation became a certainty.

Inquiry at the White House brought out the information that the expected denunciation would be ready at 1 o'clock. Sure enough at that time the formal announcement of Mr. Harriman's entry into the "Liars' Club" was made by the President himself. He told a large assembly of newspaper men that he had written two letters last October to Representative James S. Sherman of New York, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, which explained themselves and covered all he desired to say on the subject of the Harriman charges.

The only thing further which he cared to say was this, which he thereupon dictated:

"After writing these letters to Congressman Sherman the President was assured that Mr. Harriman had not made the statements which Mr. Sherman credited him with making. Inasmuch as these same statements appear in major part in the letter of Mr. Harriman's now published, the President deems it proper that the letters he sent to Congressman Sherman last October shall now themselves be made public."

Harriman Defied the President.

From the President's letters to Mr. Sherman and his statement, a remarkable political story could be pieced out, although some very important points were not made clear. It appears that Mr. Sherman, in his capacity as Chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, sought the financial assistance of Mr. Harriman. Mr. Harriman refused, not in plain simple terms, but with contumelious language about Mr. Roosevelt. The President refers to what "he (Harriman) said to you, (Sherman.)" Sherman thereupon came to Washington and reported this irreverent and reprehensible refusal of Mr. Harriman to Mr. Roosevelt, evidently giving in detail the derogatory expressions of opinion entertained by Harriman.

Upon this full report of the rebellion of Mr. Harriman, the President told Mr. Sherman that he had some letters in his files which would show Mr. Harriman up. In due time he found these letters, and thereupon he wrote to Mr. Sherman quoting some of them, to prove his opinion of Harriman's veracity—or lack of it.

The narrative as given in this letter to Mr. Sherman, now made public, there suffers a hiatus. It does not disclose what Mr. Sherman did. He was authorized to show the letter to Mr. Harriman. Maybe he did and maybe he didn't. The statement dictated by the President this morning announces that after the letter to Mr. Sherman had been written he was assured that Mr. Harriman did not make the statements attributed to him.

Harriman Was Once Welcome.

The letters to Mr. Sherman reveal clearly, however, that there was a time when Harriman was on terms of confidence at the White House. Mr. Roosevelt publicly admits that he was in the habit of consulting the Union Pacific reorganizer intimately upon matters of Government. He even disclosed to Mr. Harriman in advance matters upon which he was to address Congress in his annual messages. The burden of his letters to Mr. Sherman is that it was on some of these governmental subjects that he desired to consult Mr. Harriman in the Fall of 1904, and not on New York State politics. He quotes a letter of Oct. 14, 1904, to Mr. Harriman to show that he even did not care whether Mr. Harriman came down then or not.

Here is another important hiatus. Mr. Roosevelt's narrative skips to the end of November, saying nothing more about a visit from Mr. Harriman, and so far as any direct reference to such a visit is concerned there is nothing to show that it was made, except some singular sentences in a letter of Nov. 30 to Mr. Harriman, one of which says:

"But if you remember, when you were here, both you and I were so interested in certain New York political developments that I hardly, if at all, touched upon Governmental matters."

That is to say, Mr. Harriman did come here before the election, and they did talk about the New York situation. So Mr. Harriman said in the letter to Mr. Webster. Upon that one point Messrs. Harriman and Roosevelt are agreed And all the charges of Mr. Harriman made to Mr. Webster in the letter which calls forth all this denunciation were connected with the discussion of the New York situation, which Mr. Roosevelt admits they had.

Commerce Board's Inquiry.

No doubt Mr. Harriman is a very wicked man. The Alton deal, about which he told the Inter-State Commerce Commission so nonchalantly, has been cited many times in proof of his willingness to do desperate things. The Commerce Commission has been very busy finding out things about Mr. Harriman since last Autumn. This work began just about the time Mr. Roosevelt wrote these letters to Mr. Sherman.

The explanation of this coincidence is simple. The report of Mr. Sherman as to Mr. Harriman disclosed to the President the true character of Mr. Harriman and the imperative necessity of revealing his iniquity to the country. The machinery of Government thereupon began to turn on this task. The Beef Trust, the Smelter Trust, the Lead Trust, all the trusts, even the Sugar Trust and its extraordinary doings in Philadelphia, were of no importance compared with this showing up of Mr. Harriman.

Some other points in the President's statement are not to be overlooked. In a quotation from a letter written by Mr. Harriman it is shown that he assumed to speak for the Republican "organization" of New York. It is also shown that Mr. Sherman reported that Mr. Harriman had said he was willing that the Hearst men should win, as they were "crooks," and he could buy them; and he had also said he could buy Legislatures, Congress, and the courts.

The letters to Representative Sherman, as given out by Mr. Roosevelt, are as follows:

MR. ROOSEVELT'S LETTER.

October 8, 1906.

My Dear Sherman: Since you left this morning I succeeded in getting hold of the letters to which I referred, and I send you a copy of Gov. Odell's letter to me of Dec. 10, 1904. As I am entirely willing that you should show this letter to Mr. E. H. Harriman, I shall begin by repeating what you told me he said to you on the occasion last week when you went to ask him for a contribution to the campaign.

You informed me that he then expressed great dissatisfaction with me and said, in effect, that so long as I was at the head of the Republican Party or as it was dominated by the policies which I advocate and represent he would not support it, and was quite indifferent whether Hearst beat Hughes or not, whether the Democrats carried Congress or not.

Deliberate and Willful Untruth.

He gave as a reason for his personal dislike of me partly my determination to have the railroads supervised, and partly the alleged fact that after promising him to appoint Depew Ambassador to France I failed to do it and, I understood you to say, that he alleged that I made this promise at a time when he had come down to see me in Washington, when I requested him to raise $250,000 for the Republican Presidential campaign which was then on.

Any such statement is a deliberate and willful untruth; by rights it should be characterized by an even shorter and more ugly word.

I never requested Mr. Harriman to raise a dollar for the Presidential campaign of 1904. On the contrary, our communications as regards the campaign related exclusively to the fight being made against Mr. Higgins for Governor of New York. Mr. Harriman being immensely interested in the success of Mr. Higgins because he regarded the attack on Higgins as being really an attack on him, Mr. Harriman, and on his friend, Gov. Odell, and he was concerned only in getting me to tell Mr. Cortelyou to aid Mr. Higgins so far as he could, which I gladly did.

Talked About Depew and Hyde.

He also (I think more than once) urged me to promise to make Senator Depew Ambassador to France, giving me in detail the reasons why this would help Gov. Odell by pleasing certain big financial interests. I informed him that I did not believe it would be possible for me to appoint Mr. Depew, and furthermore expressed my surprise at his saying that the men representing the big financial interests of New York wished that appointment made, inasmuch as a number of them had written to me asking that the same place be given to Mr. Hyde, and that, as a matter of fact, while I was not prepared to announce any decision, I doubted whether I could appoint either Mr. Depew or Mr. Hyde to the place.

As soon as Mr. Harriman heard that Mr. Hyde was a candidate and had the names of his backers he hastily said that he did not wish to be understood as antagonizing Mr. Hyde and would be quite willing to support him; and though I understood that he still preferred Mr. Depew, he left me strongly under the impression that he would be almost as well satisfied with Mr. Hyde, and was much discontented at my informing him so positively, not once but repeatedly, that I did not think that I should be able to appoint either.

Harriman-Roosevelt Letters.

His and my letters now before me of the Fall of 1904 run as follows: On his return from spending the Summer in Europe on Sept. 20, he wrote me stating that if I thought it desirable he would come to see me at any time, either then or later (he had been, as you remember, a delegate to the Republican National Convention, having voted for my nomination.) On Sept. 23 I answered this letter, saying:

"At present there is nothing for me to see you about, though there were one or two points in my letter of acceptance which I should have liked to discuss with you before putting it out."

Oct. 10 I wrote him:

"In view of the trouble over the State ticket in New York, I should much like to have a few words with you. Do you think you can get down here within a few days and take either lunch or dinner with me?"

The trouble I spoke of had reference to the bolt against Higgins—that is, in reality, against Mr. Harriman and Mr. Harriman's friend, Gov. Odell.

Harriman Feared for Higgins.

A reference to the files of the New York papers at that time will show that there was a very extensive bolt against Mr. Higgins, upon the ground that Gov. Odell had nominated him, and that he had in some matter favored Mr. Harriman overmuch—neither ground, in my judgment, being tenable. Mr. Harriman's backing of Gov. Odell and extreme anxiety that he should win out by securing Higgins's election was a matter of common notoriety, and mentioned in all the papers, notably in The New York Sun. On Oct. 12 Mr. Harriman wrote me:

"I am giving a very large part of my time to correcting the trouble here, and intend to do so if any effort on my part can accomplish it. * * * I will take occasion the first of next week to run down to see you, and think by that time the conditions will be very much improved."

You and I Are Practical Men.

After receiving this letter I wrote Mr. Harriman the following letter, which I give in full:

"Personal. Oct. 14, 1904.

"My Dear Mr. Harriman: A suggestion has come to me in a roundabout way that you do not think it wise to come on to see me in these closing weeks of the campaign, but that you are reluctant to refuse, inasmuch as I have asked you.

"Now, my dear Sir, you and I are practical men, and you are on the ground and know the conditions better than I do. If you think there is any danger of your visit to me causing trouble, or if you think there is nothing special I should be informed about, or no matter in which I could give aid, why, of course, give up the visit for the time being, and then a few weeks hence, before I write my message, I shall get you to come down to discuss certain Government matters not connected with the campaign.

"With great regard, sincerely yours."

You will see that this letter is absolutely incompatible with any theory that I was asking Mr. Harriman to come down to see me in my own interest, or intended to make any request of any kind for help from him. On the contrary, all I was concerned with in seeing him was to know if I could be of help in securing the election of Mr. Higgins—a man for whom I had the highest respect, and who I believed would be, as in fact he has been, a most admirable Governor.

Harriman Wrote About Railroads.

Moreover, the following letter will show that Mr. Harriman did not have in his mind any idea of my asking him to collect money, and that, on the contrary, what he was concerned about in connection with my letter to him was the allusion I made to the fact that I would like to see him, before I wrote my message, to discuss certain Government matters not connected with the campaign. His letter, which is of Nov. 30, runs as follows:

"Dear Mr. President:

"I just have had a telephone talk with Mr. Loeb, and requested him to give you a message from me.

"I drew his attention to the last paragraph of your leter to me of Oct. 14 last, and explained that of course I did not want to make a trip to Washington unless it should be necessary; that the only matter I knew of, and about which I had any apprehension, and which might be referred to in your coming message to Congress, is that regarding the Inter-State Commerce Commission and what the attitude of the railroads should be toward it.

"I have communications from many conservative men in the West, asking me to take the matter up, they having, which I have not, information as to what you propose to say in your message on that subject, and I am very apprehensive about it.

"Mr. Loeb stated he believed that that part of the message could be sent to me, and I hope that he will do so. I sincerely believe it would be best for all interests that no reference be made to the subject, and in any event, if referred to, in such a way as not to bring about increased agitation. It is, as you well know, the conservative element, and the one on which we all rely, which is the most seldom heard from. Yours sincerely."

Talked of New York Politics.

This letter to me was crossed by one from me, which reads as follows:

"Strictly personal.

"November 30, 1904.

"My Dear Mr. Harriman: Mr. Loeb tells me that you called me up to-day on the telephone and recalled my letter to you of Oct. 14, in which I spoke to you of a desire to see you before sending in my message, as I wanted to go over with you certain governmental matters, and you added that you had heard that I had referred to the Inter-State Commerce Commission; that you regretted this and wished I had left it out. In writing to you I had in view, especially, certain matters connected with currency legislation, and had not thought of discussing railroad matters with you.

"However, if it had occurred to me, I should have been delighted to do so; but if you remember when you were down here both you and I were so interested in certain of the New York political developments that I hardly, if at all, touched on governmental matters.

Justified His Railroad Policy.

"As regards what I have said in my message about the Inter-State Commerce Commission, while, as I say, I should have been delighted to go over it with you, I must also frankly say that my mind was definitely made up. Certain revelations connected with the investigation of the Beef Trust caused me to write the paragraph in question.

"I went with extreme care over the information in possession of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and of the Bureau of Corporations before writing it. I then went over the written paragraph again and again with Paul Morton, who is of all my Cabinet the man most familiar with railroad matters, of course, and with Root, Knox, Taft, and Moody.

"It is a matter I had been carefully considering for two years, and had been gradually though reluctantly coming to the conclusion that it is unwise and unsafe from every standpoint to leave the question of rebates where it now is, and to fail to give the Inter-State Commerce Commission additional power of an effective kind in regulating these rates.

Talked Little but Politics.

"Let me repeat that I did not have this question in mind when I asked you to come down, but that I should most gladly have talked it over with you if it had occurred to me to do so; but, as a matter of fact, as you will remember, when you did come down to see me you and I were both so engaged in the New York political situation that we talked of little else; and finally that the position I have taken has not been taken lightly, but after thinking over the matter and looking at it from different standpoints for at least two years, and after the most careful consultation with Morton, Taft, Moody, Knox, and Root, as to the exact phraseology I should use.

"I do not send you a copy simply because I have given no one a copy, not even the men above mentioned. It is impossible if I give out copies of any portion of my message to prevent the message from being known in advance; and the three press associations who now have the message are under a heavy penalty not to disclose a word of it before the appointed time.

"Sincerely yours."

Protest Against Rate Plan.

On Dec. 2 he wrote me the following letter on the same subject:

"Dear Mr. President: "Dec. 2, 1904.

"Thank you for your favor of the 30th. It was natural for me to suppose that railroad matters would be included in any discussion you and I might have before writing your message. I am of the opinion that an effective Inter-State Commerce Commission could regulate the matter of rebates and absolutely prevent the same, without any additional power of any kind, and, as you say, Paul Morton is more familiar with such matters than any one else in your Cabinet, and I believe he will agree with me in this. I fear there has been a lack of co-operation.

"During the enormous development of the last four years the railroads have found it very hard to keep pace with the requirements imposed upon them, and the so-called surplus earnings, as well as additional capital, have been devoted to providing additional facilities and the bettering and enlarging of their properties, so as to give the increased and better service required of them.

"This work of betterment and enlargement must go on, and is all-important for the proper development of all sections of the country. There is little doubt that during the next decade every single-track railroad in the country will have to be double-tracked and provide enlarged terminal and other facilities, and any move that will tend to cripple them financially would be detrimental to all interests over the whole country.

"I beg that you will pardon my not signing this personally, as I have to leave to catch my train for Arden, and have asked my secretary to sign it for me. Yours sincerely."

Talked Freely with Financiers.

I was unable to agree with Mr. Harriman's views on the matter, and left my message unchanged as regards the Inter-State commerce law.

(The rough draft of this portion of the message was completed in October, before the election.)

I had always discussed with absolute freedom all my proposed moves in the trust and labor matters with the representatives of the big combinations or big railroads, as well as with the leaders of the labor men, of the farmers' organizations, the shippers' organizations, and the like—that is, I had as freely seen and communicated with Mr. Harriman, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Hill, and other railroad men, as I had seen and communicated with Mr. Gompers, Mr. Keefe, Mr. Morrissey, Mr. Morrison, and other labor leaders.

Mr. Harriman had, like most of the big railroad men, always written me very strongly protesting against my proposed course as regards the supervision and control over big combinations, and especially over the big railroads—in a letter of his of Aug. 19, 1902, for instance, he expressed the fear that a panic would follow my proposed action.

Harriman Indorsed J. H. Hyde.

It will be seen that the above correspondence is entirely incompatible with what Mr. Harriman now, as you inform me, alleges as to my having asked him to secure money or to subscribe money for the Presidential campaign. As for the Depew matter, he professed throughout to be acting in the interest of Gov. Odell, and, though Gov. Odell had been anxious that Mr. Depew should be nominated as Ambassador to France at a time when he was supporting Gov. Black for Senator, he had changed his mind shortly after the last letter to me, above quoted, from Mr. Harriman, and on Dec. 10 wrote me the letter I inclose, which reads in part as follows:

"My Dear Mr. President:

"A great many of your friends here in New York would be very much delighted and pleased if you could find it possible to appoint Mr. James H. Hyde as Minister to France. * * * Large business interests have given to him splendid executive abilities, and his association with so many prominent business men would be fitting recognition of the effective work done by them in the last campaign.

"In addition to this he has behind him, I am sure, the approval of Senator Platt and Senator Depew, and, so far as I can speak for the organization, I believe his appointment would be, without question, more satisfactory than any that could be made from New York at the present time.

"Personally, I should appreciate your favorable consideration of this suggestion almost beyond anything else you could do for me. If you so desire I shall be glad to come down to Washington and talk with you about it, but I believe there are others who are close to you and who feel just as I do, and I thought therefore that this letter would be sufficient as showing the attitude of the organization and myself personally upon this important appointment."

As you know, I was obliged to refuse the request of the New York financiers and of the Republican organizations of the State and city, not deeming it proper to appoint Mr. Hyde to the position he sought.

Could Buy Laws, Said Harriman.

So much for what Mr. Harriman said about me personally. Far more important are the additional remarks he made to you, as you inform me, when you asked him if he thought it was well to see Hearstism and the like triumphant over the Republican Party. You inform me that he told you that he did not care in the least, because those people were crooks, and he could buy them; that whenever he wanted legislation from a State Legislature he could buy it; that he "could buy Congress," and that, if necessary, "he could buy the judiciary."

This was doubtless said partly in boastful cynicism and partly in a mere burst of bad temper because of his objection to the Inter-State commerce law and to my actions as President. But it shows a cynicism and deep-seated corruption which make the man uttering such sentiments, and boasting, no matter how falsely, of this power to perform such crimes, at least as undesirable a citizen as Debs, or Moyer, or Haywood.

It is because we have capitalists capable of uttering such sentiments and capable of acting on them, that there is strength behind sinister agitators of the Hearst type. The wealthy corruptionist, and the demagogue who excites, in the press or on the stump, in office or out of office, class against class, and appeals to the basest passions of the human soul, are fundamentally alike and are equally enemies of the Republic.

Secretary Root Was Horrified.

I was horrified, as was Root, when you told us to-day what Harriman had said to you. As I say, if you meet him you are entirely welcome to show him this letter, although, of course, it must not be made public unless required by some reason of public policy, and then only after my consent has first been obtained. Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Hon. J. S. Sherman, St. James Building, 1,133 Broadway, New York.

The second letter to Mr. Sherman is as follows:

The White House,
Washington, Oct. 12, 1906.

My Dear Mr. Sherman:

I would like to make an addendum to my letter to you of the other day. Both Mr. Cortelyou and Mr. Bliss, as soon as they heard that Hyde's name had been suggested for Ambassador, protested to me against the appointment. Sincerely yours, THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Hon. James S. Sherman, Chairman Republican Congressional Committee, St. James Building, New York, N. Y.

The President, after furnishing the letters to the press, dictated the following statement:

"After writing these letters to Congressman Sherman the President was assured that Mr. Harriman had not made the statements which Mr. Sherman credited him with making. Inasmuch as the same statements appear, in the major part, in the letter of Mr. Harriman now published, the President deems it proper that the letters he sent to Congressman Sherman last October shall now themselves be made public."

LETTER CORRECT—HARRIMAN.

Written When His Relations with Roosevelt Were Pleasant.

E. H. Harriman, after midnight this morning, gave out the following statement in response to the statement made public by President Roosevelt at Washington today:

"For many years I have maintained an intimate, confidential correspondence with my friend, Mr. Sidney Webster. What I wrote him and what he wrote me was, of course, intended for our eyes alone. In the course of a letter which he wrote me in December, 1905, he warned me against being drawn into politics, and questioned whether I had any political or party instinct united to what he was pleased to call my business instinct.

"This drew from me the reply to Mr. Webster's inquiry, which, in a substantially correct form, has been stolen and published. This letter was written on Jan. 21, 1906, at a time when no one could doubt the cordiality of my relations with the President.

"About ten days ago I was told that a discharged stenographer was trying to sell to some newspaper a reproduction from his notes of one of my private letters. I could hardly believe that any matter so obtained would be accepted or published, yet I made every effort to prevent it.

"When I learned late yesterday afternoon that a New York newspaper had a transcript of these notes, I notified the publisher at once of the facts, and urged upon his attention the gross outrage that the publication of it under such circumstances would involve.

"While deploring, of course, that the sacredness of a private correspondence should thus be violated, I cannot withdraw anything in the letter.

Calls Roosevelt Unjust.

"I have read the President's statement. I am most anxious to treat him and his other utterances with the consideration due to the high office which he holds. Nevertheless, I feel bound to call attention to certain things in regard to which he does me injustice.

"In his letter to Mr. Sherman he clearly seeks to convey the impression that the personal interview with him in the Fall of 1904 was of my seeking and not his. He says:

"'His [Harriman's] and my letters now before me in the Fall of 1904 run as follows: "On his return from spending the Summer in Europe, on Sept. 20, he wrote me stating that if I thought it desirable he would come to see me at any time, then or later." [He had been, as you remember, a delegate to the Republican National Convention, having voted for my nomination.] On Sept. 23, I answered this letter, saying: "At present there is nothing for me to see you about, though there were one or two points in my letter of acceptance which I would like to have discussed with you before putting it out."'

"Let me present the facts: On June 20, 1904, the President wrote me the following letter, which he does not include in the correspondence published today. It reached me in Europe:

"'White House,
Washington, June 20, 1904.

"'Personal.

"'My Dear Mr. Harriman—I thank you for your letter. As soon as you come home I shall want to see you. The fight will doubtless be hot then. It has been a real pleasure to see you this year.

"'Very truly yours,

"'THEODORE ROOSEVELT.'"

"In reply to this I wrote him on my return from Europe the letter of Sept. 20, the opening sentences of which he eliminated, in his publication:

"'New York, Sept. 20, 1904.

"'Dear Mr. President: I was very glad to receive your note of June 29 last while I was in Europe. I am now getting matters that accumulated during my absence somewhat cleared up, and if you think desirable will go to see you at any time, either now or later. It seems to me that the situation could not be in better shape.

"'Yours sincerely,

"'E. H. HARRIMAN.'

"'To the President, Washington, D. C.'

"Then followed a series of invitations from the White House, both from the President and his Secretary, urging me to go to Washington. On Oct. 10 the President wrote: 'In view of the trouble over the State ticket in New York I should like to have a few words with you. Do you think you can get down here within a few days and take either luncheon or dinner with me?'

"On Oct. 14 he wrote:

"'My Dear Mr. Harriman—A suggestion has come to me in a roundabout way that you do not think it wise to come to see me in these closing weeks of the campaign, but that you are reluctant to refuse inasmuch as I have asked you.'"

"A funeral in my family prevented a prompt response to the President's repeated invitation, but finally, about Oct. 20, I was able to go to Washington and see him.

Difference of Recollection.

"There is some difference of recollection as to what transpired at that interview.

"Fortunately, the President himself in his 'strictly personal' letter to me of Nov. 30, throws some light upon what did take place. He says:

"'If you remember, when you were down here, both you and I were so interested in certain of the New York political developments that I hardly, if at all, touched on Governmental matters.'

"Again in the same letter he says: 'As a matter of fact, as you will remember, when you did come down to see me you and I were both so engaged in the New York political situation that we talked of little else.'

"The invitation of Oct. 10 bade me to the White House to have a few words with the President 'in view of the trouble over the State ticket in New York.'

"I had replied on Oct. 12: 'I am giving a very large part of my time to correcting the trouble here, and intend to do so, if any effort on my part can accomplish it. I will take occasion the first of next week to run down to see you, and I think by that time the conditions will be very much improved.'

"Whether I was seeking his aid to secure the adherence of the State of New York to the State ticket, or he was seeking mine, is proved or disproved by this correspondence, and I cheerfully submit to the public whether the inference clearly suggested by the President is the proper one. I did not so understand it from the invitation nor from the interview.

Not for "Personal Benefit."

"The President dwells at length on the assertion that he did not ask me to contribute 'for the Presidential campaign' or 'for his personal benefit.'

"I do not deny this statement, nor is it at all inconsistent with the assertions I made in the Webster letter respecting the interview. Therein I distinctly said: 'The President sent me a request to go to Washington to confer upon the political condition in New York State.

"I complied, and he told me he understood the campaign could not be successfully carried on without sufficient money and asked if I would help them in raising the necessary funds, as the National Committee, under Chairman Cortelyou, had utterly failed of obtaining them and there was a large amount due from them to the New York State Committee.'

"If this means anything whatever, it must be that he was urging me to help the New York State Committee and not the National Committee or the Presidential campaign, except so far as the success of the State ticket in New York would contribute to the National ticket.

"What the condition of the finances of the New York State Committee and the National Republican Committee at that time was is well known to every one.

In Debt to State Committee.

"That the National Committee did owe the State Committee, and that the State Committee was in financial straits, is notorious. I was not a political manager. I was asked to go to Washington by the President in the interests of the State ticket. I could help to raise money. That I did help in this regard; that I did raise funds immediately upon my return from the interview with the President, is undeniable, and to this fund I contributed $50,000.

"My interview with the President covered a wide range of subjects connected with the New York State campaign, and I did not pretend to go over the whole matter in the Webster letter.

"The President's letter of Oct. 14 and his comment thereon are interesting. In that letter he suggested that I might think there was some danger in my visiting him during the closing weeks of the campaign and suggested that if I thought so the visit be postponed until after the election, when he would ask me to 'discuss certain Government matters not connected with the campaign.'

Here were two distinct invitations to discuss two different subjects. I could see no danger in visiting him to discuss New York politics before the election, and therefore went, and discussed that subject alone, and after the election took up the other subject for consideration with him.

"I think if what concerned me as the object of the visit had been the Government's relation to the railroads the interview would certainly not have been entirely devoted to politics.

"I am not responsible for what Mr. Sherman may have said to the President with reference to the conversation he had with me.

"All that I have to say is that I did not meet his urgent requests that I contribute to his campaign fund and that the statements alleged to have been attributed to me by him were false. The President was assured of this fact by a mutual friend who was present at the interview."

Sidney Webster, to whom the letter was written by Mr. Harriman, the publication of which caused the storm to break, came back to New York late yesterday afternoon from Newport and went to his home, at 245 East Seventeenth Street. Soon after Mr. Harriman was seen to enter Mr. Webster's house, and did not come out again until after 7 o'clock. Mr. Webster would not say anything either about the conference or about the subject matter of Mr. Harriman's letter.

WHAT HARRIMAN WROTE.

The Letter to Sidney Webster Which Started the Fuss.

Mr. Harriman's letter to Mr. Webster—which Mr. Harriman says was stolen from his office—as published in The New York World yesterday, is as follows:

"Mr. Sidney Webster, No. 245 East Seventeenth Street, New York.

"Dear Sir: I am glad to see that you are in town, and hope soon to have an opportunity of talking matters over with you.

"I had printed copies of the testimony sent you, in hopes that you would, after reading them, give me some idea of where I stand, for I confess that I feel somewhat at sea in the whole insurance matter. The trouble originated in my allowing myself to be drawn into other people's affairs, and partly from a desire to help them and at their request. I seemed to be like the fellow who got in between the man and his wife in their quarrel.

"As to my political instincts, to which you refer in your letter of Dec. 13, I am quite sure I have none, and my being made at all prominent in the political situation is entirely due to President Roosevelt, and because of my taking an active part in the Autumn of 1904, at his request, and his taking advantage of conditions then created to further his own interests. If it had been a premeditated plot it could not have been better started or carried out.

Roosevelt Asked Me to Raise Funds.

"About a week before the election in the Autumn of 1904, when it looked certain that the State ticket would go Democratic, and was doubtful as to Roosevelt himself, he, the President, sent me a request to go to Washington to confer upon the political conditions in New York State. I complied, and he told me he understood the campaign could not be successfully carried on without sufficient money, and asked if I would help them in raising the necessary funds, as the National Committee, under control of Chairman Cortelyou, had utterly failed of obtaining them, and there was a large amount due from them to the New York State Committee.

I explained to him that I understood the difficulty here was mainly caused by the up-State leaders being unwilling to support Depew for re-election as United States Senator; that if he, Depew, could be taken care of in some other way I thought matters could be adjusted and the different contending elements in the party brought into close alliance again. We talked over what could be done for Depew, and, finally, he agreed that if found necessary he would appoint him as Ambassador to Paris.

$200,000 Changed 50,000 Votes.

With full belief that he, the President, would keep this agreement, I came back to New York, sent for Treasurer Bliss, who told me that I was their last hope, and that they had exhausted every other resource. In his presence I called up an intimate friend of Senator Depew, told him that it was necessary in order to carry New York State that $200,000 should be raised at once, and if he would help I would subscribe $50,000. After a few words over the telephone the gentleman said he would let me know, which he did probably in three or four hours, with the result that the whole amount, including my subscription, had been raised.

The checks were given to Treasurer Bliss, who took them to Chairman Cortelyou. If there were any among them of life insurance companies, or any other like organizations, of course Cortelyou must have informed the President. I do not know who the subscribers were other than the friend of Depew, who was an individual. This amount enabled the New York State Committee to continue its work, with the result that at least 50,000 votes were turned in the City of New York alone, making a difference of 100,000 votes in the general result.

There are between 2,200 and 2,300 districts in Greater New York, and in a campaign such as that the expenditure of, say, $50 in each district for campaign purposes, not including the watchers on election day, would take more than $100,000.

How Depew Went Back to the Senate

Some time in December, 1904, on my way from Virginia to New York, I stopped and had a short talk with the President. He then told me that he did not think it necessary to appoint Depew as Ambassador to Paris, as agreed; in fact, favored him for the Senate. I had not expected that he was the one (sic) as to what would be necessary, but he arrogated that to himself, and I, of course, could say nothing further. After that I used what influence I could to have Depew returned to the Senate, as I considered there had been an implied obligation which should be lived up to.

This is the way I was brought to the surface in the political matters, as I had never before taken any active part, and had only done what I could as any private citizen might; so you see I was brought forward by Roosevelt in an attempt to help him, at his request, the same as I was in the insurance matter by Hyde and Ryan by their request for my help, and in the case of Ryan I probably would have dropped the matter after our first interview had it not been for my desire to save Belmont from taking a position for which he could have been criticised by the public press, as he was the one Ryan desired me to influence from opposing Morton for election as Chairman of the Equitable Board, and Belmont afterward thanked me for taking his part, as if he had voted against Morton in view of his local traction contentions with Mr. Ryan it would have been misconstrued.

The 3 Rs—Ryan, Roosevelt, Root.

Ryan's success in all his manipulations, traction deals, tobacco combination, manipulation of the State Trust Company into the Morton Trust Company, the Shoe and Leather Bank into the Western National Bank and then again into the Bank of Commerce—thus covering up his tracks—has been done by the adroit mind of Elihu Root, and this present situation has been brought about by a combination of circumstances which has brought together the Ryan, Root, Roosevelt element.

Where do I stand?

Yours sincerely, E. H. HARRIMAN.

FOUR MEN GAVE $200,000.

Harriman, Morgan, Twombly, and Vanderbilt Named as Donors.

From a wide variety of sources there came information yesterday lighting up the vista of politico-financial history opened by E. H. Harriman's letter to Sidney Webster.

Most interesting of all the developments was the assertion that the $200,000 contribution of which Mr. Harriman told as having been made to the Republican campaign fund through his efforts was contributed in equal shares of $50,000 each by Mr. Harriman himself, J. Pierpont Morgan, H. McKay Twombly, and William K. Vanderbilt, Sr. This statement was made in a quarter entirely conversant with the progress of the campaign of 1904, both in New York State and elsewhere, and it was accompanied by a circumstantial account of what happened between the middle of that October and the beginning of 1905 that was quite consistent with the outline which the Harriman letter to Mr. Webster set forth.

Mr. Harriman himself when asked last night whether the four men named were the contributors to his fund declined to make any comment one way or the other. Cornelius N. Bliss, who was then Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, also refused to talk for publication. Mr. Bliss's only comment was:

"There was a time when I appeared to be the only individual concerned in those matters. It is at least consoling to have other gentlemen now share some of the responsibility with me. But until I am appealed to by the principals, I see no reason why I should break my policy of silence."

Senator Depew Is Happy.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew was in an obviously happy mood over the episode when a reporter found him at the Grand Central Station yesterday noon.

"This certainly adds materially to the gayety of nations," the Senator said.

When asked about the particular statements contained in the letter to Mr. Webster, the Senator said:

"My knowledge of the $200,000 campaign fund was all gained after the occurrence to which Mr. Harriman refers. I knew nothing about it at the time, and it would be improper for me to mention names in any way. I may say, however, that the money did not come from corporations, neither from individuals whose corporation affiliations were such that they had anything to expect from the Administration in return. They were men of wealth, who necessarily had certain corporation connections, but these did not move them in contributing the money.

"So far as the mention of my name for the post of Ambassador to France is concerned, I will say positively that that matter was not broached to me until December, after the opposition to my re-election as Senator had crystallized. I heard nothing at all about it back at election time.

"I will not say through what source the suggestion came that I should take the post except that I was asked if I would not accept such an appointment and withdraw from the Senatorial contest. I replied that I would not consider it, that my whole training and inclination impelled me to continue my service as Senator, and that so far as I was concerned it was the Senatorship or nothing. Not long after that the opposition was withdrawn."

Ex-Gov. Frank Black wasn't saying anything yesterday.

"Whatever my inclinations might be," he told reporters who asked him about his withdrawal from the race against Depew in 1904, "the proprieties will allow me to say nothing."

The $200,000 Was Raised.

The one point that remained considerably in doubt yesterday so far as the contradictions between Mr. Harriman and President Roosevelt were concerned was whether or not Mr. Harriman undertook to raise his $200,000 fund specifically at the request of the President, as the letter to Mr. Webster indicated, or as a result of some ideas of his own touching the needs of the Republican campaign. That the money was raised and turned over to Treasurer Bliss of the National Committ-

The Opera Sale
WEBER PIANOS
A Letter Recently Received Which Emphasizes Its Great Importance.

THE opera season during which these pianos were used lasted but seventeen weeks. Nevertheless they are sold at marked reductions from their new prices.

That the Weber piano is capable of retaining its beautiful tone for almost half a century is shown by the following letter, the instrument referred to, No. 2035, having been found to be over 45 years old.

THE WEBER PIANO CO.

Gentlemen: I have in my possession a Piano No. 2035 made by Albert Weber. I am curious to know its age and the price paid for it. It is one of the sweetest toned instruments I have ever heard or used. . .
Yours very truly,

March 5, 1907. .....

Over sixty Weber Grand and Upright pianos used during the past season by the artists of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company are in this sale. The use which they have had, in comparison with the life of such pianos, is so slight that they might really be called new.

At the reduced prices at which they are sold, they are, therefore, the most pronounced piano values ever offered to the public.

Moderate monthly payments with interest added will be accepted

tee there was a general agreement by those who were in a position to know what went on in the 1904 campaign.

For an explanation of the circumstances that brought about the change of influential men from Platt's Depew for Senator, it is possible to go to the testimony taken in the Armstrong Committee's insurance investigation. Ex-Gov. Odell testified that in August, 1904, he brought suit against the Mercantile Trust Company, the largest of the subsidiary institutions of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, to recover the losses that he had suffered in the United States Shipbuilding Company investment. In September and October, said he, there were some meetings between himself and James H. Hyde, then Vice President of the Equitable, at which the matter was discussed. One of these meetings to which both Mr. Harriman and Mr. Odell testified was in the former's office.

In November, after the election, according to the Governor, an agreement was reached for a settlement of the litigation on the basis of $75,000 for the Governor's losses, but the payment was not made until Dec. 30, 1904.

In the interim between the agreement to settle the Shipbuilding litigation and the final settlement in December several interesting things happened, according to the Armstrong Committee's testimony and according to Mr. Harriman's letter to Mr. Webster. Chief among these was the withdrawal of Mr. Odell's opposition to the election of Mr. Depew as Senator, which so surprised ex-Gov. Black at the time and startled various others politically prominent throughout the State.

Incidentally, as appeared from a letter of Mr. Harriman, which formed a part of the correspondence that President Roosevelt gave out in Washington, the suggestion that Mr. Depew be appointed Ambassador to France was supplanted by one that Mr. Hyde receive the appointment, in which both Mr. Harriman and ex-Gov. Odell concurred. Mr. Harriman and Gov. Odell both declared that there was no connection between the occurrences when they were examined by Charles E. Hughes.

Mr. Hughes, however, went somewhat into details with Mr. Odell. Here is the testimony:

Q.—Did you intercede on his (Mr. Hyde's) behalf for the appointment? A.—I did. I wrote a letter.

Q.—At whose request? A.—I am not certain. I think it was at Mr. McIntyre's.

Q.—Had this any relation to the matter of the settlement? A.—Not the slightest.

Q.—When was that letter written, Gov. Odell? A.—Before the settlement.

Q.—How long before? A.—I could not tell you. Two or three weeks probably. I won't be positive about it, but my impression was that it was before the settlement.

As the settlement of Mr. Odell's suit was on Dec. 30, 1904, his memory of the date on which he wrote the letter recommending Mr. Hyde for the Ambassadorship coincided closely with the actual date of the letter as given out in Washington yesterday afternoon. That was the letter of Dec. 10, 1904, written about three weeks before the check was passed which settled the Odell shipbuilding claim.

With equal care Mr. Hughes examined Mr. Harriman on the same subject. Here is an extract from the testimony:

Q.—Do you know whether Gov. Odell did anything with regard to procuring this appointment? A.—No.

Q.—Was the time when this matter was brought up between you and Mr. Hyde at or near the time when the matter of Gov. Odell's claim against the Mercantile Trust Company was under consideration? A.—I don't remember that there was any connection between them in any way whatever.

Q.—I am advised that the date of the settlement of Gov. Odell's claim, or rather the date of payment, was Dec. 30, 1904. I don't know as to the accuracy of it. It is a statement purporting to come from the company. A.—Well, it must have been about a year ago, as my recollection was at first.

Q.—When were those interviews about the Ambassadorial appointment? A.—I should think they were about a year ago.

But it appeared from the statements of interested parties yesterday that there were also complications in connection with the use of the $200,000 which Mr. Harriman raised for the campaign fund. It was declared that when this money went to Mr. Bliss it was with the understanding that Mr. Depew would share in the credit of raising it in whatever explanations accompanied its transfer to the Republican State Committee, of which Mr. Odell was then Chairman. Somehow or other there was an oversight, according to the story, to the end that the $200,000 went out to save the State from the impending danger of a Democratic victory unlabeled. This accounts for the surprise of some of the politicians when the final announcement was made that Mr. Depew would be the candidate.

PARKER DEMANDS INQUIRY.

Says It Is Safe Now to Deny Harriman's Staatement.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker is here in connection with two cases pending before the Court of Appeals. When questioned regarding the Harriman letter, on his charge in 1904, and the denial of Mr. Roosevelt that the Republican Party had been exacting tribute from corporations for campaign purposes, he said:

"That $150,000 was turned over by the Equitable, Mutual and New York Life Insurance Companies to Mr. Cortelyou's committee has never been denied, of course. It was testified to under oath before a body who could have summoned Mr. Bliss and Mr. Cortelyou to the witness stand if it had been denied. It is safe to deny Mr. Harriman's statement because there is not a committee before whom Mr. Bliss and Mr. Cortelyou and others can be summoned and compelled to testify.

"Congress has refused to make an investigation of the corporate contributions of 1904 or to pass a law prohibiting corporate contributions in the future. The money raised by Mr. Harriman and contributed by the life insurance companies, aggregating $350,000, was but a drop in the bucket as compared with the total contributions by railroads and other great corporations. The public importance of an investigation at this time therefore cannot be overestimated.

"One of the questions now pressing for solution is whether Federal Governmental control over railroads and other great corporations shall be further extended. It will help to solve that problem rightly to learn that Governmental power in the past has been used for political purposes, used to raise money to continue an existing Administration. The proof that it has been so used will make it perfectly clear to every mind that it can be used again. Aye, that it will be used again, and indeed will continue to be used so long as politics and business can be made mutually helpful to each other.

"Possession by the public of that knowledge and the necessary deductions therefrom will inevitably lead to attempts to surround such power as has been or may be conferred with the absolutely necessary safeguards against political abuse of it. So far no effort has been made to that direction.

"It has not been because the people have not appreciated the necessity of it. That they may do so, an investigation should be had that will bring out the whole truth. It will help many to see quite clearly what is now hidden, viz., the ultimate purpose of some of those who seek in the name of reform to strip the States of power that it may be centred at Washington."

ODELL WANTS TO THINK.

Ex-Governor Has No Statement to Make Just Now.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, April 2.—Ex-Gov. B. B. Odell, Jr., to-night refused to discuss the Harriman letter and campaign donations.

"You can say for me," he said, "that I do not care to make a statement just now. I want to think the matter over. I beg to be excused."

EVIDENCE HE HAD TO SHOW THAW MAD

Jerome Fails to Get It Before Commission with Dr. Hamilton as Witness.

TRIAL EXPECTED TO GO ON

Though People's Experts Declare Thaw a Dangerous Paranoiac—Others Say He's Sane.

With to-day probably the last of the Inquisition of the Thaw insanity commission before District Attorney Jerome, the prospect last night was that the case of the People against Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White will be sent back to the jury before Justice Fitzgerald, and the District Attorney will be compelled to complete the prosecution of a man whom he believes to be hopelessly insane.

Yesterday was the crisis for Mr. Jerome, and it went against him. When he put on the stand Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, considered in his profession to be one of the ablest alienists in this country, Mr. Jerome had at his command information which he believed would convince the commission that the man he was called upon to prosecute was not fit for trial. Through Dr. Hamilton he expected to give this information to the commission. The rulings of the commissioners were such that most of this evidence was excluded.

To-day Thaw will be subjected to a private examination by the Commissioners, a brief public hearing will be held and the board will go into executive session to consider their report to Justice Fitzgerald. If it is favorable to the defence, as was expected yesterday, and the Commissioners report that the defendant is of sufficiently sound mind to understand his position and consult with counsel, the trial will be resumed to-morrow and a verdict may be looked for by the end of this or the beginning of next week.

Dr. Hamilton Allowed to Tell Part.

The crisis of the day came during the morning session, when Dr. Hamilton was called to the stand. This was the signal for beginning a bitter legal fight. Chairman McClure suggested that he testify only to what he had observed in court during the trial. Mr. Jerome replied by reading to the commission the order of Justice Fitzgerald constituting the board and defining its functions.

Next the question of professional privilege came up, and the question arose as to the waiver which the District Attorney asserted the defense had made of professional privilege. Much of Dr. Hamilton's information was obtained while he was employed by the defense. To establish the exact facts in the case, Alonzo Moynihan, the official stenographer, was sworn, and the commission enjoyed the unusual spectacle of the witness taking his own answers down in shorthand and reporting his words officially as he went along.

At length everybody seemed satisfied that the waiver was legal except Commissioner Olney.

Chairman McClure overruled Mr. Olney and Dr. Hamilton was allowed to begin his testimony. His evidence was as follows:

Q.—What was the nature of the examination you made of the defendant on June 28? A.—Inspection. I tried to make him talk and failed.

Q.—What did you observe? A.—The prisoner was suffering from intense shock. His manner was strained. He was dazed and nervous. His eyes were fixed on a distant point of the room. The whites were very pronounced and the pupils dilated. His face twitched on the right side, and his actions were slow and lethargic.

Then the witness made a statement about a conversation he had with Thaw the day he and the People's expert tried to examine him in the District Attorney's office.

"He asked," he said, "Dr. Flint about his son and asked me for a cigar. He refused to talk to the other doctors until he had spoken to me. He went to a table in a corner of the room, and when I went over there, said, 'What's the use. It's all over.'

"Judge Olcott asked me to talk with Thaw, but he refused and regarded Judge Olcott, Mr. McManus, and me with suspicion.

"I next examined him in the Tombs on June 28. He refused to let me look at him until Dr. McGuire and Mr. McManus had retired. Then he looked under the beds suspiciously. There were no hangings in the room, and the under parts of the beds were visible. As I tried to examine him medically, he objected, crying, 'I am not insane.' Then he reclined on a bed and talked of the crime. He expressed no remorse, but said that he had done right, and the community would thank him."

Believes Thaw Insane.

"In your opinion," asked Mr. Jerome, "is the defendant capable of consulting intelligently with his counsel?"

"In my opinion he is not."

Mr. Hartridge in his cross-examination attempted to discredit the witness by dwelling on the fact that he was at the time spoken of retained by the defense.

Q.—Were you trying to get Thaw to Matteawan? A.—I was not.

Q.—Weren't you in correspondence with Dr. Lamb of Matteawan? A.—Yes; I was trying to retain him for the Thaw family.

Q.—How do you explain your actions? A.—I was trying to save his life. If I saw a man trying to commit suicide I would save him.

Q.—Did you ever try to get the District Attorney to send Thaw to Matteawan? A.—Yes, with the authority of Judge Olcott.

Q.—When you had your conversation with Mr. Jerome about Matteawan were you under a retainer from Judge Olcott? A.—I don't exactly know what my position was at that time. I had written to Mrs. William Thaw and had had no reply.

Q.—Then you withdrew from the case? A.—I withdrew entirely.

Q.—You instructed your lawyer to recover your bill? A.—I brought suit, but stopped it when the trial began.

Q.—Did you leave the State? A.—I went to Massachusetts because I did not wish to embarrass the defense.

Q.—Did you think you were helping the defense or the people? A.—I believed by declaring this man insane I was putting everybody in a right position.

Mr. Hartridge sat down, and Dr. Hamilton wished to introduce a letter written by Thaw at the time he examined him. It has already been published and is of an incoherent nature, with references to "vultures at court and Prester John Harples." Mr. Jerome asked a few more questions.

"From what was the defendant suffering?"

"He had systematized connected delusions," was the reply; "progressive unsoundness of mind."

"Will you be more specific?" said the District Attorney.

"He has delusional insanity, otherwise known as paranoia," answered the expert.

Had Much More Evidence to Give.

When under the rulings of the commission Dr. Hamilton's examination was ended at this point, he was plainly disappointed that the bulk of his evidence was excluded. He had volunteered the results of his examination of Thaw after having resigned as an alienist for the defense and after having reached the point where he thought it was his duty to declare that the client he was acting for was not a sane man. Incidentally he had returned to Thaw a note for $3,000 which was given to him in part payment for his services.

When Thaw dismissed his former counsel Dr. Hamilton had come to the conclusion that Thaw was a paranoiac. He did not, then desire to hamper any plans which the defense might formulate, but later, when it became evident that Thaw was to go to trial, his former alienist went to the District Attorney and told him of his conviction that Thaw was hopelessly insane and should be spared being put in peril of his life.

The information which Mr. Jerome endeavored to get in evidence yesterday begins with the very birth of Thaw, if not before his birth, when it deals with preoatal and hereditary influences. Not only was the hereditary influence found in the two uncles referred to already in the evidence, but it extended to his maternal grandfather and to a paternal aunt.

Line of Evidence That Was Barred.

Mr. Jerome wanted to get before the commission yesterday that Thaw's maternal grandfather suffered from the taint of insanity which has marked many men of genius in literature. He wanted to show that a search of the history of this grandfather proved that he was vacillating, visionary, and odd.

He also sought to prove that the investigation into the history of Thaw's maternal uncles, Henry and Josiah Copley, showed that both were insane, that the former died in 1889 and for five or six years before his death was a roving character; would swear at people without cause, was restless, and had a jerky walk; could not confine himself to any one subject in conversation; would steal little things, and would decorate himself with trinkets.

He also wanted to put before the commission that other members of the family on the father's side who were insane were William S. Thaw, who died in the Hospital for the Insane at Williamsburg, Va., in 1885; Harriott Thaw, his half-sister, who is now in the Friends' Asylum at Frankford, Penn.; Henry S. Thaw, a son of William S. Thaw, who died in the Staunton Asylum, Virginia, in 1884, and a sister of Thaw's father, who died an epileptic. Also that a first cousin of Harry Thaw, one of the Rosses, was considered so dangerous an epileptic that it was deemed necessary to confine him in St. Francis' Hospital in Pennsylvania about five years ago.

Mr. Jerome was prepared to prove with this ancestral matter that the form of insanity of the prisoner—paranoia—was the result of degeneration.

It has already been put in evidence that the shape of the prisoner's head had marked peculiarities. In the information prepared for the commissioners, but which their rulings barred, a relative of the prisoner would have been quoted as describing the consternation in the family when the shape of Thaw's head as an infant was first observed; that in his youth and at the approach of manhood he showed a strong disposition toward cruelty; that when about 16 years old Thaw caught a young boy about 10 years old, tore off his clothes, and beat him terribly; that the boy was fishing in a pond near Thaw's home and that the attack was without apparent provocation; that Thaw in his maturer years and while in London about five years ago, treated at least two boys employed in London hotels in a similar manner.

Fit of Rage by Thaw in Paris.

In the search for evidence to determine whether Thaw was really insane a letter was obtained from Mme. Henriette Muller-Beauval of Aix les Baines which described a visit paid by him to a woman at the pension kept by Mme. Muller-Beauval. Thaw had an engagement with a woman at this place. The letter of the woman describes what happened when he arrived at her house and found that the woman he expected to meet was not there. Mr. Jerome wanted to put the letter before the commission.

"Upon being told she was out," wrote Mme. Muller-Beauval, "he flew into such an extraordinary rage that he flung himself out of the carriage and rushed up and down the terrace holding a little cane in his hand, slashing right and left so as to break all the flowers and leaves before him. After two or three turns upon the terrace in this state of fury he ordered the coachman to go back to the road by the carriage drive, while he himself took the shorter footpath, reaching the high road before the carriage.

"In this direction lay a heap of big stones, and a few meters away was a kind of hut covered with the tarpaulin of an old boat. Mr. Thaw could find no better way of relieving his attack of rage than by taking the stones one by one and throwing them at this tarpaulin with such forces as to sound like explosions. We hurried up upon hearing this noise and were not a little astonished to see the gentleman employed at this game, and that before the driver, who was close by and waiting. We therefore readily imagined that he had been seized with an attack of insanity."

Thaw's Delving Into Hypnotism.

It has been one of the strange things about the trial that the newspaper men have observed and commented on, that Thaw has constantly attempted to get the eyes of Justice Fitzgerald, of Mr. Jerome, and occasionally of some of the reporters. There has always been a glare in his eyes, but these attempts to fasten his gaze upon the gaze of others about him have aroused the suggestion that Thaw might have believed himself a hypnotist.

In the evidence which was not permitted by the commission yesterday an explanation of these court attempts at hypnotism might have been given. The District Attorney wanted to show that in 1901 or 1902 Thaw engaged the services of a hypnotist by the name of W. D. Ferris and took lessons from him, telling the hypnotist that it was his desire "to win back to a virtuous life" a woman whose name he did not disclose. With this hypnotist, it was to be shown, he was occasionally very violent and once attacked his own valet while the hypnotist was present.

Said Thaw Feared Insanity.

Ferris at that time was in New York. He is now in a Western city. He was found and furnished an account of his various meetings with Thaw and Thaw's behavior, which was to be offered to the commission. In this statement Ferris declared that Thaw on more than one occasion expressed to him his fear of insanity, saying that he wondered if the insanity in his family would interfere with his own ability to acquire the art of suggestion.

As an instance of Thaw's grandiose ideas about his own importance and the importance of his family Mr. Jerome wanted to show that on one occasion when an old crystal chandelier was removed from Thaw's house he filled his pockets with the crystals, and gave them to persons on the street and to his friends as souvenirs. Thaw kept one of the crystals for himself, explaining as he pocketed it: "What would Schwab give for this?" Mentioning the names of other rich people he said: "What would they not give to be of our family?"

Limit Put on Dr. Hamilton.

With all this evidence barred, Dr. Hamilton, when he was on the stand, was not permitted to give any evidence upon which he could show by what manner he drew the conclusion that Thaw was a paranoiac and suffering from long-continued delusions of persecution and elation.

A TIMES reporter called upon Dr. Hamilton last night and found him disinclined to add to the testimony given on the stand, but when asked directly what the future conduct of the defendant might be should he be acquitted, he said:

"I regard Thaw as a person of unsound mind, with a potential tendency to homicide. His whole history shows this, and I am quite sure that even should he escape by some miscarriage of justice and be given his liberty, he is quite likely, as Ethelmander and others have done, to commit some act which will very soon bring him into the courts.

"I consider it a far more important obligation to assist Mr. Jerome as the case now stands than to remain away from the inquisition altogether, which I might easily have done. There is the duty of the citizen to his community and that duty or the sense of it and appreciation of it has inspired me in the course I have taken. It has been disagreeable at times, a loss to me in many ways, but I feel that I am not only doing my fullest duty to my former client but to the community at large."

Tombs Attendants Think Thaw Sane.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was in court when the commission met yesterday morning in obedience to the District Attorney's subpoena. She was attended by Josiah Thaw and was clad in a stylish brown suit and black sailor hat and veil and seemed fairly cheerful. She sat in one of the seats appropriated by custom to the Thaw family and exclaimed audibly as the defendant came in:

"How well Harry looks."

As soon as the Commissioners took their seats Mr. Hartridge said:

"I want to make it clear on the record that the defendant has never risen or attempted to address the Court."

Dr. Frank J. McGuire, the Tombs physician, was called and stated that he had never seen anything unusual in the behavior of Thaw. He was followed by several other officials, Michael J. Delahanty, a Deputy Sheriff, who had conducted Thaw back and forth from the prison in January; Franklin J. Sheridan, the Deputy Sheriff who relieved him in February, and Mrs. Emily S. Walker, probationary officer in the Court of Special Sessions. They all agreed that they had never thought from the defendant's conversation that he was mentally unbalanced.

Similar testimony was given by the Rev. John A. Wade, the Episcopal chaplain of the Tombs. He stated that he had noticed nothing irrational about the defendant since the trial began.

The Rev. Luke J. Evers, Catholic Chaplain, told of a conversation he had had with Thaw about a Polish priest of the Independent Polish Church, and a discussion they had had upon that body. He, too, had remarked nothing out of the way in the defendant.

Before the experts were called Mr. Jerome sprung a surprise upon the defense by producing in court an extraordinary document, which Thaw sent to Mr. Delmas in the last few days. It consists of about twenty foolscap pages, on most of which are pasted long newspaper clippings.

It is intended to give the counsel some suggestions for the powerful address he is expected to make to the jury. Editorials, accounts of outrages on women, reports of trials, and other heterogeneous matters are strung together loosely, with written directions.

From a Bible the defendant has cut out the whole of the 102d Psalm and a few verses from Exodus; a letter of appreciation of his act from a Dublin girl is quoted, and allusions are made to the legend of the Red Cross Knight and other old-world fancies.

Other Experts Called.

After Dr. Hamilton was excused a brief recess for lunch was taken, and as soon as the commission reassembled the examination of other experts began and lasted all the afternoon. For the People Dr. Austin Flint, Dr. William Mabon, Dr. William Hirsch, Dr. Albert Warren Ferris, and Dr. William B. Prichard were summoned.

They all swore that they had no doubt that the defendant was a paranoiac, and was quite unable to consult properly with his lawyers. To them Mr. Jerome showed the queer collection of newspaper clippings and texts which Thaw thought would inspire Mr. Delmas in his behalf, and they considered it a certain proof that their diagnosis was right.

Of Dr. Flint Mr. Jerome asked: "Do you regard the defendant as a dangerous person?"

"Yes," was the reply; "he is dangerous to whatever person his delusion may point. Perhaps to some one connected with this trial."

When the People's experts were finished Dr. C. F. Bingaman was called and gave the same evidence about epilepsy in the Thaw family that he had given on the trial. Then it was the defense's turn and Dr. Charles W. Pilgrim, Dr. S. Gregory, and Dr. Graeme Hammond followed each other in succession, each being as sure that Thaw is not a paranoiac as the alienists retained by Mr. Jerome are that he is. They had, however, the advantage of founding their opinions upon conversations with Thaw. The People's experts would only speak of observations from a distance.

Mr. Delmas was recalled, and stated under oath that he had obtained many valuable suggestions from the rambling document Thaw had sent him, and Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe told of how sensibly he had heard the defendant consult with his lawyers in the Tombs last week.

It was decided that this one expert called in the trial by the People, who has not yet been heard, Dr. Diefendorf, may be heard to-day in public, and an opportunity will also be given to Dr Charles G. Wagner to testify for the defense. Otherwise the commission will not hear any further evidence, and adjourned until this morning for a private examination of Thaw.

PARROTS GIVE FIRE ALARM.

All Rescued at a $500 Blaze in a Bird Zoo in Upper Broadway.

The screaming of 500 parrots in a bird zoo on the second floor of the building at 1,934 Broadway at 7:45 last night gave the first notice of fire raging on the first floor. It brought the firemen in time to save the birds and to check the blaze.

The negro janitor heard the screeching of the birds, and he was the first to emerge, shouting an alarm and carrying half a dozen parrots in cages, and as many canary birds.

A waiter in a near-by place turned in an alarm from the box at the corner of Broadway and Sixty-fourth Street. All the birds were gotten out safely.

The parrots and birds are owned by Miss Virginia Pope of 242 Sixth Avenue. The bird zoo had been closed for the night.

The firemen extinguished the blaze after $500 damage had been done to the real estate office of H. C. Senior, on the first floor.

APPEAL FROM McCARREN WRIT

Democratic State Committee to Test Expulsion Injunction.

Thomas F. Magner, counsel for the Democratic State Committee, has appealed on behalf of that body from the decision of Supreme Court Justice Kelly of Brooklyn, restraining the committee from trying or expelling Senator McCarren and his associates because of alleged disloyalty to William R. Hearst in the last campaign.

The appeal will be heard by the Appellate Division in Brooklyn on April 15. Lawyer Magner said yesterday that he was not concerned about the rumors that Mr. McCarren, through an alliance with Patrick F. McCabe, had gained control of the committee. He had been instructed to appeal, he said, and would proceed with the case.

CLEMENCEAU ASSAILS PIOU.

Says Liberal League President Tried to "Tap" the Vatican.

PARIS, April 2.—Premier Clemenceau has addressed another long letter to the Figaro because of the publication by the newspaper this morning of three documents which were sequestered at the expulsion from France of Mgr. Montagnini, the former Secretary of the Papal Nunciature at Paris.

The Premier attacks Jacques Piou, President of the Liberal League, saying his actions as revealed for the first time by the publication of these documents, were nothing but a series of attempts to "tap" the Vatican for his own electioneering campaign.

M. Clemenceau explains at some length the famous meeting which M. Piou confided to Mgr. Montagnini under a pledge of the deepest secrecy and which took place at the request of M. Piou in the house of an American lady friend. After luncheon on this occasion M. Piou led M. Clemenceau to a window embrasure and remarked that he was not in favor of separation. M. Clemenceau answered that he did not agree with him, and that was all.

M. Clemenceau said he was much mystified at this extraordinary proceeding until he saw the document published in the Figaro, when it became evident to him that this had been simply another scheme to "tap" the Vatican.

M. Clemenceau's letter concludes with these words:

"The criminals who steal and kill are worthy of public esteem compared with the man who tries to dishonor the people under cover of the strictest secrecy, and then hopes to extricate himself by stammered denials."

PARIS, Wednesday, April 3.—The Figaro this morning continues the publication of documents found in the archives of the Papal Nunciature when Mgr. Montagnini was expelled from Paris. Being convinced that the seized documents will be examined, by a committee, the Figaro says it will publish them all.

This morning it prints a letter from Mgr. Montagnini to Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, relating to a long conversation with Sir Francis Bertie, the British Ambassador in France, who called upon Mgr. Montagnini shortly after his appointment as Ambassador. This letter is made up mostly of very ordinary small talk concerning Sir Francis's stay in Rome and his relations with the Pope.

Then follows the story of Emperor William refusing to accept a Catholic as British Ambassador to Germany, in spite of the fact that the greater number of the German Ambassadors to London have been Catholics. The British Ambassador praised France, saying she was the only country able to live by her own resources.

He said that all imperialistic and monarchical agitation was useless; that the republican form of government was the best suited to France, but that the republic should be wisely ordered and well organized and the home of true liberty. Sir Francis said he was opposed to the idea of separation of Church and State, but if this did come about the fault would lie with the conservatives, especially the nobility, who by abstaining from politics left the field to the radicals.

The Figaro prints also a letter from Cardinal Merry del Val to Mgr. Montagnini requesting him to point out to the Catholic chiefs the advisability of combining two specified newspapers. The Cardinal had received a letter from the Archbishop of Rennes, saying the two newspapers, L'Univers and La Verité, attacked each other, and recommending fusion, as their antagonism did no good to the cause.

BANKER DE CORDOVA DYING.

At 1 o'clock this morning Dr. Arthur Fiske said that Alfred de Cordova's condition was much worse. According to the physician the banker is not likely to live longer than five or six hours. Oxygen was being used to keep Mr. Cordova alive.

The family of the banker were gathered at his bedside, including Eustes De Cordova, a brother of the banker, and his brother's two sons. Mr. De Cordova was unconscious, and unable to recognize any one.

SHOWS HIS BRAINS TO JURY.

Man with Silver Plate in Skull Asks $25,000 from Former Employers.

Taking a silver plate out of his skull, Harry Hanson, 36 years old, of 333 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, exhibited his exposed brains to Justice Jaycox and a jury in the Queens County Supreme Court at Flushing, L. I., yesterday. He is suing M. W. Kellogg & Co., contractors, of Manhattan, for $25,000 damages for injuries received while in their employ.

Hanson was running a stationary engine for Kellogg & Co. at a building in course of construction in Eleventh Avenue on Sept. 14 last, when he was hit on the head by a brick falling from a tall chimney. A large piece of bone was removed from his skull.

Dr. Purcell who took charge of Hanson from the day he received his injury, told the jury that Hanson could not live more than two years. He said the exposed part of the brain had a tendency to contract, producing paralysis, which would gradually extend all over the body. At present Hanson is paralyzed in his left arm and left leg. He said to the jury he wanted the money to care for his wife after his death.

In addition to the silver plate set in his skull Hanson wears a device strapped on top of his head to keep the plate in position and also to prevent any sudden shock to the wounded part.

PANIC AT A FUNERAL.

Church Floor Collapses During Services Over Late Pastor.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 2.—The floor of Macedonia Church fell with a crash to-day during the funeral services of the Rev. J. M. Brown, former pastor of the church. Men, women, and children rushed for the doors, praying and shouting.

Several women fainted and were trampled upon, sustaining painful injuries although no fatalities have been reported.

RUSSIAN BUDGET BEFORE THE DUMA

Finance Minister Appeals to Members to Deal with It in a National Spirit.

ANOTHER LOAN NEEDED

But Government Hopes to be Able to Find the Funds Within the Country.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 2.—The lower House to-day began the first parliamentary discussion of a Russian budget in a businesslike manner. A long explanatory speech of Finance Minister Kokovsoff, in which he appealed to the members to deal with the subject in a national spirit and not from the viewpoint of party politics, was received with the closest attention. During the course of his remarks the Minister declared he would generally be able to keep the expenditures within the limits laid down in the estimates, but that additional provision must be made for the army, railways, and famine relief.

He attributed Russia's financial difficulties to three great causes—the costly war, the costlier revolution, and the great famine. These had shaken the prosperity of the country, had weakened its industry, and had dealt a staggering blow to its credit. The budget had been drafted on the basis of the most extreme economy. While the total expenditures, $1,236,000,000, showed a nominal decrease of $20,000,000 over 1906, the actual saving was almost $200,000,000. The Government was really spending last year $1,640,000,000, owing to the extraordinary expenses, famine relief, &c., instead of the $1,255,000,000 contemplated by the budget.

The Minister defended the moderate nature of the various items of ordinary expenditure, the necessity for new appropriations for popular education, the colonization of Siberia, and so on, and said the extraordinary expenditure was $90,000,000 less than in 1906, although the appropriation for famine relief had doubled.

Without the consent of Parliament it was impossible to increase the revenue by new taxes, hence, though the ordinary expenditures could be covered in the ordinary manner, credit operations were necessary in order to cover the extraordinary expenses, provide the money needed for the liquidation of the war expenses, famine relief, and railway construction. This necessitated a new loan, but the Government hoped to be able to find the funds within the country.

The principal reply to the Minister's presentation was delivered by the financial expert of the Constitutional Democrats, ex-Minister Kuttler, who criticised the budget from the standpoint of the present financial system of Russia, particularly the forms of indirect taxation bearing the heaviest on the poorer classes, but recognized the impossibility of making reckless attempts to change the system. M. Kuttler promised in behalf of the Constitutional Democrats that the budget would be discussed on its merits without any attempt to needlessly embarrass the Government. He assailed the indirect taxation as being favoritism toward the rich. He said only 11 per cent. of the revenue was derived from direct taxes. The indirect taxes all bore with great harshness on the poor. He made a computation showing $575,000,000 in revenue was derived from the taxation of articles used almost exclusively by the poor, while only $185,000,000 was collected from articles of luxury. Even the direct taxes fell chiefly on the poor, two-thirds of the land tax being paid by the peasantry, while the city taxes were mainly paid by those who rented houses and apartments.

All the State enterprises were extravagantly conducted—the Imperial Stud, for example, where each horse cost the Government $750 and sold on an average for $150. The bureaucracy, M. Kuttler said, was overburdened with employes and incumbered with useless departments, such as the censorship and the surveillance of the Zemstvos, which should be eliminated entirely, as being out of harmony with the Imperial manifesto of Oct. 30, 1905.

M. Kuttler called attention to the fact that the Department of Education and Charitable Institutions, under the Dowager Empress, with expenditures amounting to several millions, was not included in the budget statement, its accounts not being subjected to audit by the constitutional authorities.

In conclusion, M. Kuttler analyzed the public debt, amounting to $4,500,000,000, with an annual interest charge of $191,000,000, declaring that only $1,750,000,000 had been expended on railroads and productive works, while $2,750,000,000 had been spent for war adventures. The credit of the country would be restored if a constitutional régime was instituted and the power over the national purse was given to Parliament, as in other civilized countries.

After speeches from M. Struve (Constitutional Democrat) of St. Petersburg and others, the discussion was adjourned until Thursday, without a vote being taken on the resolution of the Constitutional Democrats providing for the acceptance of the budget.

FEW KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE.

But the Inhabitants of Bitlis Are Camped in Snow.

ERZERUM, Turkish Armenia, April 2.—Information has reached the British Consul here to the effect that while the earthquake which occurred at Bitlis March 29 was violent the loss of life was small, only four casualties having been reported. Many houses were damaged. The shocks continue.

Almost all the inhabitants are camped in the snow, and the fact that sleet is falling incessantly adds greatly to the general distress, especially among the poorer classes of the population.

Notes of Foreign News.

ADEN, Arabia, April 2.—A dispatch received to-day from the Island of Perim, in the Strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, (at the entrance of the Red Sea,) announced that two Japanese warships, bound for Hampton Roads, passed there this morning.

HAVANA, April 2.—The streets within several blocks of the sea are, owing to the heavy seas sweeping the coast, not unlike the canals of Venice. Rafts and boats are in frequent use, but no casualties have occurred. The damage done is estimated at many thousands of dollars.

COLOGNE, Germany, April 2.—Four Brazilian army officers, representing the Ministry of War, have arrived here. After visiting the Krupp Works at Essen they are going to Berlin. It is surmised that the object of the Brazilians' visit to Germany is the purchase of arms.

HAMBURG, April 2.—Eight English longshoremen were badly injured and many others were slightly hurt in a fight last night with local, locked-out longshoremen. The Englishmen had been on an excursion, contrary to warnings which they had received, and were assailed on their return to the wharf, where they were embarking for the ships in the harbor, on board of which they were housed in order to keep them from getting in contact with the locked-out men.

NIZHNI-NOVGOROD, Russia, April 2.—Agrarian disorders have broken out in the Sergachevsk District. In an encounter with troops yesterday fifty peasants were wounded, and a Rural Guard was killed.

LONDON, April 2.—The Irish Presbyterian Church has agreed unonimously to invite the Rev. William John McCaughan, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church of Chicago, to become pastor of the May Street Congregation at Belfast.

LONDON, April 2.—The Earl of Elgin, Secretary of State for the Colonies, has issued a circular earnestly advising all former Governors of Colonies to refrain from engaging in commercial enterprises for the development of the natural resources of the territories they formerly administered because the taking by them of a prominent part in the management of such companies would be liable to misconstruction.

OTTAWA, Ontario, April 2.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier to-day announced in Parliament that he had accepted the resignation of H. R. Emerson as Minister of Railways until Mr. Emerson has had an opportunity to clear away charges of immorality made against him by a New Brunswick newspaper. Mr. Emerson characterizes the charges as false, and declares that he will prosecute his accusers in the courts.

DR. HUETZLER A SUICIDE.

Head of Gisela Hospital at Munich Had Quarrel with His Staff.

Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 2.—Made melancholy and morbid by serious differences with his fellow physicians, Dr. Huetzler, head of the Gisela Children's Hospital, at Munich, committed suicide there to-day by shooting himself with a revolver. News of the physician's death was a shock to the other heads of the institution, and as a result of the tragedy the Princess Gisela has resigned as protectress.

Dr. Huetzler was a native of New York. His mother, Sarah, who died some years ago, was well known in German circles as an author. She was twice married, her second husband being Josef Kainz, the actor.

ARMAMENT QUESTION VIEWS.

Matter Likely to Come Up Informally at Peace Conference.

BERLIN, April 2.—The Foreign Office officials here say that Great Britain recently consented to the discussion of the limitation of armaments not being formally placed on the programme of the Peace Conference to be held at The Hague.

The German officials have nothing to say regarding the attitude of Germany when the question comes up at The Hague. Chancellor von Buelow and the Italian Foreign Minister, Signor Tittoni, as a result of their conferences at Rapolla, agreed not to publish any more than what Signor Tittoni gave out, hence the Foreign Office in Berlin is precluded from supplementing his statement.

PARIS, April 2.—There is considerable doubt in official circles here as to whether the limitation of armaments will be inserted in the programme of the questions to be discussed at the coming Peace Conference at The Hague.

An informal discussion of the matter would be viewed with favor, and no direct opposition thereto is foreseen in any quarter since the interview between Signor Tittoni, the Italian Foreign Minister, and the German Imperial Chancellor, Prince von Buelow, at Rapolla, Italy, but the officials here, although recognizing the utility of such a discussion in order to obtain definite views, are skeptical relative to the results. Even Great Britain's advocacy of the discussion is regarded here as being somewhat academic.

LONDON, April 2.—The British Foreign Office never doubted that the question of the reduction of the expenditure on armaments would be discussed at The Hague and the agreement between Italy and Germany, which it is considered must have included it in the programme for the Peace Conference at The Hague, goes to show. In the opinion of the British officials, that their confidence was not misplaced.

Further confirmation, were any wanted, that Germany is prepared to fairly consider Great Britain's request that a discussion of the limitation of armaments should be placed on The Hague programme is found in a cable dispatch from Herr von Tschirsky, the German Secretary for Foreign Affairs, to a London paper, in which he denied that Germany would withdraw from the conference should Great Britain propose to discuss the subject, adding the hope that in spite of all misrepresentations of Germany's attitude the closer association between Germany and Great Britain would continue to make progress.

PLOT AGAINST KING CHARLES.

Peasants Barred from Bucharest and Many Arrests Made, Berlin Hears.

BERLIN, April 2.—A dispatch to the Tageblat from Czernowitz, Austria-Hungary, not far from the Roumanian frontier, says that intelligence has been received there from Bucharest to the effect that a plot has been discovered at the Roumanian capital against King Charles and his Government.

The City of Bucharest, it is added, is in a state of great excitement, peasants are not permitted to enter the capital, and numerous arrests have been made.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, April 2.—The Metropolitan of Bucharest will issue shortly a pastoral letter releasing the peasantry from the oaths which they took on enrollment in the insurgent forces. This is expected to assist in the work of pacification, many fanatical rustics having sent in word that they could not cease plundering until absolved from their oaths.

BERLIN WORLD'S FAIR.

Movement for Holding One in 1913 Is Gathering Strength.

BERLIN, April 2.—The movement for a World's Exposition in Berlin during 1913, the twenty-fifth year of Emperor William's reign, is gaining considerable strength both inside and outside Government circles. Berlin has never had a great international exhibition, and it is affirmed in the press discussions that the time is near when Germany will spend $25,000,000 or so in assembling the best of all contemporary works for the benefit of Germany, it is true, but also for the benefit of the western world. The subject is being thought out in several Government departments for presentation to the Emperor.

It is believed that much of the present foreign suspicion of Germany and apprehensions of her aggressive purposes will be removed by the Government committing itself to a vast plan of hospitality, and in so doing seeking the friendly cooperation of all Governments.

2,000,000 Rifles for China's Army.

BERLIN, April 2.—According to a dispatch received here from Shanghai, the Chinese Government has ordered, through a German firm at Tien-Tsin, 2,000,000 rifles for the uniform equipment of the Chinese Army.

MRS. EDDY CONVEYS HER ENTIRE ESTATE

trusted to them, if need be, against both plaintiffs and defendants in the pending suit."

With the exception of Mr. McLellan, the trustees are not believers in the Christian Science doctrine. Mr. Baker is a former Congressman, while Mr. Fernald is President of one of the banks in this city, and has for several years acted as Mrs. Eddy's financial agent.

Motion to Oust Next Friends.

The motion filed by Gen. Strecter sets forth that Mary Baker G. Eddy, by deed, on March 6 last conveyed and transferred to said Baker, McLellan, and Fernald, subject to certain reservations therein named, "all her interest of every kind and description in and to any real estate wherever situated; also all her interest of every kind and description in and to any estate, personal or mixed, which she then owned or possessed, including stocks, bonds, interests in copyrights, contracts, actions, and causes of action at law, or in equity against any person, in trust for the purposes and upon the conditions fully set forth in said trust deed."

They took delivery and possession on March 6 of the securities, cash bank balances, documents, books of account, and other personal estate, and since that time have received further formal assignment of all copyrights, contracts, and securities requiring the personal signature of the grantor; and they are now holding and managing all the same in accordance with the provisions of the trust deed.

The motion continues:

This suit in equity, as appears by the record, was brought by said "next friends" as volunteers, purporting to act in behalf of Mary Baker G. Eddy against the ten defendants for the purpose, as is alleged in the bill, of recovering money and property alleged to have been misappropriated and unlawfully diverted by the defendants from Mrs. Eddy's estate, and for the purpose of protecting said property from further misappropriations. But, under the terms of said trust deed, it is the duty of said Trustees to protect and preserve the entire estate of their grantor, and their further duty, if the allegations of the bill are true, to prosecute said defendants in behalf of the trust estate for the recovery of all money and property misappropriated or diverted as alleged, and to prosecute all other actions and causes of action against said defendants or any other person against whom the grantor, prior to said March 6, 1907, or the trust estate since that date has any claim at law or in equity.

The deed of trust in which Mrs. Eddy conveys her property to Henry M. Baker, Archibald McLellan, and Josiah E. Fernald says that the transfer is made for the following purposes and upon the following conditions:

To manage, care for, and control all the above granted real estate and interest therein during my earthly life and, at the termination thereof, to dispose of the same in accordance with the provisions of my last will and testament thereto; but I hereby reserve for myself the right of occupancy and use of my homestead, Pleasant View, in Concord, New Hampshire. I hereby also reserve all household furniture; my printed library, and all horses, carriages, tools, and other articles of use or adornment now being or in use in or about my home premises at Pleasant View. I hereby also reserve the right to occupy and to rent for my own benefit my two houses at 383 and 387 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, Mass.

Investments of Income.

It is stipulated that investments of income and reinvestments of principal shall always be made in bonds or other securities of a conservative character, having regard for the safety of the principal, preference to be given to State, Government, city, and municipal bonds; but this is left to the judgment and discretion of the Trustees. Further stipulations are made as follows:

Said trustees shall pay me, from time to time, out of the net income of said property, (1) such sums as I may need or desire for the purpose of keeping up the homestead, Pleasant View, and paying the expenses thereof and of my household, in the same general way as heretofore; (2) such sums as I may desire for my own personal expenses and for charitable purposes, and (3) such sums as I may desire personally to use for the advancement of the cause and doctrines of Christian Science as taught by me. Said trustees shall also pay and discharge whatever claims and accounts may be outstanding against me at this date.

At the termination of my earthly life this trust shall terminate, and all the personal estate then held by my trustees shall pass to the executors of my last will and the codicils thereto, to be disposed of in accordance with the provisions thereof.

In case of a vacancy in the Board of Trustees, caused by death, refusal to act, or resignation of any of them, for any reason, a new trustee, or trustees, shall be appointed by me, and in case I fail to act, said new trustee shall be appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire for the time being, preference being given to the nomination of the remaining trustee or trustees.

I direct that my trustees shall be liable only for their own acts in the management of this trust, and that no trustee shall be answerable for loss or damage which may happen to the trust property without his own willful fault or misfeasance.

The trustees shall receive a reasonable payment from the trust fund for their personal service as such, and shall also be reimbursed for all expenses incurred by them in the management of the trust estate.

The trustees shall render to me personally semi-annual accounts of the trust property and the income and expense thereof.

Appended to the deed is the following signed acceptance:

We, Henry M. Baker, Archibald McLellan, and Josiah E. Fernald, severally accept the foregoing trust, and agree to perform the same according to the conditions and terms thereof, but we severally reserve the right to resign said trust.

It is pointed out by lawyers here that there is no provision anywhere in the deed of trust for any payment to Mrs. Eddy's own blood; that the provisions and reservations of the deeds are such that under the head of "charitable purposes and for the "advancement of the cause and doctrines of Christian Science" the income from her property, which the original plaintiffs—George W. Glover of Lead, S. D.; his daughter, Mary Baker Glover, and George W. Baker of Bangor, Me.—consider to be vast, may still be used in such manner as is desired by the defendants in the proceeding, who are characterized by the original plaintiffs as the "Eddy Cabinet."

A Trick, Says Chandler.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Former United States Senator William E. Chandler, counsel for the plaintiffs in the Glover-Eddy suit, late to-night issued a statement in which he declared that the trusteeship for Mrs. Eddy's property was a trick, contrived by her "jailers" to avoid a possible receivership, and that the defendants in the suit had "used her delusions and incompetency to serve their own selfish ends."

MELBA SAILS

With a Canary and a Verse from Hammerstein, and a Promise to Return.

A man wearing a tall silk hat and carrying a gilded cage with a canary hopping within from perch to perch might have been seen wandering dolefully on the North German Lloyd docks yesterday morning at early dawn. The man's face was careworn and sad, and the hand which held the bird cage trembled.

For Mme. Melba was sailing away on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, and the stranger with the tall hat and the bird cage was no other than Oscar Hammerstein, down to bid his favorite star goodbye.

Presently the singer appeared, followed by the faithful Ada Sassoli, who sailed with her, and other friends. The impresaria approached and handed her the bird cage.

Now, Oscar Hammerstein has long been called by the Australian soprano the "man who swallowed the canary." So, attached to a blue ribbon which fluttered from the dome of the cage, was a card with this inscription:

To Mme. Melba:
To you, the brilliant songstress fairy,
I give in friendship this canery.
If ever we should part in rage,
I'll swallow the canary and you the cage.
OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN.

Mme. Melba was overcome both by the verse and the canary for a moment. Then she seized her impresario by both hands and began talking fast, promising to return next year to sing five new rôles, including Senta in "The Flying Dutchman," Juliette, and Hélène.

Mme. Melba has signed no contract to return next year, because she takes pride in the fact that she never signs contracts now. She has made a verbal agreement to return. This has been her custom at Covent Garden, and other places where she appears, for several years.

But finally the parting had to come. The soprano boarded the steamship with her canary and many flowers, and Mr. Hammerstein waited until the boat sailed away. Mme. Melba appeared on the deck, waving her handkerchief, and passengers caught the following:

"Au revoir, Oscar! Au revoir until next season."

"Au revoir, Nellie, au revoir!"

BALTIMORE FAIR IN 1914.

Exposition to Celebrate Centennial of Birth of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Baltimore is to hold an international exposition. It believes that the climax of the War of 1812 and the birth of "the Star Spangled Banner" should be celebrated. For this reason it will hold an exposition on its water front in 1914. The idea has been suggested by the Baltimore American, in which the national song was first published from Key's manuscript. Citizens throughout Maryland have expressed their approval of the proposition. The City Council of Baltimore has taken steps toward organization, and Gov. Warfield has promised his co-operation.

This excerpt is taken from an announcement of the enterprise that has been circulated:

"The year 1814 was momentous in American history. The war that began in 1812 reached its climax. If the British had succeeded in capturing Baltimore there is no telling how far the struggle would have gone, or what the result might have been in America. But our people repulsed the enemy, and out of that splendid victory came "The Star-Spangled Banner."

"The War of 1812 brought the new States together, and, in the words of Dr. Woodrow Wilson, 'made the country quick with the spirit of nationality.' In that war the United States regained its self respect. From it we date the long list of splendid deeds which have made the United States the wonder of history, and the richest and most powerful people on earth.

"So, the 100th anniversary of the birth year of 'The Star-Spangled Banner' will give to us for celebration and display the century which has contributed more of human advancement than all that went before. Practically every invention, every step of industry, every big fact in transportation and communication will come within this 100 years. The year itself will afford some striking anniversaries; for instance, it was in 1814 that Fulton made the beginning of steam in the Navy, and a score of events of like interest can be found."

FIRE IN THE SARANAC FILLS FIRE ESCAPES

Scantily Clad Guests Fly from Dense Smoke of a Cellar Blaze.

A BRAVE TELEPHONE GIRL

She Sticks to Her Post Until Every Guest Is Warned—A Few Old Trunks Burned.

From under the clerk's desk in the Hotel Saranac lobby at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon a little puff of smoke curled upward, expanding as it rose. It was just such a puff as would come from a cigar laid on a table for a moment. Michael E. McNulty, who with "Danny" Maher, the jockey, owns the hotel, which is on Broadway, just below Forty-second Street, was behind the desk. He looked for the cigar and didn't see it. Then he pulled open the door of a little closet under the desk. A volley of smoke poured forth.

With a cry of warning, McNulty ran to the cellar door and opened it. A big volume of smoke enveloped him. He slammed the door shut and, choking, fought his way back to a fire alarm hanging at the side of the desk. He broke the glass and sounded the alarm. Throughout the six stories of the building two big gongs at either end of each hallway rang simultaneously. Then McNulty yelled to the telephone operator to notify the guests and disappeared.

Annie Crosby, the telephone girl, although she had been working in the hotel only a few days, stuck to her post. One by one the plugs were thrown into the switchboard and she yelled "Fire!" Gradually the figure at the switchboard grew dimmer and dimmer, until it was no longer distinguishable through the heavy black cloud. Still the feminine voice, trembling with excitement, could be heard yelling "Fire!" Finally Miss Crosby jumped from her seat, having sent the last call, and, choking, groped her way through the smoke to the street.

Meanwhile Edward De Groix, the hotel clerk, had been busy. When the first volley of smoke came from the closet De Groix ran to the safe. This was open, but many little compartments within it were shut. De Groix opened these to remove their contents. While he worked a continual stream of smoke from the closet poured upon him. Later, when the firemen came, they found him lying prostrate on the floor. He was carried out into the air and soon revived.

When the firegongs began to sound in the halls and the telephone warnings came the guests ran into the halls, only to meet volumes of choking smoke that started everybody coughing. The smoke had run rapidly through the house, from the cellar to the roof, by way of the elevator shaft. Soon the three sets of fire escapes from the hotel presented a fantastic appearance. Out of the windows on all floors on the Broadway side to the fire escapes poured grotesque figures. Many of the hotel guests are in the theatrical profession and sleep late. There was one man clad in a Winter overcoat, below which two bare legs trembled in the breeze. Over his arm he carried his wardrobe. Cautiously he made his way down the fire escape, touching the iron rungs as though they were swords. On another fire escape was a woman, scantily clad, hugging her pet dog and yelling "Help!" The crowd on the escapes looked as though they had just been awakened out of a sound sleep. Though scared, there was no panic among them, and nobody thought of jumping.

Quickly a big crowd gathered along Broadway, Seventh Avenue, and Forty-second Street. The crowded condition of the fire escapes started some one in the crowd to a telephone, and he notified the police and the New York and Roosevelt Hospitals.

"Hundreds of guests are jumping out of the windows!" was his message.

The reserves of several precincts were hurried to the scene and the hospitals sent two ambulances each. The reserves had their hands full handling the big crowd on the street, but the ambulance surgeons had little to do, as nobody jumped and every one got down safely, the smoke disappearing almost as quickly as it arose.

Many of the guests, when they got down, ran up to the surgeons and demanded to be revived. They got a good whiff of smelling salts and went away. Among the guests there elbowed one person, dressed as a waitress, who cried continually, "I hurted meself. I fell from der foist floor-r ter der secind. Oh—oh!" Dr. Truesdale of the New York Hospital examined her and found that she had several slight injuries. He took her to the hospital.

Two alarms were turned in for the fire. The firemen found that the fire had not gotten above the first floor. They quickly confined it to the cellar. Several streams were played into the cellar, and then some firemen ventured into it. They found the smoke coming from the baggage room, between the kitchen and the engine room. In an hour the last spark was out. The fire, apparently, started in the baggage room, where seventy-five trunks were stored. Proprietor McNulty said that some of these had been in the room for a year or more, having been left behind by guests whose bills were never paid. The value of the contents of the trunks could not be ascertained.

Value in Champagne.

The best Champagne obtainable is a Vintage Wine, the first pressing of selected fruit of a favorable year. The growth of 1898 was considered one of the choicest yields of recent years, and the wine produced is of an exceptionally good quality.

When entertaining friends it is evidence of Champagne knowledge to call for

It costs no more than ordinary brands, but its quality is much superior.

POLICE BILL WINS IN SENATE, 40 TO 9

Bingham Measure Now Goes to the Governor for His Approval.

TAMMANY RANKS BROKEN

Two Manhattan Democrats Vote with the Majority—McCarren Defends McClellan.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—With only nine votes recorded in the negative against an affirmative vote of forty, the Bingham Police bill passed the Senate to-day after a debate in which Senators Grady, McCarren, and Cohalan led in a bitter attack on the measure with practically all the Tammany members of the upper house joining in.

Not a single Republican vote was cast against the Bingham bill, though it had not, as in the Assembly, been made a party measure in any sense of that word. The few Republicans who had been suspected of opposition to the bill hurried to cover before the final line-up. All the up-State Democrats voted for the bill. With the exception of Senators McCarren and Cullen of Brooklyn, all who voted against the bill were Tammany members. At that the line was not unbroken. Senator Owens, who comes from Percy Nagle's and Senator McCall from the Sixteenth Senatorial District, where Maurice Featherson is leader, voted for the bill. Those who voted against it were Cohalan, Cullen, Frawley, Grady, McCarren, McManus, Mullaney, Sohmer, and Sullivan.

Senator Cohalan furnished the sensation of the debate by a bitter attack on Mayor McClellan, whom he declared to be the real author of the Bingham bill, alleging that he wanted it passed for political reasons.

That attack on the Mayor was resented with great spirit by Senator McCarren, who, though opposed to the bill, called Cohalan to order sharply. Incidentally there was considerable reference to the recount proposition which is now before the Legislature in a bill which passed the Assembly last week and will come up in the Senate before the present week is over.

McCarren dwelt at length on his frequently voiced objection that while burglaries and other crimes against life and property are of frequent occurrence, practically the entire police force is employed in suppressing gambling and excise violations.

"There has been no appeal to reason by the friends of this bill," said Senator Grady. "Their campaign began with the cry of boodle. There is not a newspaper correspondent in this chamber who is not sufficiently on the alert to know when the man with the dough, not the man with the hoe, comes around. They all know that he has not been here and that all the boodle talk is absurd. The time has not come to a pass yet where justice must be bought from the Legislature. What of the men who would have the public believe that the Police Inspector, in order to get the same justice at our hand that you would give to your office boy, would have to come here with a bribe in his hand?"

Senator Sohmer offered an amendment to the bill giving the Commissioner power to reduce inspectors in rank after trial, and providing for a court review. This was promptly defeated by a vote of 28 to 10.

Senator Cohalan said he was opposed to the bill for the reason that it would destroy civil service, and for the further reason that it would not accomplish the purpose the advocates of the bill desired to see accomplished.

"The third reason," said Cohalan, "is which this bill emanates, and I am because I am against the source from against the people who I believe are back of this bill. I think it emanated from the man who is the greatest living disgrace we have had in American citizenship for many years, the man who has degraded the office of Mayor of the City of New York more basely and meanly than any other man who has held that public office in the City of New York; a man who has stood up and opposed the will of the majority of the people in New York City, a man who has shown that he is without the manhood and decency, when he is attacked by the people of this State and the people of the United States generally; who hasn't the manhood and decency to come out and say that, knowing he was not elected to that office, he had the manhood and decency and honor and self-respect of an American citizen to refuse to hold it."

"The people of the City of New York," said Saxe, "are disgusted with police conditions. The crooks are better organized than the police. Commissioner Bingham has said: 'Give me this law and I will give New York a good police administration.' Well, now, we have given him that. I am glad that my Republican friends are so anxious to give New York what the people of New York want."

BINGHAM IS GRATIFIED.

Mayor Probably Will Hold Public Hearing Before Signing Police Bill.

Police Commissioner Bingham had very little to say yesterday about the passage of his Police bill. As to his plans concerning the moving of Inspectors, he declined to say a word until he had been notified officially that the bill had become a law.

"While the Senate has passed the bill," said the Commissioner, "the matter has not yet been clinched. The nails have not yet been clinched, although they have been driven well through the plank. When I am officially notified that the bill has become a law I will issue an order relating to such Inspectors and Captains as may be affected by any changes that are to be made. I need hardly say that I am very much gratified at the Senate's action."

Commissioner Bingham refused to say what he intended to do about the Detective Bureau. The bill gives him power to abolish the bureau, put detectives back in uniform, and appoint new detectives from the ranks. It authorizes the appointment of a civilian to the head of the bureau, and gives the Commissioner power to reduce nineteen Inspectors to the rank of Captain, although they still will get the Inspectors' pay, while the Commissioner can promote Captains to Inspectorships.

When the news of the passage of the Bingham Police bill through the Senate reached the City Hall yesterday, Mayor McClellan was asked what comment he had to make.

"I am very much gratified," said the Mayor.

After being returned to the Assembly for repassage and being signed by Gov. Hughes, the bill will come to Mayor McClellan for his signature. It is probable that he will hold a public hearing on it in about ten days.

STRATEGY OF McCARREN.

He Kept His Promise to Inspectors, Yet Didn't Offend the Mayor.

Did the Police Inspectors get a thinly plated gold brick from Senator McCarren? This question was being asked last night by Brooklyn politicians who have been watching the progress of the Bingham Police bill in the Legislature. In certain circles there seemed to be a disposition to return an affirmative answer to the query.

One of the things which led some of the politicians to believe that the statesman from Williamsburg had neatly fooled the Inspectors was the attitude of Senators Hasenflug and Thompson to the bill. McCarren strenuously opposed the measure on the floor of the Senate, while Thompson and Hasenflug unhesitatingly voted for it.

Both Hasenflug and Thompson owe most of their political standing to the friendship of McCarren. They are among the most faithful of his followers, and have stood with him in matters of legislation. This is particularly true of Hasenflug, who keeps his grip on his district chiefly through the support and influence of Senator McCarren. Mr. McCarren, apparently, was bitterly opposed to the Bingham bill. He seemed to be exerting every effort to kill it. Politicians were wondering last night, therefore, why Thompson and Hasenflug voted with the enemy and against their chief.

A rumor, purporting to be an explanation of what was regarded as a strange situation, was abroad in Brooklyn last night. It was to the effect that Senator McCarren himself did not earnestly seek the death of the bill. It was said that in the beginning he pledged his word to the Inspectors to oppose the measure, but he made no promise for his Democratic associates from Brooklyn. The Inspectors, apparently, did not feel that any promise in that connection was needed, believing that Hasenflug and Thompson would, as usual, be with McCarren.

According to the "explanation" which was being passed around last night, Senator McCarren became convinced almost at the outset that the Republicans would put the bill through, and the fight he made was merely to "make good" his word to the Inspectors. The effect of his opposition to the bill, however, was completely nullified by the votes of Hasenflug and Thompson, and the possibility of a rupture of the pleasant political relations existing between the Brooklyn leader and Mayor McClellan was thus avoided. McCarren kept his pledge to the Inspectors, and at the same time, through the votes of Hasenflug and Thompson, remained "solid" at the City Hall. The vote of the Democratic Senators from Kings was three to five for the bill.

POINT FOR LOCAL OPTION.

Winters's Motion to Disagree with Report is Carried 78 to 42.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—The advocates of local option in cities won a skirmish in the Assembly to-day, when, by a vote of 78 to 42, the motion of Assemblyman Winters to disagree with the report of the Excise Committee was carried. The committee had reported to the House that it proposed to amend the Local Option bill so that its provisions should not apply to Pullman cars or steamboats when passing through local option territory.

Assemblyman Winters declared his belief that such a report indicated a policy of delay which might prove fatal. He made a fight, therefore, to disagree with the report of the committee. Winters gave notice that he would move to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill. When this is made, the annual battle between the Anti-Saloon League people and the hotel and liquor interests of the State will be waged on the floor.

Several legislators who voted with Winters to-day in order that he might keep his bill in the shape he desired, made it plain that they would not vote for it if it were dragged out on the floor. There are indications that this year the fight will be closer than last, with the temperence people winning as then, but that they will labor harder in the Senate as a result of the close struggle.

After an hour's fight by the minority leader to-day, the Republicans in the Assembly called in all their votes, and, despite his continued protests, passed the Stanley Police Clerk's bill. The bill was admitted by its sponsor, Young of New York, to be plain unvarnished partisan legislation, but he called on the Republicans to stand together for those of their party, as Democrats stand together for those of their kind. The measure prevents the going out of office of some half dozen Republican Magistrates' court clerks whose terms expire this year, and provides that they shall serve "during good behavior."

Governor to Review the Police.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 2.—Gov. Hughes has accepted the invitation to review the police parade in New York City on May 11. On the same evening he will address the Young Men's Republican Club of Brooklyn.

HUGHES ON HOME RULE.

Says Legislature Has Right to Protect Citizens Against Injustice.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—Gov. Hughes to-day signed the bill passed over the veto of Mayor McClellan, which places on the city the burden of expense for the widening of Livingston Street, Brooklyn. The Governor filed a memorandum with the bill, which now has become a law, which is interesting because it reflects his views on the question of home rule for cities. Here it is in part:

"It is manifest that gross injustice has been done by the assessment. The area of benefit is arbitrarily defined and the assessments present grotesque inequalities. On an appeal to the Legislature this bill was passed, and not having been accepted by the Mayor of the city, has been repassed.

"The argument that the bill because of its mandatory provisions assails home rule does not seem to me—with due respect to the opinion of the Mayor, who is justly tenacious of the principle—to be well founded. Home rule is not inconsistent with the protection by the Legislature of the rights of the citizens of a municipality where the action of the local authorities is clearly unjust."

PLAN OF KELSEY'S FRIENDS.

Would Hold Case Over and Swap Votes on the Utilities Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—The Senate Judiciary Committee will bring up at its legislative session to-morrow forenoon the question as to whether State Superintendent of Insurance Otto Kelsey should be permitted to call the large array of witnesses his counsel have in contemplation to disprove the accusation made by Gov. Hughes that he was lacking in force and initiative. It is generally believed that Kelsey's friends, who seem to be in a majority on the committee, have already determined that question in his favor, and that the meeting to-morrow will be little more than a formality.

After this decision formally has been made, Senator Raines, who now has taken active charge of the whitewashing of Kelsey, in all probability will insist on his own plan that the committee report to the full Senate its plan of procedure and ask for the power to subpoenae witnesses, and for an appropriation to defray the cost of a long-drawn-out hearing.

This will give the Governor's enemies in the Senate what they are looking for just now—a delay which will enable them to hold the Kelsey case in abeyance until the public utilities bill shall come up for final passage toward the end of the session, and use that situation for all it is worth in the way of vote swapping.

SAYS ROE IS OPPOSED TO GUARD INQUIRY

Henry's Declaration in Asking That Wainwright Bill Be Reported.

HIT AT ADJUTANT GENERAL

Frisbie Asserts That Henry is Working for His Own Interests in National Guard Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—That the old guard of the Senate, led by John Raines, is not to have its own way in the Finance Committee developed to-day. It would appear that the friends of Gov. Hughes are determined to have another showdown on the Wainwright National Guard Investigation bill which, when it was held up last week in the committee, served as a vehicle for a widely heralded victory for the old guard, which is undouhtedly opposed to the Governor on many of his policies.

Adjutant Gen. Henry appeared before the Finance Committee and begged that the Wainwright hill he reported out. The Adjutant General was questioned at length. The upshot of his replies was that Major Gen. Charles F. Roe is opposed to an investigation of the National Guard, and that his opposition is of sufficient import to put him in the light of having him appear as the Governor's chief opponent.

"The purpose of the investigation," said the Adjutant General, "is not to unearth any scandal or bring to the surface eny individual. The Governor, as Commander in Chief of the Guard, has no power to order such an investigation as is desired, except on specific charges."

Senator Cassidy inquired:

"Is there no power in the Guard to frame such suggestions for improvement as may seem best, and present them to the Legislature? This would save the $13,000, which is about $1 a head, for the investigation."

"If the officer at the head of the guard does not take the initiative," replied the Adjutant General, "there is an unwritten law which prevents any subordinate officer from doing so."

Asked if he meant Gen. Roe, the Adjutant General replied that he did. He declared that Gen. Roe did not like the Dick law, which makes the guard an adjunct of the regular army.

"If you want merely a State constabulary, I can organize it at a third of the expense of the present National Guard," said the Adjutant General.

A bitter personal attack was made on the Adjutant General in the Assembly to-day, by Frisbie of Schenectady. It developed over one of the military reform measures sponsored by Chairman Wells of the Committee on Military Affairs. The legislation is generally believed to embody the reform ideas of Gov. Hughes and the Adjutant General of the State militia.

"I ask that this bill be put on the laid aside calendar for the reason that the Adjutant General has sought by improper methods to influence my action as a legislator," said Frisbie with some emphasis. "They are special bills and will do the guard no good. They have been introduced by the Adjutant General for special purposes of his own."

On a rising vote of 32 to 27, Frisbie's motion prevailed, and the bill was put over on the laid-aside calendar.

Adjt. Gen. Henry would say nothing about the charges of Assemblyman Frisbie.

CANAL BOARD A JOKE.

So Declares Supt. Stevens, Who Tells of an Extraordinary Incident.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—The Canal Advisory Board, consisting of E. A. Bond, T. W. Symons, E. L. Corthell, W. A. Brackenridge, and A. B. Fry, all of whom draw salaries about as large as that of the Governor, received a black eye to-day from Superintendent of Public Works Stevens, who declared that the board was something of a joke.

He told of having submitted certain plans to the board, a set going to the home of the various members. Within twelve hours the plans were returned signed by four members.

"Now," said Mr. Stevens, "one of the Commissioners was in Buffalo, another in Washington, another in New York, and another in Watertown. As I am not aware of a wireless device whereby signatures could be gathered from such distant parts, I am forced to the conclusion that these certificates of approval must have been signed in advance, so that the Chairman could attach them to any plans that might be submitted."

The Finance Committee was somewhat shocked at this declaration of Supt. Stevens.

Mr. Stevens asked the committee to consider that the Advisory Board has no power, and without power he believed such a body was useless. The attack on the commission came in an argument on bills relating to the powers of the State Superintendent of Public Works and the State Surveyor on the barge canal. It is questioned whether the Stevens attack will not be used by the Hughes men as an argument for the abolishment of the Advisory Board.

SCOFF AT HUGHES'S SPEECH.

Gentle Shower Rather Than the Deluge, Opposing Senators Say.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—Members of the "old guard" in the Senate regard with skepticism the speech of Gov. Hughes last night before the Utica Chamber of Commerce, which is looked upon in some quarters as his threatened "appeal to the people."

"It was a gentle April shower rather than the deluge,'" was the way one of the old guard cynics put it to-night.

One argument that will be put forward against the hill will be that the power of removal is left entirely in the Governor's hand. This will be played up by the representatives of the corporations as a grave danger and injustice, and it will be pointed out that the Commissioners appointed by the Governor will be entirely the creatures of any man who may chance to occupy the executive chair and subject to his caprices.

To-night Assemblyman Young introduced a bill in the lower house which will render the telegraph and telephone companies subject to the same control under which the Public Utilities hill places other public service corporations.

ALDERMEN FAVOR THE RECOUNT BILL

Adopt Resolutions Urging the Legislature to Pass the Measure.

SLUR ON MR. CLEVELAND

President McGowan Forces Peters to Withdraw Objectionable Remarks —Speculators' Ordinance Goes Over.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday passed a resolution supporting the Mayoralty Recount hill now before the Legislature at Albany, and calling upon the State Senate to concur in the action taken by the Assembly on the measure. The resolution went through with practicelly no debate and with little opposition.

Alderman Charles L. Kuck of Brooklyn introduced the resolution at the tail end of the session after many of the Tammany men had left the chamber. "Little Tim" Sullivan, with a broad smile, suggested that the measure take the usual course and be referred to a committee. Mr. Kuck objected to this, and wanted immediate consideration. After a short debate the latter course was adopted, the opposition of Sullivan being half-hearted and evidently meant more as a joke than anything else.

The resolution was as follows:

Whereas, The Assembly of the State of New York has passed a bill to provide for a judicial recount and recanvass of the votes cast for the office of Mayor of the City of New York at the election held in November, 1905, which bill is now before the Senate, and,

Whereas, Public opinion has so crystallized in favor of this proposition that the people of the City of New York demand that the much-mooted question involved be settled once and for all, that the allegations charging that the will of the electorate of our municipality had been thwarted be determined, and that the cloud of scandal surrounding the election of the Chief Magistrate of the first city of the Western Hemisphere be dispelled;

Therefore, Resolved that the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York, mindful alone of the aspersion that this much-vexed question casts upon the fairness of elections as held in the City of New York, calls upon the State Senate for concurrence in the action of the Assembly on said bill;

Be it Resolved that a copy hereof, duly authenticated by the City Clerk, be transmitted forthwith to the State Senate.

A resolution supporting the Public Utilities bill, also before the Legislature, was introduced by Alderman Peters and passed without comment.

Peters, following what has come to be the usual course, got into a wrangle with President McGowan. When the question of naming the plaza in front of the new Manhattan Bridge "Cleveland Square" came up, the Alderman who figured in the Clifford bribery case spoke as follows:

"We don't forget the dark days of 1894 when the back door of the White House was open to Wall Street influences. I do not believe in perpetuating the name of the 'Sage of Princeton,' the 'Stuffed Prophet of the Democratic Party.'"

President McGowan brought his gavel down hard and demanded that the last words be withdrawn. Peters refused, and Mr. McGowan said he would not recognize the Alderman again until the remark was withdrawn. Peters said he would insist on his "constitutional rights." There was a long silence in the board and finally Peters withdrew the remark "at the solicitation of Alderman Sullivan." He also voted in favor of the resolution because it effected Sullivan's district.

The Aldermen took no action on the proposed theatre speculator ordinance, but after a wrangle decided to consider the whole matter at the next meeting.

SURROUNDED LONE BURGLAR.

Two Policemen Get Automobile Party's Aid in the Capture.

Two mounted policemen and an automobile party of men co-operated in the capture of a burglar on Riverside Drive near 176th Street early yesterday morning. They got a prisoner in the person of Charles Nykoly, 32 years old, a sailor, who said he had gone into the Summer home of William H. Hurst, at Riverside Drive and Depot Lane, to sleep. When he was arraigned in court the policemen showed Magistrate Finelite a lot of burglar's tools which they said they found in Nykoly's possession.

Nykoly said that the tools did not belong to him, but he was held. Afterward Policeman Trall, one of his captors, said that while he was riding along the drive he noticed a ladder against an open window in the second story of Mr. Hurst's home. After looking the place over, he decided that he needed assistance and rode to 188th Street, where he found Mounted Policeman Cavanaugh. Together they reconnoitred and decided they needed more help. Then Policeman Cavanaugh stopped an automobile and impressed the men in it to help. Posting them about the house, the policemen entered and captured Nykoly.

Two weeks ago the same house was entered by burglars and $1,500 worth of silverware stolen.

JOHN DOE PROBE NOW FOR POOLROOM MEN

Jerome to Have Those Caught In Fulton Street Raid on the Rack To-day.

GRADY MAY COME NEXT

A Raid in Cedar Street Supplies Another Link Against Syndicate.

Senator Thomas F. Grady is not likely to be present at the preliminary hearing on the downtown poolroom cases which will be held before Magistrate Barlow in the Criminal Court Building this morning. He is not really wanted very badly for this hearing, because only those men who are willing to testify as to what they know of the workings of the syndicate are desired, and the District Attorney, as well as his assistant, Mr. Vandiver, are strongly of the opinion that the Senator is not one of these willing persons.

Both Mr. Jerome and his assistant admitted the possibility yesterday that Senator Grady would ultimately be placed on the same footing, from a legal point of view, as several others who will be identified as having a direct interest in the poolroom syndicate, and that he would certainly be asked in what relation he stands, or thinks he stands, to the man who is down in the ledgers procured in the raid on the downtown poolroom headquarters as "T. G.," "T. Grady," "Grady," and "Sen. G."

Assistant District Attorney Vandiver said specifically, however, that no subpoena had been issued for the Senator. He said a day or two ago that he had no doubt that when he wanted Senator Grady the Senator would come to see him.

The hearing will be in the nature of a John Doe proceeding. The principals who were taken in the raid at 112 Fulton Street will be there also for their preliminary hearing. The names these men gave at the time of their arrest were Edward A. Fisher, Charles A. Reilly, Robert J. Johnson, Louis Meyer, Alexander Lange and Charles F. Reilly.

In addition the two young women taken in the Keator raid at 47 Broadway, Clara Robinson and Erna Sanntrock, will also be on hand, and will probably testify. Several of the men about town who have been mentioned as having been subpoenaed will also be there, although most of them are out of town.

After the Big Fish.

Some steadfast, if not heroic, conduct is expected along this line. The District Attorney is after the big fish in this instance, and the question is who will testify and who will not; in other words, who will choose to be declared in contempt, or tell what he knows about the poolroom syndicate in the financial centre of the city. That this is only one branch with several subsidiary rooms, nearly everybody connected with the inquiry believes. Just now the District Attorney is after the rest, of which 112 Fulton Street was merely the clearing house.

Some subpoenas were added to those which have already been sent out in consequence of another raid which was made yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Vandiver, though Deputy Police Commissioner Hanson also had a hand in the job. Mr. Vandiver was after the telephone service, which is so useful in certain kinds of poolroom work.

He thought he had hit upon a very good clue yesterday when he, with several of his assistants, kicked in the doors on the third floor of 157 Cedar Street, although, as he confessed afterward, the raiding of the place only supplied one of the missing links in the chain of evidence which he has.

Prosecutor Makes Some Bets.

In this place the Assistant District Attorney made several bets on horses himself for awhile. He is pretty well up in the secret code and the parlance of racecourse betting by this time, and he would have gotten along fairly well had he been able to change his voice.

The man at the other end of the wire discovered in several instances, however, that the secret number which Vandiver gave did not fit his voice, and the last bet was off. The plan worked good enough, however, for the Assistant District Attorney to add about ten subpoenas to his list.

There were five telephones in this place, and incidentally also five men. Of the five men three were arrested. They gave their names as follows:

Henry Newman, John Mack, and Nathaniel Jacobs, all claiming to live in Newark, N. J. Newman was charged with keeping and maintaining a poolroom, and Mack and Jacobs with aiding and abetting the maintenance of the establishment. The two other men in the place were subpoenaed and told to be at the hearing.

The raid was made over Capt. Gallagher's head, the prisoners being locked up in the Church Street Station.

The raid did not reveal the telephone central for which the District Attorney is seeking. It only served to prove what has already been said in this connection —namely, that the telephone central is over in New Jersey.

How the Profits Were Divided.

A good deal of figuring was done at the Criminal Court Building during the day over the syndicate ledger entries to try to determine on what basis the men divided. That "T. G." got 16 per cent. monthly only seemed absolutely clear. The quotient of an involved example by a mathematical expert was like this, figured on one of the syndicate's biggest months:

R. H. D.	40 per cent.
C. R.	22 per cent.
T. G.	16 per cent.
J. P. R.	16 per cent.
M. J. R.	6 per cent.

The Assistant District Attorney continued yesterday with his investigations of the bank accounts of the men suspected as being connected with the syndicate. As has been said before, he places great stock on this portion of his evidence, which shows to whom the money went. He has had little trouble with the various banks, which have cheerfully lent him all the aid possible, with the exception of one uptown bank.

This bank, he said, had telephoned him that the men whom he was asking about had withdrawn their accounts on March 27. Mr. Vandiver said that he could not quite understand this, because one or two of the accounts which he had asked about were held by men who were in Europe on the date when they were said to have withdrawn them.

Mr. Vandiver said that no men of prominence had been added during the day to those who had already been subpoenaed. He did say, however, that S. Ambrose Clark, who had been mentioned on the day before as being desired by him as a witness, was not wanted, but that a man by the name of F. S. Clark would help him some if he testified.

It was said yesterday by one of the lawyers for the defendants that the claim of the man who had charge of the W. D. Miller & Co. establishment at 108 Fulton Street, which was also raided, will be that the concern is merely a turf news distributing agency, which is incorporated under the laws of the State of Maine, the main office being in New Jersey.

Attachment Against Promoter.

Deputy Sheriff O'Neil has received an attachment for $2,700 against Matthew L. Harney in favor of William J. Weston for money paid to Mr. Harney, it is alleged, on representations that he was the owner of a chemical process for the extraction of gold and silver from ore. Mr. Weston put up the money and was to get 5,000 shares of stock of the Colorado Chemical Amalgamating Company and 4,250 shares of New Mexico Chemical Amalgamating Company when organized. Later Mr. Weston tried to get his money back, but failed. He learned that Mr. Harney left this city for Denver on Feb. 7 and the attachment was obtained. The Sheriff attached a bank account of about $200.

Mrs. Anthony Barrett Robbed.

Thieves entered 21 Brevoort Place, Brooklyn, the home of Mrs. Jane T. Barrett, widow of Anthony Barrett, once a well-known business man of the borough, early yesterday morning and carried off jewelry valued at $2,000. They forced open the front door and ransacked the rooms on the second and third floors.

STRIKE ON THE NEW HAVEN.

400 Roving Section Hands Try to Intimidate Other Laborers.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 2.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company has an odd strike of section laborers on its hands. It started at the Harlem River suddenly yesterday, and a roving band of strikers is endeavoring to spread it all along the New York division. Armed with shovels and sticks the strikers march along the tracks in a body, and when they come across a section gang they force the men to quit work and join them in the march or go to their homes.

In cases where the men choose to go home they are made to promise that they will not return to work until the trouble is settled. Four hundred had been induced to join the strike at noon to-day, when railroad detectives arrived in Stamford from New Haven and dispersed the strikers. Save for Portchester and Greenwich, every section between Harlem River and Darien is without laborers. It is feared that the trouble will spread to the east to-morrow. Some of the Stamford iron laborers, who were unwilling to join the strikers, were beaten by the roving band, and one of the strikers fired two pistol shots in the air to intimidate them.

An attempt was made here to-night a section boss said, to make up a work train and go to the relief of a wreck near Harlem River. Fifty strikers surrounded the train, and the leaders threatened to knife the first man who stepped aboard. The boss of the gang was the only passenger when the train pulled out. The men are striking for an increase in wages from $1.50 to $2 a day, but are unorganized.

C. D. Perkins, roadmaster of the New York division, said to-night that the same sort of trouble was experienced four years ago. At that time the roving bands marched as far as Westhaven, where the police broke them up and put an end to the strike.

MAY AVERT ROAD STRIKE.

Western Managers and Employes to Renew Conferences.

CHICAGO, April 2.—The possibility of a settlement between the Western railroads and their conductors and trainmen brightened to-day, when the leaders of the two organizations of employes announced their willingness to resume the conferences, which were broken off some days ago. The first of the renewed conferences probably will be held to-morrow.

Chairman Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and Commissioner Neill of the United States Labor Bureau, who have been acting as mediators, had made arrangements to leave to-day for Washington, but when the announcement was made that the employes were willing to meet the managers once more the Federal officials canceled reservations on an afternoon train and expressed their intention of remaining indefinitely.

The committeemen representing the unions were in session with Messrs. Knapp and Neill during the afternoon. After the adjournment Grand Master Morrissey of the Trainmen said:

"We have reopened our negotiations for conciliation, and will have another meeting to-morrow. We have received a message from the General Managers, but I can say nothing regarding its nature at this time."

It is reported that the General Managers have agreed to grant to the men an increase of 12 per cent., which is the full amount of the advance demanded. This, however, could not be confirmed at the headquarters of the General Managers' committee.

Student Chauffeur Too Speedy.

Cuno Wenk, who is a student in the chauffeurs' school in the West Side Young Men's Christian Association, was arrested last night on Broadway and Forty-fourth Street by a traffic squad policeman for exceeding the speed limit. Wenk was using the school machine known as "The Training Ship," and the policeman said that it was going at the rate of twenty miles an hour.

YOUNG VOTERS TAKE THE FREEMAN'S OATH

Promise to Support Country's Interests at the People's Institute.

JUDGE GROSSCUP HEARD

Chicago Judge Tells Cooper Union Audience Corporations Are on the Way to Better Things.

More than 2,000 young men who have reached the voting age stood up in Cooper Union last night and took the Freeman's oath to support the best interests of the United States Government. It was a voters' festival, arranged for young men, under the auspices of the People's Institute, and was modeled after similar gatherings held every year in Boston.

The meeting was presided over by Prof. Charles Sprague Smith, the managing director of the Institute. Prof. Smith introduced as the first speaker Judge Peter S. Grosscup of the United States Court of Appeals, who discussed corporate control. After speaking of the commercial growth of America, the Judge said:

Judge Grosscup's Speech.

"Mr. Ryan is reported to have said a few days ago that the railroads of the country were owned by the people of the country. In a large sense that is true. The bonds that have built and equipped the railroads are owned by the people in considerable amounts. The people own, too, the great bulk of the wealth in the form of deposits in banks, insurance companies, and the like that is largely utilized by railroad owners, in the way of loans, to carry their securities. But neither in the railroad world nor the corporation world generally have the people obtained any real part in the power and advantage that go with actual proprietorship. The hand may be the hand of Esau, but the voice is the voice of Jacob. And it is upon this great fact—the ninety and nine furnishing the means, but practically deprived of participating in the power and advantage of the country's incorporated property—that the great questions of our future hinge.

"How shall genuine reform be brought about? The corporation is here to stay. To destroy it would be as if our fathers, instead of reforming government that it might open up avenues to the individual man, had destroyed government, altogether. No, no, my young friends, it is not the destroyer that we should invoke, nor a continuance of the whirlwind of passion and misunderstanding, nor, on the other hand, the dead calm that would be followed only by another and more destructive whirlwind. It is the rebuilder that we must invoke; that reconstruction of the corporation, that opening up to the middle American an opportunity to work out his instinct for an individual independence of his own, will eventually transform the great new life that the corporation embodies, as government was transformed, into something that the people will proudly sustain, because the people's industrial life will then be something that really belongs to them—something into which hope and aspiration pour, as well as toil and self-denials. In some of the State Legislatures bills have already appeared for the reformation of the corporation on the lines indicated. Gov. Hughes seems to have taken partial hold; though limiting his attention to public utility corporations. Gov. Deneen is moving in Illinois. These movements are in the right spirit. They show that underneath the present confusion something practicable is stirring; that the winds that are now whirling may settle soon into steady forward forces.

"Mr. Harriman, in a recent interview, voicing I have no doubt the judgment of other railroad men, appeals also to the Nation to modify the Sherman Anti-trust act, to the extent that that act prohibits railroads from making contracts respecting the distribution of their freight. That appeal, I think, ought to be heard and calmly discussed.

"But when the railroad corporations thus appeal to the Nation for protection against what they deem ill-considered or hasty legislation by the people of the States; and when they appeal to the Nation to think over anew the justice or advisability of applying anti-trust restrictions to corporations that are under the regulation of Government, it is fitting that the case of the people against the corporations should also be heard; that the appeal should be so rounded out that it would settle, finally and comprehensively, the relations of the corporations to the people of the country, for, after all, it was not the personal wealth of Mr. Harriman or Mr. Stillman or their predecessors in financial strategy that built these roads; it was by the wealth of the middle Americans, loaned to these men through the financial institutions of the country, that the roads were built."

Judge Grosscup was informed of the outcome of the Chicago election, and questions were asked him about it. He said that the people had chosen in favor of things that had been tried, instead of a new order of things wholly untried. He discussed the street railway war in Chicago, which he said was largely an inheritance from Mr. Yerkes.

Jacob A. Riis, the settlement worker and friend of President Roosevelt, who was the next speaker, said, among other things, that the men down in Wall Street did about as they pleased, but that the people were now trying to teach them that they cannot do as they please any longer. He said he had a friend in Washington who was keeping tabs on things, meaning President Roosevelt.

He said he had seen two men in consultation with the President last Summer at Oyster Bay. They were bemoaning present conditions and telling the President that something had better be done, as the country was going to the bow-wows.

The President listened to them for two hours and while they were there little Archie Roosevelt went to his father and whispered in his ear. Archie said: "Will you come down to the barn and play with the boys?" meaning Archie's playmates.

"And after the visitors had left," Mr. Riis said, "the President, instead of worrying about what they had told him, went down to the barn and played with the boys."

The Rev. Dr. Robert Collyer, the next speaker, gave the young voters some good advice, ending with administering the Freeman's oath to them.

ROCKEFELLER TONIC SOLD.

Spirited Bidding at Customs Auction for Hair Restorer.

All roads yesterday led to the Appraiser's Warehouse, at Washington and Christopher Streets, the attraction being the semi-annual sale of unclaimed and abandoned imported merchandise, held by the Government in the Seizure Room. No cards of admission were needed, and longshoremen and richly dressed women jostled each other, while dealers in all kinds of articles met in warm competition. Uncle Sam's press agent, who in this instance was Deputy Collector J. H. Storey, holds a position in the Customs Service akin to that retained for so many years by "Pony" Hamilton, late of "The Greatest Show on Earth."

Col. Storey labored incessantly for several weeks before the auction to call the attention of the public to the bargains to be found at the Federal Stores. In the interval before the opening of the sale conversation related to the hair oil and candy sent to John D. Rockefeller, Santos-Dumont's abandoned airship, and Bostock's stuffed chimpanzee Consul. After the women had been seated on inverted dry goods boxes, kegs, and barrels, Auctioneer Sheldon began the proceedings.

As the auctioneer announced "one case, three bottles of hair tonic, value $2.25," there was a rush to bid. The explanation lay in the fact that somebody—said to be a chemist in Berlin—hearing of John D. Rockefeller's desire for an effective hair invigorator, sent the preparation to the Standard Oil magnats. Mr. Rockefeller was notified of the arrival of the package, but declined to pay the duties and Post Office charges, aggregating 45 cents.

The Dumont airship was not reached on the list, and it will be sold to-day, with the stuffed monkey.

At the close of the bidding yesterday the Government had taken in several thousand dollars. The auction will be continued to-day, beginning at 10 o'clock. It is expected that all the offerings will be disposed of to-day.

GERMANS SEE RIVER TUNNEL.

Hamburg Engineers Walk Under Water from Here to Weehawken.

The three engineers sent here by the City of Hamburg to study the tunnel work in progress above the North River tubes of the Pennsylvania Railroad for first inspection. They walked through one of the twin tubes from the shaft at Eleventh Avenue, Manhattan, to Weehawken. Later they examined the big terminal excavation between Seventh and Ninth Avenues and Thirty-first and Thirty-third Streets.

The Germans' investigation of American methods of tunnel building is due to the City of Hamburg's intention to build a tunnel under the River Elbe. To-day the visitors are to inspect the East River tunnels of the Pennsylvania and the crosstown section under Manhattan Island.

SUICIDE LEFT $10,000,000.

William H. Proctor's Property to be Divided Among His Children.

WESTERLY, R. I., April 2.—The will of William H. Proctor, the soap manufacturer, who committed suicide in Cincinnati recently, was filed in the Probate Court here to-day. It directs that the property, amounting to $10,000,000, be divided equally among his five children. There are no public bequests.

Mr. Proctor had a Summer cottage at Watch Hill and a residence here, but spent most of his time in Cincinnati.

WOMAN LED FIGHT AGAINST SALOONS

Mrs. Stackpole Posted Bills Before Breakfast in Riverhead Contest.

PARSON LESS ENERGETIC

Clergyman Rival to W. C. T. U. Leader Merely Argued with Voters—No Result Till To-morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., April 2.—In a blinding snowstorm this morning Mrs. George F. Stackpole, wife of ex-Justice of the Peace Stackpole of Riverhead, left her home at an hour that was early even for country folk to be out. Under one arm she had tucked a thick roll of posters that she had had printed. Under the other she had a hammer. Mrs. Stackpole, who had been fighting against the proposal to license the liquor saloons of the Town of Riverhead ever since the Rev. William A. Wasson, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, sounded the note in favor of license the middle of last month, was determined she would fire the last gun in the campaign, snow or no snow. She went busily about from tree to tree, and the merry tap-tap of her hammer brought not a few from their breakfast tables to the windows to see who was so eager to post signs at such an early hour.

Mrs. Stackpole left her house before 6 o'clock. The storm had no terrors for her, and she continued her posting until the snow was dispelled by the sun. Between whiles she stopped all voters who passed and asked them to vote the no-license ticket. She is President of the W. C. T. U. and felt that her duty compelled her to participate actively in the campaign, especially on the day of election.

"I have but one regret," said Mrs. Stackpole to some of the men. "If the women of Riverhead had votes we would not need to ask any help from the men to keep this old town dry. But, as we are denied votes, we must do the best we can for the town by trying to influence others to vote the right way."

The Rev. William A. Wasson, whose letter advocating license was responsible for the stirring up of the entire town over the question of selling liquor, cast his own ballot quite early. He did not attempt to influence voters near the voting places, but carried out his expressed intention to work for license among the voters, nevertheless. Some, displeased that a clergyman should advocate a license, expressed their determination to vote no license, notwithstanding the fact that they were known to have regularly allied themselves with the other camp before.

The hotel men and saloonkeepers whose licenses were taken away years ago when the town went "dry" have been watching the fight interestedly. The Rev. Mr. Wasson's contention has been that liquor has been sold without legal license just as it was with it, and that license would be simple honesty.

The Democrats will control the Suffolk County Board of Supervisors as a result of the elections. The old board consists of five Republicans and five Democrats. The new board will contain six Democrats and four Republicans.

OYSTER BAY FOR LIQUOR.

"Wet" Ticket Beats the "Dry" by at Least 500 Majority.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 2.—The town of Oyster Bay decided, by a decisive vote to-day, that it wanted liquor sold within its boundaries. The prohibition and temperance advocates put up a hard fight, but were snowed under. The voters gave 500 majority in favor of all kinds of licenses.

The "drys" counted on the village going dry by several hundred, but they are disappointed. The villagers whooped and made a big hurrah for the "drys" and apparently voted the other way.

President Roosevelt's home district, the Fifth, was counted on for 200 "dry" majority, but went "wet" by 70. The other local district, the Seventh, went "wet" by 15, making the majority in the village for license 85. The other twelve districts appear to have all gone "wet."

Charles Chester Painter, a Republican, was elected Supervisor over James Norton, Democrat, and William H. Jones, Independence League and Square Deal candidate. Painter has about 117 in the town. Jones polled a big vote. He is the present Supervisor and usually carried the town without trouble, but this year failed to obtain his party nomination as usual, and Norton was named. Jones carried the fifth, Roosevelt's district, by 20, while Painter carried the seventh by only 33, about half what he expected.

The ballots were badly split, and the full returns on the minor places on the tickets will not be canvassed until morning.

RESULTS IN HEMPSTEAD.

Republicans Win — Motion to Sell Land to Amusement Co. Carried.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., April 2.—The citizens of this town, in voting to-day for town officers, also passed upon the proposal to sell to the new owners of Long Beach the additional land wanted by them to round out their purchase. It appears that the proposal has been carried. The Republicans were successful throughout the town.

Patchogue for License, Too.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., April 2.—Brookhaven Town, of which this is the principal village, voted on local option to-day. The town has always been for license, and to-day's vote showed no change in the sentiment. The Republicans elected all the town officers. Dr. W. S. Bennett succeeds himself as Supervisor.

Southampton Goes "Dry."

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., April 2. — As usual, Southampton went "dry" to-day. For two years more it will be illegal to sell liquor in this town. Thomas Lister was elected to succeed himself as Supervisor. He is a Democrat. Other results late to-night are still in doubt.

FOR GREENE AND GAYNOR.

Exceptions to Judge's Charge—Counsel Says He Swayed Jury.

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—Argument of the Greens and Gaynor appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals was continued to-day by A. A. Lawrence for the defense. Mr. Lawrence argued first that public opinion had been injected into the trial of this case in Savannah last year, by the trial Judge in an address to the jury. Exception was taken to this address. Among other exceptions, it was alleged that the court argued to the jury, took the facts from the jury, prejudiced the jury against Greene and Gaynor, coerced the jury, and abridged the right of the defendants to have counsel argue their case.

Discussing the statute of limitations, counsel declared that the indictments were found more than three years after the latest acts charged against Greene and Gaynor, and that indictments for these offenses were barred at the end of three years. During these three years, it was argued, the defendants were at their well-known domiciles without concealment, were in the jurisdiction of the court, and could have been arrested by the Government at any time.

ARTIST MAY DISOWN CATHEDRAL STATUES

Borglum Says Unskilled Stonecutters Have Spoiled His Designs.

HIS PROTESTS IGNORED

Architects Have Not Acceded to His Request to Have Work Done Under His Supervision.

Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, who has designed and modeled such of the sculpture as is already in place inside and about the unfinished Cathedral of St. John the Divine, declared yesterday in emphatic terms that if it stayed as it is he would repudiate the figures said to have been made after his models.

"They are horrible, the majority of them," he said, "and are as though a child had tried to copy crudely my designs."

The whole trouble arose, he said, because the architects had not permitted the stone to be cut on the grounds by skilled workmen under his direction. On the contrary, the models had been taken to Hoboken, where statues had been turned out as so much cordwood by the same firm, Barr, Thaw & Fraser, that had the building contract for the stonework on such parts of the cathedral as had been finished.

Cut Under Contract.

"The work of the sculptor is the finished work in stone," said Mr. Borglum yesterday in his studio, 166 East Thirty-eighth Street, "and he should direct the final cutting from his models. The statuary was lumped. The contractor told me that he didn't even take the trouble to estimate it, but ran it through like so much stonework of any other kind. The wings of angels have been clipped to get them into niches. Then, too, they would take a block of stone that was too small for a piece of work where the projection of a hand or a leg made a much larger block necessary. Using the smaller block, they would crowd in the hand so that it was in a position different to that which it had occupied in the model. But these are details. The whole workmanship is bad.

"I have written letters of protest to the architects, Heins & La Farge, many times. I would receive a polite acknowledgment of my note, and that is as far as the matter would go. In effect the architects protected the stone cutters against the artist. The result has been that three-dollar-a-day stone cutters are making the figures that are being put into position about the Cathedral, not I. The work on Morningside Heights has not been undertaken at all in a spirit of beauty or sincerity. There has been no feeling in it.

"I undertook the task in the hope that I might have an opportunity of doing something that would be of value. For the last two years I have given practically the half of every working day to the sculpture. The payments have only amounted to a few thousands of dollars, and I have done work that ordinarily I should have charged seventy-five times as much for, because I wanted to work in a spirit that was not commercial. I cannot understand why they should try to save an insignificant sum on the cutting of the statues, when at other times they have been so lavish in the expenditure of a $100,000 here and another $100,000 there.

"I constantly asked that a studio—as rough as they pleased—be put up for me on the Cathedral grounds, where I could work. But it is only within the last few months that this has been done.

May Seek an Injunction.

"If conditions are not altered speedily I shall seek to have the courts restrain them from exhibiting as my work statuary that is largely the work of unskilled men. The money part of it does not interest me. I do not care who cuts the stone, if only I can be there when it is done. When I have men cutting for me in my studio they are never without my instruction for more than a few minutes at a time. I would even agree to let the same men cut as are now being employed in Hoboken, if only the work could be done on the ground under my oversight."

What moved the sculptor to speak was an article which recently appeared in The London Building News, which after a satirical review of the claims and boasts which the publication said had been put forth by the Cathedral's projectors, spoke of the dispute as to the sex of angels in which Mr. Borglum and members of the Building Committee indulged in in 1905, suggesting that the solution of the sex problem, if judged by the figures produced, had been found by Lucifer. The News continued:

"Perhaps the very worst of the series is a colossal group supposed to represent St. Michael trampling upon the vanquished Princeof Darkness. It is simply indescribable, save as a large block of stone ruined in its manipulation."

Mr. Borglum showed yesterday a copy of a letter that he had sent to the architects in January last and also to the Building Committee. In it he complains that when he criticised a work the scaffolding was removed so that the fault could not be remedied. He speaks thus of an angel put in a niche in the Belmont Chapel:

"The large angel I noticed was very flat and apparently crowded into the niche. I found upon examination that this was due to the fact that the figure was from a flat stone and it was necessary to chip out the wings in order to avoid the dark line that would otherwise have shown back of the figure in the niche. These figures were not designed to have their wings cut so as to make them fit the niche."

Architect Says Statues Are Adequate.

C. Grant La Farge of the architects and a son of John La Farge, the artist, said last night that he did not consider the work at all bad.

"Considering the models that we have had from Mr. Borglum," said he, "I think that the cutting has been well done. In the main, Mr. Borglum's models have been very good, though as he has had to do so much, some of them have not been so excellent as others. I think that in general the work of the cutters follows his in fair proportion. All of it is adequate."

Dr. William R. Huntington, rector of Grace Church, who is Chairman of the Cathedral Building Committee, was out of town last evening.

In September, 1905, there was considerable discussion over the angels that had been modeled by Mr. Borglum for the Belmont Chapel. In them the sex of the angels was manifestly feminine. In the midst of the discussion that ensued the sculptor destroyed the plaster cast and later made new angels.

ROSS, EX-PUGILIST, SHOT.

Killed by His Brother-in-Law After Threatening Mrs. Ross.

William Ross of 361 East Seventy-sixth Street, was shot and instantly killed by his brother-in-law, Michael Donnelly, of 415 East Eightieth Street, yesterday afternoon.

Ross, who several years ago was a pugilist of some note, had been drinking hard for a long time, and his wife and three children have been without support. When he began to drink again two days ago Mrs. Ross appealed to the police, with the result that Ross was yesterday in the Yorkville Police Court, where he was ordered to pay his wife $6 a week. Upon leaving the court Ross became intoxicated, and in the afternoon went to his home and demanded money. His wife did not have any and told him so, whereupon he became abusive and threatened her. She went to her mother's home and appealed to her brother for protection. Donnelly went home with her and met Ross, who, after some words, left the house.

About 4 o'clock he returned and repeated his demand for money. Upon being refused he again threatened his wife and, seizing a lamp, chased her out of the house into the street. At the corner of Seventy-first Street and First Avenue Mrs. Ross met her brother.

After angry words had passed between the two men Ross attempted to strike Donnelly. The latter, in self defense, so witnesses say, drew a revolver and fired two shots. The first went wild, but the second entered Ross's temple, killing him instantly. Donnelly then escaped, and he has not yet been arrested.

DETECTIVE SAW A ROBBERY.

One of Jerome's Men Trails Two Thieves and Catches Them in the Act.

County Detective Reardon of District Attorney Jerome's staff followed two men from the Tombs Court yesterday when Magistrate Wahle discharged them because of lack of evidence. The men had been arraigned by Detective Sergeants Cray and Savage, who charged them with being suspicious persons. They admitted that they had no evidence against the prisoners.

Reardon watched the men meet a third man at Canal and Centre Streets and with the trio boarded an uptown Third Avenue elevated train. In the car Reardon saw the men attempt to rob the stranger of his watch, and as they left the train at Grand Street he arrested them. Advising the stranger to follow him to court Reardon led his prisoners back to the Tombs Court.

The stranger said he was Arthur Sonnad of Selkport, N. J. He swore the men had tried to rob him and had broken his watch chain.

The men were held in $5,000 bail each for the Grand Jury. They gave the names of Phillip McManus and Joseph Phillips. Magistrate Wahle complimented Reardon on his good piece of detective work.

BLASTERS LOSE TEST SUIT.

Court of Appeals Affirms $8,000 Verdict for Death of an Employe.

The Court of Appeals has just handed down a decision which is expected to have the effect of making blasters more careful in their operations in the city.

Hedwig Hacker sued the O'Rourke Engineering and Construction Company for damages for the death of her husband, Julius Hacker, who was an engineer in the excavation at the Grand Central Station and was killed Aug. 18, 1905, when the company set off a blast. One of the rocks flew and struck Hacker, killing him.

Alfred and Charles Steckler brought suit on the ground that it was negligent for the defendant in set off the blast without having it properly protected with logs, tin mats, and chains, as provided by the city ordinances. The jury found a verdict for $8,000. The company appealed, and the Appellate Division affirmed the judgment. The Court of Appeals has now sustained both the trial court and the Appellate Division.

ST. LOUIS DEMOCRATIC.

Repeaters Active in Some Wards—Outbreak of Crime at Night.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, April 2.—The election in St. Louis to-day resulted in the choice of the entire Democratic ticket by pluralities of from 3,500 to 4,000.

Downtown wards returned to their old-time election outlawry. A gang of imported repeaters, said to hail from Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., did effective work in the Twenty-second and other wards. As night came on there was a general outbreak of crime in the lower wards.

CITY NOT TO LOSE MUCH.

Delay in Certifying Improvement Assessments Will Soon End.

Little uneasiness is felt by municipal authorities as to the ability of the city to collect the greater part of the assessments due from property holders for improvement work done in the various boroughs, the total amount of which exceeds $10,000,000. Pending the certification of the work to the Board of Assessors, the Borough Presidents explain the matter by saying that in most cases the delays occurred prior to their administrations.

It is quite probable that the city will lose a considerable sum in interest, owing to the failure of the Borough Presidents to certify the improvement work promptly.

PAINTERS' STRIKE A FIZZLE.

Few Men Out in Manhattan and the Bronx.

The strike of the painters from which so much had been expected and which had been heralded by the Amalgamated Painters' Society and the Brntherhood of Painters for over a month, proved a fizzle yesterday. With the exception of some scattering individual strikes there was nothing in Manhattan and the Bronx to indicate that there was a painters' strike.

While in the other three boroughs about 1,000 men might have been on strike there was practically a back down on the part of the two unions in Manhattan and the Bronx.

Civic Leagues Organizing.

Following the example of the City Club and various civic organizations here, many counties and towns in the State are organizing leagues for the improvement of local conditions. The County League of Westchester County is now taking steps to affiliate with it the civic organizations of other communities. The Executive Committee of the Westchester League will make its report at a meeting in Hollywood Inn, Yonkers, on April 9, when permanent officers will be elected.

Flags Out for City Birthday.

By order of Mayor McClellan the flags will be raised on the City Hall to-day in commemoration of the appointment of the Commissioners who laid out the upper part of the city and inaugurated the plan of numbered streets in New York. The commission was appointed on April 3, 1807. The New York Historical Society observed the event with special exercises last night.

Justice Barrett's Estate $62,767.

The report of the appraiser of the estate of the late Supreme Court Justice Barrett, who died June 7, was filed in the office of the Surrogate yesterday, and shows that his estate is worth $62,767. The personal property is appraised at $41,767.

WANTS NATIONS TO FORM PEACE LEAGUE

Carnegie Tells Phi Beta Kappa Men of His Plan to End War.

BELIEVES IN DEFENSE

Speaker Says All Should Help to Drive Out the Country's Invaders—Praises Roosevelt's Attitude.

Andrew Carnegie expressed his views on universal peace to 500 members of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity, representing 61 American colleges, in the Hotel Savoy last night. He anticipated the probable line of action to be taken at the coming peace conference in this city, April 14, and at The Hague in the Fall, by saying that representatives should attend those two meetings prepared to advocate an international league of a defensive nature.

Mr. Carnegie explained the powers of such a league by saying that Great Britain, the United States, Germany, and France could form an offensive and defensive league which could virtually say to any nation which would go to war rather than submit to arbitration: "If you pursue your warlike spirit you make yourself a foe to the coalition."

A Check to War.

"I believe if that were done there would be no actual war waged in the world," said Mr. Carnegie. "The time has now come when the world is bound by telegraph and cable ties in all its parts and all countries are in instant communication. All nations have an equal and vital interest in the preservation of peace, and it is a commonsense proposal that no one nation should be allowed to break that world peace in which all are interested.

Representatives who will attend the Peace Conference in New York and at The Hague, I think, should go with the idea in view that the most feasible method of effecting universal peace is for several nations to league together to conserve the world's peace.

"The importance of peace is so very evident that it is hardly necessary to go into the many reasons why nations should not go to war. This is largely realized all over the world. The eyes of King Edward and of the Kaiser have been opened to the need for universal peace. What is really needed now is for some one to take the initiative with the proposal I have suggested and urge such an agreement."

Mr. Carnegie praised President Roosevelt for the part he has taken in the interests of International peace, and said that he has had many conferences with Mr. Roosevelt upon the subject in the last few months.

The greater part of Mr. Carnegie's argument for the plan he suggested was brought out in a discussion of the question after he had finished his original address on the subject, "Justice and My Plan for Assuring It."

John J. McCook, who presided at the meeting, announced that Mr. Carnegie would be glad to answer any questions regarding his plan. Several members of the fraternity thereupon began to ply him with questions. Often in his answers Mr. Carnegie laughed at the doubts that seemed to exist in the minds of the men who had heard his suggestion as to its probable effect. It was in reply to a request for more information that Mr. Carnegie said:

"I do believe that the rulers of the world have come to see better ways than expending the blood of their people in the struggle to predominate over another power. There have been 374 questions settled by arbitration since a certain well-known treaty. There can be that many more settled in the same way."

It was then suggested that in a dispute between two nations one side is usually in the right and the other in the wrong.

"I cannot deny that," said Mr. Carnegie. "But when a man stands up to be judged in his own cause, I say that that man is wrong to undertake to be the judge."

He then went on to say that if this country was attacked by a great power he would aid in the resistance, and that, in fact, the best men of the Nation would be entitled to fight for the country just as they are entitled to defend their wives and families from the attacks of a foe.

"Then why do you denounce war as barbarous and all that is bad?" was asked.

International War Attacked.

"International war is what we are attacking," replied Mr. Carnegie. "Defense is not war. Defense is repelling war. If I strike Col. McCook and he knocks me down, he has not committed war, but has committed a misdemeanor. When good men dispute there is need for an impartial arbiter. When an assault is made by one nation on another the defending nation is not at war, it is defending itself."

One of the fraternity men present said that he agreed with Mr. Carnegie that nations can do without war, and that he understood the delegates to the Peace Conference were in favor of international disarmament. Mr. Carnegie replied that there must be a force behind the effort, indicating that he believed that armament was necessary, at least in the present state of things. In carrying out this idea he said:

"I believe in having policemen in New York. Could we get along without them? No. I am no idealist, no theorist. With Germany, France, Great Britain, and the United States formed into a peace league and International peace assured, you would see the smaller nations cease to build battleships. The larger ones seeing that, would cease to build them gradually."

It was then suggested that the meeting adopt a resolution to the effect that the President of the association and such members as he should select attend the Peace Conference in New York, as a manifestation of approval by the organized college men of the movement in the interests of peace. This was objected to.

Earlier in the evening Mr. Carnegie had said that the peace conference would welcome with open arms a delegation from the fraternity. He corrected this when the resolution was up for discussion by saying that he had no intention of speaking for the conference. The resolution was defeated and a substitute adopted thanking Mr. Carnegie for his address.

KNEISEL QUARTET CONCERT.

Their Fifteenth Season Ended — Mr. Schroeder's Last Appearance.

The Kneisel Quartet last night brought to a close their fifteenth season in New York with a concert in Mendelssohn Hall that had, as all their concerts this season have had, an audience that completely filled the hall. It was the last appearance in these concerts of Mr. Alwin Schroeder, the violoncellist of the Quartet (although an extra concert is announced for April 30, in which he will take his farewell of New York.) It was appropriate, therefore, that he should have a prominent place upon the programme, which he filled with a performance of Bach's solo suite for violoncello in C major, a work that, like all Bach's compositions for violin and violoncello without accompaniment, tests most deeply the musicianship of the performer.

MRS. LHEVINNE'S RECITAL.

The Wife of a Pianist Who Can Play the Piano Herself.

Mrs. Rosina Lhévinne, the wife of Josef Lhévinne, who has been heard here so frequently the last two seasons, gave a piano recital yesterday afternoon in Mendelssohn Hall that attracted the attention of a number of people. Mrs. Lhévinne not long ago appeared at one of her husband's piano recitals, playing with him a brilliant duo for two pianos, and showed then that she was a player of no mean order. Her recital naturally disclosed a wider range of her powers, and though the only really "important" piece she attempted was Chopin's sonata in B minor, she was able to cope with it. Her style is somewhat small, somewhat restrained in power and scope of expression, but she has nice taste, a fluent and rippling technique, and commands a beautiful tone not without variety in its color and character.

MRS. CLEVELAND THEIR GUEST

Alumnae of Wells College Hold Their Annual Luncheon.

The Eastern alumnae of Wells College held their annual luncheon at Sherry's yesterday. The guest of honor was Mrs. Grover Cleveland, an alumna of the college and one of its Trustees. The table decorations were yellow jonquils, a gift of Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, another alumna, but who was not able to be present. The flowers came from the greenhouses of the Executive Mansion in Albany.

There were few after-dinner addresses, the time being given to the making of acquaintances.

It was announced that $900, which the association had pledged itself to raise to complete the purchase of Glen Park, the former home of Henry C. Wells, founder of the college, which adjoins the college grounds, was in hand, and the association immediately voted to increase the sum to $1,000.

COUNT'S PLEA FOR MONEY.

Referee to Hear Request for Larger Allowances from Mankowski Estate.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff signed an order yesterday appointing a referee to inquire into the merits of the application of Count Ignace Mankowski for permission to expend the allowance of $18,000 yearly of his wife, Grace Sterling Mankowski, for her personal use and benefit without filing vouchers. The Count also asks that his personal allowance out of the estate be increased to $15,000 a year and that the allowance of his two sons be increased to $10,000 a year, declaring that they have not received business educations and need the income.

Countess Mankowski inherited a large estate from her father, John M. Bixby, and her brother, Robert F. Bixby. She was declared incompetent by the courts in England in 1901 and by the Supreme Court of this State last Fall. Her property, worth more than $2,000,000, includes the Union League Club and the Casino. In his petition the Count declares that, while his wife is incompetent to manage her own affairs, she keenly enjoys shopping and the theatre and that these diversions are good for her health.

CENTENARIAN DROPS DEAD.

John O'Keefe, Said to be 108 Years Old, Dies While at Work.

John O'Keefe, who for years has been known as the oldest man in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn, and who said himself he was 108 years old, dropped dead of heart disease in front of his home at 116 Hicks Street last night. With his pipe between his teeth, the old man had been mending the gate in the fence before his home, which several boys had broken by swinging on it.

He was tinkering with it when he suddenly sank to the sidewalk. Passersby picked him up and carried him into his home, where he lived with his son, John O'Keefe, Jr., who is 60 years old.

The old man came here from his birthplace in Connaught, Ireland, seventy years ago and settled down as a farmer on what is now Hicks Street. He never gave up his first home, but as the neighborhood built up the old man traveled down onto Long Island, doing work for farmers by the day. For the last ten years he had held a position at Greenwood Cemetery. In his way he was a student of politics and of political economy.

RUEF PUT ON TRIAL.

One Juror Selected in the San Francisco Extortion Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—Abraham Ruef was put on trial before Judge Dunne to-day on the charge of extorting money from local French restaurant keepers, under the threat that unless paid he and Mayor Schmitz would prevent the renewal of liquor licenses.

When court adjourned one talesman had been accepted. He is J. R. Bradstreet, a weather-strip manufacturer of Eddy Street.

MAYOR TAKES UP PASTEURIZATION

Names Special Committee of Physicians to Report on City's Milk Supply.

AN INDEPENDENT INQUIRY

Wants Thorough Investigation of the Merits of Pasteurization as Insuring Purity.

Mayor McClellan took hold yesterday of the question of pasteurizing the milk supply of the city, which has been agitating the Board of Aldermen, the various medical societies, and the Board of Health for several weeks. The Mayor appointed a special committee of eminent medical men to go into the merits of pasteurization thoroughly, and suggest to him what steps the authorities should take to insure the purity of the milk supply.

The Mayor issued the following statement:

In view of the recent discussion on the subject of New York City's milk supply, I have to-day, on my own responsibility and with a view to settling authoritatively this very important matter, appointed a commission of five members to look thoroughly into the entire subject and recommend what steps, if any, are necessary to insure the city an abundant supply of absolutely pure milk. I have been fortunate enough to secure the consent of the following gentlemen to serve on this commission:

Joseph D. Bryant, M. D., former President of the Board of Health; Mitchell Prudden, M. D., bacteriologist; Rowland G. Freeman, M. D., milk expert, and L. Emmett Holt, M. D., and Abraham Jacobi, M. D., specialists in the diseases of children.

The work of this commission will be entirely independent of the Department of Health or any other city department. A meeting of the commission will be held at an early date.

The Mayor's commission will make the third body working on the milk question. There has been before the Board of Aldermen for several weeks a measure which contemplates the Pasteurization of the entire milk supply and inspection by the city. Several hearings have been held at which doctors have disagreed, and the Health Committee of the board, which has had the matter in charge, is to hold an executive session to-morrow at which its report, to be presented next Tuesday, will probably be prepared. The alternative proposition advanced is thorough inspection of all dairies which send milk to the city.

Commissioner Darlington, of the Board of Health, has given considerable attention to the milk question, presumably favoring the inspection method of insuring purity. A short time ago he sent the Aldermen a letter favoring Pasteurization, but only qualifiedly.

EIGHTEEN PAGES.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

The President does not deny the averments of Mr. HARRIMAN'S letter to SIDNEY WEBSTER save in respect to the agreement that Mr. DEPEW should be appointed Ambassador to France. In other respects his letter to Mr. SHERMAN, which he now puts forward as a denial and defense, is a very complete confirmation of Mr. HARRIMAN'S statements. Yet he accuses Mr. HARRIMAN of untruth, "a deliberate and willful untruth—by rights it should be characterized by an even shorter and more ugly word." Mr. ROOSEVELT did not deny the charge that the corporations were putting up money for his campaign, made by Judge PARKER in 1904. He denied something else, something Judge PARKER had not said.

To charge his accusers with falsehood is recognized as the President's first line of defense. In the present controversy, a controversy so gravely involving his reputation before the country, his friends should advise him that he needs a second line, if not a third. Judge PARKER'S charge of 1904 has been fully proved. It was true when he made it, and proof subsequently adduced, corroborated and reinforced by Mr. HARRIMAN'S letter and the President's admissions, puts altogether beyond dispute the fact that, as charged, the great corporations did contribute heavily to the President's campaign fund in 1904.

The President's unqualified assertion that Mr. HARRIMAN has uttered "a deliberate and willful untruth" might give the hasty reader of the correspondence the erroneous impression that he has joined issue with Mr. HARRIMAN. In his letter to Mr. SHERMAN he says: "I understood you to say that he (HARRIMAN) alleged that I made this promise (that is, the promise to send Mr. DEPEW to Paris) at a time when he had come down to see me in Washington, when I requested him to raise $250,000 for the Republican Presidential campaign which was then on." After branding this statement as a willful untruth, which by rights ought to be characterized by "an even shorter and more ugly word," the President says: "I never requested Mr. HARRIMAN to raise a dollar for the Presidential campaign of 1904. On the contrary, our communications as regards the campaign related exclusively to the fight being made against Mr. HIGGINS for Governor of New York."

Let the candid reader determine for himself whether these words constitute a denial of the statements made in this passage of the Harriman letter to Mr. WEBSTER:

> About a week before the election in the Autumn of 1904, when it looked certain that the State ticket would go Democratic, and was doubtful as to ROOSEVELT himself, he, with the President, sent me a request to go to Washington to confer upon the political conditions in New York State. I complied and he told me he understood the campaign could not be successfully carried on without sufficient money, and asked if I would help them in raising the necessary funds, as the National Committee, under control of Chairman CORTELYOU, had utterly failed of obtaining them, and there was a large amount due from them to the New York State Committee.

By its terms this statement refers to "political conditions in New York State," to the debt of the National Committee to the "New York State Committee." The alleged arrangement concerning Mr. DEPEW was wholly a matter of New York State politics. The Senator was to be got out of the way in order to placate "up-State leaders," manifestly meaning ODELL. But when Mr. HARRIMAN returned to New York he "sent for Treasurer BLISS." Mr. BLISS was Treasurer of the National Republican Committee. Mr. HARRIMAN subscribed $50,000 and procured other subscriptions with the result that the "whole amount" of $200,000 was raised. "The checks were given to Treasurer BLISS, who took them to Chairman CORTELYOU." Then follows this illuminating statement:

> There were between 2,200 and 2,300 districts in Greater New York, and in a campaign such as that the expenditure of, say, $50 in each district for campaign purposes, not including the watchers, on Election Day would take more than $100,000.

The President quite avoids denying that he did ask Mr. HARRIMAN to raise campaign funds. His denial applies only to "Presidential" campaign funds. He does not deny that Mr. HARRIMAN did raise $200,000, and that this money was paid to Treasurer BLISS of the National Campaign Committee. From the point of view of public morality and clean politics it is quite immaterial whether this sum was paid over to the State Committee, to which, according to Mr. HARRIMAN'S report of the President's statement to him, a large amount was due from the National Committee, or whether it was directly expended by the National Committee, of which Mr. CORTELYOU was Chairman and Mr. BLISS Treasurer. Nobody is so ignorant of politics as not to know that any expenditure that would help HIGGINS would also promote the success of Mr. ROOSEVELT in the State of New York. There was a common cause, the success of the Republican candidates.

Mr. ROOSEVELT has denied a charge Mr. HARRIMAN did not make, and he has failed to deny the real charge made. The minor charge of the Depew agreement he does deny. Whether this evasion of the real issue is due to oversight or to adroitness may be left to the friends of the President to explain. Certainly we think he should take counsel with them, for the moral attitude in which he has been placed by the publication of this correspondence is deplorable.

It is due to him that one thing should be said in his favor and defense, and it may be emphatically said. If the corporations who furnished the money for his campaign expenses thought they were purchasing his lenience they have been deceived. Toward them he has been inflexible, treating them without fear or favor, as though they were avowed enemies, not contributing friends. It has been held that ingratitude is one of the shining political virtues. That virtue the President has conspicuously exhibited in his relation to Mr. HARRIMAN and the other great corporation men who paid his campaign bills. No sense of personal obligation has in the slightest degree altered his sense of public duty.

THE POLICE BILL PASSED.

More than a score of State Senators originally opposed to the passage of Commissioner BINGHAM'S Police bill have, greatly to their credit, helped swell the majority of 40 to 9 by which it passed the Senate yesterday. Their conversion to its merits was brought about by a series of concrete demonstrations of the corrupt police "system" made by responsible officials, public-spirited citizens, and organizations concerned in the public welfare. Months ago the Police Commissioner had traced the network of demoralizing influences leading up to a few men in his department, who were strongly intrenched. Since the formation of the Committee of Fifty of the City Club and the expression of its views in support of the Commissioner's legislative project, the Chamber of Commerce has indorsed its principle, and the Merchants' Association has urged its passage "to enable the Commissioner of Police to exercise proper discipline throughout the force as a necessary step to abolishing the grave evils which now characterize our police management." "The citizens of New York," it continued, "including the mercantile community, have constantly complained of the intolerable police conditions existing in this city." To this sentiment the Citizens' Union, the Union League and Republican Clubs, the West Side Association, the East Side Civic Club, and other representative bodies and the united press of New York City and State subscribed.

All these influences of publicity and good citizenship have accumulated and displayed enough evidences of the working of the police "system" to convince every decent legislator that the effort of the Commissioner to gain that reasonable power which is conferred on the heads of police in other large cities should be supported. The raids of Judge WHITMAN, President of the Board of City Magistrates, have exposed the league of the police with the saloons in violating the excise law. Inspector MCLAUGHLIN'S admission that 10,000 crooks and suspicious characters were roaming the streets unhindered was succeeded by revelations tending to show that 75 per cent. of their crimes were connived at by Central Office detectives. The Rev. Mr. BEATTY showed that patrolmen caught sharing the proceeds of thievery were shielded by men "higher up"; ex-Judge OMMEN disclosed the fact that great numbers of private citizens, in terror of the epidemic of unpunished crime, were having their homes guarded by private agencies at their own expense. The Society for the Prevention of Crime revealed the relations of the police with the "red light" district. The "mortuary fund" and Collector CAHILL'S note were unearthed, and the recent investigation of poolroom accounts referring to "Sen. GRADY" and "T. G." completed the account. The Legislature passed the bill.

The city has won a great triumph. Commissioner BINGHAM has acquired the power he sought, and with it comes great responsibility.

THE ROUMANIAN REVOLT.

It is becoming increasingly clear that the Roumanian uprising is essentially agrarian, only incidentally anti-Semitic. The case is really much like the case of Ireland. With a population almost exclusively agricultural, agricultural to the extent of over 80 per cent., the peasants, who were nominally serfs only forty years ago, are practically in a state of serfdom now. The "boyars," a term which properly applies only in Russia and in Roumania, are the landlords and landholders, and are politically and socially a privileged class. The curse of absenteeism, formerly one of the chief grievances of the Irish cultivator of the soil, is one of the chief grievances of the peasants of Roumania. Against eight thousand great landlords, holders of one-fifth of the soil, there are nine hundred thousand peasant families. And as in Ireland in old days the great landholders are very largely absentees, who betake themselves to Bucharest as the Irish "boyars" did to Dublin or to London. They have made the capital about the most expensive city of Europe of its size. They have left the administration of their properties in the hands of agents or of large farmers who are able to pay the "rackrents" which are beyond the power of the small cultivators. Many of the large farmers, and a still larger proportion of the agents, are Jews. And hence there is directed against them as Jews an indignation which really belongs to them, so far as it belongs to them at all, in their capacities of agents or rackrenters.

The remedy for the economic situation of Roumania, which prevents the actual tenant-farmer from earning his living and paying his rent, is apparently the same which has at last been applied in Ireland. It is the encouragement of tenant right and small holdings. There seems to be no question of the good will or the good faith of the Roumanian Government in proposing and applying this remedy. But the condition seems to have become so urgent as far to outrun the application of the remedy, and to inspire the peasants with the spirit of class-hatred which urges them on, as it has urged on Irish peasants in times past, to what looks like mere wanton destruction and devastation. It is a season of agrarian "outrages" which Roumania is in its turn undergoing. But plainly the establishment of a new economic and social order must be a work of time.

CHICAGO TRACTION.

The congratulations of the country and its gratitude, too, are due to the voters of the City of Chicago who yesterday, after a furious campaign in which the personality, the ambitions, and the methods of WILLIAM R. HEARST had become the dominant issue, rejected DUNNE, the Hearst candidate, and elected Mr. BUSSE Mayor by a plurality of from 15,000 to 18,000. The mad and mindless rage against everything that is and everything that decently ought to be that has recently inflamed the passions and beclouded the judgment of so considerable a number of voters in this country had manifested itself in its most dangerous and repulsive form in this Chicago election. The reputation of the people of that city for soberness and steadiness was really at stake. They have declared themselves with positiveness as a sane and civilized community.

Mayor DUNNE and his "immediate municipal ownership" policy are cast aside. He has been a failure. He was unable to fulfill his rash promises; he showed himself incapable of offering any solution of the traction problem which has long been the leading municipal issue. He had vetoed a well-planned, businesslike, and promising readjustment of the relations of the city to the traction companies, passed by the Board of Aldermen, and this plan submitted to the vote of the people yesterday has been ratified. The traction lines will be operated by the companies on short-term franchises, the city having the privilege of purchase at a stated sum. Chicago has repudiated municipal ownership and relegated to the rear the demagogues who advocated it.

FOREIGN VIEWS OF OUR FINANCES.

There is an interesting contrast between the views of Lord ROTHSCHILD and Mr. SCHIFF and those of the German banker, Herr SCHUSTER, which we were privileged to print yesterday. The English and American bankers placed the railway agitation first among the causes of the present commotion in the security market, whereas the German banker relegates it to an inferior position, placing first the money market stringency. We would not emphasize the contrast in any contentious manner, and indeed are rather pleased to be in position to make such authoritative contributions to a disputatious topic from such different points of view. Only thus is the truth reached at last. Conceivably the two positions are explained, if not reconciled, by the difference in the estimates the gentlemen place respectively upon the vagaries of American legislation. The question of Government ownership of railways is discussed in Germany with more restraint and calmness, says Herr SCHUSTER. Precisely. If restraint and calmness were also characteristic of American discussions of economic questions then also we might perceive some limit to the present agitation.

Herr HANS SCHUSTER'S remarks upon the world's money markets deserve to rank with those of Sir FELIX SCHUSTER, to whom London listens with high respect. The German and English bankers are accustomed to survey the world of economics in a manner which the American profession, we are sorry to say, regards as too professorial to be of any use in their business. It can only be wished that the American financiers also might see their way to a closer union of theory and practice, and to such popular expositions as would prevent taking finance into politics, from which we have suffered enough. It is gratifying to find that Herr SCHUSTER regards basic conditions here as sound, and closely resembling those abroad, all countries alike being in straitened conditions for lack of ready resources through excessive absorption in trade. The business of the world is checked, he thinks, by the lack of capital, and he looks for this restraining force to be effective here for two years.

If this reflects the opinion among authorities in Herr SCHUSTER'S class, a presumption is created in favor of its truth which perhaps the conditions alone might not create. No nation fluctuates between heights and depths like ourselves, and just as possibly Herr SCHUSTER underestimated our capacity of injuring ourselves by political errors and excesses, so perhaps he underestimates our capacity for recuperation. Eliminating the crop prospects—about which neither he nor we are informed—it may be said that there are reasons why we may recover ourselves quicker than any other people. Since the first of January our Treasury has taken from the money market in excess of $40,000,000, and the process is proceeding at an accelerating rate. But also Secretary CORTELYOU is accelerating his speed in correcting this process, and there are signs not only that the Treasury will assist the money market in emergencies, but also that it will cease to cause or to contribute to the creation of emergencies. During the current fiscal year the Treasury has reduced the Nation's credit capacity by some $800,000,000, and has the capacity of now similarly enlarging it. If scarcity of the basis of credit is the primary cause of our troubles, Herr SCHUSTER will admit that we have in sight a resource unavailable to others. And he will agree that our surplus of natural products above our necessities is exceptionally independent of the chances of the crop season this year, since our stocks are unprecedented. What is a serious debit item to other countries is a credit entry with us, assisting powerfully to relax the stringency which we certainly suffer from in whatever degree. If the future is merely neutral, instead of actively beneficial as it now promises, we should emerge from our troubles sooner than other nations at least, whether or not we require the two years allowed us. Bankers like Herr SCHUSTER will perceive which way the tide is running sooner than others, and they can contribute as much to producing prosperity as reaction when they see their way clear.

CAESAR'S WIFE.

Senator MCCARREN is of the opinion that the police force under Gen. BINGHAM is altogether too largely interested in suppressing pooselling to pay proper attention to the sins that Senator MCCARREN "has no mind to." Senator GRADY'S indignant contempt for the Commissioner knows no bounds, not even those of the dictionary, still less those of the grammar. What does the major domo of the White House, inquires the indignant GRADY, know about metropolitan crookedness? Sin, Crime, and Misery stalk abroad, and yet BINGHAM proposes to bounce the Inspectors.

Admitting the pre-Raphaelite fidelity of GRADY'S delineation of Gen. BINGHAM as a dude, a description which of course carries conviction to every man who knows the Commissioner, it still seems that the indignant GRADY may have something to explain on his own account. That twin dude of the Commissioner, the District Attorney, has been exhuming some curious memoranda as the result of a "raid." The hooks of the "poolroom syndicate" indicate that an individual variously borne upon them as "T. Grady," "Grady," "T. G.," "G.," and "Sen. G.," has been absorbing 16 per cent. of the profits of that organization. It is an organization possibly actuated by the highest motives, probably formed in order to bring the aleatory delights of Wall Street magnates within the reach of the masses, but certainly contrary to the statutes of the State of New York in such cases made and provided. The revelations are adapted to bring suspicion upon the motives of one of the Senators most conspicuous in opposition to the Commissioner, and to blunt the edge of his criticism.

A violent suspicion, with some evidence in support of it, that legislators are engaged in a business unlawful in the community for which they make laws is not of itself sufficient ground for action by the body of which they are members. But it does seem to constitute a reason why their arguments on questions affecting that business should be taken with whole salt cellars full of caution by the body to which they are addressed. And such seems to have been the case in the Senate of New York. The old-fashioned political purist, considering the leadership of the opposition to Gen. BINGHAM'S bill, is justified in invoking CAESAR'S wife, or even great CAESAR'S ghost.

Is it possible that the successful Presidential campaign of Mr. ROOSEVELT in 1904 was overcapitalized?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Secretaries and Their Fidelity.

Among the many suggestions for comment provided by the publication of the HARRIMAN-WEBSTER letter, far from the most important, but equally far from being the least important, is the fact that the document reaches the public eye through the betrayal of confidence by a member of a class whose capital, whose stock in trade, is almost wholly a well-earned reputation for perfect trustworthiness.

This feature of the case deserves serious consideration, for, if dependence could not be placed on the loyalty and fidelity of private secretaries and stenographers, there would have to be a prompt and thorough revision of what have come to be almost universal business methods. It is true that the law has not yet given to the relation of employer and secretary the definite recognition and protection it accords to the relation of priest and parishioner, doctor and patient, or lawyer and client, but in custom there has already come to be some such idea, and men daily intrust to these employes, as if to other selves, secrets of the utmost consequence.

That no small majority of these confidences could be sold or otherwise improperly utilized for the immediate advantage of their recipients is an obvious truth, but in the truth there is no implication that more than a minute proportion of the secrets placed in the secretaries' keeping are "guilty" ones, for the revelation of which the excuse of serving public interests could be found. Men still keep their "guilty secrets" to themselves or share them only with accomplices. Exactly what crime is committed or what law violated when a stenographer keeps his notes of an important letter, and, later, through pique or greed, writes out and sells them to his employer's injury or embarrassment, is as yet a little dubious. It is theft, in a way, and it is forgery, in a way, and yet it lacks some of the qualities of both—perhaps by being worse, just as embezzlement and misappropriation of funds by trustees is worse than burglary, though they are usually less severely punished by the law on the ground that the victims did not exercise a due and possible judgment in according their confidence.

However that may be, the very existence of private secretaries and stenographers, as a class, depends upon their ability to establish and maintain belief in their absolute trustworthiness. On that rests their employment for anything except the humblest and least well-remunerated services, and every instance of betrayal like this one injuriously affects the interests of them all.

Pittsburg and Its Twenty-eight.

Just how much basis there is for the report that Pittsburg, after careful scrutiny of its inhabitants, has found twenty-eight worthy to be called and advertised to the world as "righteous," we do not know. Our own dispatches from there are presenting the story with a good semblance of gravity, but still we suspect an element of humor in the accounts sent forth of the elaborate preparations to prove the superiority of Pittsburg to the Cities of the Plain.

If a jest, the thing is rather dangerous, for people will be almost sure to laugh at Pittsburg, rather than with it. But, then, Pittsburg is queer in a good many ways, and its reputation for social tact and the gentler amenities will probably not suffer much, it having long been a reputation of the sort that nothing can hurt—much, and in recent years it has been getting steadily safer from injury.

Very evidently, however, the city is one where money can be made in large quantities. The supply of Pittsburg millionaires seems to be large, and when they come out from under their dense cloud of native smoke their peculiarities at once attract attention. Whatever else may be said of them, it cannot be said that they are not tireless in doing things. Indeed, their vivacity is curiously youthful, and their presence always makes itself felt, much as does that of a crowd of college boys celebrating a football victory—or defeat. As for finding twenty-eight righteous men in Pittsburg, that ought not to be so hard; at any rate, it has not been rendered more difficult by a lavish exportation of specimens of that type.

Incidentally, we wish that with the pictures and biographies of impeccable Pittsburgers there might be included all available information concerning the intellectual giants who have been investigating there the claims of a genius who has invented a mysterious fluid which, poured on ashes, restores their original value as fuel. We have been reading the reports of these experiments with the greatest interest, and a keen desire to know more about—the experimenters. Perhaps, though, they and the righteous twenty-eight are identical. Certainly the would-be burners of ashes are guileless enough to deserve apotheosis.

A New Card Played by Mrs. Eddy.

Present information is inadequate for determining the significance of the latest move made by Mrs. EDDY or the inner circle of "Christian Science" in reply to the recent action by the old woman's "next friends." On the face of it, the men who for years past have been managing the financial end of the cult are put out of power and relegated to obscurity in favor of three trustees whose names have not previously been very prominently identified with Eddyism. Indeed, it is said that only one of them is a "believer." The other two apparently belong to the category of those who used to send us innumerable letters, beginning, "While I am not a Christian Scientist myself, I know that—" &c., including an affirmation of every claim made by the "Scientists" and an indignant denial of all the arguments and charges against them.

Of course, men to whom Mrs. EDDY would intrust even the nominal control of all her property are likely to be the representatives and instruments of those whom she has formerly trusted—or submitted to. Certainly they will oppose the litigation avowedly brought in opposition to her wishes, and they can be trusted to resist desperately to bring Mrs. EDDY into court and on the witness stand. That, so far as can be seen, is the object for which this new Board of Trustees has been created, and action so remarkable would hardly have been taken if Mrs. EDDY'S appearance in public were not sure to have disastrous consequences in the way of revealing her mental and physical condition.

The Battle of Standards.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to an editorial in your issue of April 1, entitled "The Battle of the Standards," assuredly the revival of agitation in favor of bimetallism is not caused by the use of prices alone. Undoubtedly the extraordinary increase in the output of gold must impair its purchasing power. Nevertheless, it is plainly visible to us all that the gold supply, enormous as it is and increasing, is still insufficient to meet the demands occasioned by the gigantic, the immeasurable activities of the present century. Why then limit ourselves to the use of gold? Why continue the destructive, universal scramble occasioned by the rejection of one of the precious metals? When Mr. Cortelyou relieves intolerable financial pressure by liberating a portion of the customs collections lying idle in the Treasury we all recognize his wisdom. Why then would it not be equally wise to relieve the universal pressure by liberating the demonetized silver of the world? "The philosophic bimetallists of the continent and of England" are simply asking this question.

Galusha A. Grow's Age.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your Washington correspondent is in error in regard to the date of Galusha A. Grow's first election to Congress, and of his age at that time. He was first elected in 1848, when he was 24 years old, but he became of legal age—25 years old—before he took his seat in Congress in December, 1849. He certainly was the youngest man ever elected to Congress.

Mr. Grow was born in 1824, and at 20 years of age was a popular speaker for Polk in the campaign of 1844.

Some papers have given 1822 as the year of Mr. Grow's birth, which I know to be an error. He was 12 years older than myself, a neighbor of his.

AGE OF CANNED MEATS.

Mr. Callanan Still Insists That the Date Creates Undue Prejudice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I thank you very much for the sentiments expressed in the first paragraph of your article, "Dates on Canned Meats," in your issue of March 4.

I am sorry you were disappointed in my commendation of Congressman Wadsworth for killing what you state would have been a very desirable reform.

That is the crux of the whole question. You hold that it is a desirable reform to have the date printed on canned meat. I hold that it would not be a desirable reform for the reason that it would not benefit the consumer.

Your article reads: "The opinions expressed in that letter, we cannot help thinking or saying, were rather those of a dealer in such wares, who is opposed to a change likely to cause some trouble for a while by disarranging established business habits, than those of the good citizen ready to make sacrifices for the protection of public health. Mr. Callanan talked altogether too much and too emphatically about the annoyance a dating law would make for the packers and the dealers. We now are curiously indifferent to that annoyance if the result of it is the prevention of the sale of unwholesome food at what would be a fair price for wholesome food."

There was no thought of self in my mind and certainly no thought of the packers, who are far better able to take care of themselves than I am to take care of them. I had in my mind every man engaged in the grocery business as well as the consumers, who would suffer untold annoyances if they looked at the date on a can of meat. Let me say here that there is no half way about spoiled canned meat or fish. When spoiled its odor betrays it.

It was as a dealer I wrote you. Not as a dealer who opposes any improvement in putting up not alone canned meats but goods of any kind sold in grocery stores in this country. I wrote as a citizen as careful of the health of our people as any man in the community. If I could be shown that canned meat was deleterious to health I would never sell it. I am a firm believer in canned meats and other canned products; I am a firm believer that meat properly processed is as good at the end of five years as it was the day it was put up; I am a firm believer that if it was not good at the end of five years as it was the day it was put up it ought never be allowed to be put up. The Government uses canned meats, fish, fruits, and vegetables. I have no doubt when ships are provisioned for a long cruise they take a large stock of them. Would they take them if they deteriorated?

The only reason for my objection to putting the date on any article of food is the prejudice it would cause in the mind of the consumer. A lady gets the goods home and something happens in serving the dish. If it does not please the palate or the eye, or both, the can is examined. It is a year old; the blame is at once placed on the article in the can—never mind how good it may be—nothing else is at fault but what was in the can.

No reason whatever except the prejudice created by the date on the can. What scientific authority has condemned it? I know of none. The best scientific authority is that millions of people have eaten of it, and it has never been proved that one single case of sickness or poisoning has been caused by eating canned goods of any kind properly processed. There is no question that there may have been deaths from eating canned goods, but in every case which has been investigated the fault has been found to be with the consumer either keeping the goods open too long or in some other way spoiling them.

In a few days I am going to send you an invitation to a luncheon in my store at which will be served meats and fish that are more than a year old, with canned soup which I put aside for my own use, fourteen years old—I don't offer it for sale—with permission to invite a few of your friends to join you.

L. J. CALLANAN.

"Anglo-Saxon" Catholics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a dispatch dated Rome, which appeared in your issue of the 28th ult., it is stated that there are 45,000,000 Catholics in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Ireland, and Australia. It is mentioned in the same dispatch that the Pope intends to create a few Anglo-Saxon Cardinals.

Out of this estimated 45,000,000 Catholics there are not 3,000,000 Anglo-Saxons. The bulk of this population is of Irish, German, and French extraction. Archbishop Ireland and Archbishop Farley are the American candidates for the red hat, and neither of them lays claim to be an Anglo-Saxon. The Canadian Bishops who are eligible for a like distinction are either of Irish or French descent. In England a large proportion of the Catholic clergy and laity are Irish or of Irish descent. The Catholic population of Australia is more Celtic than that of this country.

The hyphenated term Anglo-Saxon must have some limitations. It is certainly absurd to apply it to the composite American race. There is no large element in this country that would take pride in being designated Anglo-Saxons.

It is certain that no greater insult can be offered to Americans of Irish, German, French, or Jewish extraction than to label them Anglo-Saxon. The word American has certainly not yet become obsolete. The new branch of the Anglo-Saxon League in Rome must not consider that all the world is just yet prepared to enroll itself beneath the Anglo-Saxon banner.

Instructors in Evening High Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is particularly distressing to a student of the evening high schools to hear of their instructors referred to as lazy, indifferent, and incompetent men.

As a student of the Harlem evening high school for the last four years I believe I am qualified to speak of its instructors and the quality of their instruction.

It would be difficult to find a more conscientious, a more self-sacrificing, able, and gentlemanly body of instructors than those that are to be found in the Harlem evening high school.

These men not only thoroughly drill their classes as a whole, but also seat themselves beside puzzled students and coach them along.

A student such as your correspondent, Mr. Handley, unable to appreciate the work done by these men, is, to say the least, a sorry figure.

President Butler's Address.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read your editorial in this morning's TIMES on Nicholas Murray Butler's address lately delivered at the University of California. Your praise of this address is very moderate compared with what might be said in its favor. President Butler goes to the very heart of what is the one "burning question" in our country to-day, and, indeed, in all civilized countries the world over. His analysis and logic are clear, simple, and thoroughly convincing, as it seems to me, to any fairly intelligent person. His address is simply illuminating, and ought to have a widespread circulation.

I read with great interest your full reports of Mallock's Columbia lectures. Butler goes a step further than Mallock and cleans up the whole question in a tolerably brief space.

You did a public service in printing Mallock. You could add to that greatly in printing in full President Butler's address, leaving out perhaps the ending, the only unsound thing in it, where he inferentially defends his friend Roosevelt in speaking of the assumptions of the legislative department of the Government.

WOMEN DISCUSS PEACE.

Symposium Held by Garrison Political Equality League.

The William Lloyd Garrison Political Equality League held a peace symposium last evening. The league believes that with universal suffrage war will be done away with. Mrs. Harry Hastings, the President, said this in opening the meeting last evening.

Mrs. Anna Garlin Spencer was the chief speaker, and made an address against militarism.

"I would not say that if we are oppressed we should not fight for our rights," said Mrs. Spencer, "but militarism is the making ready for war without cause; spending money for something we do not wish to occur; putting the best inventive genius in the country to work in preparing deadly weapons that we do not wish to use when we need both money and genius in advancing what is the real glory of our country, its commercialism."

Mrs. Henry Villard, who was introduced as Mrs. Fanny Garrison Villard, said that she would not be her father's daughter if she did not speak for peace as a principle, that the masses could only be reached in that way, that they must recognize the sacredness of humanity and never appeal to militarism.

Prof. Ernst Richard of Columbia University, President of the German-American Peace Society and the New York Peace Society, recently organized, also spoke.

"Removing the armies will do no good," said Prof. Richard, "and it would not prevent war. The armies are only the symptoms of the disease, and the disease itself will remain. Place the spirit of justice in the place of violence, give more power to The Hague Tribunal, force the nations to go there, and we shall reach the root of the matter."

NO COLLUSION SHOWN.

Little Progress Made in Harrisburg Graft Investigation.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 2.—The Capitol Investigating Commission made a futile attempt to-day to show by Stephen De Konsenko of New York that there was collusion between Architect Joseph M. Huston and John H. Sanderson, contractor for the furnishing of the new Capitol. Mr. De Konsenko is connected with the Sterling Bronze Company, which absorbed the Pennsylvania Bronze Company, organized by Sanderson to supply him with the electrical fixtures for the Capitol.

The witness admitted that three months before Sanderson got the contract, he prepared designs for certain chandeliers in the building, and that he expected to get half of the contract. He denied having told the managing editor of a Philadelphia newspaper, in the presence of a witness, some time ago, that there was collusion between Huston and Sanderson, and that he, De Konsenko, was to get the entire sub-contract from Sanderson for the chandeliers, and that the entire job would be worth $300,000.

F. G. Diener of Harrisburg, who has charge of the 190 clocks in the Capitol, and who was an unsuccessful bidder for the contract for those clocks, testified that he would be willing to duplicate them for $15,655. The official records show that Sanderson received $32,079.20 for them.

Why New York is Not Clean.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Most of the people of New York do not agree with Commissioner Craven's statement to the effect that "the streets as a whole are all right." Many have complained through the columns of the newspapers and one is reported to have threatened dire things regarding Mr. Craven.

The bitterest complainers are very often the worst offenders. In this case the complaints have had ample justification. I don't care to criticise the department further. It seems to me that the trouble is rather with the citizens, and that if they did their part the department would do its.

New Yorkers frequently boast that New York is cleaner than Chicago. This seems to help them forget how dirty New York is. Chicago realizes that New York is dirtier than she is. There is soft coal smoke in Chicago, but garbage does not lie spilled all over its gutters and sidewalks. Neither are garbage cans left uncovered, filled with ashes and dirt to the very top, so that each wind that blows sends their contents over people's clothes and into their faces. Chicago's street surface is larger and its streets are harder to keep clean, yet they are kept as free from papers and much freer from snow and water than New York's.

I should like to see the critics suggest to us ways of helping Mr. Craven. As for Mr. Craven, would it not be wiser for him to have the laws (or brief reviews of them) printed in the newspapers rather than complain that the people do not obey? Most of us are ignorant of the law. Rather than defend his department in column articles, would it not be wise for him to print half-column articles illustrating in what ways New York might become cleaner and more sanitary than other cities?

Motor Rides for Crippled Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has been called to the article in the public press relating to the generous project outlined by Mr. Stokes and Judge Crane, whereby the children of this city should be given the opportunity of riding in automobiles, and that some action might be taken by the Automobile Association with respect thereto. It may be of interest to your readers to know that the Crippled Children's Driving Fund was incorporated for that purpose, and during the last few years has been engaged in taking for drives in this city crippled children, carrying them to the public parks and enabling them to enjoy fresh air and sunshine. Last year nearly 9,000 children were taken upon drives between the months of April and November, and during the present year this organization will probably carry upward of 10,000 children. The funds for this purpose are raised by voluntary donations, and may be sent to Mr. Paul Baerwald, Treasurer, 24 Pine Street, New York.

TO THE CORNER POETS: GREETING.

The plaudits of the nations may be given
when we're dead,
And our country's approbation may await us just ahead;
Yea, literary people may discover what we mean—
We may get inside the covers of some haughty magazine;
But we're happy just at present if we chance to see our rhymes
In the little "poet's corner" of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

And, oh! that first appearance! We can still recall the day
When the top of Mount Parnassus seemed a foot or two away;
How we read again the verses that were set above our name,
And prepared for further travel on the royal road to fame.
How the yellow pad kept shrinking as we kept concocting rhymes
For the little "poet's corner" of THE
NEW YORK TIMES.

God rest ye, brother poets of the "corner," great and small;
Also, God rest the editor, who needs it most of all;
And as ye rest, keep singing, and, while singing, drop a tear
For the unsuccessful poets who have gone away from here—
For Shakespeare, and for Browning, for they never saw their rhymes
In the little "poet's corner" of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SOCIETY FLOCKS TO M'COOK WEDDING

Notable Gathering to See Miss McCook United to Malcolm D. Whitman.

BEAUTIFUL FLORAL SHOW

Bridesmaids' Costumes Picturesque—Couple to Spend Their Honeymoon in an Automobile Trip in Europe.

The first of the large fashionable weddings of the season took place yesterday in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, where Malcolm D. Whitman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Whitman of Boston, and Miss Janet Alexander McCook, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McCook of New York, were united. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Ross Stevenson, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, uncle of the bride.

The entire back of the church was filled with large palms. Curtain effects were obtained with green interspersed with white flowers. The young couple and the clergymen stood in an arbor of green vines and white roses for the ceremony. To each pew on the nave a huge bunch of lilies of the valley was tied.

The ushers led the bridal procession. They were George Atkinson, Jr., James F. Curtis, Arthur S. Pier, Hamilton H. Durand, J. Wells Farley, George McClure Sargent, William A. Larned, and John Gade, followed by the bridesmaids, who were Miss Marion Fennof of Boston, Miss Edith Root, daughter of Secretary Root; Miss Jennie A. Crocker of California, Miss Harriet Alexander, a cousin of the bride, and two sisters of the bride, the Misses Susan and Martha McCook. Their Empire costums, of pale blue chiffon with blue taffotae and white lace, trimmed with tiny garlands of pink roses, and their hats of blue crinoline trimmed with blue ribbone and pink roses, were most picturesque. Each girl carried an armful of pink roses.

The bride and her father followed. The former wore an Empire Princess gown of heavy white satin with the bodice of point lace and embroidered satin and an old family vell of Brussels point caught with orange blossoms. She carried a mass of valley lilies and white orchids.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the McCook home, 10 West Fifty-fourth Street. The house was decorated throughout with American Beauty roses arranged in sprays and lattice-work effects.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitman will sail Saturday for Europe and will spend several months abroad. Most of their trip will be devoted to automobiling. In the Fall they will occupy their new home in East Sixtieth Street, which is being remodeled for them. Mr. Whitman in his college career was three times amateur tennis champion of the United States, and Mrs. Whitman, who received the degree of B. A. from Barnard and of M. A. from Columbia, is a trustee of Barnard College.

Among those invited to the reception were:

WINTER—MOSLE.

Miss Marie Caroline Mosle, daughter of Mrs. George Mosle of 713 Park Avenue, was married yesterday to Keyes Winter at the home of the bride at noon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. Armand Miller of the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church. The bride wore a gown of ivory satin trimmed with point lace, flounced, and corresponding lace on her bodice. She carried a bouquet of white lilacs. Mrs. Louis Watjen was matron of honor. There were no bridesmaids.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. George Mosle. She was also attended by her nephew and niece, George R. Mosle, Jr., and Miss Elizabeth Mosle. The decorations of the room where the ceremony took place consisted of white flowers, intermingled with green ferns and plants.

The best man was Roswell M. Patterson. The ushers were Charles S. Ives, William Winter, C. Frederick Mosle, and Max A. Mosle. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride.

GILBERT—HODSON.

Miss Grace May Hodson, daughter of Dr. J. F. Hodson of 19 West Thirty-ninth Street, was married yesterday to James Spofford Gilbert at 3:30 o'clock at the home of the bride, the Rev. Donald S. Mackay officiating.

The bride wore a gown of white satin. She was given in marriage by her father. Her maid of honor was Miss Grace Gilbert, a sister of the bridegroom. The bride carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The best man was W. I. Lincoln Adams of Montclair, N. J. The ushers were James C. Rogerson, Thomas C. Watkins, Frederick M. Hitchcock, and F. Garvin Hodson, a brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. Upon their return from a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert will live at 27 Washington Square North.

AYER—BOYD.

Mrs. May Hancock Boyd of 44 West Eighty-eighth Street was married to Dr. James C. Ayer of 31 West Thirty-sixth Street yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Hotel Buckingham. The Rev. William T. Manning, a rector of St. Agnes's Church and assistant rector of Trinity performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Boyd had no attendants and Dr. Ayers had neither best man nor ushers.

Only relatives and intimate friends were invited to the ceremony. There was no reception. Dr. Ayer and his bride will sail on April 6 on the Celtic, and will spend two months in travel in Europe.

FERGUSON—HENNING.

William Ferguson and Miss Elsie Florence Henning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Henning were married last night at St. Luke's Church by the Rev. J. T. Patey. Miss Edna Holland was the maid of honor, the Misses Anita Henning, Evelyn Pinske, Miriam Miner, and Isabelle Ferguson were the bridesmaids. The best man was John D. Ferguson; the ushers John A. Ferguson, Walter P. Cornell, Charles Doe, and Carl D. Fisher.

MISS MASTEN ENGAGED.

Will Marry George A. Crocker—Date Not Set Yet.

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth M. Masten, only daughter of Arthur H. Masten, to George A. Crocker, the iron broker, was announced yesterday. No date has yet been set for the wedding.

Mr. Crocker is a graduate of Brown University. He is a member of the Union League, the Metropolitan, and the Downtown Club, the Century Association, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Museum of Natural History, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

To-day's Weddings.

To-day's weddings will include those of Miss Eulalie Matthews and Henry Taber Ashmore, Miss Constance Crimmins and Frederick R. Childs, and of Miss Corinne Violett and W. Denison Hatch, Jr. All are to be home weddings. That of Miss Matthews and Mr. Ashmore will be celebrated at 4:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Matthews, 886 Madison Avenue. The Childs-Crimmins ceremony is set for the middle afternoon, and will be followed by a large reception at the home of John D. Crimmins, Sr., 40 East Sixty-eighth Street. The marriage of Miss Violett and Mr. Hatch will take place at 4 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Atwood Violett, 50 West Fifty-sixth Street, and will be followed by a reception.

Admiral Beresford Going Home.

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, commander of the British Channel fleet, is among the passengers booked to sail for Liverpool on the White Star liner Teutonic this morning. Lord Charles, who will be accompanied by his daughter, Miss Kathleen Beresford, came over several weeks ago to settle the estate of his brother, the late Lord Delaval Beresford. While in town he was the guest of Col. Robert M. Thompson.

Yardley-Jenkins Wedding.

Farnham Yardley and Miss Harriet Mullett Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Jenkins, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, in Llewellyn Park, West Orange, by the Rev. Charles T. Walkley, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Orange. A reception followed the ceremony.

Sailing for Europe To-day.

Among the passengers booked to sail for Liverpool on the White Star liner Teutonic to-day are:

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Campbell, Lieut. Herbert T. C. Gibbs, W. S. Gifford, Frank Hardcastle, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Homewood, James Shaw Robertson, and Lieut. Charles D. Roper.

Social Notes.

Mrs. William H. Emory, wife of Rear Admiral Emory, will give a tea Friday afternoon at the Ironsides, 40 West Forty-fourth Street, for Miss Elizabeth Winthrop Stevens, whose engagement to William H. Emory, Jr., was announced in THE TIMES yesterday. Miss Stevens arrived on Sunday from Europe with her mother, Mrs. Ledyard Stevens.

Miss Emily Dearborn Ayres, daughter of Major Charles G. Ayres and Mrs. Ayres, is in town visiting her aunt, Mrs. Hamilton Van Rensselaer Fairfax. She will return to Highland Falls at the end of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hunter Potter will sail for Europe on May 25 and will spend several months abroad.

With their dance to-morrow night at Dodworth's, the Neighborhood Cotillions will close their career. The class was organized five years ago with Mrs. Francis M. Scott at the head and has been most successful, but Mrs. Scott has found it too great a task to manage it, and as no one else is willing to undertake it, to-morrow's cotillion will be the last. Charles H. Woodruff is to lead, and the favors are to be souvenirs of these dances.

Mrs. Lester del Garcia of 23 East Sixty-first Street gave a bridge party at her home last evening. There were ten tables, and the prizes were fancy fans. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. George Schieffelin, Mrs. Charles Cooper, Miss Leontine Marié, Mrs. Temple Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bacon, and Miss Julia Chester Welle.

The last of the Tuesday evening dances took place last night at Delmonico's. There was a supper at midnight, followed by dancing.

Mrs. Charles Wall will give a small dance for young people to-night at the St. Regis.

Manhattan's Opera Programme.

It has been decided to produce "La Navarraise" on Wednesday evening, April 10, at the Manhattan Opera House. It will be given in conjunction with "Pagliacci." Opera will be given every night next week at the Manhattan, including a benefit performance of "Aida" on Tuesday. "Martha" will be sung on Monday, "Lucia" on Thursday, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" on Friday, "Rigoletto" on Saturday afternoon, and "The Huguenots" Saturday night.

Strike Ties Up Big Brick Plant.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 2.—The brickmaking plant of Sayre & Fisher at Sayreville was tied up by a strike to-day. Without warning the army of employes at the brick works walked out this morning. There were about 1,000 employes at the plant, the brickyard being one of the largest in the country. The men want more wages, but so far have made no formal demand.

"The Pretenders" Had a Very Creditable Presentation at the Waldorf.

FINE SHOW ALL AROUND

The Ladies in the Cast Had a Fine Gait, but There Was Little Else for Criticism.

Beards were just visible under the bluehes of Norwegian maidens and demes at the presentation of Ibsen's "The Pretenders," offered for the first time in New York by the Yale Dramatic Association last night in the Waldorf-Astoria ballroom.

There was no mistaking the enthusiasm of the etudents, and the industry with which they must have rehearsed their production; nor was there any mistaking the sympathy of the audience, consisting mainly of their cousins, their sisters, their aunts, and male relations.

On the other hand, a skeptic might have been pardoned for wondering just how grateful the sbade of Henrik Ibsen is to think that all this zeal should have been focused in his direction.

"The Pretenders" is a drama of the thirteenth century and the action is all in Norway. It became evident last night that the thirteenth century was not a peaceful epoch in the Scandinavian peninsula. There was trouble because several determined and iron-clad gentlemen with large swords all thought they had a good claim to the throne, and at least two of them undertook to make their claims good. The fascinating part of the intrigue is that it is a riddle without any more answer than the old problem of "The Lady or the Tiger."

Haakon has been chosen King, but there is some unfortunate question as to his birth. His mother, in the first scene but happily not in sight of the audience, undergoes the ordeal of lifting a rod of hot iron unscathed o prove her purity. Earl Skule has been Regent, and is loath to give up his authority. Then Haakon is elected King by a general assembly of the nobles.

The leading character of the piece, until his death at the close of the third act, is really a Bisbop Nicholas, who intrigues to limit the power of the King by inciting Earl Skule against him. He bimself had never "become a giant," and therefore he argued "there should be no giants in Norway." On this evening his bid death he gains possession of the only letter which will finelly show whether Haakon is actually of royal ibrth or merely a peasant child substituted for the infant sovereign. His last conscious act is a ruse to force the Earl to burn this document, and so leave an undying inheritance of doubt.

The last two acts are taken up with the war between Haakon and the Earl, who has also proclaimed himself King. The Earl is ultimately vanquished and slain with his faithful son.

However much one might have ben disposed to smile at an occasionel amateur defect or an occasional defect of sex less readily to be remedied, it must be admitted that the young men accomplished more for themselves—if not for Ibsen—than could have been expected or hoped. The settings and costumes were excellent; the scenes, with many people on the stage, were well managed, and an air of something more than college-boy earnestness was preserved. What did it matter if the ladies walked with no feminine tread and the warriors stumbled now and then in making their way into the wings?

The honors of the performance went to C. R. Hopkins, who is President of the Dramatic Association, and appeared as the Machiavellian Bishop of the dog-in-the manger composition. His death scene smacked of a Louis XI. and several of his other scenes were admirably played. The Earl, played by T. Achelis, was more distinctly characterized than the King of G. L. Stark, but it is not en easy taek to be a thirteenth-century Ibsenian ideal creation. It was to be noticed that the King was faithful to the college colors. He wore a blue robe over his armor, and the Earl wore ill-fated crimson. The music and the singing of the choir received friendly applause.

The play is to be repeated again to-night, and also at the Hyperion Theatre, New Haven, on April 5 and 6.

NOVELLI IN FARCE.

Another Demonstration of the Italian Actor's Versatility.

Signor Novelli provided another evidence of his versatility at the Lyric Theatre last night, passing this time to farce of the extreme type, and playing the rôle of a bourgeois wine merchant in a vein that was as mellow as his own fine old wine. He gave delightful flavor, too, to the character of Chaponet, the old sentimentalist, who is not too good-natured to forget the value of a franc, but who can rise to heights of comic tenderness in the face of prospective domestic felicity. "Mia Moglie Non Ha Chic," of which "My Wife Is Not Stylish" appears to be a near enough English equivalent, serves to show that the motive and the treatment of Italian farce do not differ materially from those of the familiar French and German school. When a young husband goes to Paris in search of adventure, when his wife appeare on the scene, and when the young woman's father and mother unexpectedly arrive from the country one may know about what is to be expected. In the present farce the expected happens—that is to say, plenty of froth and frivolity for two or three acts, and a return home at the end with everybody cured of folly, and a promise of future domestic bliss.

In a play of this sort Signor Novelli enforces his points in a thousand and one different ways, and he makes no pretensu at subtlety. If he can get a laugh by winking at his audience or addressing a remark directly to the people in the upper boxes, he is likely to do those very things. But there is no denying the fact that he is exceedingly funny throughout, and the character of the play allows broad latitude in ways and means.

To last night's performance Signora Giannini added the charm of much vivacity. Signors Plamonti and Pescatori and Signorinas Leghessa and Balzani also contributed largely to its success.

Novelli's Engagement Extended.

Ermete Novelli's engagement at the Lyric Theatre, originally planned for two weeks, is now to be prolonged for a fourth week. All his other engagements in the United States have been canceled and he will remain here until he sails fo Genoa on April 17. Next week he will be seen in several new plays.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Drina De Wolfe was engaged yesterday by Edwin Arden as the leading woman of his Spring stock company at the Belasco Theatre, Washington. She is now on a tour with "Man and Superman."

The officers and members of the American Playgoers, of which Amelia Bingham is President, will assemble to greet the actress at her opening performance of "The Lilac Room" on Wednesday night at Wallack's Theatre, and will present floral tributes to her.

Henry B. Harris, in addition to the distribution of silver souvenirs to celebrate the 2,000th performance of Rose Stahl as Patricia O'Brien, has provided a new equipment of frocks and frills for the star and all her associates in "The Chorus Lady."

Ermete Novelli, the Italian actor, will be entertained at luncheon to-day by the Directors of the Society for Italian Immigrants at the Aldine Club.

The William Morris stock company will present De Mille and Belasco's "Men and Women" for next week's bill at the Lincoln Square.

A human pyramid five men high was the novelty presented for the first time at the Hippodrome yesterday afternoon by the acrobatic Arabs, whose act is now one of the leading feature there.

Ethel Barrymore will appear in "The Silver Box" for the last two performances at the Empire Theatre to-day and to-night. On Thursday night she will be seen in Robert Marshall's farcical romance, "His Excellency the Governor," with her brother, John Barrymore, and William Norris, who was in the original cast.

"BEN-HUR'S" 2,500TH TIME.

1,000 Souvenir Copies of the Book Distributed Last Night.

Gen. Lew Wallace's "Ben-Hur" was performed for the twenty-five-hundredth time at the Academy of Music last night, and 1,000 souvenir copies of the famous novel were distributed to ladies in the audience. The production has been playing at the Academy for the last six weeks, and its present engagemont there will continue until April 20. William Young, who dramatized the book, and Joseph Brooks, one of the producers, were present last night in a box. After the performance there was a supper on the stage. Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger and Gilmore & Tompkins have issued invitations for a memorial performance of the drama on the afternoon of April 10 to commemorate the eightieth birthday of Gen. Wallace. After the play has been performed the chorus will render three selections—"Unfold yo Portals Everlasting," Gounod; "The Glory of God in Nature," Beethoven, and "Thine Is the Kingdom," Gaul.

PLEASE REFUND.

Interesting Suggestion from A. B. Ebin to the Playgoers.

A. B. Ebin, President of the Universal Peace Theatre and head of the original Society of Playgoers, which wound up with the organization of the present American Playgoers, has written an open letter to the Rev. J. Talbot Smith of the last-named association. He proposes that the American Playgoers, who spurned him, shall recognize his society as the parent organization by refunding all the sums expended on the old club in the first two seasons.

Grace George to Play "Divorcons" Here.

William A. Brady bas taken Wallack's Theatre, beginning April 15, and will present Grace George in a new translation of Sardou's "Divorcons." The famous comedy, in which Mrs. Fiske and many other noted American actresses have appeared, will probably be offered under the name of "Her Divorce." Miss George has already been seen in this production out of town. She will also play at matinees Ibsen's "The Lady from the Sea."

Fight of Theatrical Billposters.

Jacob Meyer, advertising agent for Klaw & Erlanger, with his face blackened and bruised and his left hand in bandages, complained in the West Side Court yesterday against Frank J. Gallagher, who holds a correspondiug place with the Shuberts. He said that Gallagher and his crew of bill-posters bed beaten him with clubs, and Gallagher had slashed him with a knife. Magistrate Moss will hear more of the case next Thureday.

Circus to Have a Shriners' Night.

Arrangements have been completed by Mecca Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, to attend the Barnum & Bailey Circus at the Madison Square Garden in a body next Tuesday night. Two or three thousand Shriners with their women friends are expected to be present, and the entire middle section has been reserved for their use. The Mecca Brothers and the clowns will do special stunts.

Fanny Ward Plays with a Crutch.

Fanny Ward appeared in "The Marriage of Reason" at Wallack's Theatre last night with the aid of a crutch covered with white silk ribbon. She sprained her ankle in the second act of the play on Monday night, but concealed the extent of her injury from the stage manager until after the performance. Last night she wore a plaster cast around the ankle.

Salome Going to Eighth Avenue.

Salome and her seven veils have traveled from the Astor Theatre to the Irving Place; from the Lyric Theatre to the Metropolitan Opera House. Next sbo will go to Eighth Avenue. The "dance of the seven veils," with yet another Salome, will be a special feature introduced into the production of "In New York Town" at the American Theatre next week.

Mansfield Shows Improvement.

Richard Mansfield, who is ill at his home, 316 Riverside Drive, passed a restful night on Monday. His condition was reported to be improved yesterday. At his house last night it was said that he had made unmistakable progress in the last twenty-four hours.

MRS. ADELAIDE JOUBERT DEAD

She Was the Favorite Daughter of Sir Hiram Maxim.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 2.—Mrs. Adelaide Joubert, the favorite daughter of Sir Hiram S. Maxim, died to-day at the home of her mother, Mrs. Jane Maxim, 82 Albion Street, Hyde Park. She was stricken with heart trouble and died within a few minutes.

Mrs. Joubert was separated from her father in early girlhood, making her home with Mrs. Maxim after the latter obtained a divorce from the inventor. She has, however, frequently visited her father, and after her marriage went to England with her husband.

Sir Hiram made Mr. Joubert his private secretary. The young people, however, longed for America, and after a few years in England returned to this country and made their home with Mrs. Maxim.

Mr. Joubert is employed as a stenographer. He was in New York when Mrs. Joubert died and was notified immediately. Mrs. Joubert was born in Plainfield, N. J., and was 32 years old.

A "REAL DAUGHTER" DEAD.

Mrs. Hawkins's Father Fought in the Revolution.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, April 2.—Mrs. Nancy McComber Hawkins, one of the few surviving "Real Daughters" of soldiers of the Revolution, died at her home in this city to-day. Her body was taken to Delta, York County, for burial in a private plot which has been the burial place of the family for a century and a half. Mrs. Hawkins leaves one sister, Mrs. Hannah McComber Hess, who is now the only surviving "daughter" in this city, and one of the very few in the country.

Mrs. Hawkins was the daughter of Seumas and Hanah Hough McComber, and was born in York County on July 25, 1818. Her father was a physician, and when the War of Independence began he joined the ranks, serving in Col. Carter's Pennsylvania Regiment from May, 1775, to January, 1776; in Col. Bond's Regiment of the Maesachusette Line, and finally in Gen. Washington's Foot Guard and Horse Guard.

Both sisters became "Real Daughters" of the Harrisburg Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution in 1903.

Day for Great Naval Review.

NORFOLK, Va., April 2.—President Tucker of the Jamestown Exposition today announced that Secretary of the Navy Metcalf had suggested May 13 or 15 as a special naval event day. At this time the home and foreign fleets will be assembled in Hampton Roads. The exposition company will in all probability make the designation.

WIDOWS & ORPHANS OWN WESTERN UNION

And the Company Says It Put Rates Up to Pay Their Dividends.

COST OF EVERYTHING UP

Official Statement Makes the Increase in Message Rates Only About 2 Per Cent.

An official statement was issued yesterday from the office of Col. Robert C. Clowry, President and General Manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company, explaining more in detail the reasons for the increase in private message ratee which went into effect on Monday.

The company lays especial emphasie on the statement that the increase wae made in the interests of its 14,000 stockholders, many of whom, the statement says, are widowe and estates, and in order that the company might maintain and continue to pay the regular 5 per cent. dividend. The statement says:

"The purpose of this statement is to reply to certain statemente that have appeared in the newspapere since the order to increese the rates went into effect. It hes been said that modern improvements ought to enable the company to transmit more messages and at a smaller cost then formerly. The truth of the matter is that 99 per cent. of the messages tranemitted now are transmitted in the same old wey that was in operation in the days of Morse. The system is not changed except that the output per operator is not nearly so great as it used to be. On through circuits the number of ten-word messages sent by one operator is on an average about seventeen, while in former years it was 25. Why this is we cannot say, but it is true.

Heavy Expense in Wear and Tear.

"Again, it hae been said that there is no deterioration in telegraph property like there is with railroed and express company property. This is not true. There is no other property so subject to deterioration as telegraph property. The telegraph poles begin to decay the minute they are set in the ground. The wire, except copper wire, also decays, or is gradually worn out by the elements. There is much so-called iron wire used for short, unimportant circuits. The old iron wire would last, but the grade we get now, owing to gases from passing locomotives and to the elements in the air, rusts out.

"Another point that hae been raised was that the telegraph companies must have profited largely from tbe large increase in communication necessitated by the unprecedented prosperity. The fact is the telephone companies have largely absorbed the growth, to the exclusion of the telegraph.

"It has been set forth that the increase has been from 33 to 66 per cent. This is not a fair way to look at it. The average increase has not been more than 2 per cent., and probably less than 2 per cent.

"Attention has been directed to an increase of the night rate, in some instances proportionately larger than the increase of the day rate. The cost of handling night messages is greater than day messages, because the operators, who are paid by the month, work a less number of hours at night than do those who work by day.

"The fact has been commented on that the Postal Telegraph Company adjusted its rates at the same time as the Western Union and that some agreement must have existed between the two companies. The Postal people are nearly all Western Union people, who have grown up in our service. It is just as Mr. Bruch of the Postal said; we have to know what the other fellow is doing. We have means of learning what our rivals are doing. So have they. That is one of the secrets of the trade. There was no leak. It could not be called that. The same conditions that affect us affect the Postal.

"The increase in the cost of material has been very great. Copper wire that used to cost 11 cents a pound now costs 30 cents. Poles which used to cost $1.30 apiece now cost $4. It has been our policy to increase the salaries of our operators. There has been a gradual increese all along the line, even before the horizontal increase of 10 per cent. went into effect on March 1. Messenger boys used to cost between $5 and $8 a month. Now on the Pacific Slope they cost from $75 to $100 a month. Here in New York they cost $40 a month, and even then we cannot get enough boys. So we are employing men at day-labor prices to deliver messages. Some of them are receiving $1.50 a dey; others $2.

"Our company has been paying a regular annual dividend. On account of this regularity the stock has been very largely acquired by widows and estates. In fact, the company is known on the Street as the 'Widows and Orphans' Company.' The management feele an obligation to get reasonable returns on its service, in order to maintain the moderate, but regular, dividend it has been paying for many years, a dividend of 5 per cent. So a failure of the management to secure a sufficient profit from its business to pay those dividends would be a great hardship on the 14,000 stockholders. The management feels an obligation toward them."

Earnings Big But Net Profits Small.

Examination of the company's reports reveals the fact that the increased cost to the company per message in recent years has resulted very largely from the heavy expenditures incurred for the improvement of the company's lines and for the substitution of copper for iron wires. In the year ended June 30, 1906, the Western Union transmitted 71,487,082 messages, an increase of over 4,000,000 messages compared with the previous year. The gross receipts on this business amounted to $30,675,054, compared with gross receipts of $29,033,835 in 1905. On this increased gross business, however, the company reported smaller net earnings. These amounted in 1906 to $7,070,582 compared with $7,188,065 in 1905. Thus with an increase of over $1,000,000 in gross earnings there was an actual decrease of about $118,000 in profits. It appears, however, that the expenses of the company in 1906 included $4,422,960 expended for the maintonance and repair of the lines and for general improvement of the company's facilities. Of these expenditures the company's report says:

"A large part of this amount wae devoted to the betterment of the property and might with propriety be charged to capital account, but conservatively has been charged to maintenance and reconstruction."

While this policy appears on one hand to effectually answer any suggestion that the Western Union has in recent years been overcapitalized, it raises the question whether or not it is entirely fair to the present users of the telegraph lines to charge this development work to operating expenses, thus necessarily increasing the average cost per message. Were the cost of this work capitalized, only the interest charge would have to be borne by those using the company's lines.

The dividend rate has stood at 5 per cent. for a number of years past, and the amount paid out in dividends has been about $1,585,080 annually on a capital stock of $31,370,000. On the basis of last year's earnings the surplus this year, allowing for $400,000 additional interest on the recently issued bonds for $10,000,000, would be reduced to about $474,000, a relatively narrow margin when compared with the company's gross earnings of $30,000,000.

COL. H. B. WOOD DEAD.

Veteran of Two Wars Had Lived in Seclusion at Dobbs Ferry.

Special to The New York Times.

DOBBS FERRY, N. Y., April 2.—The funeral of Col. Henry Bayles Wood, ex-President of the Board of Aldermen of New York, who was found dead in bed here on Sunday, will be held to-morrow. Col. Wood was a veteran of the Mexican and civil wars, and lived in seclusion in a house on Belden Avenue. Col. Wood was a descendant of two distinguished officers of the American Revolution, Col. H. Bayles, aid-de-camp on Gen. Washington's staff, and Capt. William Rice of the Continental Line.

Col. Wood was a member of the Order of Cincinnati and of the Masonic order. He practiced law for many years in New York and Harrisburg, Penn. He leaves a son, Nicholas B. Wood of St. Louis, Mo., and a sister, Mrs. Margaret K. Kein of Philadelphia.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

J. Herbert Potts.

J. Herbert Potts died at his home, 11 Bentley Avenue, Jersey City, yesterday of cancer of tho throat, from which he had suffered for a long time, and for which he had undergone three operations.

He was born in Trenton, N. J., fifty-seven years ago, was admitted to the bar in 1875, and settled in Jersey City. He was elected to the Assembly from the Fifth District as a Republican, and served two terms. He was afterward Clerk of the House, and was re-elected in 1890, serving three terms. Mayor Wanser appointed him a Police Justice in 1893, and reappointed him in 1896.

Mayor Pagan made Mr. Potts a Police Commissioner two years ago. He was elected President of the board, and was reappointed on Jan. 1 last. The police officials charged with permitting gambling in the city were on trial. The strain on Mr. Potts proved too great. He had only just come out of the hospital, and by consent of Mayor Pagan he exchanged places with Theodore Bierck, President of the Fire Commission.

He was the Secretary for New Jersey to the Republican National Convention that nominated Mr. Roosevelt for Vice President, was a prominent Mason, and a member of several other orders. He leaves a widow, one son, and two daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Oscar Guhelman of East Orange.

ALLEGED "DOPING" TOLD BY TRAINER

Millard Sanders Describes His Brother's Part in the Gold Cup Scandal.

HOW RACE WAS TROTTED

Mare Seemed Distressed After Defeat by Major Delmar—Revived with Champagne.

Probing the trottlag scandal, which developed from the alleged "doping" of C. K. G. Billings's mare, Lou Dillun, immediately prior to the race at Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 18, 1904, for the Memphis Gold Cup, which was won by Elmer E. Smathers's gelding, Major Delmar, was resumed yesterday before Justice Greenbaum and a jury in the Supreme Court, when Millard Sanders, brother of Edward Sanders, the trainer of Lou Dillon at the time of the race, resumed the witness stand and testified that his brother, Edward, whom George W. Spear, a former driver and trainer for J. E. Smathers, swore Monday had agreed to arrange for Lou Dillon to be beaten for $10,000 after being offered $5,000, was in St. Louis when last heard from about three months ago.

Sanders's testimony was largely confined to conversations with his brother, Edward, relative to the proposition to drug Lou Dillon, and the condition of the mare before and after the race for the cup. He said he had seen his brother Edward and Mr. Smathers talking together at the Lexington track about Oct. 8 or 9, ten days before the Memphis race, when he overheard Mr. Smathers say to his brother Edward: "Well, how are you this morning?" which was followed by the remark, "I can beat the mare on the square."

Witness said his brother had spoken of being able to get $5,000 for having Lou Dillon lose the race, but he told his brother he would not have anything to do with the scheme, and refused to entertain any proposition that would hurt Lou Dillon's chance of winning. Two days later his brother again approached him on the subject, but he again refused, and ordered his brother away from the stable. On another occasion when walking with his brother he saw Mr. Smathers standing near. His brother urged him to talk the matter over with Major Delmar's owner with no success.

Again at the stable his brother said Mr. Smathers had renewed his offer of $5,000. This was at Lexington, just prior to the end of the trotting meeting. At Memphis, the witness said, his brother renewed his attempts to persuade him to go into the conspiracy with the remark, "Are you going to be a big fool and throw away a chance to make money so easily?" Millard said he declared he would not do anything to hurt Mr. Billings's mare. This conversation was followed by a request from Edward for Millard to make an engagement with George W. Spear to talk the matter over.

On the evening before the race, the witness testified that he had a conversation with Spear in his room at the hotel, when he said to Spear: "George, you have come to talk to me about a matter I shall have nothing to do with." On the day of the race Spear accosted the witness and said he supposed it was all over. Upon receiving an affirmative reply, Spear appeared annoyed and irritated and walked away. This was the last time Spear approached witness with the view of fixing the race.

In describing Lou Dillon's condition prior and subsequent to the race, Sanders said that when the mare warmed up for the first heat she was in good health and spirits and in perfect condition. He jogged her three miles, the fastest in 2:12. In the race Lou Dillon led by a head at the half-mile post, when she suddenly began to stop. She slowed down, and Major Delmar won easily. When Lou Dillon returned to the stable and was unhitched from the wagon she looked tired and exhausted and staggered somewhat. She was considerably congested in appearance and was revived with champagne.

When Lou Dillon was led out of the stable to be harnessed for the second heat it was noticed she had palpitation, which was not apparent when she finished the first heat. A veterinary was called and examined the mare. Mr. Billings scored her severely against the advice of the witness, who said he was afraid she would drop dead. Mr. Billings drove the second heat slowly so as to allow Mr. Smathers to win the race. After the second heat the mare was breaking hard and was distressed, but recovered her normal condition on the day following the race.

The witness then described how Lou Dillon, two days later, trotted a full mile in 2:01¼, and on the following Wednesday reduced the time by a quarter of a second.

On cross-examination Sanders admitted that up to the time of the race Lou Dillon had never trotted but two races, while Major Delmar was a campaigner of great celebrity and had trotted many races. He denied ever having "pulled" in a race, and that he had told Mr. Striver that he would break Lou Dillon's gait in a "show-off" so that she could be bought for about $3,000 or $4,000. It was shown that on July 14, 1904, Lou Dillon, while trying to beat the record of Maud S., tired badly; that in the Cold Cup race it was a very sultry day, and that the horses scored three times at a high rate of speed before getting away, and the first quarter was made at close to a two-minute clip. The witness also admitted that on the day of the race it was an open question as to which horse could trot the faster without a wind shield.

In explanation for not telling Mr. Billings about the alleged crooked work, the witness said he had never conversed with Mr. Billings for more than a minute at a time, and had always recognized Mr. Tanner in matters pertaining to the stable. He had not told Mr. Tanner on account of the proposition being made by his brother, but when accused by the National Trotting Association he decided to tell everything. The case will be resumed today.

Public School Athletes.

The four city athletic fields, which, when completed, will cost $50,000, will, according to Lee F. Hanmer, be ready for school games this Spring. Mr. Hanmer has just completed an examination of these playgrounds, which are to be operated under the Board of Education. The Astoria field, which is opposite the Ninety-second Street ferry, and occupies a point on the river front, is rapidly nearing completion. The field will be ready for school inter-games in a week or two, but will not be completed until Fall.

The Brooklyn athletic field is not nearly ready, but a large gang of workmen is pushing the work of grading and surfacing. The Bronx field will be in condition before Summer. The Staten Island field is delayed by reason of the necessity of erecting a large retaining wall.

Basket ball leads the Public Schools Athletic League elementary programme this week in interest, although the swimming events of next Saturday morning also are attracting attention. This afternoon the borough champions play off the semi-finals for the city championship. In the senior events Public School 188, Manhattan, will play Public School 37. The Brooklyn senior champions from Public School 84 meet the Queens seniors from Public School 11 in Public School 117, and the junior teams of Brooklyn Public School 43 meet the junior champions of Queens Public School 85.

The winners of the semi-finals of the elementary basket ball championship will meet on Saturday at 2 P. M. in the Twenty-second Regiment armory. This promises to be one of the largest elementary school basket ball meets of the season, as tickets have been sent to the boys of ninety-three schools which have entered teams in the tournament.

Public School 147 is planning a big meet of boys from the 6B grade down with boys of similar grades from Public School 34, to be held on April 10 on the roof playground. The events are: Fifty-yard dash, 360-yard relay, high jump, running broad jump, potato race, all for boys up to eighty pounds, and a flat relay race for midgets under sixty pounds. Basket ball in this school is being developed by means of a big inter-class tournament of juniors and seniors, at which sixty-two games will be played for the championship of the school.

White Defeats Scheedig at Billiards.

C. E. White defeated C. Scherdig last night in the amateur 14.2 balk line billiard handicap at the Knickerbocker Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, by the score of 275 to 148. The players were evenly handicapped, but White secured a big lead at the end of the first string and increased it to the end of the contest. The winner's average was 6 22-42, with high runs of 24, 21, and 18. Scheidig averaged 3 25-41, with 23, 15, and 10 as his best single efforts.

TWELFTH REGIMENT GAMES.

Bacon Displays Good Form in the 600-Yard Event.

The Spring games of the Twelfth Regiment Athletic Association were held last night in the armory, Sixty-second Street and Columbus Avenue. Good form generally was displayed, and in the 600-yards handicap run for the Military Athletic League Charles Bacon, Jr., of the Twenty-third Regiment, made a great race of this event from scratch, winning with five yards to spare at the finish over a field of seventeen starters.

From the beginning of this race Bacon displayed excellent judgment in working his way through the field. On the last lap he had only "Jack" Ellingwood, Twenty-second Regiment, and Renemann of the Seventy-first ahead of him. Then Bacon let out his stride and cut down both of the leaders as they turned into the stretch for the tape. Rehemann finished second to him, with Ellingwood third. The time was 1:17 2-5.

The running high jump brought out the peculiarities of the jumpers in a way that amused the spectators. Schmidt, who won the event, performed in his bare feet. His style was excellent, and he topped the bar at 5 feet 1 inch. Second to him came Biglin, who cleared the bar half an inch below Schmidt. The second man danced around as in a Spanish fandango for his takeoff. He had a fine twist as he went over the bar, but the crowd guyed his peculiar style so that he became annoyed and finally missed getting over through nervousness. The summary:

60 Yards Dash, Novice.—Won by J. Best, Company A; J. Byrnes, Company A, second; W. Munson, Company L, third. Time—0:07 4-5.

60 Yards Dash, Handicap.—Won by W. J. Krielstein, Company D, (9 feet;) George Merz, Company A, (4 feet,) second; J. Stack, Company G, (11 feet,) third. Time—0:06 4-5.

600 Yards Run, Handicap, for Military Athletic League.—Won by Charles Bacon, Jr., Twenty-third Regiment, (scratch;) J. Rehemann, Seventy-first Regiment, (20 yards,) second; John Ellingwood, Twenty-second Regiment, (20 yards,) third. Time—1:17 2-5.

One Mile Inter-Company Relay Race.—Won by Company C team, composed of J. Walsh, G. Rafter, H. McDonough, and R. Kautzman; Company K team, composed of J. G. Wood, A. F. Gorman, L. Kopff, and M. Amster, second; Company G team, composed of G. Malcolm, W. Malcolm, F. W. Holler, and J. Gahan, third. Time—5:49 4-5.

Half-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by A. Walsh, Company C, (34 yards;) W. J. Kreitsek, Company D, (20 yards,) second; C. Kautman, Company C, (35 yards,) third. Time—2:09 4-5.

Quarter-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by G. Rafter, Company C, (20 yards;) G. Merz, Company A, (5 yards,) second; Walter M. Freund, Company E, (0 yards,) third. Time—0:55.

12-Pound Shot Put, Handicap.—Won by H. G. Corell, Company H, (6 feet,) put 44 feet 6½ inches; W. Beckman, Company G, (scratch,) put 44 feet ½ inch, second; J. G. Bohan, Company B, (6 feet,) put 36 feet, third.

Running High Jump, Handicap.—Won by H. Schmidt, Company D, (5 inches,) jump 5 feet 1 inch; F. A. Biglin, Company D, (4 inches,) jump 5 feet ½ inch, second; E. Byron, Company E, (2 inches,) jump 5 feet, third.

MILITARY CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Big Fields Assured for Soldiers' Athletic Games This Week.

Nearly every champion in the metropolitan district of the Amateur Athletic Union is a member of the National Guard of New York, and will be seen in competition at the annual indoor athletic carnival of the Military Athletic League to be held at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, next Friday and Saturday evenings. The list of entries represents a National A. A. U. championship meeting, and big fields are assured in every event. The programme will consist of twenty events each evening, and keen competition is assured in every heat.

The meeting will mark the close of the indoor athletic season, and over 700 athletes will be found competing for the prizes. Record holders will be on hand in strong force. While the Twenty-second and Thirteenth Regiments are expected to divide the premier honors, the athletes in the other military organizations may cause a big upset in all calculations. One of the features of the tournament will be the regimental championship relay race, in which the fastest relay teams in Greater New York are entered.

The Thirteenth Regiment will be represented by Lawson Robertson, M. J. Spring, Harry L. Hillman, Jr., Harvey Cohn, P. J. Waters, James H. Geevan, George E. Hall, Harry Van Thum, and F. L. Sypher. The relay team will be chosen from Waters, Roberts, Farrell, Cohn, McCormick, and Van Thum. The Twenty-second Regiment entries will include Melvin W. Sheppard, J. P. Sullivan, A. J. Crockett, F. Rogers, H. P. Odell, R. H. Lummis, C. J. Clarke, R. H. Koch, and W. Ellis. The relay team comprises Sheppard, Crockett, Clarke, and Koch, with Ewards, Lumnis, and Lewis as reserves. John Joyce, the long distance runner, and Thomas Collins, the junior metropolitan and National A. A. U. cross-country champion, will head the athletes from the Sixty-ninth Regiment, and the relay team will be selected from J. J. Archer, E. H. Von Elling, W. Moore, F. Kuehnel, T. D. Hurler, W. J. Cook, and C. A. Macauley. The Twenty-third Regiment Athletic Association comprises a promising lot of young athletes, with Smye C. Northridge as Captain, and Richard Sheldon, Jr., the weight thrower, heads the contingent from the Seventh Regiment. The Seventy-first Regiment entries include W. G. Wilson, C. A. Norris, E. J. Sweeney, J. F. Reherman, C. H. Davis, J. L. McCahill, P. P. Lilley, and P. B. McCahill, from whom the relay quartet will be selected. The Twelfth Regiment relay team will make a good showing with F. J. Merz, J. H. Gahan, W. Kreitsiek, W. Freund, and G. J. Merz.

GOLF AT PINEHURST.

Herreshoff Wins Twenty-Hole Match In Championship Play.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 2.—There were few dull moments in to-day's first match round in the seventh annual United North and South amateur championship golf tournament, close play ruling throughout, with interest chiefly centred upon the first or championship division. The feature was a twenty-hole contest between Fred Herreshoff of Garden City and L. A. Hamilton of Englewood, the recent winner of the "All-Florida" championship. Herreshoff won the twentieth hole by a stroke, thus getting in the second round. The cards were 81 each for the eighteenth hole, and 90 and 91 respectively for the twenty holes. Other close matches were the victories of Allan Lard of Columbia over J. D. Foot of Apawamis, David Fleming, Jr., of Mt. Airy over C. West Taintor of Fox Hills, and T. J. Stvenson of Brookline over S. D. Bowers of Brooklawn, all being decided on the home green. The summaries of the four cup divisions are:

First Division.—First Round—David Fleming, Jr., Mount Airy, beat C. West Taintor, Fox Hills, 1 up; T. G. Stevens, Brookline, beat S. D. Bowers, Brooklawn Country, 1 up; W. P. Schatz, Wheaton, beat R. H. Gwaltney, Wilmington, N. C., 6 up and 5 to play; Allan Lard, Columbia, beat J. D. Foot, Apawamis, 1 up; W. K. Wood, Homewood, beat T. S. Lippy, Seattle, 3 up and 1 to play; C. L. Becker, Woodland, beat T. R. Newbold, Chevy Chase, 4 up and 3 to play; N. F. Moore, Onwentsia, beat Dwight Partridge, Bedford, 4 up and 3 to play; Fred Herreshoff, Garden City, beat L. A. Hamilton, Englewood, 1 up, (20 holes.)

Second Division.—First Round—L. D. Pierce, Woodland, beat A. D. Partridge, Bedford, 3 up and 2 to play; E. G. Dodd, Zanesville, beat J. P. Gardiner, Midlothian, 1 up, (19 holes;) C. A. Spofford, Garden City, beat Harry Dutton, Oakley, 3 up and 1 to play; C. L. Tappan, Garden City, beat W. L. Fish, Roseville, 1 up and 5 to play; George Robeson, Oakhill, beat J. R. Landon, Englewood, 3 up and 2 to play; W. H. Lyon, Misquamicut, beat H. S. Holden, Onondaga, 2 up and 1 to play; I. C. Bates, Wyantennuck, beat George Worthington, Mount Anthony, 1 up; N. S. Hurd, Oakmont, beat A. F. Southerland, Englewood, 4 up and 3 to play.

Third Division.—First Round—G. F. McKinney, Siwanoy, beat J. V. Hurd, Oakmont, 5 up and 1 to play; T. H. Baldwin, Springfield, Kenilworth, beat H. S. Gordon, Twaalfskill, 3 up and 2 to play; C. E. Cameron, Baltusrol, beat W. L. Hurd, Oakmont, 2 up and 1 to play; J. Shepard, Jr., Providence, beat J. E. Kellogg, Alpine, Fitchbourg, 1 up, (20 holes;) W. R. Stenger, Mount Airy, beat F. J. Bailey, Charlevoix, 6 up and 5 to play; T. A. Fogarty, Elkwood, beat W. S. North, Riverside, 4 up and 3 to play; F. B. Barnett, Fox Hills, beat P. P. Pretto, Plymouth, 3 up and 2 to play.

Fourth Division.—First Round—H. B. Miller, Shinnecock, beat J. M. Robinson, Littleton, 9 up and 7 to play; W. A. Barnum, Brooklyn, drew a bye; G. F. Bootb, Buffalo, beat W. L. Murphy, Pittsburg, 5 up and 4 to play; H. E. O'Reilly, Elkwood, drew a bye; A. E. Wright, Cooperstown, beat H. W. Goodman, West Newton, 1 up; A. H. Brainard, Essex County, drew a bye; A. S. Martin, Forest Hills, beat T. W. Weeks, Storm King, 5 up and 4 to play; D. M. Jackson, Plymouth, Mass., drew a bye.

BELMONT'S HORSES FIRST IN TWO RACES.

Okenite and Queen's Souvenir Take Opening Events at the Benning Track.

GAMENESS OF BLACK FILLY

Lysistrata's Poor Showing in Steeplechase Cause of an Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—August Belmont had an inning at Benning this afternoon. He had only two entries, but he won with both of them. Okenite was his first winner, and ho followed that colt's victory with another when his little black filly, Queen's Souvenir, which won on the second day of the meeting at odds of 30 to 1, came rightback and beat the Columbia Stable's Lady Isabel, which has been regarded by many horsemen as the best two-year-old that has been shown at the Benning track this Spring.

Queen's Souvenir gave an admirable exhibition of gameness. She looked to be beaten a furlong from home, when Johnson drove her forward and joined Lady Isabel, which had been in the lead. Johnson found he had a willing horse under him, and he drove her for all she was worth. Inch by inch she crawled up on Lady Isabel, and just before the wire was reached poked her head in front and kept it there. Little Goldstein, on Lady Isabel, could not help his mount a particle or there might have been a different result.

The third race furnished another exciting finish when Jupiter just squeezed home a short head in front of Bowling Bridge. This was another case of incompetency, for with riders reversed Bowling Bridge could hardly have lost.

Cold weather again caused the spectators to move about to keep warm. Two favorites, a heavily played second choice, and three outsiders was the record for the afternoon, but as Okenite carried probably as much money as Oxford in the opening race, it is probable the public broke even wit hthe layers.

The steeplechase furnished a big surprise, and incidentally was the cause of an investigation. J. W. Colt's Lysistrata was a natural favorite, but after setting the pace to the stretch, she stopped and allowed the 25 to 1 shot Rocket to beat her out. McInerney apparently did not make a move on Lysistrata after he had taken the last fence, and did not go to the whip. The Stewards at once called him into the stand, and later Mr. Colt was sent for. Mr. Colt explained that Lysistrata was a heavy-headed mare, but this can hardly account for the horse's poor showing. It is understood that the Stewards will continue the investigation, for it surely was a had-looking race. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward; five furlongs, Columbia course. Okenite, 113 pounds, (J. Johnson,) 5 to 2 and 4 to 5, won; Oxford, 126, (Mountain,) 2 to 1 and 4 to 5, second; Platoon, 104, (Morris,) 20 to 1, 4 to 5, second; Platoon, 104, (Morris,) 20 to 1, 4 to 5, third. Time—1:02 3-5. Golf Ball, Berkeley, Cedarstrone, Greeno, Gentian, and Billy Handsel also ran.

Roller Skating Races at Lenox Rink.

Five events were decided last night at the weekly roller skating races at the Lenox Rink, 116th Street and Lenox Avenue. The feature of the programme was a mile amateur handicap, which was won by Joseph White, who started from scratch after a close race with D. Krantz, who was also a back mark man. The summary:

One-Mile Novice, Women.—Won by Miss Fannie Weiss; Miss M. Jacob, second; Miss A. Altlas, third. Time—4:18.

One-Mile Match Race, Handicap.—Miss Sophie Cowenerthwait (2 laps) defeated E. Koch, (scratch.) Time—3:42.

GLAD CHASE IS BACK.

But the Young Man from San Jose Does Not Get Salary Demanded.

No more astonished baseball persons in New York could be found yesterday than Frank Farrell, owner, and Abe Nahon, Secretary, of the Greater New York Club of the American League. They had heard from unofficial sources—not from Manager Griffith—that Hal Chase, the first baseman of the team, had written from his home at San José to the effect that he would report for duty as soon as possible. While they had no doubt that the great first baseman would see the folly of holding out for an unreasonable demand for his services, it was not expected that he would come to a final conclusion so suddenly and without them being apprised of it.

While Chase's appearance on the New York team will be hailed with satisfaction, it is almost certain that the Californian's demand for an increase of salary was not acceded to. It is well known that Chase asked for something like $2,000 more than he received last season. The contract he was asked to sign this year is said to have specified a voluntary increase of $1,000, but Chase seemed obdurate, and the report was circulated that he intended to open a café in San José and play with an outlaw club in that city. This did not seem to affect the Greater New York Club officials. In fact, it is believed that Mr. Farrell told his first baseman that his demand was unreasonable, and under no circumstances would it be considered. His letter, therefore, which Manager Griffith received at Atlanta on Monday that he had made a mistake, and was willing to rectify it.

Chase says that during the coaching of the St. Mary's College team of San José he contracted a rather severe cold, which has compelled him to keep indoors. He may, he says, join the team at Baltimore on either April 9 or 10, but if not he surely will be ready for the first championship game at Washington on April 11.

With the return of Chase the Greater New York Club officials do not seem to be alarmed over their chances. Only two of their old men will be absent—Delehanty and Chesbro. Notwithstanding the fact that Delehanty's contract called for an increase of salary over last year, he still refuses to sign, and according to all indications he will be compelled to accept the club's conditions of not play legitimate ball. With Conroy, Hoffman, and Keeler in the outfield and Moriarty as a substitute, Manager Griffith believes it will be fixed as well as any team in the country. "Happy Jack" Chesbro, it is thought, is out of the game for good. Word comes from the training quarters of the team at Atlanta that the old "wet ball" artist is not seriously considered. Chase is the man wanted to strengthen the team into championship form, and now that he has been secured the others outside of the fold are not thought of.

GIANTS SHUT OUT NASHVILLE.

McGraw Changes Men Around, but They Outplay Southerners.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, April 2.—Nashville was defeated to-day at the hands of the Giants, the score being 6 to 0. New York hit opportunely and to good purpose, while the locals could connect only three times with the visiting pitchers. The men who officiated in the box for McGraw were Matthewson, Ames, and Wiltse, the first-named being responsible for two hits, Ames one and the "Southpaw" none. Sorrell and Purdue did the box for Nashville, both being batted rather freely at times.

A big crowd witnessed the game despite the fact that the weather, though fair, had a decided crisp to it which was felt even by the players.

The game was without especial feature. Though Wiseman, for Nashville, did some grand-stand work in the infield, New York's batting rally in the seventh inning was of the fireworks quality. Both teams worked slow, and McGraw's men at times were inclined to object. The score:

AT THE AMERICANS' CAMP.

Manager Griffith to Send Part of His Players to Richmond.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 2.—The best news of the season at the Greater New Yorks' camp was the receipt of a telegram today from Hal Chase stating that he would soon be on his way East to resume his place on the team. Griffith does not know wjust when or where the great first baseman will turn up, but he is more than glad to hear from him. Half of the New York team will leave Atlanta tomorrow for Richmond, the other half remaining here until next Sunday. Brooklyn plays Atlanta here to-morrow.

George Davis Leaves for Chicago.

George Davis left town yesterday to confer with President Comiskey of the Chicago Club. The famous shortstop of the world's champions has refused to renew his contract owing to insufficient salary, but the fact of his leaving to talk to the "Old Roman" indicates that differences will be amicably adjusted. Davis strongly denied the much-believed report that his holding back from returning to the Chicagos was for the purpose of a trade with Boston for Tenney. "No such an arrangement was ever mentioned to me," said Davis, "and if it had I should have turned it down. I intend to play with Chicago or with no team at all."

Brooklyn Keeps Up Winning Galt.

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., April 2.—The Macon team was shut out this afternoon by the Brooklyn National League players, who played gilt-edged ball and batted hard and safe. Fourteen hits in all were registered by the visitors, and nearly half that many rounds of fresh were legally the local outfielders in chasing down the long hits. At no time in the game was Brooklyn in danger of being headed. Stricklett used the wet ball to good advantage, while on the other hand both of the Macon pitchers were batted freely. Lewis was back in the game and had plenty of work to do. Score:

Georgetown Too Much for Yale.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—In one of the finest exhibitions of college baseball seen here this season Georgetown defeated Yale to-day by 2 to 1. Cantwell, who was batted so unmercifully by Princeton on Saturday, was in the box for the local collegians, and he was an enigma to the Eli batters, allowing only three hits and striking out nine men. Georgetown got eight hits off Meyer, and they were so arranged that the Blue and Gray was able to pull the game out of the fire in the seventh inning, after it seemed as though Yale had better than an even chance to win. A running catch by Clifford was the fielding feature. The score:

"Jerry" Denny Buys New Haven Club

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 2.—"Jerry" Denny, who played third base for Providence when that club won the National League championship in 1884, to-day bought the New Haven franchise of the Connecticut League for about $8,500 from Cornelius Danaher of Meriden. Denny denies he has purchased it for John T. Brush, President of the New York Nationals. He has personally assumed charge, ordering players to report on April 10. Denny has been conducting a hotel in Derby, this State.

John T. Brush emphatically denied yesterday that he had purchased the New Haven Club as a "farm" to develop players for the New York Club. "The franchise was offered to me," said Mr. Brush, "but as I had no use for it I refused to buy."

AUTO CUP PROBLEMS NEARING SOLUTION

New Conditions and Exact Circuit for Race Will Soon Be Announced.

VANDERBILT DUE TO-DAY

Racing Board and Parkway Directors Will Meet at Once to Complete Arrangements.

With the arrival of William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., to-day on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., automobile activity in the Vanderbilt Cup race preparations and the Long Island Motor Parkway will take a new lease of life. It had been expected that Mr. Vanderbilt would arrive yesterday, and in that case Chairman Jefferson De Mont Thompson had made preparations to call a meeting of the A. A. A. Racing Board this week, but he said yesterday that it would probably be postponed until early next week, unless Mr. Vanderbilt expresses his willingness to meet at once and lay his suggestions befors the board regarding the proposed changes in the running of the cup race this year.

Inquiries have besn pouring in rapidly within the last few days upon Mr. Thompson from American manufacturers who are preparing to snter cars asking for some definite information concerning the changed conditions.

"I do not know myself what they will be," said Mr. Thompson yesterday. "I only know that Mr. Vanderbilt, as a result of his conference with the foreign autoists, contemplates some changes so as to bring the big international race here on some basis of uniformity with the big events abroad. I am free to say, however, that nothing will be done at this late date to handicap in any way the American manufacturers who have partially finished their cars. Ths weight limitations will undoubtedly be modified, but whether anything like the fuel capacity limit of the Grand Prix or the cylinder capacity restrictions of the German Emperor's Cup race will be advisabls at this time will not be determined until after our first meeting."

Mr. Thompson said he had lately received from J. J. Mann of Paris, ths foreign representative of the board on the Technical Committee, the complete rules with detailed information of the Grand Prix race in France. In addition he has received official copies of the German and Italian rules and translations are being made so that every detail may be thoroughly discussed at ths meeting of the Racing Board.

Whils no absolute entries havs yet been made or even informally tendered to Mr. Thompson, the preliminary announcements from different manufacturers indicate that from 25 to 27 American cars are being prepared for the elimination trials. Just how many of these will materalize into bona fide entries is problematical. Last year fifteen American cars started in the elimination contest and provided the conditions are satisfactory the number will undoubtedly be larger this year.

Besides these racing announcements a definite statement will be made within the next two weeks by ths Directors of ths Long Island Motor Parkway regarding the exact course for the race. The regular meeting of ths Plan and Scops Committee was postponed yesterday in expectation that Mr. Vanderbilt would be able to attend the meeting this afternoon. The committee has practically decided to suggest a sixteen-mile course toward the eastern end of the Parkway for the race, but this may be altered so as to give a slightly longer racing circuit.

The preliminary work on the highway is virtually finished, and all that is now necessary is to sign the contracts for road construction. Mr. Pardington has stated that work on grading and building the racing section would begin by the middle of April.

GOOD WORD FOR OLD AUTOS.

Standard Make Should Last Five Years, Says President Hotchkiss.

Automobilists who are driving cars of from one to three years old and who still find them perfectly serviceable for touring purposes havs been discussing with considerable interest the remarks of President William H. Hotchkiss of the American Automobils Association before the annual dinner of the Rochester Automobils Club last week, in which he strongly criticised the statoments of soms motorists that the average life of the motor car, even of the best make, is only about a vear. It will be remembered in this connection that at the luncheon of ths independent manufacturers previous to the Grand Central Palacs show tuat Gen. George Moore Smith deprecated the tendency of making ths previous year's car appear as an inferior product to the latest model. Mr. Hotchkiss states that he has been driving a car that has been in constant use for thres years, and it is practically as ~ood as ever.

"A machine of standard make ought to last for five years," he said. "The stiffening qualities of chrome nickel steel, now coming into general use by American manufacturers, should add many years to the life of the home-built car. The automobils has coms to stay. I belisve that befors we are old men we will find that the horse has become the property of ths very rich or the very poor, valued by ths one class for the love of the animal, by ths other as a matter of economy. Motor cars will taks the place of the horse for ordinary purposes of pleasure and business, freight will be hauled about in cars instead of by horses, and I expect to see trolley lines paralleled in many instances hy automobile systems."

Automobile Notes of Interest.

George J. Scott, the New York agent for the Glide car, stated yesterday that a high-grade racing car is now under construction in the Illinois factory for the Vanderbilt Cup race. This will be the first appearance of this car in a big speed contest. "The factory has been contemplating this step for some time," added Mr. Scott, "and this year it was felt that some representation should be made in an event of so wide-spread a character. The Glide cars for years past have always demonstrated their remarkable stability and power, and in the Vanderbilt Cup race a machine will be entered that will, in every way be as formidable as money and ingsnuity can make it."

Herbert H. Lytle, who will drive ons of ths Pope-Toledo cars in the coming Vanderbilt Cup race, has been in New York sevsral days and it is intimated that before going back to the Toledo factory he will make a long-distance touring car run to some Eastern or Southern city.

Benjamin Briscoe, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association, will start to-day for an extended trip through tho West. During his absnce he expects to make an automobile tour through California.

Sidney S. Breess of the Automobils Club of America will start to-day in a 35-horse power Westinghouse car on an sconomy run of 400 miles through Long Island. The bonnet of the engine will be sealed before the start and he will carry an official observer with him to keep en accurate record of the gasoline consumption. He expects to average 25 miles an hour.

FIRST HORSE SHOW OF SPRING SEASON

Miss Emily Bedford Takes Both Harness Classes with ex-Champion Hildred.

HER TANDEM ALSO WINS

Successful Opening of Durland's Annual Show Witnessed by Typical Gathering of Fashionable Set.

The first night of the Durland Horse Show, the opsning of the Spring horse show season about New York, justified the promise of the enthusiasts of a successful inaugural. The absencs of the A. G. Vanderbilt string abroad and failure of Reginald Vanderbilt to enter robbed the show of some of its interest, but there was a good class and unusual number of entries nevertheless and some well-known horss show favorites. The feature was ths double victory of the Waldorf-Astoria Cup winner, Hildred, shown by Miss Emily H. Bedford for the first time since the purchass of the mare from Eben D. Jordan. Hildred took the blus in both harness classes, each time defending well-known horses of the Watson string, including Lord Baltimore, Norina, and his new mare, Ringing Bells.

Besides the harness classes there were classes for tandems and four-in-hands, for saddle horses, jumpers, and polo ponies. In ths tandem class the blue also went to Miss Bedford with Donner and Blitzen. The blocks made a gallant show and were splendidly handled in the ring. C. W. Watson's Kitty Grey and Ringing Bells were awarded ths red over Mrs. Gerken's Newsboy and Shopgirl, though there was evidently a division of sentiment as to their relative merits.

Considering the character of the event, the show as rather poorly patronized in numbers, but there was a typical horse show gathering in attendancs. Ths hunting set was prominent and many of the best-known lovers of harness horses were present. In the boxes there were noticed Mrs. William O. Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Tod, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon T. Hughes, R. H. Halstead, Col. Daniel Appleton, Major John R. Hegeman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Slauson, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Gerken, Mr. C. F. Lawrence, Mr. E. A. Morrison, Mr. Frederick Gerken, Mr. Horacs Ingsrsoll, Mr. R. M. Pattsrson, Mrs. E. R. Ladew, Miss Emily H. Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. T. Stanton Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. APRIL

The ending of Lent this year coincides with the beginning of April, the gayest and most distinguished month in Atlantic City's famous Spring season. During this month more eminent visitors and "nice people" are to be found in the great hotels than in any other month of the year, and the absencs of the Easter Sunday "INTERRUPTION" ensbles guests to completely enjoy all the attracotns of climate and artificial entertainment of this festive season with entire satisfaction.

The hotel claims distinction for its location, its ample public space devoted to its guests, its high-class music every night throughout the year, but particularly attractive with solo singers at the week-ends during the Spring season and its ownership manc-ment.

All the four dining rooms (two American plan, with the excellent cooking heretofore so popular, and two a la carte, with separate kitchens and French cooks) have white service throughout, and in one of the American rooms, called the "American Palm Room," and in the a la carte rooms smoking is permitted. They are particularly attractive. Ocean and suites with large rooms 84 by 20 feet and a private bath (supplied with both sea water and fresh water and with running ice water) is with every alternate room in the Marlborough and with every room in the Blenheim, which in construction is reputed to be the most completely fireproof hotel in the world. THE FREDERICK HOTELS ENGLAND

THE HOTEL RUSSELL, LONDON

Ideal location for the tourist visitor. Within easy reach of all places of amusement, public buildings in the very centre of the town, close to the leading railway termini and British Museum, yet enjoying a quiet situation well removed from the noisy traffic. On high ground, overlooking the well-wooded grounds, verdant lawns and carefully tended gardens of historic Russell Square, insuring composure at night amid quiet surroundings and bracing air.

The bedroom accommodation at the Hotel Russell is luxurious in the extreme, probably without equal in Europe.

CUISINE IS WORLD-FAMED WELL DISCIPLINED SERVICE

THE GREAT CENTRAL, LONDON

is arranged on the model of a great English country mansion, designed to meet the demand for a hotel offering the utmost comfort at reasonable charges. Since its construction it has steadily grown in favor among the best English families, who in many cases, adopt it as their Town House during the season. Situated on high ground, enjoying ths fresh, bracing air from the Northern heights and adjacent parks, an internal plan that permits free access of light and air to every room, lofty and spacious public apartments, the Great Central has ths reputation of being the most healthful of London hotels for summer residence, and indeed, visitors to London, returning to the Hotel Great Central, wearied after a day's sightseeing in the heat of the day amid turmoil of public places, find welcome relief and quietude, an oasis of repose with freshness of atmosphere quite tonic and enlivening.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Display Irregular Changes —Call Money Rates, 3¾ @2½ Per Cent.

GOLD ENGAGED IN LONDON

Local Bankers Take $2,250,000 from Open Market—Money Markets Much Easier.

Following its vigorous advance on Monday at the expense of the short interest, the stock market yesterday moved with much irregularity toward a slightly lower level. There were distinct periods of strength and weakness during the session, and, while these were in the main due to the varying operations of professional traders, they were not unrelated to the day's news developments. There was disappointment in speculative circles over the failure of Mr. Roosevelt to make a definite statement of his position on the railroad question such as had been expected from him, rightly or wrongly, on Monday, and there was perturbation in the same circles over the unpleasant incidents attendant upon the publication of a letter written by Mr. Harriman regarding political matters. The statement in this letter that Mr. Harriman had assisted in the raising of campaign funds at the President's request brought out a vigorous denial from the latter, but Wall Street's only interest in the whole affair is in its bearing upon the investigation, about to conclude, into the Union Pacific's affairs by the Inter-State Commerce Commission. In brief, the speculative view is that this is a particularly unfavorable moment for developments which may tend to affect the not altogether cordial relations existing beween the Administration and at least a number of the country's great railroads. On the other hand, there were a number of favorable items in the day's budget, including the engagement of $2,250,000 gold in London for import, further heavy deposits of customs receipts with local banks, increasing ease in the rates for money, and a fall in discount rates at London. The bond market displayed marked strength, influenced in part, doubtless, by the easier money conditions, and unusually sharp advances were scored there by the United States Steel sinking fund bonds and several other prominent issues. In the stock market, Canadian Pacific having marched up the hill as a result of a drive against short sellers on Monday, who were unable to obtain stock in London, where a holiday was being observed, marched down again yesterday, when that market opened and a supply of the shares was forthcoming. Atchison fluctuated with some violence, rising finally 2⅞ points under the influence of reports that the Directors will increase the dividend to 6 per cent.

The gold engagement in London yesterday came from the open market, and no effort was made by the Bank of England to absorb the entire supply coming from South Africa. Upon the announcement of the engagement there was a rise of practically 1 cent in the pound in demand sterling, and the rate touched before the close of the day seemed to make it very clear that the growing ease in money in this city has made unnecessary further imports in any volume. There has been, however, a considerable accumulation of credits in London and Paris as a result of sales of short-term notes to European investment houses, and this may later result in further importations. From the Sub-Treasury the banks have gained thus far some $6,442,000, and all in all have received from the Treasury measures regarding customs deposits not less than $16,000,000. The easing position in money was reflected during the course of the day in the decline in time rates for several periods to 5½ per cent., as against the 6 per cent. previously obtaining.

Bar silver was quoted in London at 30½d per ounce and in New York at 65⅝c per ounce. Mexican dollars were 50½c.

BANK CLEARINGS FOR MARCH.

There were heavier settlements through the banks during the month just closed, according to the reports compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., than in any preceding year. The total exchanges for the month at nearly all the cities in the United States were $14,724,099,985, an increase of 12.5 per cent. over last year and of 17.2 per cent. over the same month in 1905. Dun's report says:

> These are substantial gains and testify to the large volume of trade in all sections. New England cities, Central Western, and far Western cities lead in the percentage of increase, but there are good gains at the South and at Pacific Coast points, while in the Middle Atlantic States, omitting New York City, there is only a small increase compared with last year, owing chiefly to the fact that Philadelphia again reports a loss. In all sections there is a larger gain over March, 1905. Stock market liquidation swelled bank settlements at New York City, and the volume of bank clearings was heavier than in either of the two preceding years, the first increase at New York City for several months. Boston and Chicago also report substantial gains, as do Pittsburg, St. Louis, and Cincinnati. The activity shown at many of the important manufacturing centers in New England, the Middle Atlantic, and Central Western States is the most satisfactory feature of the report; also the improvement noted in South Atlantic States.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 2.—Trinity was the feature in the local market to-day, losing over 4 points and declining to 27. Calumet & Arizona gained a couple of points. Outside of these, changes were merely nominal. Amalgamated continued active, New York buying again being in evidence. Trading in the general list was rather quiet during the afternoon.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

After the long holiday in London the metal market opened strong, but sagged away rapidly to a close which left both spot and futures 5s below the last prices of Thursday of last week. The closing quotations were: Spot, £97; futures, £99.

There was a further reduction made on the New York Metal Exchange of ⅛c in the asking price of both lake and electrolytic, and of ⅛c in both bid and asking prices of castings, making lake 24⅜@25c, electrolytic 24⅛@24¾c, and castings 23½@24c.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

When the London market opened yesterday, following its four-day holiday, its first thought was to help out the bears who had been forced to hid as high as 180 for Canadian Pacific in this market on Monday. A liberal supply of the stock was offered by the arbitrage houses, and before the close of the day the price had broken about 9 points, and the little corner so cleverly worked up on Monday was apparently a closed incident.

Outside of the interest attaching to the announcement that another name had been added to the list kept in Washington of the different kinds of prevaricator, no one thing attracted as much attention in Wall Street yesterday as the question of the Atchison dividend. It has been a general understanding that at the last meeting a practical agreement was reached that at the next meeting, that is, the one now to be held, an agreement would be reached that a 6 per cent. rate should be put in effect at this time. The Atchison's earnings have been increasing in the meantime, but the stock market has been in the throes of trouble, and as Atchison suffered only little less severely than many other stocks, confidence in the maintenance of this agreement has been badly shaken. It is understood, nevertheless, that a very powerful element in the directorate is in favor of carrying out the original understanding, irrespective of stock market movements, and knowledge of this fact has made the situation puzzling. The stock reflected this situation yesterday by falling to 91½, rising to 95⅝, and closing at 95¼, a gain of 2⅞ points on the day. Transactions have amounted to some 90,000 shares.

Wall Street noted with interest yesterday the introduction at Albany of Senator Saxe's bill reducing the tax on stock transfers from 2 cents on each $100 par value to 1 cent on each $100 of par value. While the Street has adjusted itself to the payment of the tax as it now stands, there is to this day a lively protest against it, on the ground that it represents an effort to place an unfair proportion of the State tax on this community. The State's income from this tax for the month of March amounted, according to figures made public yesterday, to $638,271. Were Senator Saxe's bill to become law it would result in a saving of $342,635 a month on the basis of the receipts for March.

The uniform strength of the bond market yesterday was hailed as one of the most promising developments in the security market which has appeared since the beginning of the recent decline in prices. It has been predicted that the heavy losses suffered in stocks would turn the attention of investors to the bond market, but it had hardly been expected that improvement in the bond market would be seen at so early a date. United States Steel sinking fund bonds rose yesterday from 96½ to 97¾. Erie convertibles from 78½ to 79¼, Oregon Short Line 4s from 90 to 92, Atchison convertibles from 99¾ to 100¼, and many other issues gained fractions. Delaware & Hudson 4s was one of the exceptions. They declined, but the decline in this issue from the opening price amounted to only a small fraction.

Gold to the amount of $2,250,000 was engaged in London yesterday by Lazard Freres, who had been large buyers of exchange on Monday. The announcement of this gold engagement, which had been foreshadowed by the previous day's operations in the exchange market, was followed by a further sharp advance in exchange rates. Demand sterling, which closed on Monday at 4.8375, rose yesterday to 4.8465, a gain of 90 points.

The movement in the local money market was toward greater ease. The maximum rate for call loans yesterday was 3½ per cent., the minimum rate 2½ per cent., while the average for the day was about 3 per cent. Time money was also offered with greater freedom at slightly reduced rates.

According to Boston estimates the Butte copper district brought its output of the red metal up to normal figures in March for the first time since the beginning of the year. The output, as figured by the Boston authorities, was 30,576,095 pounds in the month of March, an increase of nearly 11,000,000 pounds over the previous month.

The heavy Winter, which has cut into railroad earnings, and the stormy weather which followed the first breakup of Winter, combined with an unusually liberal allowance of Spring slush, has been a source of vast satisfaction to the officials of the United States Rubber Company, who are able to report in consequence current orders 80 per cent. in excess of those of a year ago. The demand for rubber protection against the weather from all sections of the country has oleaned up the retailers' supplies and put them into the market again with orders for Fall delivery. In connection with the heavy business coming in, announcement has been made of an increase in the discount rate on bills payable from 7 to 12 per cent., with the object of stimulating connections. The same extra discount allowance was made at this time a year ago and withdrawn on May 1.

BALTIMORE TRADING.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 2.—There was a better feeling toward United Railways Securities. The free stock sold at 11⅜, an advance of ¼, while the receipts for the deposited shares sold up to 11⅝, an advance of ⅜. All price changes were fractional advances.

Trading In Small Volume with Irregular Movement of Prices, as on 'Change.

SOME COPPERS HIGHER

Gains In Coppers for the Most Part Fractional—Chicago Subway Loses Ground, Closing 1 Point Down.

Curb trading was in limited volume yesterday, and, like the course of stocks on the big Exchange, the price movement was irregular, with a tendency to weakness toward the close except in some of the coppers. Cananea Central was notably strong, moving up from 27½ to 30. Greene-Cananea, after moving fractionally between 16¼ and 16⅞, closed even with the opening at 16¼. Greene Consolidated sold up from 24¾ to 25. The Heinze stocks moved only within fractional limits. Chicago Subway, while again active, was weak yesterday, and closed 1 point below the opening, at 18¼. At one time the stock went as low as 17½. Nipissing was a strong feature of the trading, selling up from 12¾ to 13¼. After transactions of 6,000 shares the close was at 13.

American Writing Paper preferred, stockholders of which were disappointed yesterday at the failure of the company to pay the 1 per cent. dividend declared last October as payable April 1, sold 200 shares at 20. It has not been generally known that the dividend payment has been held up by a friendly injunction proceeding brought in the New Jersey courts to determine once for all the Directors' authority in making the declaration. Another 1 per cent. dividend has been declared payable Oct. 1.

WEATHER IN COTTON STATES.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The Federal Weather Bureau issues the following forecast for the cotton States for Wednesday and Thursday:

North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Eastern Florida—Fair and warmer Wednesday and Thursday; light northerly winds.

Western Florida, Alabama, and Mississippi—Fair and warmer Wednesday; Thursday increasing cloudiness; light to fresh southerly winds.

Louisiana—Fair, warmer, Wednesday; Thursday fair; fresh southerly winds.

Eastern Texas—Partly cloudy Wednesday, warmer in eastern portion; Thursday fair; fresh southerly winds.

Western Texas—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; cooler in northern portion.

Oklahoma and Indian Territory—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; cooler Thursday.

Arkansas—Partly cloudy and warmer Wednesday; Thursday showers.

Tennessee—Fair and warmer Wednesday; Thursday showers.

The cotton market was a little more active, but prices ruled lower, with the close quiet and steady at a net decline of 6@8 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 80,000 bales.

The opening was easy at a decline of 7@8 points, but the offerings were so promptly absorbed as to make shorts nervous until toward the close, when prices eased under a renewal of bear pressure.

Liverpool was considerably under expectations, and most of the new crop news was hearish. Port receipts for the day were a little larger than looked for, owing to Pacific port clearances, but estimates for to-morrow indicated a lighter movement.

The range of contract prices in the local market were as follows:

The local market for spot cotton was steady, with 24 prices 5 points lower, at 10.90 for middling uplands and 11.15 for middling Gulf.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Mobile quiet, unchanged, at 10¼c; sales, 100 bales. Galveston steady, unchanged, at 10 18-16c; sales, 1,274 bales. New Orleans quiet and steady, ⅛c lower, at 10½; sales, 1,350 bales.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—The holiday at Chicago made trade less active, but as Southwest crop news showed no improvement, the market displayed a very firm undertone. Besides continued green bug complaints from Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, there were serious reports from Missouri of insect damage. Foreign markets opened after Easter, Liverpool with an advance of ¼d to ½d since last Thursday, which was disappointing in view of the upturn on this side. An advance of 1 to 1¼ marks since Saturday was noted in Berlin, while Budapest showed 4 points decline in the same time. The Paris market was quiet and 5 points up to 10 points down as compared with Thursday. Cash wheat in New York closed as follows: No. 2 red, 82⅝c elevator and 83½c free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 89½c, and No. 2 hard Winter, 87½c, both opening navigation free on board, afloat.

CORN.—Steadiness was reflected from wheat, clearances of 672,000 bushels, an advance of ⅝d at Liverpool, and very light offerings being lesser factors. In the absence of Chicago figures, the interior movement was very incomplete. Exporters took ten loads. No. 2 corn was quoted in New York at 56c, elevator, and 51¾, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 54½c, and No. 2 yellow 52 free on board, afloat.

RETIREMENT OF FOUR PER CENTS.

Cortelyou Will Refund $50,000,000 of Those Maturing in July.

WILL EASE MONEY MARKET

Bankers Had Been Anxious—New $50,000,000 of 2 Per Cent. Bonds Will Be Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Formal announcement was issued to-day of provision made by the Treasury Department for the retirement of the 4 per cent. bonds which mature next July. Secretary Cortelyou announces that $50,000,000 of the bonds are to be refunded at once into 2 per cent. refunding bonds of 1930, maturing in 1930, and the balance, amounting to about $35,000,000, will be redeemed in cash when they fall due July 1 next.

This sets at rest the uncertainty which has been felt in banking circles regarding the steps which the Government would take in connection with the maturing of these bonds. The amount of these bonds, which a year ago stood at about $116,000,000, has been reduced under the recent offers of the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem a portion of th issue. The latest offer of this kind was made two weeks ago, when Secretary Cortelyou undertook to pay off at par and interest to maturity $25,000,000 of these bonds.

It is expected that bonds to the full amount of this offer will be turned over to the Government, and these with smaller amounts of bonds redeemed under previous offers will reduce the outstanding 4s of 1907 to about $85,000,000. When $50,000,000 of the bonds have been refunded into 2s there will be left about $35,000,000 to be paid off in cash. It is considered likely that when the time comes for paying off these bonds next July at least a large part of the necessary funds will be provided by drafts against the National banks holding deposits of Government money.

The immediate effect of the refunding plan will be to create $50,000,000 of new 2 per cent. bonds. These will serve to replace such portion of the 4 per cent. issue as are pledged as security for circulation, but as the amount of bonds so pledged is considernbly less than $50,000,000, the issue of these new 2s is expected in well-informed banking circles to have the effect of increasing National bank circulation. To this extent the plans announced by Secretary Cortelyou yesterday will exert favorable influence upon the money market.

In banking circles there has been shown recently some disposition to urge the Secretary of the Treasury to make known his intention regarding the paying off or refunding the fours of 1907 on the ground that the uncertainty that existed on the subject was serving to unsettle the Government bond market and to some extent to react unfavorably upon the money market. Some bankers even went to the extent of criticising the failure of the Secretary to announce his plans. This criticism now has been fully met by the public announcement of the Government's provision for the maturing bonds.

The details of the arrangement for the refunding and redemption of the bonds are shown in this extract from the official circular issued by Secretary Cortelyou:

"Public notice is hereby given to the owners of United States registered and coupon bonds of the 4 per cent. funded loan of 1907, that the Secretary of the Treasury will receive, on and after April 6 and before June 30, 1907, any of the bonds of the said loan to an amount not exceeding $50,000,000, for refunding under provisions of Section 11 of the Act of March 14, 1900.

"The residue of the bonds of the said loan, after the refunding hereby provided for, will be reserved for redemption on and after July 2, 1907, and the bonds constituting the said residue are hereby called for redemption, and will cease to bear interest on the 2d day of July, 1907.

"The bonds of the loan above mentioned may be surrendered on and after April 6, and will be received at a valuation equal to their present worth to yield an income of 2¼ per cent. per annum, and like amounts of United States registered, or coupon bonds bearing interest at the rate of 2 per cent. per annum will be issued in exchange therefor at a premium of 3 per cent.

"The priority of the issue of the new bonds will be determined by the date of the receipt by the Secretary of the Treasury of the outstanding bonds or the papers representing the same, provided that the bonds or papers are in proper condition for such surrender. If any correction is required, the priority of the bonds to be issued will take date from the receipt and acceptance of corrected bonds or papers at this office.

"Any registered bonds forwarded should be assigned to the 'Secretary of the Treasury for exchange into 2 per cent. bonds.'

"All bonds surrendered for refunding should be accompanied with a remittance of cash or bankable funds made payable to the order of the Treasurer of the United States, equal to the premium of 3 per cent., which is charged for the 2 per cent. bonds.

"When the new bonds are issued the amount found due the owner on account of the present worth of the 4 per cent. bonds to yield an income of 2¼ per cent. per annum, plus the difference in accrued interest between the two classes of bonds from April 1, 1907, to date of exchange, will be paid to the owner by a check drawn in his favor by the Treasurer of the United States.

"The new bonds will be issued in denominations as follows:

Coupons, $50, $100, $500, $1,000.
Registered, $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 $10,000, $50,000, and in order that they may be uniform as to date of maturity with the 2 per cent. consols of 1930 now outstanding, they will be dated April 1, 1900, but interest thereon will begin April 1, 1907.

"Any bonds received for refunding after the limit of $50,000,000 shall have been reached, will be held for redemption on July 2, 1907, or will be returned, as the owners may desire. In either case the premium above provided for will be promptly returned to the owner of the bonds.

"The circular of March 14, 1907, providing for the redemption of $25,000,000 of the 4 per cent. bonds of 1907, with interest to July 1, will remain in force until that amount of such bonds shall have been received.

"GEORGE B. CORTELYOU,
"Secretary."

The result of refunding $100 4 per cent. bonds of 1907 under this circular is stated as follows:

Cost of $100 2 per cent. bond on April 10: Face value and premium at 3 per cent., $103; accrued interest to April 10, .05; total cost, $103.05.

Present worth of 4 per cent. bonds, $100.39; accrued interest to April 10, .10; proceeds of 4s, $100.49; net cost of the 2 per cent. bond, (premium,) $2.56.

COPPER BANK OPEN MAY 1.

Cole-Ryan Interests Expect to Start It with $20,000,000 Deposits.

The National Copper Bank, organized a few months ago by the Cole-Ryan interests with the backing of the Amalgamated and other copper people, expects to begin operations on May 1 with deposits of about $20,000,000. The bank will open in the new Trinity Building at 111 Broadway.

The Directors will be made up as follows with possible additions:

Charles H. Sabins, (President,) Thomas F. Cole, F. W. Roebling of the Roebling Company of Trenton, William A. Paine of Paine, Webber & Co., Boston; F. Lothrop Ames of the Ames Estate, Boston; H. H. Rogers, Jr., U. H. Broughton, President Utah Consolidated and son-in-law of H. H. Rogers; Adolph Lewisohn, President of United Metal Selling Company, and Charles F. Brooker, President of the American Brass Company.

RECEIVER FOR GERM FOOD CO.

Directors of the Lactobacilline Concern Disagree.

Internal dissensions in the Lactobacilline Company of 27 William Street have resulted in the appointment of Frederick Nathan as receiver by Judge MacLean of the Supreme Court on the application of Charles E. Locke, President of the company, in a suit brought against the company and Henry Coleman Drayton and Dr. Justin De Lisle, the other Directors, to dissolve the corporation.

Mr. Locke is also a creditor for $6,200 for money loaned. An injunction was issued restraining the other Directors from deposing Mr. Locke as President and abrogating a contract with Dr. De Lisle.

The company was organized a few months ago under Maine laws, with a capital stock of $10,000, to sell "bacilline," a dairy product implanted with a micro-organism known as lactobacillus, which was discovered by Prof. E. Metchnikott of the Pasteur Institute, Paris. Dr. Justin De Lisle is a well-known bacteriologist, who was associated with Prof. Metchnikoff. Besides the money invested by Mr. Locke, Mr. Drayton, who is Vice President, put in $5,400. Dr. De Lisle stated to the court that Mr. Locke was to finance the company to the extent of $100,000 if necessary, but had put in only $5,000, the receipts were only $20 per week, and expenses $100, and the company is at a standstill for lack of funds.

Salvation Sergeant Retired.

Police Sergeant Ezra D. Strope, who for several months has been attached to the Bushwick Avenue Station, was retired from the department at midnight last night. The Sergeant joined the department in February, 1879, and the most of his time was spent in Brooklyn. In his "off time" he not only attended but spoke at many revival meetings. He was greatly interested in the work of the Salvation Army.

BETHLEHEM STEEL HAD A BAD YEAR

Minority Holders Cease Fight for Dividends on Reading Annual Report.

BIG LOSS IN SHIPYARDS

Curtailment of Government Orders Also Cut Profits and Dividends.

The minority interests in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, who went to the annual meeting in Newark, N. J., yesterday to demand, under the leadership of Samuel Untermyer, satisfactory reasons for the cut in the preferred stock dividend last year from 7 to 5 per cent., and to ask for at least payments in scrip on their stock, withdrew all opposition to the management when they learned from the annual report that the manufacturing profits of the company had dropped from $3,468,802 in 1905 to $1,859,353 last year. Samuel Untermyer, representing 70,000 shares of stock, concurred in the resolution approving the actions of the officers and Directors in the last year and expressed himself satisfied with the curtailment of the dividend, in view of the facts shown in the annual report. He said, however, that the stockholders he represented would insist upon the payment of dividends on their stock as soon as they were earned.

John R. Harden of Newark, who appeared at the meeting with proxies representing 15,000 shares, filed a formal protest, and refused to vote his stock when approval of the report was asked.

Charles M. Schwab, President of the corporation, presided. His report attributed the decrease in income in 1906 to a number of causes, among which he noted the curtailment of Government armor-plate orders, and the extensions to the plant at Bethlehem, which will give the company facilities for the manufacture of rails and of structural iron by a new process, the American rights of which it owns. The total earnings for 1906 were $9,540,010, and the operating expenses $8,018,855. The deduction of fixed charges, &c., reduced the surplus available for dividends to $1,030,864. The full 7 per cent. dividend on the preferred stock would require a disbursements of $1,050,000. The 5 per cent. rate actually paid last year called for $750,000.

The total estimated value of orders hooked during 1906 aggregated $16,216,570, and the unfilled orders at the close of the year were valued at $13,300,885.

In dealing with the losses of the company in 1906 the report complains that the shipyards operated by the corporation were a heavy drag on the company, and the cause of considerable charges to profit and loss. Future ship contracts, the report says, will be taken up only on an assured margin of profit.

Speaking of the curtailment of Government orders and the efforts to divert the activities of the old plant into new channels, the report states that steps have been taken to develop a business in commercial products suitable to the facilities already existing at the plant. The new commercial plant, it is stated, will be in operation in July of this year, instead of at the close of the year, as was originally estimated. The mills, however, will not reach their full earning capacity during the current year, though it is believed that they will add materially to the income for 1907. No action was taken at yesterday's meeting on the question of the next dividend. The dividend declared Feb. 1 was three-quarters of 1 per cent. It is thought that the next dividend will be passed entirely.

Stricken in a Ferryhouse.

While hurrying through the waiting room of the East Forty-second Street Ferryhouse to board a boat, William H. Thiel, 58 years old, a jeweler, of 155 Wetrfield Street, Brooklyn, fell unconscious to the floor. He was carried to a seat and an ambulance was summoned from Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Baker said that the man was suffering from apoplexy. Mr. Thiel was taken to Bellevue in a serious condition.

BAY RIDGE IMPROVEMENT.

Brighton Beach and Long Island Roads to Run on One Embankment.

Within a short time the Long Island Railroad will move its tracks from Manhattan Beach Junction to Manhattan Beach itself, placing them on the same embankment with the Brighton Beach line. Work on the change of line will begin as soon as the Board of Estimate gives permission.

It was originally intended that the Long Island Railroad should have one embankment and the Brighton Beach line another, the two running parallel for a distance of three miles. The railroad company and the Grade Crossing Commission have applied to the Board of Estimate to make one embankment serve both roads, and it is expected that this will be done. The whole work is part of the Bay Ridge improvement, which is progressing rapidly. 600,000 cubic yards of rock and dirt having been excavated, 25,000 cubic yards of masonry set up, and 6,000 tons of steel having been put into bridges built at Gravesend, Ocean, Flatbush, Albany, and Rockaway Avenues, New Lots Road, and nineteen other thoroughfares. When the lines are moved sixty streets now crossed at grade will be either bridged or tunneled under.

COPPERS

Following close upon the heels of the announcement of my new copper campaign come urgent advices which cauee me to halt operations until I can personally confirm the soundness or prove the non-existence of what now appears to be an important factor in shaping the futuro copper share market; I have strong reasons to believe the price of the Metal is to be dropped 3 or 4 cents.

To ascertain beyond doubt whether the drop is "a happening" or a result of the beginning of my campaign and other things connected with the contemplated operations of myself and associates, necessitates a personal overlook of the European field. To this end I will postpone my campaign until I am in actual possession of certain facts.

At the opening of the market this morning the News Bureau announced a cut in the price of copper the metal of one-quarter of a cent per pound—the first cut in months.

AMALGAMATED.

The present campaign is of such far-reaching effect and of such radical and unusual import to the whole copper stock world that I cannot in justice to the public or my financial associates take any chances. I therefore advise those who are intending, because of my advice of the past few days, to buy Amalgamated to await my investigation before purchasing.

I advise those who have already bought Amalgamated at lower prices to hold their hands—Amalgamated even in a 20-cent metal market should be cheap at over 100.

TRINITY.

With the metal at 20 cents Trinity is worth more than 50. As the Trinity Company will begin shipping its ore in a few days—as its new developments may at any time show conditions which will add another $50 per share to the present value, and as my return may mark a sharp rise, which it will be impossible to advertise in advance, I strongly advise all holders to refrain from selling during my absence—even at a sharp advance from the present price—I also strongly advise the purchase of Trinity, even if the price of the metal drops during my absence to 20 cents.

NEVADA-UTAH.

When I, through fear that my acceptance of the market ruddering of Nevada-Utah might cause a panic on the upside, refused to give the awaited word, I said, I believe Nevada-Utah is now worth $8 or $9. Since that time there have been developments in connection with the company's affairs which leads me to strongly advise present holders against selling at the present price. If certain pending and contemplated arrangements are perfected, Nevada-Utah will be better worth 16 to 18 than it was 8 to 9 at the time of my investigation. On my return I may have something to say which will be of import to Nevada-Utah holders. I make this announcement now that all may have equal chance with me.

A WARNING WORD.

It is my desire and intention to give to the public in my advertisements at the earliest possible time all information which comes to me, but—history is making rapidly in the stock world, very rapidly in the copper stock world, and I may have no opportunity to advertise in advance of my return or in advance of announcements which will make for a quick and sharp advance in certain stocks.

"How They Got Rich,"
revised and improved. This booklet, the subtitle of which is, "Real Estate Facts," is something every one who wants to get ahead on sound principles should read and study. Do not write for it if you are one of those that think to plant to-day and reap to-morrow; if you want to get rich as rapidly as that you can generally find a kindly pool-room to take your money and place it on a sure thing, or you can go to the tracks yourself shortly. But, if you want to take advantage of a sound principle, a principle as sound as the growth of crops, I mean the increase of real estate values in Greater New York, send your name and address and let us show you what you can do for as little as $50 or $70 down and $12 or $15 monthly.

SAY POLICE BEAT THE WHOLE FAMILY

Husband in Bellevue, Wife in Court, and One Child Shows Bruises.

APRIL 1 JOKE CAUSED ROW

Patrolmen Say Healy Pulled a Knife and Stabbed One of Them—Further Hearing Ordered.

A story of a whole family having been beaten by two policemen while on their way home from a visit to friends was told to Magistrate Whitman in Jefferson Market Court yesterday by Mrs. Katherine Healy of 533 West Thirtieth Street, her daughter Agnes, and her son, William Warrell. Mrs. Healy's husband, John, could not appear, as he is in Bellevue Hospital as the result of the clubbing he received.

After listening to the story Magistrate Whitman said that the charge against the policemen was a serious one, and that he would make a thorough investigation. He paroled Mrs. Healy for a further hearing on Thursday.

According to the statements of Mrs. Healy and her two children, the husband and father, who is a foreman in the employ of James J. Duffy, contractor, had imbibed too freely on Monday evening while paying calls on several friends. He was celebrating the fact that he had been on the "water wagon" for eight years.

"We were passing the corner of Twenty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue when my husband, in a spirit of jest told a policeman that his belt was coming off," said Mrs. Healy. "The policeman looked down, and my husband called 'April Fool.' This made the copper angry. He passed the word along to another officer, Richard Sheffel, who told my husband to 'Move on, and move quickly.' We thought he was joking, but said all right, that we were going home.

"Without provocation Sheffel struck my husband across the face with his stick. John fell to the street. I tried to protect John, and the officer threw me around roughly. Then my daughter Agnes tried to save us, and the policeman jabbed his nightstick at her, striking her upon the breast. He whirled her around and struck her across the back and again on the wrist. My daughter fainted and lay on the pavement beside my husband, who was struggling to get up. Policeman Tiffany and several others then ran up and began to beat my husband as he lay there on the pavement.

"A crowd was around trying to make them stop. One of them dragged my son out of a drug store, where he had run to get a glass of water to revive Agnes. They prevented him from doing that.

"After a while an ambulance and a patrol wagon drove up and my husband was sent to the hospital and I was taken to the Twentieth Street Police Station and locked up. I was handled very roughly."

The daughter's story corroborated this. She showed the Magistrate the bruises on her body and on her wrist. The son's story was virtually the same.

Policeman Sheffel was not at the hearing. He was on sick leave, having been injured in the row. Policeman Tiffany testified that Healy had drawn a knife and stabbed Sheffel over the eye. This was denied by Mrs. Healy and her children. They said that Sheffel, while striking at Healy, lost his balance and fell, striking his face upon the edge of an ash barrel and breaking the skin. This, said the Healys, infuriated him, and he renewed his attack upon Healy.

Agnes Healy is 15 years old, and her step-brother, William Warrell, is 14. They were questioned thoroughly by Magistrate Whitman.

Policeman Tiffany was ordered to appear in court on Thursday afternoon with witnesses to prove his assertion about the knife, which he says Healy drew. The Magistrate also ordered that Policeman Sheffel appear at the hearing.

Mrs. Healy, after leaving the Magistrate's Court, went to Bellevue Hospital to inquire for her husband. She was told there that Healy was suffering from lacerations of the head and body. He will probably be in the hospital several days.

Mr. Duffy said yesterday that Healy had not touched liquor for eight years, had never been arrested, and altogether was a hard-working citizen.

VIRGINIA CROPS DAMAGED.

Lowest April Temperature Recorded in 36 Years—Fruit Suffers.

NORFOLK, Va., April 2.—A heavy frost in the Norfolk County truckling belt last night, with the temperature at 30 degrees, did much damage to growing crops of potatoes, peas, and beans. Fruit also suffered to a considerable extent. Strawberries in bloom did not suffer as much as the fruit trees.

LYNCHBURG, Va., April 2.—The temperature dropped to 25 degrees last night, the minimum for April in the last thirty-six years. It is believed that the early fruit crop is practically ruined.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The cold wave is about broken in the East, and to the westward temperatures are rising, especially on the Rocky Mountain slopes.

No rain has fallen east of the Mississippi.

A disturbance central in Colorado will probably move northeast within forty-eight hours, causing higher temperatures to the Atlantic Coast, and on Thursday showers throughout the Ohio Valley.

Winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coast will be light to fresh north; South Atlantic Coast, fresh north to northeast. Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have light north to west winds, with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, New England, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware—Fair Wednesday and Thursday, with rising temperature; light, variable winds.

Western New York and Western Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy and warmer Wednesday; Thursday, partly cloudy; light to fresh south winds.

The average temperature yesterday was 36; for the corresponding date last year it was 40; average on the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 43.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 29; at 8 P. M. it was 43. Maximum temperature, 48 degrees at 4:10 P. M.; minimum, 26 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity, 66 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 48 per cent. at 8 P. M.

EXPECT TO MAKE POLE IN AIRSHIP IN JULY

Aero Club to Give Wellman a Flag To-night to Carry on the Journey.

HERSEY SURE OF SUCCESS

Mr. Wellman's Associate Declares Machine Has Been Well Eested for Trip.

A delegation of balloonists from the Aero Club of America will meet Walter Wellman this morning when he arrives on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. Mr. Wellman has practically completed the rebuilding of his airship, with which he is to start from Spitzbergen early in July in his effort to fly to the north pole.

Major Henry B. Hersey, who is to accompany him as the representative of the United States Government, arrived in the city yesterday from the West, and as he is to sail for Europe to-morrow on La Lorraine the members of the Aero Club gave a reception in his honor last night in their rooms, 12 East Forty-second Street. It had been expected that Mr. Wellman would have been here at the same time, but arrangements have been made to entertain him at the club to-night, when he will be asked to tell something of the improvements he has made to his dirigible balloon and how he hopes to reach the pole. Mr. Wellman will return to Paris next week.

Major Hersey accompanied Lieut. Frank P. Lahm last year when the latter won the international balloon race, thus bringing the Bennett Cup to this country. He has been connected with the United States Weather Bureau for a number of years, and besides being the executive officer of the trip will have entire charge of the scientific work, particularly in keeping a record of the meteorological conditions in the Arctic region.

The Aero Club of America will present a large pennant to Mr. Wellman to fly from the stern of his airship. The pennant was exhibited for the first time last night. It was designed by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor. Mr. Borglum explained that it was intended to typify the United States, as the red, white, and blue colors are used, the pennant being composed of two red stripes with a broad white band in the center, while in the upper right hand corner is a blue field with five stars. In the center of the white field is a symbolic figure of aerial flight, the figure being that of a woman with widely extended wings.

Major Hersey stated that many improvements had been made both to the balloon and its mechanical construction since last season, when, owing to the long time required to build the houses for the men and the balloon at Spitzbergen, on Danes' Island, the flight to the pole had to be postponed for another year.

"Winter comes on very early there," said Major Hersey, "and it is absolutely necessary to have everything in readiness to make the flight at the first favorable opportunity, as early in July as possible. It is a fortunate thing, perhaps, that we were delayed last year, for we succeeded in trying out very thoroughly the propellers and motor of the machine, and in many respects they proved faulty. The transmission broke down repeatedly. It seldom worked well for more than an hour at a time. An entirely new system has now been installed, what is known as the Lebaudy type being adopted, and the entire outfit is far superior to the airship of last year.

"The balloon was not inflated. The balloon house is finished, and it is the most pretentious building ever seen at Spitzbergen. It is 85 feet high and 85 feet wide, and was designed by a Finnish architect. Besides that, we have built a large house for the members of the party and the workmen and a machine shop, forty feet long, which is completely equipped with drills, lathes, steam engines to run them, a blacksmith's shop, and all the facilities for making our own hydrogen gas.

"We expect to start for Spitzbergen by the middle of May. We have chartered our steamer to take us from Tromsoe, Norway. Spitzbergen is 600 miles north of the northern coast of Europe, and about 600 miles from the pole. I may say that our quarters are on the same spot from which Andrée made his attempt to reach the pole by a balloon, so you see we are not at all superstitious. The temperature varies but little during the Summer season, seldom more than four or five degrees a week, while the winds are very regular, thus making ideal conditions for ballooning. Most of the winds last season were from 10 to 15 miles an hour, but occasionally they would attain a velocity of from 25 to 27 miles. The hard preliminary work is finished, and we feel that there is a good chance for success. It is, of course, by no means certain that we will reach the pole, but the chance is a good one and well worth taking."

Major Hersey concluded his talk by giving a graphic account of the balloon trip last year with Lieut. Lahm in the international race.

"Lieut. Lahm," he added, "I consider one of the best aeronauts in the world."

Among those present were Cortlandt Field Bishop, Alan R. Hawley, J. C. McCoy, Major Tyler, Charles Jerome Edwards, A. N. Chandler, George H. Day, Augustus Post, Leo Stevens, J. C. Lake, S. D. Mott, Dr. Julien P. Thomas, W. J. Hammer, Israel Ludlow, Carl Dienstbach, E. B. Bronson, and Israel Moses.

OLD STEUBEN'S SONS DINE.

Thirteenth Annual Jollification at the Yale Club Last Night.

Oh, Steuben County, oh, Steuben County,
Where all this bunch of high officials grew;
Oh, Steuben County oh, Steuben County,
"White Top" and fine "Gold Seal" we drink ter you.

Thus sang several hundred sons of Steuben at the thirteenth annual dinner of the Steuben Society at the Yale Club last night.

Steuben County is famous for its wines, and some of it was in use at last night's dinner. Some of the Steubenites drank mineral waters, but they were in the minority.

There were only four speeches, and although only one of the speakers was down for a speech in honor of old Steuben, the others soon forgot what the subject was that had been assigned to them and branched off in praise of the county that they had left for a metropolitan career. After the speaking there was a lot of personal rhyme discharged for the benefit of the older members of the society. With each verse there was a cartoon that was supposed to give a correct idea of the way the subject viewed life's affairs generally.

For instance, this referred to Edward Hassett, the lawyer, of 49 Wall Street:

Now here's Ed Hassett, the cutest pet;
We're surprised no maid has stolen him yet.
During the years he was President
All our chairs got broken or bent.
So he got a term in a gymnasium
To decrease the size of his little "tum."

Col. James E. Jones, whose cartoon reminded many of the features of the senior Senator from New York, was honored after this fashion:

'Tis Colonel Jones, our "Grand Old Man"!
He's always been a Republican:
A Democrat, too, or so they claim,
But as a fisherman is known to fame.
For catching hungry suckers, I vum,
He got sentenced to the Aquarium.

Samuel Balcom, the produce merchant, who according to the Steubenites has made a fortune in butter, eggs, and cheese, had this handed to him:

They found Sam Balcom once, 'tis said,
At 10 P. M. asleep in bed.
Though court condoned this first offense,
The humiliation was intense.
A "brainy bird," sure, the Justice muttered,
As through the door poor Sammy fluttered.

Lucius A. Waldo, the lawyer, thought for a while that he had been forgotten, but he thought wrong, as the following proves:

You all are on to Lucius A.,
Who's "under bonds" on old Broadway.
'Tis rumored he'll soon be a groom.
(The kind that's fondled with a broom.)
Oh! He'll get fined! (This is so rude!)
For clothes and hats and—"Mellin's Food."

Police Sergeant Enright, who comes from Steuben, has a lot of friends among the exiles from his home county who are sorry for him for this reason:

Oh! Enright? He's a Sergeant
Whose troubles are most urgent,
For Bingham's bill at Albany
Recalls to Richard "Twenty-three";
He's dug so deep down in his jeans
He's forced to live on pork and beans.

Last to be honored in rhyme was George R. Sutherland of 49 Wall Street, who is the President of the Bank of Campbell, Campbell, N. Y. This is what the Steuben people think of him:

George Sutherland, a banker keen,
Last appeareth on the scene;
Of course a banker is the worst—
For reference, apply to Hearst;
Don't ask to what this picture's due,
'Tis time to quit. Farewell! Skidoo!

Some of the guests at the dinner were Martin W. Littleton, Water Commissioner John O'Brien, Corporation Counsel William B. Ellison, Col. Mike Padden, W. L. Fairchild, and Edward W. Manley. The speakers of the evening were C. H. Brewster, Major Cassius E. Gillette, Creswell Maclaughlin, and Charles H. Treat.

HARLEM GETTING WICKED.

New Law and Order League Says So and Puts It Up to Police.

The Harlem Law and Order League formed to "do away with conditions that offend the decency and threaten the homes of the people and hurt the young," was organized last night at a mass meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms at 5 West 125th Street. More than 100 men responded to the call for this meeting, which had been sent out last week, among them being Capt. Burns of the West 125th Street Police Station.

Ex-Police Commissioner Frank Moss was elected President. William H. Sage, a former President of the Y. M. C. A., was chosen Vice President; M. Lewis, Treasurer, and Thomas McClintock of the Parkhurst Society, Secretary. Mr. Moss announced the purpose of the League in a short speech, in which he declared that Harlem in the last few years has been steadily growing from bad to worse.

"One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street," he declared, "is at present overrun with dives and penny arcades into which children are enticed and morally ruined. Not the least of these evils with which this part of the city is now being afflicted is the invasion from downtown of the Paul Kelly gang, who followed some downtown 'gentleman' to Harlem when the latter opened a place of amusement on 125th Street."

In order that perfect fairness might attend the acts of the new league, however, Mr. Moss declared that the police would first be appealed to, and, failing, Mr. Moss declared that the league would carry its complaints to the courts.

A Committee of Fifteen was appointed to gather evidence, and with the selection of these men the meeting adjourned to await a call from the chair.

STANDARD'S MOTION DENIED.

Judge Landis Refuses to Dismiss Rebate Indictment—Trial to Go On.

CHICAGO, April 2.—Judge Landis of the United States District Court overruled to-day the motion of the Standard Oil Company that the rebate charges be dismissed. The dismissal was asked on the ground that the Government had failed to make out the case as outlined in the indictment. The court ordered the trial to proceed.

In announcing his decision, Judge Landis said:

"It is the view of the court that the defendant is presumed to have known the lawful rate, because it is presumed to have known the law forbidding the use of any rate that is not the published rate. Under the law, the shipper must ascertain the rate, and guide himself accordingly."

In regard to the contention of the defense that the Chicago & Alton Railroad had no joint agreement to carry freight from Whiting, Ind., to St. Louis, when its own tracks did not cover the entire distance between these points, the court ruled that the Alton Road had filed with the Inter-State Commerce Commission copies of tariffs giving through rates between the points named, thus showing that some agreement must have been made.

GROOMS' STRIKE BROKEN.

Durland's Riding Academy Show Goes On Despite the Walk-Out.

Half a dozen policemen on guard in front of Durland's Riding Academy last night gave the only indication that the academy's grooms were on strike. The horse show which is being held there moved without a hitch, although this was largely due to the fact that all the exhibition stock is in the care of private grooms.

When the strike began on Monday morning everybody from Mr. Durland down to the office boy turned in and fed, watered, and curried the 600 horses stabled at the academy. Occasional patrons who dropped in to look over their horses or to take their morning canter in the Park lent a helping hand. When the news of the strike got abroad many people sent their private grooms to Durland's assistance.

"There was no lack of applicants for the vacant jobs, however. By last evening Mr. Durland had obtained forty competent grooms, and expects to have as many more by to-night.

"The men thought they would cripple me," said Mr. Durland last night, "by striking just before our annual horse show. They've undoubtedly bothered me some, but the show is going on just the same as though there was no strike, and by to-morrow night the stable will be in its accustomed running order. It's the men who have lost. During the horse show they always pick up large sums in tips. Some of the men have been with me for twenty years, but I'll never take one of the strikers back."

OHIO FIGHT BEGINS; DICK IS THE POWER

Taft's Manager Opens Headquarters and the State Officers Take Sides.

DICK LETS FORAKER LEAD

The Sentiment of the State Is Overwhelmingly for Taft, but the Voters May Do Dick's Bidding.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 3.—The Republican Presidential nomination, so far as Ohio's political decision can be decided—and it is coming to be generally believed that the issue of the contest depends upon Ohio—could be settled in a jiffy by one man. That man is neither Foraker, nor Taft, nor Burton, nor any of those whose names have been most prominent in the glove-throwing defiance which has characterized the opening of the fight. It is Senator Dick.

When Hanna died Dick succeeded him in the ownership and control of the matebless organization he had built up. Dick turned it over to Foraker, but the loyalty of the organization is to Dick, not to Foraker.' If the organization opposes Taft it is because Dick is with Foraker. If the organization is obliged to appear hostile to Roosevelt it is because of Dick. Dick has only to say the word, only to raise his hand, and the organization will turn to Taft and Roosevelt. He will not have to make a fight or to express himself at any length. A ten-line statement from him would give the State to the Roosevelt Administration and put Foraker out of politics for good and all.

Many leaders of the organization have been laboring with Dick to get him to do this very thing. Their labors have not ceased, either. At this hour many of Dick's most trusted lieutenants are urging him to break away from an alliance which can only be harmful to him politically and get on the Roosevelt band wagon. So far Dick has not given them any encouragement, and it does not seem probable that he will. Dick has no personal antipathy to Roosevelt, nothing to make him hostile to the Administration. If left to himself he would doubtless be with the President as a matter of course. He is against the President and Taft solely because Foraker is.

Dick's Submersion in Foraker.

Dick has the affection of his lieutenants as well as their political loyalty. His complete submersion in Foraker is a curious thing. Without Dick Foraker would be nowhere. He would be politically impotent, powerless to hurt the President, powerless to stem the Taft current in his own State. Dick is the maker of Foraker, and yet Dick is completely merged in Foraker. The reason simply is that Foraker is a strong man and Dick is—well, not a strong one.

The State is for Taft. That much is about as certain as anything can be. It does not mean that the State will be for Taft in the convention. The odds are against that. The machine is against Taft and he starts with a heavy handicap. What is meant is that the sentiment of the voters is for Taft, and that if they were left to themselves and could vote as they chose, unembarrassed by any other considerations, Taft would sweep the State by about a hundred to one. And yet the State, though it is thus overwhelmingly for Taft, may vote against him in the National Convention.

That is the meaning of the spectacular and bitter fight that has been opened here by Senator Foraker's challenge and Charles P. Taft's reply. It is an anomalous situation, curious as any which has ben presented in American politics.

The reason why the State is for Taft is because Roosevelt is understood to favor him. Taft himself is popular and respected, but if the President of the United States were not concerned in the controversy he would have an uphill road to travel.

When it is said that Ohio is for Taft it is meant that Ohio is for Roosevelt. It is accepted here without question that Taft is Roosevelt's candidate, and it is for that reason that the State is for him.

This also accounts for the decay of Foraker's popularity at home. That it has decayed is tolerably evident. It has decayed because he is in opposition to the President, who is the idol of his party in Ohio, as he seems to be everywhere else. Last year, at the eleventh hour, Representative Burton and Harry M. Daugherty started a revolt against the machine. It was a sudden revolt, not begun until after many of the delegates had been elected to the State Convention. Yet it rapidly gathered strength and was able to present a surprisingly formidable front at the convention, when the haste of its origin and the lack of preparation are considered.

This revolt assumed such proportions simply because of Burton's charge that Foraker and Dick were against the President. It failed because the people did not believe the charge. Foraker and Dick denied it. In the campaign that followed they presented all sorts of evidence to prove that they were not against the President, Mr. Roosevelt sent his son-in-law into the State to say for him that he wanted the Republican ticket elected, the people generally discounted the charge, and Foraker won out at the polls as well as in the convention.

Turned on the President.

Hardly had he done so when he began his warfare on the President in the Senate and appeared as the acknowledged leader of the anti-Administration forces in the Republican Party of the Nation. The rank and file discovered that Burton had been right in his charge. Hence the sudden drop in Foraker's popularity. It is solely because of his opposition to Roosevelt that there exists any chance of beating him in his own party to-day. There is always more or less opposition to him, but he would have been able to laugh at it. He would not have had to lose a single night's sleep over it if he had not attacked the President.

Nevertheless he and his men are not dodging the issue. They are trying to create sentiment against Roosevelt, trying to show the rank and file that the President is not what he is cracked up to be. They hail with joy such events as Harriman's letter. Everything of that kind is made use of to the fullest possible

2,000 Feet of It Destroyed Before Sheriff Could Do Anything.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, April 3.—Sheriff Lane of Westchester County sent a posse of Deputies to Ossining to-day to protect the property of the Westchester Traction Company from a mob of citizens who were determined to tear up the rails and put an end to the company's existence as a public service corporation.

Before the arrival of the Deputies the citizens had succeeded in tearing up about 2,000 feet of tracks. The Hudson River and Eastern Traction Company, the new trolley company headed by F. A. Stratton, who recently obtained a franchise in Ossining, followed them up and put down new rails in their places. Mr. Stratton expects to have cars running through the main street in Ossining in less than a week and eventually he will build a road to connect the Hudson River towns with White Plains.

The work of removing the old trolley road was witnessed by a large crowd, which shouted its approval as the rails were dug up and thrown aside. The village police force refused to interfere, as the village authorities several months ago declared the road a nuisance and directed it to remove its tracks on or before April 1. The village authorities held that the franchise had been forfeited because the company had not run cars in three months and the State Railroad Commissioners had condemned the plant as unsafe to human life. The company further offended the people of the town by refusing to sell out to Stratton's company, which had promised to install a complete new plant and give an up-to-date service. The probationary limit given to the company to repair its plant ended on Sunday night. The citizens then went to work themselves and were busy to-day up to the time the Sheriff arrived, when the work of destruction ceased.

Robert E. Farley, counsel for the Westchester Traction Company, issued a statement in which he denounced the action of the village as illegal and unauthorized. He said his company had made all arrangements to repair its tracks and resume operations.

HIS RIVAL BLOWN UP.

Man Blinded for Life by Infernal Machine Sent by Express.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 3.—By the explosion of an infernal machine filled with dynamite, and believed to have been sent him by a rival in love, Daniel Miller of 431 Liberty Street was terribly mangled at 6 o'clock this evening. The surgeons say he has an even chance to recover, although he will be totally blind and a cripple for life. John Hallanan is under arrest, charged with attempted homicide.

The machine was sent to Miller by express from North Adams, Mass. It was handed to him when he returned from his work at the American Locomotive Company's plant. He took it to his room and a few minutes later there was a terrific explosion which practically wrecked the house. Miller says he unwrapped the package and that is all he remembers. The small wooden box which contained the dynamite was filled with copper nails, and a dozen of these were blown into the young man's body.

Miller was to have been married to Miss Lillian A. Bedard, of this city, in June. He expected to leave to-night for New York to buy gifts for his prospective bride. The police say Hallanan, who is alleged to have sent the machine, had persecuted Miss Bedard for a long time, and that he and Miller had more than one fight over her.

ARRESTED ON THE STEAMER.

South American Holiday of a Harlemite Spoiled by His Wife.

While on the steamer on which he was to sail to South America, Samuel Barker of 307 West 150th Street, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of assault made by his wife. Instead of going on his pleasure trip he was taken to the Harlem Police Court to answer the complaint. His mother and aunt, who were to go with him, postponed their voyage and journeyed with him to court.

Mrs. Barker when she obtained the warrant told the Magistrate that last Sunday her husband smashed the furniture and then struck her in the face, breaking three of her teeth. Her 8-year-old son corroborated her. Immediately detectives started with the woman for Pier 8, Brooklyn, from which Barker was to sail on the steamer Tennyson for Rio Janeiro.

"I'm so glad to see you, Isabella," said the husband when he saw his wife. "It was awfully good of you to come and see me off."

Mrs. Barker did not reply, and Detective Petrey arrested the man. Mrs. Barker insisted that her husband be taken to court and the steamer sailed away without him.

"We'll take no chances with this man again," remarked Magistrate Finelite when Barker was taken before him.

Then he held the man in $3,000 bail for examination to-morrow.

ATROCITIES AT TEGUCIGALPA.

Invaders Said to Have Hanged Children—A Nicaraguan Protest to Us.

SAN SALVADOR, April 3.—According to reports circulated here from Honduras, when the invading Nicaraguan and Honduran revolutionary armies occupied Teguoigalpa, the capital of Honduras, they plundered the place and murdered a number of persons. The children of Gen. Teofilo Carcamo, it is stated, were hanged by the invaders.

Gen. Carcamo is the Honduran commander who defeated the revolutionists of Honduras at El Carragal early in January.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Señor Corea, the Nicaraguan Minister, called at the State Department to-day and inquired what authority Philip M. Brown, Secretary of the American Legation to Guatemala and Honduras, had for his interference with the bombardment of Amapala, Honduras, by the Nicaraguan forces.

It is the desire of the Nicaraguan Government to learn by what right Mr. Brown is acting for Salvador. Such interference on his part is a radical step, it is declared, and all the Central American republics are much interested in the outcome. State Department officials refuse to disclose what Mr. Brown's instructions were.

THAW CONFIDENT AFTER HARD TEST

Believes Commission's Report To-day Will Declare That He Is Sane.

COUNSEL NOT SO CERTAIN

Jerome May Be Forced to Ask Jury to Convict Man He Believes Is Mentally Deranged.

The commission appointed by Justice Fitzgerald to inquire into the present mental condition of Harry K. Thaw, who is charged with having murdered Stanford White, completed its inquisition yesterday and will report this morning to Justice Fitzgerald.

It was believed yesterday afternoon that the report of the commission will be to the effect that Thaw was now able to confer with counsel and that he fully realized the chances he was taking in standing trial for the act he committed on the night of June 25. District Attorney Jerome does not expect any other report, and is prepared to resume the trial and prosecute White's slayer as if he were a sane man, despite the fact that he believes him to be a paranoiac.

Late last night, however, two members of counsel for Thaw expressed the fear that all might not have gone as well with Thaw in his examination as they had thought during the afternoon. One of the lawyers was especially dubious of the result of the commission's investigation. The prisoner himself was confident and satisfied that the commission would find him capable of conferring with counsel, and that his trial would be resumed and concluded, but these two members of his counsel were not at all certain of the result.

Until this morning the court stenographer, Mr. Monyhan, was busy at the home of David McClure, Chairman of the commission. It is believed that he was taking in dictation the report of the commission.

Mr. Jerome had absolutely no hint last night of the way things were shaping. He went to bed believing that the report of the commission would declare Thaw capable of conferring with his counsel.

Mr. Jerome, in summing up the case for the people, will not neglect, however, to inform the jury of his conviction in the matter of the prisoner's condition of mind, and in his address he will bear heavily upon the evidence given by his alienists. This will be done with the purpose of having the jury itself consider the sanity of the man whose fate has been put in its hands.

After all, the final word may be put up to Justice Fitzgerald and these questions asked:

If the evidence merits a verdict of not guilty is Thaw in such mental condition that it would be safe to have him at large in the community?

If he is guilty and a paranoiac should he be sent to the death chair?

The end of the work of the commission brought relief to Thaw, his wife, and family, his counsel, and to the District Attorney, who has been giving his days and his nights to the case for over ten weeks. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who sat in the corridor outside of the closed doors of the courtroom while her husband was being examined physically and mentally, ran down the stairs and started for the Hotel Lorraine as soon as she was notified that the examination had been completed.

Thaw Elated.

Clifford W. Hartridge, who has conducted the examination of witnesses during the inquisition, hastened to the Tombs and there conferred with his client. He found Thaw more than satisfied with the results obtained. White's slayer was elated with the results of his own demeanor and conduct before the Commission. For nearly three hours he had been left alone with the three men appointed by Justice Fitzgerald to study and pass upon his mental condition.

Not even a court attendant was allowed to remain in the room when the Commissioners began their close personal study of Thaw. There was no one of whom Thaw could have sought advice or comfort of spirit. He faced the imperturbable countenances of McClure and Olney and Dr. Putzell for the final test.

The courtroom's windows face north and south. No ray of sunshine straggles into it, but the windows are wide and run from ceiling to floor, admitting abundant light. The ceiling is very high. The construction of the room is such that even when few people are in it the absence of acoustic properties is noticeable. The room is like a great, square box filled with reflected light. Within a few feet of the commissioners, Thaw stood and submitted to all of the mental and physical tests applied to persons whose sanity is in doubt.

Thaw was questioned as to his appreciation of his plight. He was asked to explain, if he could, the many strange things he has written to his counsel and as to the meaning of notes he took on various newspaper articles, which notes he turned over to Mr. Delmas as suggestions for the summing up of his case. Then he was examined as to his delusions that White was one of a band of men engaged in the pursuit of pure young women, and the conspiracy he said existed between his former lawyers, the District Attorney, and friends of Stanford White to railroad him to an insane asylum. He removed his clothing and Dr. Putzell made a close examination of his body. The Romberg and other tests were applied.

His Wife Cheerful.

During all of this Mr. Jerome, the lawyers for the defense, and dozens of newspaper reporters prowled the corridors uneasily. Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw sat in a chair brought for her to the corridor. The lawyers and Mrs. Thaw were not even allowed in the rooms adjoining the courtroom.

The wife of the prisoner had returned to her schoolgirl style of garb, but she did not wear the familiar, wide-spreading and drooping English mushroom hat with the little bunch of violets twixt crown and rim. She wore a little black straw hat, from which hung a black veil.

She was chirpy and cheery. She chatted with newspaper acquaintances and laughed

HUGHES NO QUITTER—JOHN L.

Ex-Champion Meets the Governor and Is Vastly Impressed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 3.—John L. Sullivan, who is doing a stunt at a local theatre, dropped in on Gov. Hughes at the Executive chamber to-day.

"Take it from John L.," said the former champion, after looking the Governor over, "this man is no quitter. He's got the real fighting face, all right. The minute I looked him over I saw it. I've sized up many a man at the ringside and am not liable to make a mistake. No, Sir, take it from me, this fellow will never lie down in a fight. Strikes me he must be good at footwork, too.

"I looked at him as I've looked at many a man of his size, and bigger, but I got the shivers when he trained those big, cold eyes on me. Says I to myself, 'This here feller got 'em all skinned a mile in the sizing up game. He's got 'em beat the moment he puts eyes on 'em.'

"Now, take John L.'s tip: 'Any man that goes into the ring with Gov. Hughes will be taking the count by the fifth round and hail the gong with a yelp of joy.' If there's a yellow streak in his body there ain't any miscroscope that would discover it.

"Here's what he said to me after looking at me steadily for a minute and shaking my hand: 'John, there are times I wish I had your constitution.' Now what do you think of that?"

COULDN'T SEE MOTHER ILL.

So a 15-Year-Old Clerk Hangs Himself—News Kept from Her.

Harry Willbrock, who keeps a grocery store at 157 Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn, missed his 15-year-old clerk, Frederick Zollinger, of 779 Gates Avenue, about 6 o'clock last night. He did not hunt for him until an hour later, when he started to close the store for the night. In a rear room he found the youth dead, hanging by a rope from an iron bar.

Apparently the lad killed himself because he could not bear to witness the suffering of his mother, for whom he had an unusual affection. For weeks she has been ill with stomach trouble. Every day Zollinger left the grocery store and spent a few hours at her bedside. He read to her, and talked to her in an effort to lighten her suffering. Often he had to turn away to wipe the tears from his eyes. Yesterday when he paid his visit he found his mother in agony. He went back to the store much affected.

Frederick Zollinger, the lad's father, who keeps a paint shop at the Gates Avenue address, ordered that the body be kept away from his home for fear that if the mother heard of her boy's death the blow would kill her. When the boy did not return home last night the mother asked repeatedly for him.

"Freddie is going to stay at the store to-night," said the boy's younger sister, and then the woman went to sleep.

GUARDS OUT FOR STRIKERS.

New Haven Officials Think Section Men May Be Playing April Fool Joke.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 3.—The property of the New Haven Railroad, between Stamford and New Haven, is guarded by railroad detectives and watchmen to-night. According to the detectives, the guard is needed on account of a strike of section laborers which began on Monday. This was pay day, and all of the strikers drew their money. Many of them began to patronize saloons, and the detectives fear trouble to-night. All the men on strike are foreigners.

Guarded by three detectives the pay car reached Stamford at 9 o'clock this morning. After being paid some of the strikers signified their intention of returning to work. They were set upon and beaten by the others. This morning another crowd of about 100 strikers marched as far east as Cos Cob, forcing out section gangs remaining at work at Port Chester, Greenwich, and Cos Cob.

Supt. A. R. Whaley of the New York Division of the New Haven Road and Roadmaster Perkins are inclined to think that the section hands and track walkers of the division, extending from Harlem to New Haven, are playing an April fool joke.

ALFRED DE CORDOVA DEAD.

Retired Broker Had Been Ill Six Weeks—His Active Career.

Alfred De Cordova, the retired broker, who had been ill for the last six weeks, died at his home, in the Spencer Arms, Sixty-ninth Street and Broadway, last night, just before 11 o'clock.

At Mr. De Cordova's bedside when he died were his wife, his brother and sister-in-law, Eustace De Cordova and Mrs. De Cordova; his two nephews, Alfred and Cyril, and the family physician, Dr. Arthur Fiske. About ten minutes before the end came Mr. De Cordova regained consciousness, and asked that his wife be summoned. He then lapsed into unconsciousness and then death. His funeral will be held in the Spencer Arms at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning.

Mr. De Cordova was a descendant of the De Cordova who annexed Granada Spain. He was born on the Island of Jamaica on Aug. 19, 1848, and received his education in the West Indies and this city. He began business as a broker in petroleum, and was so successful that in 1875 he purchased a seat in the Stock Exchange for $45,000. In 1894 he was elected a Governor of the Exchange. In 1906 he sold his seat for the highest recorded price—$95,000.

Mr. De Cordova retired from active business in 1901. He was the first Commodore of the American Steam Yacht Club. He also owned a large trotting horse farm in New Jersey and was President of Fleetwood Park during some of the most famous trotting contests. In his business life he established a carrier-pigeon messenger service between his country home and office.

At the opening of the new Chicago Board of Trade he represented the New York Stock Exchange. He was a prominent member of the American Yacht, Larchmont Yacht, Lotos, and Manhattan Clubs. On Aug. 19, 1880, he was married to Helene L. Von W. Schroeder Lowcree.

Many Erysipelas Cases in Bellevue.

The admissions to Bellevue Hospital have shown a marked increase in patients suffering from erysipelas in the last four days. The wards devoted to this disease are now so crowded that it was said last night that some of the sufferers might have to be sent to the Metropolitan Hospital. Yesterday fifteen cases were admitted, on Tuesday nine, and on Monday eight.

TAFT, IN A BUCKET, INSPECTS DEEP HOLE

Secretary Is Lowered to the Bottom of a Test Pit at the Gatun Lock.

HEARS PROTEST AT COLON

Residents Complain That Intolerable Conditions Are Imposed by the Sanitary Authorities.

COLON, April 3.—Secretary Taft has made a thorough examination of conditions on the Isthmus in the course of his present visit.

At the Culebra Cut and the Gatun Dam the operations of the steam shovels and the progress of the work were explained by Superintendent of Excavation Little, and the Secretary listened attentively. After the visit to Culebra the work at Empire was thoroughly inspected, and from Empire the Secretary went to Gatun. There he was met by W. G. Bierd, General Manager of the Panama Railroad. The party lunched in the Isthmian Canal Commission Hotel, which has taken the place of the tented mess hall, in which President Roosevelt was entertained when he visited the Isthmus.

After lunch Secretary Taft tramped the entire site of the future lock and visited each test pit. He watched Representative Burton as he was lowered into the largest hole, which goes to the bottom of the lock. When Mr. Burton came to the surface Secretary Taft surprised every one present by taking off his coat and stepping into the bucket. He was lowered to the bottom of the test pit, which is in the centre of the middle lock. F. B. Maltby, First Assistant Engineer of the canal, and William Grieg, in charge of the Pacific Division, accompanied the Secretary in his descent and explained to him every aspect of the soil and the work in hand.

After Mr. Taft came to the surface the party took a steam launch on the old French canal to Mindi, whence they traveled in a special train to Cristobal, where the drydocks and dredges were inspected.

Secretary Taft reached Colon from the other side of the Isthmus at 11 o'clock this morning. He met a deputation of the houseowners and other citizens of Colon, who protested against the alleged hardships imposed by the sanitary authorities and asked relief from the "unjust and intolerable conditions imposed in the carrying out of the sanitary improvements here."

The Secretary conferred with the members of the deputation for three hours. He declared emphatically that the contention of the petitioners that the United States was responsible under the treaty with Panama for sanitary improvements to private property was untenable. He requested the petitioners to submit each case on its own merits, and promised to give the matter his close attention.

The Secretary left here to-night for Havana on the cruiser Mayflower.

PANAMA, April 3.—Secretary Taft yesterday conferred at the Presidencia with President Amador and Secretary of State Arias from 9 in the morning until 2:30 in the afternoon. The matters discussed were the Commissary Department, the importation of liquors, tobacco, and specially taxed articles; the Hotel Tivoli at Ancon, the landing of merchandise for consumption within the republic via Cristobal and La Boca, the canal employes, and the pavement of streets.

Mr. Taft agreed that the Commissary Department should import only articles of first necessity required for feeding the employes, and that no liquors should be imported.

Mr. Taft was informed at the conference that a certain amount of ill-feeling existed among the Panamans because of the great difference made by the Commissioners between Panaman and American and foreign, and even Jamaican employes, not only regarding salaries, but in general treatment. The statement surprised the Secretary, who, though he was not ready to answer the point, said his informants might rest assured that a stop would be put to any injustice.

The questions of the importation of tobacco and the pavement of streets have not yet been solved.

President Amador and Secretary Arias were very much pleased at the cordiality manifested by Mr. Taft at the conference.

TO DUPLICATE FATAL RUN.

Train Like the Brewsters Express to be Tested on the Central.

To determine the cause of the wreck of the Brewsters express on the New York Central on Feb. 16, in which twenty-seven lives were lost and more than a hundred persons injured, a similar train is to be sent out over the road with every physical condition reproduced so far as possible.

The same engineer will drive a duplicate pair of electric locomotives around the same curve, at the same rate of speed, with the same weight of cars behind, and the same weight of passengers, sand bags making up the balance if not enough human beings can be found to accept the invitation of the New York Central Road and the State Railroad Commission to go aboard the train.

Vice President Wilgus himself will be aboard, and with him will be Supt. McCormick and other officials of the New York Central. So will George W. Dunn, Chairman of the State Railroad Commission, several of his fellow-members, and an electrical expert. General Manager Potter of the General Electric Company will also be a passenger.

Men with stop watches are to time the speed by specially erected distance posts. Constructors and their experts are to watch the track and examine the result of the train's passing.

The railroad officials say that no change has been made in the track where the wreck occurred, save the doubling of the number of spikes along the outside of the curve.

NEW JERSEY POLICE CHIEF.

Monahan, Who Discovered Gambling There, Succeeds Murphy.

The Jersey City Police Commissioners appointed last night Frank Monahan Chief of Police to succeed Benjamin Murphy. Monahan was the detective who obtained the evidence on which Chief Murphy, Inspector Archibold, Capts. Cummings, Cox, and Kelly and several detectives were suspended on the charge of permitting gambling in the city. Detective Rooney, who has been Acting Chief since Jan. 1, returns to his old place, but expects to be made a Captain.

WHITE HOUSE TRUST TALK.

President Roosevelt Confers on a Programme for Prosecution.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—An important conference was held at the White House this afternoon on the subject of trust prosecutions. Those present included four members of the Cabinet—Messrs. Root, Bonaparte, Garfield, and Cortelyou.

The so-called Tobacco Trust was one of the subjects considered. The discussion was a general one, and no conclusions were reached.

Attorney General Bonaparte, it is said, is outlining a programme for action. He submitted his plans to the President and his Cabinet associates with a view to receiving any suggestions as to the best methods to pursue when the Administration is ready to resume the trust prosecutions.

FAIRBANKS IN TOWN.

Hangs on to a Strap on the Elevated Almost Unrecognized.

A tall bearded man, wearing a light Fedora hat, and carrying his overcoat over his arm, boarded a Sixth Avenue elevated train at Thirty-third Street early yesterday afternoon. The train was crowded, and he had to hold on to a strap. Another passenger watched him curiously all the way down to Grand Street and there got off, murmuring:

"I'm sure I've seen that man before, but can't tell where."

The remark attracted the attention of another man in the crowded car. He looked at the tall man hanging on to the strap, and just before getting off at Franklin Street held out his hand to him.

"How do you do, Senator?" he said.

"You've got the Vice President of the United States on your car," remarked the man to the conductor as he went out.

BRIDAL COUPLE KILLED.

Burned to Death in a Hotel the Day After Marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

SUTTON, W. Va., April 3.—Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Garee of this place were burned to death to-night when the Riverview Hotel was destroyed by fire, causing a monetary loss of $18,000.

Dr. and Mrs. Garee were married yesterday in Moundsville, W. Va., and were on the way to the home of the bridegroom's mother, where a wedding supper and a host of friends were awaiting their coming.

The fire originated in the laundry of the hotel.

BELMONT LOSES A BEAGLE.

It Is Distinguished by Black and Brown Spots and Very Long Ears.

In the hope of getting some trace of a valuable beagle hound which ran out of his stable yesterday, August Belmont of 44 East Thirty-fourth Street reported the loss of the animal last night to the police of the West Thirtieth Street Station. The dog had only arrived in town earlier in the day from Haverhill, Mass., where it had been on exhibition at a dog show. It is distinguished by a black spot on its body, a brown spot on its face, and very long ears.

FREE-PASS BILL PASSED.

Jersey Senate Favors Free Rides for Many State Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, April 3.—The heavily-padded Free Railroad Pass bill was passed unanimously in the Senate to-day. It provides free passes for all the principal State officials and Judges of the courts.

The Hillery measure for a potable water commission to acquire the potable water rights in the State that the same may be conserved for the citizens of New Jersey passed by a bare majority.

The House passed the Senate bill appropriating $20,000 for the expenses of the National Guard and the Jersey Department of the G. A. R. at the unveiling of the McClellan Monument in Washington.

FIRE ON BENEDICT ESTATE.

Commodore Directs the Oneida's Crew —Invalid Rescued.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., April 3.—One house on Commodore E. C. Benedict's estate at Indian Harbor was destroyed by fire this evening, and several others were menaced by the flames. The house was occupied by the dairyman, Frank Eisle. Mrs. Eisle, who is seriously ill, and her nurse barely escaped with their lives.

But for the crew of the Commodore's yacht Oneida, who fought the fire, the loss would have been much greater. The flames spread over the entire house before the blaze was discovered. The sailors on the Oneida were the first to see the fire, and they rushed to the house, Commodore Benedict accompanying them. The invalid and her nurse were taken out through a window.

The Greenwich Fire Department, a mile distant, was notified to be in readiness to respond to a message for aid. Mr. Benedict directed the yacht's crew and the firemen were not needed. The loss was about $5,000.

THREAT TO CITY EMPLOYE.

"Black Hand" Demands $300 on Pain of Having His Boy Kidnapped.

Michael Siegel of 2,210 Second Avenue, who has a good place in the Street Cleaning Department, went to the East 104th Street Station last night and told Capt. Corcoran of that precinct that he had received a "Black Hand" letter, which demanded that he give up $300 on pain of having his seven-year-old boy stolen.

Siegel explained that he formerly owned a grocery store at 116th Street and Second Avenue. He sold the store some time ago and went into the Street Cleaning Department. He said that he was looked upon in his neighborhood as a well-to-do man.

The letter said in part:

"You love your boy, but we love money. Have the money in a newspaper at 115th Street and Third Avenue Saturday night or beware."

Detectives were assigned to the case.

Brewery Strike Ends.

ST. LOUIS, April 3.—Contracts for three years were signed by the representatives of the various breweries and the striking employee to-day, and the strike officially was declared terminated. There is an arbitration clause in all contracts. The increase in wages granted and the changes in hours go into effect immediately. Operations will be resumed in the breweries as usual to-morrow.

Wages are increased about 15 per cent., and work hours were reduced in several cases.

PLOT CHARGED BY ROOSEVELT

Puts Harriman, Rockefeller, and Hearst in a "Rich Men's Conspiracy."

HARRIMAN HAD AMBITIONS

President Now Believes He Sought Senator Depew's Seat for Himself.

HARRIMAN QUITS TALKING

Remarks That This Has Been an Unusual Winter — What His ex-Clerk Says.

DEMAND FOR AN INQUIRY

Little Hope in Washington, However, That the Republicans in Congress Will Grant One.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A roar of defiance came to-day from the White House, aimed at the enemies of President Roosevelt and Rooseveltism all along the line. It was inspired by the reiteration by E. H. Harriman of the charges in his letter to Sidney Webster and by Judge Alton B. Parker's renewal of his charges of the 1904 campaign regarding the extortion of campaign funds by the Republicans from corporations.

In the broadest and most sweeping way the previous denials of all these charges were repeated, and with this repetition was coupled the flat-footed assertion that there had been organized "a rich man's conspiracy" to defeat the nomination of a Roosevelt man by the Republican National Convention of next year, and to prevent any further enforcement of the Roosevelt policies.

The President himself declared that Messrs. Harriman and Rockefeller had joined hands with William Randolph Hearst to form this conspiracy, and were ready to assist Hearst in getting the Democratic Presidential nomination if necessary to carry out their plans. The conspiracy is said to be already at work in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and seeking to use favorite cons everywhere.

Incidentally it was charged at the White House that the anxiety of E. H. Harriman for the success of the Republican State ticket in New York in 1904 was entirely personal, based upon his intention to have himself elected to the United States Senate to succeed Chauncey M. Depew. Harriman's alleged purpose in coming to the Senate was the furtherance of such schemes of legislation as he desired.

Vigorous Fight on Harriman.

The President has been tremendously stirred by the chargee, new and old, that have been brought out by the publication of Harriman's letter to Webster. The hopes Harriman may have cherished that his recent efforts to promote co-operation between the railroads and the Administration and to check the tide of hostile legislation would find a sympathetic response from the President have been somewhat dashed by the developments of the last two days. In so many words the President has classed Harriman with Moyer, Debs, and Haywood, and joined them all with Hearst. He will surely fight them politically with every means at his command and with all the vigor he can control.

Mr. Roosevelt saw a large number of callers to-day, and to all of them talked with emphasis and freedom about the Harriman and Parker charges. As to Judge Parker, he contented himself with reiterating the language he used in November, 1904, when he said:

That contributions have been made to the Republican Committee as they have been made to the Democratic Committee is not the question at issue. Mr. Parker's assertion is in effect that such contributions have been made from improper motives, or in consequence of unauthorized or improper pressure, direct or indirect, on the part of the recipients. There is not one particle of truth in that statement.

Defense of Campaign Funds.

In other words, the President admits there were contributions to his campaign fund in 1904 from corporations. What he denies is that they were extorted from the donors by pressure or threats or any improper inducement. In illustration of the care with which that campaign fund was raised and controlled, two stories were told at the White House to-day.

One concerned the fight of the independent tobacco manufacturers against the trust in the Summer of 1904 over the customs stamp affixed to boxes of imported cigars. The independents contended it was of such a character that it showed at a glance that the box to which it was affixed had been imported. They wanted a smaller and less conspicuous stamp. After a hot fight they got what they wanted. Then they began to offer contributions to the National Committee. Thereupon Mr. Roosevelt gave orders that no contributions whatever should be received from any tobacco manufacturer, trust or independent. None were offered by the defeated trust manufacturer, but the independents raised $70,000, every dollar of which was either refused when offered or returned if it had been received before. Mr. Roosevelt issued his order.

Check For $20,000 Refused.

The other story was about a man who gave $20,000 to the National Committee. Some time after he had sent his check he modestly suggested to one of the campaign managers that he would like to be made Minister to Belgium. It was reported to Mr. Roosevelt, who immediately directed that the $20,000 should be returned, which was done. That man did not get the diplomatic post he was after.

This renewed denial of the Parker charges was supplemented by calling attention to the fact that no corporation has profited by any contribution it may have made to the 1904 fund. No corporation has gained immunity from pursuit for its wrongdoing by such contributions.

"My spear knows no brother," the President said to his callers.

Case after case of proceedings against trusts was cited in support of this assertion. The only omission in the list was the Sugar Trust, and as to that no word has been forthcoming from Administration circles, despite the fervent appeals from Philadelphia for assistance, and the knowledge of the extraordinary things the Sugar Trust did there in its handling of the Pennsylvania Refinery. But it was pointed out that whatever has been said or may be said concerning the contributions of corporations to the Republican funds three years ago, the Administration has pursued a steady course of trust prosecution.

Sees a Rich Man's Conspiracy.

The President is firmly convinced now that the Harriman attack is really the opening of a fight on him and his policies by the Harriman allied interests. Friends of the President say Harriman realized that there is only one possible way of affecting the extraordinary popularity of the President throughout the country, and that is by an attack on his integrity. There is plenty of talk in Washington today that these Harriman charges will be followed by similar ones from other railroad or corporation men who contributed to the 1904 fund.

This talk comes from men who believe Harriman himself contrived the publication of this letter to Webster, and that in some similar manner other letters will soon appear. But the President's friends say that there is slim chance of such attacks being successful. They call attention to the fact that there was sworn testimony brought out in the New York insurance investigation to the effect that several insurance companies made such contributions. Mr. Roosevelt, of course, profited by these subscriptions. These facts were widely published, without in the least affecting the Roosevelt sentiment of the country.

Roosevelt Version of Interview.

A mass of additional statements regarding the Harriman-Roosevelt conference in the Fall of 1904 came out to-day. The President told some of his callers that when Harriman came down to Washington to talk over the situation in New York he was greatly worked up because of his personal interest in the result. The President has been told since that campaign that Harriman was making a determined effort to be elected to the Senate.

Harriman was quoted as saying to the President at that interview that he had raised $100,000 for the State Committee, and that it was too much of a burden for him to carry. He came not to offer help to the President, but to see if he could not get some aid for himself. He wanted the President to give instructions to Chairman Cortelyou and Treasurer Bliss of the National Committee to put more money into New York State.

There was talk about taking care of Depew at that meeting, but it was Harriman who did the talking, and the President made no promises. Harriman wanted Depew out of the way so that he could make his own fight for the Senatorship. He didn't care what became of Depew, but insisted that he must be taken care of. According to this White House version of the interview, he said to the President:

"I can't get the Vanderbilts or Morgan to put up anything for the campaign unless they are sure that Depew will be taken care of."

It was furthermore said that the President did not know whether Harriman's assertion that he had put up $100,000 is true or not, nor did he know whether Harriman got any contributions from the Vanderbilts and Morgan.

Morgan and Hill Quoted.

Two of the President's callers corroborated the report that Harriman had intended to go to the Senate himself. One said he had heard it from J. J. Hill and the other from J. P. Morgan. The candidacy of Frank Black was entirely a ruse of Harriman's, according to the President's information. Black was simply a stalking horse put up to cover the real intention of Harriman and his man Odell until the time came for Harriman to appear in the open.

The President did ask Cortelyou and Bliss to help out the State Committee in New York, just exactly as he asked them, on similar requests, to help out the State fights in Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia.

Like the Hanna Combination.

The President regards the present "rich man's conspiracy" as similar to the "business man's combine" that was made in the interests of the candidacy of Senator Hanna in 1904. Harriman was in that combination, and at one of its meetings is said to have jauntily promised to deliver the delegation from California, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, and Idaho.

There was then no uneasiness among Mr. Roosevelt's friends as to any of those States except California. Of that State, W. C. Van Fleet of San Francisco was deputed to organize the Roosevelt forces, and he did it well. Harriman himself went to the convention as one of the delegates and voted for Roosevelt. The President to-day announced the appointment of Van Fleet to a Judgeship in California.

The Tobacco Trust was also interested in that old Hanna combination. Senator Pritchard of North Carolina told Mr. Roosevelt he could deliver the delegation of that State, but subsequently said he could not do it. He had been told by a big Tobacco Trust man that the trust had elected him to the Senate, and he must stand with it in that fight. However, he secured part of the delegation for Roosevelt. Mr. Pritchard is now a Federal Judge.

Most of the stories about Harriman and his political activity have come to the President recently. After the report of Representative Sherman last October about the talk he had had with Harriman, Maxwell Evarts, one of the Harriman attorneys, told the President that Harriman must have been joking in his talk with Sherman. The President told Evarts then that Harriman had already bought Legislatures and was willing to buy others. The report of Sherman came just about the opening of the Fall term of the Supreme Court. Sherman had written the President about it, and when the Justices of the court came to make their regular call on the President, he read this part of the letter to them to show them what Harriman thought of courts. Some one suggested that he was going after rich men pretty hard, and he replied that he was glad to be able to group Harriman and Hearst with Debs, Moyer, and Haywood.

Demand for Investigation.

The publication of the Harriman charge and the renewal of those of Judge Parker have served to revive the demand for a Congressional investigation of the 1904 campaign funds. The Democrats strove manfully to get such an investigation from the last Congress, but all their efforts were duly buried in the Committee on Election of President and Vice President.

Senator Overman of North Carolina, who is in Washington attending the Brownsville hearings of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, said to-day:

"The revelations in the Harriman letter and the letters given out by President Roosevelt are convincing that the corporations and Wall Street financiers contributed in large amounts to the Republican campaign fund in 1904, and that these contributions were made for a consideration. Unquestionably the President has furnished proof of the charges made by Judge Parker. The President said Judge Parker was guilty of a falsehood.

But no proof was needed. Everybody knew those charges to be true after the insurance investigation, if not before. The whole country knew they were true when Senator Tillman's resolution for an investigation of the whole matter came up. The Republican members of the Senate Elections Committee admitted they were true, and said there was not any use for an investigation of such a well-known fact. Of course, Congress ought to pass the Publicity bill, but if it would not pass it with all the facts before it when it came up before I have little hope that it can be passed now, for the country has known this all along."

HARRIMAN WILL SAY NO MORE.

But It Is an Unusual Winter, He Remarks—Source of the Letter.

Edward H. Harriman was content, yesterday, to allow the controversy with President Roosevelt over the 1904 campaign funds and other interesting topics to rest, so far as he was concerned, upon his reply to the President's letter to Congressman Sherman. To reporters who sought him for information on a wide variety of collateral subjects Mr. Harriman said:

"This has been an unusual Winter, both as to politics and as to the weather."

And that was all. Mr. Harriman did not care to add anything even when the evening papers were shown to him containing the supplemental White House statement that the underlying cause of his activity in the interest of the Republican campaign fund of 1904 was an ambition to succeed Chauncey M. Depew in the United States Senate.

The mystery surrounding the individual whom Mr. Harriman charged with stealing the letter to Sidney Webster, which started the whole controversy, was cleared up in a good many particulars yesterday. It was alleged in the published interview which accompanied the original publication of the letter that it got to The World from a discharged employe—"a man named Hill."

"He has been to others with it," said Mr. Harriman at that time.

It was learned yesterday that the only employe named Hill discharged in recent months from the service of the Union Pacific is Frank W. Hill of 634 Quincy Street, Brooklyn. Hill was in the service of the road from his office boy days until February a year ago. From 1898 to the time of his discharge he was a stenographer in the office of the Secretary of the Union Pacific. When he left the road, it seems, it was not under the happiest auspices, and those workers in the Harriman offices who had occasion to come into contact with him while he was in the service have believed that his feelings have not softened in the year that has elapsed since his discharge.

Several weeks ago the officials of the Union Pacific were apprised that a newspaper other than The World had a copy of the letter to Mr. Webster. As a result they got into communication with Hill to see what, if anything, he might know about it. The result was not conclusive so far as any admission on his part was concerned, and things in the Webster letter itself, and things rested in that shape until the letter was finally published.

When interviewed by a TIMES reporter at his home last night, Hill wanted to know why he should be connected with the incident. He was reminded of the Harriman interview mentioning as the source of the letter a discharged employe named Hill.

"Well," said Frank W. Hill," Mr. Harriman did not give my initials, did he? There is another Hill in his office at the present time. So far as my leaving the service of the Union Pacific is concerned, all I want to say is that I was let out after twenty-one years' work without so much as a word, and that my record with the road is clean."

Hill was asked if he had any other interesting data bearing upon the affairs of Mr. Harriman.

"All my note books were destroyed when I left the service of the Union Pacific," he replied. "I haven't anything of the kind."

"How about carbon copies?" was the next question.

"I haven't got any carbon copies either," said Hill. "I never took any."

Finally he was asked point blank if it was he who had given out the Webster letter as published.

"I don't know anything about that letter as published," he declared.

"Will you say that you did not give it out?" pressed the reporter.

"All I will say about that is that I don't know anything about it," he repeated. "I don't know why my name should be dragged into this thing at all."

PUBLICITY LAW AGAIN URGED.

National Organization to Renew Agitation of the Question.

The controversy between President Roosevelt and Mr. Harriman over the contributions to the 1904 campaign fund has resulted in a call for a meeting of the National Publicity Bill Organization, to be held at the Victoria Hotel here on April 16 at noon. The call for the meeting is signed by Perry Belmont, as Chairman, and was issued at the request of a majority of the members of the Executive and Law Committees of the association. William Jennings Bryan and Samuel Gompers have wired that they will attend the meeting and advocate a National law compelling the publication of National and Congressional campaign receipts and expenditures.

There was considerable discussion in interested quarters yesterday of Alton B. Parker's assertion that there should be a Congressional investigation of the Republican National campaign fund of 1904. In this connection the criticisms were recalled which were passed on the Armstrong Committee a year ago last Fall for not calling to the witness stand Chairman Cortelyou and Treasurer Cornelius N. Bliss of the Republican National Committee when it had appeared that large amounts of insurance company money had been regularly given to the Republican National Committee, and that frequent contributions from the same source had often been received by the Congressional Committee.

Mr. Bliss on Tuesday, when reporters asked him about the Harriman letter to Mr. Webster, declared that until application was made to him by the principals he would not turn loose any of the data in his possession. This was made the basis for suggestions yesterday that if Mr. Bliss were a witness before a responsible investigating board he might be willing to throw considerable light on the source of recent Republican campaign funds.

LABOR MEN PROTEST.

Criticise Roosevelt for Classing Labor Leaders with Harriman.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 8.—Union men severely criticise President Roosevelt for placing Debs, Moyer, and Haywood on the same level with Harriman. They charge it is an injustice to the three labor agitators. At the headquarters of the United Trades and Labor Council to-day the Roosevelt-Harriman controversy was generally discussed because of the President's reference to the railroad operator in the same breath with the labor leaders.

"It is a false commentary on labor that he should class Harriman with Debs, Moyer, and Haywood," said Harry Thomas. "It is evident President Roosevelt looks upon a labor leader as a dangerous citizen."

Max S. Hayes, President of the Typographical union and editor of The Citizen, a local labor organ, said: "It strikes me as being an extraordinary statement coming from one holding the honorable office of President of the United States."

POLICE CAPTAIN KNIPE SUED.

Brooklyn Girl Asks $25,000 Damages for Slander.

A suit for $25,000 for slander against Police Capt. William Knipe was brought by Hyde Morton of 44 Powers Street, Williamsburg, through her mother, Mrs. Catherine Morton, as guardian, in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday.

Miss Morton in her complaint, says that while she was visiting at 493 Lorimer Street on the night of July 4, 1904, Capt. Knipe, who was then in command of the Herbert Street Station, came to the house and made statements regarding her that caused her much mental anguish and injured her in the estimation of several persons who were present.

In his answer Capt. Knipe admitted that he made the statements complained of, but said he was justified by the fact that all he said was true. In an amended answer, filed later, Capt. Knipe denied that he made the statements.

BULLETS HIT; DIDN'T KILL.

Fired Through Glass Window at Restaurant Keeper, but He Is Unhurt.

Two shots were fired at John H. Leary, a restaurant keeper, of 432 Fourth Avenue, yesterday afternoon, and, although the bullets struck him, they did no damage, for their force was lost after passing through a thick plate glass window.

Two shots were also fired at Frank Malloy of 327 East Twenty-eighth Street, but the bullets missed their mark.

After a chase the man who did the shooting was arrested. He said he was Frank Rothschild, 40 years old, of 400 West Thirty-seventh Street. He was held by Magistrate Whitman in the Jefferson Market Court in $2,500 for trial.

Rothschild had a dinner in Leary's place, and as he paid the check became abusive, making comments about what he had eaten. After going outside Rothschild pulled a revolver from his pocket and, aiming at the restaurant keeper, who was sitting behind a desk, pulled the trigger.

The bullet crashed through the thick glass window and struck the restaurant keeper in the chest. There was not enough force left in it, and the point was so flattened that it did not even penetrate Leary's clothing. It fell to the floor at his feet.

Malloy, who was in the restaurant, ran to the street and chased Rothschild to Thirtieth Street. Rothschild fired twice at Malloy, but missed, and at Madison Avenue was captured.

THE GROOMS' STRIKE BROKEN.

Ex-Cavalrymen Take Their Places in Riding Academies.

The strike of the grooms in the riding academies was declared to be practically at an end by the proprietors yesterday, though the police guard may be kept up at the stables for a day or two. Mr. Heinemann, proprietor of the Central Park Riding Academy, Fifty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue, said yesterday:

"We were able to get plenty of German and English cavalrymen, who were glad to get the places our former employes had thrown up. They are competent men. A number of our old employes who were forced into the strike, have asked to be taken back."

Similar conditions were reported at Durland's Academy.

PAINTERS' STRIKE GOES ON.

Unions Agree to Force the Demand for a New Wage Scale.

After many false starts the strike of the painters in Manhattan and the Bronx for the new wage scale went into effect yesterday morning. The delay was caused by the unwillingness of the officers of the Brotherhood of Painters to take any chances of violating the arbitration agreement.

A meeting of the Joint Strike Committee of the Amalgamated Painters and the brotherhood was held at midnight on Tuesday, and it was decided that the strike must go on.

A demand will be made to-day for the payment of the new scale at the Plaza Hotel, where about 150 painters are at work, with the alternative of a strike.

Striking Teamsters Enjoined.

Supreme Court Justice Crane, in Brooklyn, yesterday granted an injunction restraining the members of Local Teamsters' Union 644 from interfering with or intimidating the men who took the places of the striking drivers of the Moquin-Offerman-Wells Coal Company.

It was alleged that the strikers followed the new drivers to and from their homes and threatened to kill them. Then the company decided to appeal to the courts.

RAID DISCLOSES RACE NEWS CENTRE

Distributing Headquarters for Poolrooms Found in Cedar Street.

BUT THE PLACE WAS EMPTY

John Doe Proceedings Begun to Learn Who Grady ("Sen. G.") Is—Some Progress Made.

John Doe proceedings were begun before Magistrate Barlow in the Criminal Court Building yesterday to determine whether or not warrants should be issued against Thomas F. Grady and five other men on the charge of maintaining the Fulton Street poolroom that was raided last week. In the proceedings before the Magistrate the name of Grady was given without any further identification of the man. What relation Thomas F. Grady bears to "T. G.," "T. Grady," "Tommy," and "Sen. G." has not yet been legally determined. That is a matter for future development.

With the name Thomas F. Grady five other men were mentioned to the Magistrate by Assistant District Attorney Vandiver as persons against whom he thought he had sufficient evidence for the issuance of warrants. These men are Charles Reilly, Robert H. Davis, J. Park Robinson, Michael J. Riordan, and Edward A. Fisher. Initials resembling their names were also found in the books made public by Mr. Jerome, save in the case of Fisher, who was acknowledged by his associates during the flurry of one of the raids as being the manager for the Davis-Reilly syndicate. His name also appears on the fly leaf on many of the syndicate's books.

There was also an open hearing in which the persons who figured in the Keator raid at 47 Broadway and at 112 Fulton Street figured.

Near the close of the hearing Mr. Vandiver with County Detective Liebner slipped away, and being joined by Deputy Police Commissioner Hanson, raided a building in Cedar Street, near West Street, which they had visited the day before. They went up to the third floor and a strong-shouldered member of the group burst in a door. The men had hardly gotten a glimpse into the interior when they all shouted in chorus:

"We've got it! This is the place!"

Where the News Was Distributed.

And it was—the telephone distributing exchange for the downtown poolroom syndicate. The place was empty, but around a circular table were fifteen telephones. Each one led to a subsidiary poolroom, save one, which was used to receive the information from without, to be disseminated to the other and smaller poolrooms. There were also a lot of books—again the downtown syndicate was very systematic—and last but not less interesting, the layout of a palatial gambling room, including poker chips, cards, dice, and other paraphernalia.

Even the curtains and the chairs and tables which had been used in the place were there, including a lot of silverware. The joke of the thing was that this was the place the Assistant District Attorney was after on the day before and had missed by one floor. The floor below just happened to be another poolroom in the syndicate, and just in passing, since he was there, the District Attorney decided to raid that also.

The books found in the place added a little to the information which the well-known initial ledgers yielded to Mr. Jerome and his assistants. "G" again was noticed in some of the memoranda. There was also an account with a Mr. Gates, and an account with an Arkansaw Club, at Hot Springs. The books seemed to indicate that they were for later days than those which the District Attorney made public a few nights ago, and indicated that the syndicate was still running up profits to the $30,000 a month figure. The Gates account showed that the Mr. Gates who had bet on ponies had been in $150 and out the same amount in one month, apparently leaving him merely the excitement incident to losing and winning.

Instead of bells, the telephones in the rooms were all supplied with buzzers, so that the noise might not disturb nervous neighbors, and on the walls were such significant legends as this:

"Positively no money loaned or checks cashed. If you ask you will be refused."

"This club meets every morning (except Sundays) at 10 A. M."

A lot of charts were also found guiding the uninitiated into the mysterious realm of making money without working, for it —the horse doing all the running.

The persons taken in the establishment of Thomas R. Keator in Broadway gave their evidence in the police court proceedings yesterday. The two young women, Erna Sanntrock and Clara Robinson, were taken in this raid and were present, but only Miss Sanntrock testified. The defendant in the case was Mr. Keator himself.

Floyd M. Grant, the turfman, however, gave some straight talk on the subject. He frankly confessed to having bet on many ponies, giving his order to a woman over the telephone running into Keator's place, among them De Oro, on which he placed $20; Prescate, on which he placed $15; St. Valentine, on which he bet a like amount, and so on.

He gave some interesting testimony also about a $920 check over which he said he had had some trouble with Mr. Keator, telling something which resembled very much what the Assistant District Attorney told some days ago when he said that the whole downtown poolroom situation had come to light through a man who had "squealed" because his check for a winning was not paid.

At the conclusion of the hearing Lawyer Maurice Mayer asked for the release of his client on the ground that the evidence which had been presented was all such as had been taken over the telephone, and left the question of who was at either end of it a matter of doubt. He said he could produce evidence that this kind of evidence was not legal and binding. The Magistrate asked him to submit a brief on the subject, giving him until next Friday to do it, when he said he would render his decision. The two women who were taken in the Keator raid had already been discharged at the request of Assistant District Attorney Vandiver.

The men taken in the raid at 112 Fulton Street were also arraigned. Four of these men only had a public hearing. They were Charles F. Reilly, Jr., Robert Johnson, Louis Meyer, and Alexander Fange. These four men gave evidence explaining their presence in the poolroom. It seems they were about all out of a job and had learned by some underground wireless means that there was "something doing" at 112 Fulton Street.

One said he was a peddler, the other an insurance adjuster, and another explained that he had been distributing postal cards for a living. Not one of them, according to their evidence, knew a race horse from a hand saw, or had ever seen a racing chart. Although he smiled, the Magistrate seemed inclined to believe them, and they were discharged. As they left the hearing room they were served with subpoenas to appear in the John Doe proceedings and tell what they actually saw in the clearing house at 112 Fulton Street.

Edward A. Fisher, the ostensible manager of the Davis syndicate, as well as Charles Reilly of the Davis-Reilly concern, didn't get off quite so well. A formal complaint was made out against them, and they are to appear at a future hearing. Meanwhile the John Doe proceedings will determine what the nature of the charge against them shall be.

The case of the principals is not likely to go to the Grand Jury for several days yet.

OHIO FIGHT BEGINS; DICK IS THE POWER

extent. It is not a fight against Taft, it is a fight against Roosevelt over Taft's shoulders. If Taft were not in Roosevelt's Cabinet and were not advertised as Roosevelt's political legatee, it is quite likely that Foraker would be for him.

Foraker, tied by the leg to Washington while the Brownsville inquiry is going on, is nevertheless at work. He is sending letters into every county of the State, stirring up his supporters and preparing the way for the big fight that is to come. On Saturday, when the Brownsville committee adjourned for a two weeks' recess, Foraker will rush to Cincinnati and begin summoning his leaders. Dick is expected here early next week.

The Taft men are conducting the most open sort of a campaign. Their object is to form an organization which will wipe Foraker out. Insurance Commissioner Vorys, the Taft manager, to-day opened headquarters in the First National Bank Building here, and engaged Henry Williams, a hustling citizen with much reputation as an organizer, to be his second in command. From all parts of the State there were pouring in on him to-day politicians who were desirous of joining the Taft movement and of receiving instructions for the organizing of their own districts.

Vorys Formerly a Foraker Man.

Vorys himself was formerly a Foraker man, or rather, as they put it here, a "Senatorial" man, for in the State the two Senators are always linked, and there is not that idea of Foraker as the whole thing which pervades other parts of the country. Last year Vorys opposed the Burton revolt. He is not the only recruit of that kind to the Taft camp, either. There are many of them, including many who are prominent. All of them would be "Senatorial" men yet if the Senators were not opposed to the President.

But by far the greater number of the politicians are sitting tight or lying low. They do not want to be dragged off the fence till they see how the cat jumps. This town is simply boiling with politics—nothing but the Taft-Foraker fight is talked of either by politicians or by the man in the street. And yet the silence of many of the leading politicians is simply opaque. This is especially true of the State officials.

How badly the situation is mixed may be seen from the fact that of Gov. Harris's official family his Insurance Commissioner, Vorys, is managing the Taft boom; his Adjutant General, Critchfield, is for the Senators, and his Private Secretary, Flickinger, is booming Taft with all his might in the Canton Journal, which he controls. The rest of the official family is on the fence, and the Governor himself cannot be induced to say a word in favor of either side.

One result of Foraker's arrival here next week is expected to be the shaking of a good many of these wary old birds off the fence. That fence is surely going to be violently agitated after the Senators arrive.

SAYS HE IS THAW'S COUSIN.

Inventor Arrested in Hartford for Trying to Pass a Bad Check.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, April 3.—The police here are investigating a story told by a man who says he is Allen Everet Olney, and gives his address as 504 Columbus Avenue, New York. He says he is a cousin of Harry K. Thaw and an intimate friend of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. Olney was arrested here while trying to cash a bogus check for $25 drawn on the Lincoln Trust Company, New York, at the Bonner Preston Company's store.

Olney declared that he had $3,000,000 on deposit with the Lincoln Trust Company and several thousand dollars in the "Day and Night Savings Bank." A letter from Lawyer Joseph D. Baucus of 49 Wall Street, New York, to Lawyer C. F. Schmelze of 926 Main Street, this city, was found in his pocket. It appears from this letter that Olney has invented an organ and piano attachment which the two lawyers are looking after for him. Mr. Schmelze took him in charge and went with him to Springfield to consult another patent attorney.

Olney has letters tending to substantiate his assertion that he knows Thaw and his wife.

There is no such address in New York as 504 Columbus Avenue.

FIVE LOST IN FIRE.

Mother and Four Children Burned in Passaic Tenement.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 3.—A mother and her four children perished in a tenement house fire this morning in this city. The victims were Mrs. Philomena Salupo, 26 years old; Mary, 7 years old; Libirato, 5 years; Antonio, 3 years, and Joseph, 7 months old.

The burned tenement was at 21 and 23 Monroe Street, and was occupied by eleven Italian and Hungarian families. There were three stores on the ground floor, one of which was occupied by Max Wise, a printer, in which the fire started.

Many women and children were taken down ladders from the upper stories by the firemen. The members of the Salupo family, who occupied rooms on the third floor, are supposed to have been suffocated by smoke before the flames reached them.

Michael Salupo, the husband and father, is employed in McLean's mill, which is two blocks from the burned tenement. When he heard that his home was on fire he ran to the house, rushed into the burning building, and started for the third floor. He was finally seized by firemen and dragged out.

THAW CONFIDENT AFTER HARD TEST

frequently. None of her kith or kin was near her. She was away from all of the Thaws and Nesbits. She was the centre of a group of lawyers and newspaper reporters, fully at ease and seemingly enjoying the company.

"At first," she commented, "I thought Mr. Jerome was a very stern man, and I was afraid of him, but when he started to cross-examine me he placed two bottles of smelling salts before him on his table, and I knew that he had mercy in him. I was sure that if he knocked me out he would revive me."

Mr. Jerome was within ten feet of her. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw smiled as she made this comment, and it was a smile packed with sarcastic humor.

During the brief recess which the commission took at midday, Mrs. Thaw visited her husband in the Tombs. She spent very few minutes there, and then she walked out into the sunlight and went with her husband's counsel to Pontin's, the quaint little French restaurant on Franklin Street, the walls of which have echoed many a discussion over many a great criminal case.

Thaw's Statements to Dr. Wagner.

That Thaw was ready for the personal examination by the Commissioners was made certain in the morning when Dr. Wagner, one of his alienists, was put on the stand. Dr. Wagner told of an examination made by him before the commission convened yesterday morning. He said that he had closely questioned Thaw and had found that he thoroughly understood his plight and the results that might ensue. He knew that conviction of murder in the first degree would mean death, although he said that he was certain a conviction would be set aside on appeal. He knew that if he was declared insane and incapable of conferring with counsel he would be sent to an asylum and that if later released from Matteawan he would have to be tried again. Dr. Wagner also swore that he had questioned Thaw about his former delusions and that he had replied that he did not believe those things to exist as he had once believed.

But Dr. Wagner would not testify on cross-examination whether it was his belief that Thaw was now sane or insane. He confined his testimony to the questions of his ability to realize the facts existing in his case and his capacity to confer intelligently with his counsel.

Dr. Wagner was testifying when an Italian funeral procession swung away from the crowds in Mulberry Bend and skirted the Criminal Court Building. The brass band heading the procession was playing with such vigor as only an Italian bandmaster can get from his musicians at an Italian funeral. The air was in long metre, befitting a mourner's stride, and when the crash of music first battered against the court room the selection being blared forth was "Flee as a Bird." Dr. Wagner was telling, as best he could, the results of his interview with Thaw when the band, directly under the court-room windows, switched to "Nearer, My God to Thee." The evidence was halted until the procession reached the corner and the funereal strains were sufficiently reduced in volume to permit of the alienist testifying without yelling at the top of his voice.

Mr. Jerome called Dr. Allen Ross Diefendorf, who testified that from what he had seen of the prisoner and of his writings he considered him insane at this time and incapable of advising with his counsel. The defense had present Dr. White of Washington, and offered him to the Commissioners should they desire to question him, but the Commissioners had been bored by the expert testimony, and Chairman McClure said that no further evidence along that line was desired.

"We will now proceed to make a personal examination of Mr. Thaw," said Chairman McClure. Then the courtroom was cleared and the examination begun.

Will Report To-day.

The end of Thaw's examination came at 3:40 o'clock in the afternoon. The commission remained in the courtroom until nearly 7 o'clock. The District Attorney and the lawyers for the defense had been notified that none of them would be needed, and they filed away to their respective offices. During these three hours of conference the Commissioners closely studied the evidence they had obtained, and, it is believed, formulated their report to Justice Fitzgerald. At 10:30 o'clock this morning the Thaw case will be called once more, and the Commissioners will appear before the court. There is a probability of a minority report from Dr. Putzell. In this event Justice Fitzgerald will be left to choose for himself if he may accept either and cast aside the other.

In the event of the report being unanimous and declaring Thaw fit for trial Mr. Delmas will be urged to proceed immediately with his summing up, but it is not probable that he will begin to-day. There may be some additional evidence introduced in the case. So terrific has been the battle for Thaw's life and liberty that the summing up by Mr. Delmas and Mr. Jerome will prove one of the most interesting in the history of criminal court practice of this city. It is believed that Mr. Jerome will go to his home at Lakeville to prepare his address. Mr. Delmas will speak from notes. Each will take at least five hours for his plea to the jury. Monday and Tuesday may be considered as likely days for the close of the trial.

Injunction Holds Up Slaughter House.

An injunction restraining the Board of Health from granting a permit for the construction of a slaughter house at the foot of Oak Street, Greenpoint, was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Thomas in Brooklyn. The application for the injunction was made by Frank Cunningham, representing the residents near the site of the proposed slaughter house.

OLD APPORTIONMENT IS DECLARED VOID

Court of Appeals Decides Against the Division of Districts, Five to Two.

NO NEW ACTION THIS YEAR

Division Provided by the Constitutional Convention of 1894 Will Be In Effect Again.

ALBANY, April 3.—The apportionment of Senate and Assembly Districts as made by the Legislature of 1906, and approved by the late Gov. Higgins, was overthrown as unconstitutional to-day by the Court of Appeals.

The decision is by a divided court, voting five to two, and there are five opinions, three supporting the decision, and two dissenting. Judge Chase writes the controlling opinion, and there are concurring opinions by Chief Judge Cullen and Judge Gray, while Judges Werner and Haight file dissenting opinions, the former, however, concurring with Judge Cullen as to the effect of the decision.

By the decision the present division of Assembly Districts is rendered null and void, and if the Legislature now sitting fails to make an apportionment the division of the districts must be as provided for by the Constitutional Convention of 1894. The decision affects the Senate Districts, but it does not affect the Senators any more than it affects the Assemblymen now sitting.

Both houses are held to contain legislators de facto, and the lower house will continue to be made up of de facto membership until Dec. 31. The present Senators will serve as representatives of the districts they now represent until Dec. 31, 1908. It is the opinion here to-night among the best informed and most influential legislative leaders that another apportionment will not be attempted this year, but that the apportionment of 1894 will be allowed to come in by default. Such procedure would result probably in bringing about a reapportionment in 1908, which, of course, would apply to the Senators and Assemblymen to be elected that year.

The political effect of the action of the court is far reaching. If there is no apportionment by this Legislature, the 150 Assemblymen to be elected in November will be elected according to the apportionment of 1894. Broome again would have two Assemblymen where it now has one; Cattaraugus would be similarly situated; Queens would be reduced from four to three; Monroe, five to four; Westchester, four to three; Kings, twenty-three to twenty-one; Onondaga would have four instead of three, while Albany would make a similar gain; Rensselaer, from two to three. New York neither gains nor loses, as the thirty-five members allowed in 1894 was continued by the Legislature of 1906.

There are several reasons why the legislative leaders among the Republicans do not want to have a new apportionment this year. They have their hands full with the Kelsey case and the public utilities situation. Neither is it a good time for the petty fights and bickerings that would ensue during the "log-rolling" which always it necessary at a reapportionment when the maximum of satisfaction and the minimum of dissatisfaction are being sought.

The leaders who will have the final say, providing, of course, Gov. Hughes does not step in, are saying to-night that the Republicans probably will gain a dozen seats in the Legislature of 1908, if the apportionment of 1894 is used this year. They further say that the country districts will resume their former strength numerically, which was taken from them for the benefit of the cities last year.

It would appear to rest with Gov. Hughes as to whether there is to be apportionment legislation. If he should send a message urging it, there is likelihood that the Republican leaders may give in and frame up some kind of a bill, though it will prolong the session two weeks at the very least. If he remains silent, the chance of an apportionment bill showing itself lessens.

As there is not to be an election of Senators this year, the fifty-one Senators were not especially disturbed. It will be for them to "roll their logs" next year for the division of the districts for the election in 1908. If, however, they should fail to reapportion next year, the membership of the Senate would be reduced by one, and the loss would fall on Brooklyn. The decision of the court presents many problems to the Republican and Democratic organizations in New York, Kings, and Queens Counties, and some also to counties like Erie, Westchester, Monroe, Onondaga, Albany, and Rensselaer.

While it would be for the county organizations to act for themselves as regards leaderships, they would have to conform to the old lines, probably, in the election of delegates. What effect it will have on the McClellan-Murphy fight in New York County only the settling of the question—apportionment or no apportionment—will show.

While some of the friends of ex-Gov. Odell professed to see a possible advantage for his followers in New York County if the apportionment of 1894 is used again, the opinion was not generally shared. Herbert Parsons won such an overwhelming victory last year at the primaries, that the advantage that Odell men would gain, if they gained any, would be very small. The Parsons plan was the one adopted for the Senate districts last year, and it was the Parsons plan that was adopted for the Assembly districts by the Board of Aldermen.

KELSEY CAN CALL WITNESSES

But Hearing Mus Come to a Close on April 12.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 3.—State Superintendent of Insurance Otto Kelsey will be permitted, to call such witnesses as he desires to establish his contention that Gov. Hughes was wrong when, in recommending his removal to the Senate, he declared that Mr. Kelsey was incompetent and lacking in force and initiative. This was decided upon at a secret session of the Senate Judiciary Committee to-day by a vote of 9 to 4.

While Kelsey's friends claim a victory in this decision, they suffered a serious set-back in another direction. They had prepared to fight for unlimited delay, and, if possible, a hearing before the open Senate, but they were defeated in this; a time limit was fixed by which the hearings must come to a close by April 12. The resolution adopted reads as follows:
